CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

CQ-0/Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chang

SUPPLEMENT

TO THE

Glossarp

BY THE LATE

SIR H. M. ELLIOT, K. C. B.

BENGAL CIVIL SERVICE.

Reprinted by Authority.

Independently of the facts relating to property in land, the award adverts to several customs, not less curious than interesting; and some light might be thrown on the relations of the ancient inhabitants of India with Western nations, were some of our zealous young Orientalists in India, fresh from their classical associations, to furnish the public with minute accounts of ceremonies at present practised; not taken from Sanscrit works, but noted down from personal observation, and chiefly from the rural population in Western India.

Col. Sykes, on the land Tenures of the Deccan.

ROORKEE:

PRINTED AT THE THOMASON COLLEGE PRESS.

1860.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

Extract G. O., No. 450, dated 11th May, 1844, in-reply to a letter from the Sudder Board of Revenue, N. W. P., No. 75 A. dated 9th Feby. 1844.

The LIEUT.-GOVERNOR has perused this interesting Volume with much gratification, and is very desirous that the curious matter it contains should not be exposed to the risk of loss from the existence of a single copy, or to perversion from the ignorance of transcribers. His Honor, therefore, requests the Board will take measures for having it printed at once under the immediate eye of their Secretary.

From

THE SUDDER BOARD OF REVENUE,

NORTH WESTERN PROVINCES.

To

THE SECY. TO THE GOVT.,

NORTH WESTERN PROVINCES.

No. 75 A. of 1844.

Dated 9th Feb. 1844.

SIR,

With reference to the Order of the Government of India, No. 913 of 1842, dated 14th December, such portions of the Glossary of Indian Terms, then and subsequently received in this Department, as have undergone consideration and amendment, are herewith returned to be laid before the Hon'ble the Lieut.-Governor.

- 2.—The Sudder Board have great satisfaction in forwarding to the Government, for submission to the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, the accompanying Supplemental Glossary prepared in accordance with the expressed wishes of the Hon'ble Court, by Mr. H. M. Elliot, the Secretary to the Sudder Board, N. W. Provinces.
- 3.—The Board have perused this Supplemental Glossaby with feelings of very great interest and satisfaction, and are persuaded it will be found to contain, so far as the limits allow, nearly all, if not all, the terms of known acceptation in the North Western Provinces, relating to the Revenue and Agricultural concerns of the country; which, together with the very excellent commentary on the various tribes coming within the assigned limits, cannot but be regarded as a highly valuable addition to the original Glossary.
- 4.—Adverting to the great ability and research which have been displayed in the performance of so considerable a portion of the work, the Board beg to express an earnest request that Mr. Elliot may receive such notice from the Government and the Hon'ble the Court of Directors, as will encourage him to bring the work to an early completion.

We have the honor to be, &c.,

(Signed)

T. J. TURNER.

H. S. BOULDERSON.

SUDDER BOARD OF REVENUE, N. W. PROVINCES.

Memorandum.

As several months have elapsed since the receipt of the first Parts of the Glossary of Indian Terms, no further delay should occur in returning them to Government, under the Orders, dated 14th December, 1842, No. 913.

The Board will regret to observe that the call for further information has not been responded to, except to a very limited extent, by any of the Officers under their control. Being therefore apprehensive that the Hon'ble Court of Directors, who have shown so much anxiety to prepare a comprehensive Glossary, may feel some disappointment at receiving no additions or suggestions from these Provinces, I have ventured to put together a few notices respecting the tribes, the customs, the fiscal and agricultural terms of this Presidency, in the hope that if they are found to convey any information not hitherto recorded, they may be deemed worthy of being incorporated with the work which is about to be compiled under the superintendence of Professor H. H. Wilson.

I have confined my attention chiefly to the words included under these four heads, though I observe, from entries in the Printed Specimens, that if the scheme of the Glossary is fully carried out, it will include terms of Hindoo Mythology and Astronomy, an account of the principal Festivals, and much which will perhaps have to be excluded, on a revision. I have not attempted to meddle with such subjects, on which there are several books which contain ample information; and even in such departments as I have undertaken, I have endeavoured for the most part to avoid words which may be found in the For a few terms I have been indebted common Dictionaries. to the Revenue Glossaries furnished to the Sudder Board in A. D. 1839; but I believe the extent of my obligations is confined to those of Saugor and Goruckpoor. It has been part of my plan to introduce Articles on the old, and locally known, territorial Divisions of the country, as a subject not only highly interesting in itself, but as being intimately connected with the fiscal portion of the work. Indeed, such Articles as Desh, Furingistan, Futtehpoor, &c. &c. in the PRINTED GLOSSARY show that the admission of such words is in conformity with the views of the Court.

The ethnological remarks I have tried to curtail as much as possible; but, with all my efforts, I fear that many notices will be considered very tedious. As some excuse, however, it may be mentioned that we are still almost as ignorant of the agricultural Classes of these Provinces, as we were on the first day of our occupation, and that even their Names are entirely omitted from the Printed Glossary, though the tribes of the Deccan, Guzerat, and other Provinces, are not only copiously noticed, but we are referred to an Appendix for fuller information respecting them. The Maps which have been added in illustration of this part of the subject will, I trust, be found of interest. Their preparation has been attended with considerable difficulty, but no pains have been spared to make them as correct as circumstances would admit.

I have not, except in very few instances, pointed out the mistakes in the Glossary itself; for the errors, both of orthography and statement, are so obvious, that they cannot escape the notice of the Compiler. As for my own orthography, I do not profess to be satisfied with it, since most of the words have been taken from oral information; and as they have perhaps never yet been written, and their pronunciation is by no means fixed, the liability to error is very great. In writing them I have endeavoured, as far as possible, to conform to the system of Gilchrist—or rather that modification of it in use in our Revenue Surveys—which certainly has the merit of enabling an Englishman to pronounce a word in such a manner as to make it easily comprehended by the Natives of Hindoostan. Sir W. Jones's method is better suited to the learned; but since it is becoming of more general use, and our Books and Translations multiply, I have added a column for its admission, as far, at least, as respects the vowel system.

( VII )

As my attempts to illustrate the barren themes which occupy these pages take up much time, and as they may, after all, be considered of no value, I shall for the present conclude with the letter J (to which the Specimen last received extends); and shall be guided respecting the continuation of the work by the opinion which the Compiler may be pleased to express of this first portion of my labours. If he judge of its merits by the extent of his own information on all the subjects discussed in it, he may be disposed to think that my time might have been more profitably employed. Even my own partiality cannot conceal from me that there is in this Supple-MENT much worthless matter, which ought not to have been admitted; but as the revision would occupy nearly as much time as the original composition, I prefer allowing my Notes to remain in their present shape, in the full persuasion that the Honorable Court will overlook all minor defects, in consideration of my earnest endeavours to fulfil their desires.

> H. M. ELLIOT, Secretary.

SUDDER BOARD OF REVENUE, THE 1ST FEBRUARY 1844.

> असा प्रतिश भिवेश भाद्यासम प्रस्तकालय मेनोसाल

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

Supplemental Glossary

OF TERMS

USED IN THE

NORTH WESTERN PROVINCES.

A

ABAD, र्हे चाबाद

Literally, as stated in the Printed Glossary, "abode, residence;" but more frequently used in the N. W. Provinces as cultivated, flourishing, populous.

Abadan is used in the same, but, as the "Furhung-i-Rusheedee" observes, in a somewhat intensive, sense.—Abadanee signifies prosperity, population.—Abadkar is a settler on waste land.

Abad is frequently used in combination with a proper name to denote a city as Hyder-abad Shahjehan-abad. When used in construction with a Hindee name or vocable, it generally denotes that the termination has been changed from bas when to abad in the "Thus the Brahminabad, mentioned in the "Chuchnamu," and "Tohfut-òòl-Giram," was originally Brahminbas, or Bamunwas.—See Hurbong ka Raj.

Abee ुँ। त्राबी ábí

Irrigated land; from ab in water. The word, though of general application, is more exclusively applied in Central Doab to land irrigated from tanks, jheels, and streams. As the supply of water is generally precarious, the rent paid for such land is about one-half of that which is paid for land irrigated from wells.

ábád

Abeej খুঞ্জীল abíj

Grain that does not germinate: the same as Nirbeej. From মু a or নিৰ্ nir priv. and beej বীল seed.

ABKAR, अध्या अध्यार ábkár

A distiller, a vender of spirituous liquors. Abkarce, or the tax on spirituous liquors, is noticed in the Glossary.

With the initial A unaccented, Abkar means agriculture.

Aвраянее, آبپاشی आवपाधी ábpáshí

Irrigation of fields ; from ab آب water, and pasheedun پاشیدی to sprinkle.

Adabundee, ادابندي च्रदाबंदी adábandí

The fixing a period for the performance of a contract or payment of instalments. From ada اها performance, and bustun بنتن or bundun بنتن to bind.

Adhbutaee, נספּיִגולים স্থাঘৰटাई ádhbatáí

Division of produce in equal shares; from adha ادها half, and butaee, يَتَانَى division.

Adhela, ১৯৯০ সুটলা adhela Half a pice, comprising 12½ dams, or 4 dumrees, q. v.

Adhelee, ادهیلی त्रधेलो adhelí

Half a Chout, Hea, q. v. A measure used for corn.—Saugor. Small fractional divisions of land.— Gurhwal.

Also, eight annas, or half a rupee.

ADHELIA, তি সুথিলিয়া adhelia Adhelia, or Adhia signifies a proprietor of a half share.

Adhiar, ادهیار अधियार adhiar

A man who passes half his time in one village, and half in another, is said adhiar kurna; called adhbar in Rohilcund.

Adhiar differs from paheekasht, in as much as adhiar implies that there are two establishments, one in each of the two villages which are visited.

3

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

Adhiaree, ادهیاری त्रिधयारी adhiarí

A half share. The root adha (23), half, enters into the composition of all these words.

Adhikaree, انهكاري স্থান্সানী adhikarí

Proprietor; holder of a right or privilege. From the Sanscrit খ্রাঘ above, upon; and ক্ল make.

Adhkuchcha, ১৯৯০) স্থান্ধৰা adhkachcha

A soil lying between the land named Puhara and the Turaee in the District of Scharunpoor.

Adhkuree, তিত্ৰস্থা স্থান্ধ্বী adhkarí

An instalment of eight annas in the Rupee, or half of the Government Juma.

AEENDAN, الكين الله आईनदान áíndán

From aeen, آئين a law, and danistun دانستن to know—a man who practises on the simplicity of his neighbours by his knowledge of the Regulations of Government.

A lawyer, a rogue. The use of these terms as synonymes shews that the learned profession of the law is not held in high estimation in these parts. The common people are disposed to agree with Sir Hudibras.

He that with injury is grieved And goes to law to be relieved, Is sillier than a Scottish chouse, Who when a thief has robb'd his house Applies himself to cunning men To help him to his goods again: When all he can expect to gain Is but to squander more in vain.

AEWARA, १९०० हेवारा aiwara

A cow-shed in the middle of a jungle, according to the "Gharaib-òòl-Loghat" of Khan Arzoo. The "Tohfut-òòl-Loghat" does not notice it.

AG, HANEE, اگہذی ऋगहनी ag'haní

The produce of part of the Khurcef season, or of the month of Ag,hun, 1829.

4

Agor, १९९१ च्रागार agói

Agor, or Agorya, is a man appointed to keep watch over crops; from agorna wyst to watch. The term is used chiefly in Benares, rarely in the North West.

AGOUND, اگوند त्रुगोंद agaund

The top of the Sugar-cane cut up for seed; in distinction to Bel ka beej, in which the whole cane is cut up into six or seven pieces. The division of the cane is much more minute in some places. Pat comprises the leaves at the top. Ag, Agao, Agoura, Agin, and Goundee are the names given to a few inches below the Pat. Kancha, called also Goollee, Pulwa, and Phòòngee, consists of about a foot below the Ag, and is chiefly used for seed. The rest of the cane is called Gande, Gunda, and Gunna.

Agour, और agaur

An advance of rent paid by Asamces to Zemindars in the months of Jet'h and Asarh.—E. Oudh. The word is derived from age [5], before, beyond.

A salt pit. Ahuree is the name of the small compartment within it.

It is stated by some authorities that this word is the origin of the name of the imperial city of Agra, and from the brackish nature of the soil and water there is no improbability in the statement; but Necamut Oòlla, in his History of the Afghans, gives a very different account. He says that Sultan Secunder Lodi, after getting on board a boat at Muttra, asked his steerer which of the two heights before them was fittest for building. On which the steersman replied, "that which is a-head (Agra) is the best." At this the Sultan smiled and said, "the name of this town, then, which I design to build, shall be Agra." This must be altogether an imaginary dialogue; besides which, it is not likely the steersman would speak Sanscrit to the Emperor. It is evident, moreover, that Secunder was not the founder of Agra, as is generally reported, though he may have built the fort of Badulgurh; for the capture of it is celebrated in the verses of a Ghuzni poet in the time of Musaaod, the son of Ibrahim, the grandson of the great Mahmood; and it is even acknowledged to have been an old city before the time of the Afghans, in the auto-biography of Jehangeer, whose veracity need not be impeached in passages where he has no occasion to indulge in the "Ercles' vein" respecting the achievements of himself or his ancestors. The verses mentioned above, which commemorate the capture of Agra, begin.

We need not stop to consider whether this Kascedah was really written in the time of Musacod* the Third. If it was, it may be considered a curious relic, as we have no other record of the capture of Agra by that monarch. There is, however, in Ferishta mention of the conquests made in India during his reign.

"In his reign Hajib Toghantugeen proceeded in command of an army towards Hindoostan, and being appointed Governor of Lahore, crossed the Ganges, and carried his conquests farther than any Mussulman had hitherto done, except the Emperor Mahmood. Like him he plundered many rich cities and temples of their wealth, and returned in triumph to Lahore, which now became in some measure the capital of the Empire."

The "Hubeeb òòs Seir," "Rouzut òòs Sufa," and "Tubkat-i Akberee" preserve no memorial of this interesting expedition. We may probably be able to get some more information on the subject from the long promised "Kitab-al-Yamini."

Agur, भी न्त्रगर् agar

Aloe wood; lignum aloes—(Aquilaria agallocha, Roxb.) It emits a pleasant odour when burnt, and forms one of the chief ingredients of Native Pastils.

* Mahmood is the name given in nearly every copy; but Ibrahim had no son of that name,

6

0

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

Aguree, آگري त्रागरी ágarì

A manufacturer of Salt.—See Agur.

Agurwala, है। त्रगरवाला agarwala

A large sub-division of the Merchant caste, comprising some of the wealthiest men in India. They derive their name from Agroha, on the borders of Huriana, which was the original seat of the tribe, and from which they emigrated to all parts of India, after the capture of that place by Shahab-òòd-deen Ghoree.—See Goga Peer.

AGUSTWAR, اگستوار अगसतवार agastwar
Is the name of a small clan of Rajpoots in Huvelee Benares.

Agwar, اگوار अगवार agwar

The portion of corn set apart for village servants, like the customary "sharping-corn" of England; so called because it is (age)—the first thing to be taken from the heap. In the East, it is used to signify the perquisites of ploughmen in kind.—See Jeora and T, hapa.

AGWASEE, الواسي त्रगवासी agwásí

The body of the ploughshare.—Eastern Oudh.

AGYEA, اگيا त्रुगैया agaiá

A disease which affects rice, in which the whole plant is dried and burnt up; from Ag & fire.—See K,HYRA.

AHEER, الكيار ऋहीर ahír

The origin of this tribe, as given in the Printed Glossary, cannot be correct; for Koop (properly Gop) signifies merely the occupation of a Herdsman.—Wilson's "Sanscrit Dict." p. 299, 2nd Ed. Menu (X. 15) says, that they are descended from a Brahman by an Ambastha wonam, i. e. one of the Byd, or Physician tribe. In the "Brahma Purana" it is said that they are descended from a Cshatriya father and a woman of the Vaisya caste; but on the question of the descent of the different tribes, the sacred books, as in many other matters, differ very much from each other, and none are to be implicitly trusted.

This pastoral tribe of the Yadubunsee stock was formerly of much greater consideration in India than it is at present. the "Ramayana" and "Mahabharat" the Abhiras in the West are spoken of; and in the Puranic Geography the country on the Western coast of India, from the Tapti to Devagurh is called Abhira, or the region of Cowherds. When the Kattees arrived in Guzerat, in the eighth Century, they found the greater part of the country in possession of the Aheers. The name of Aseergurh, which Ferishta and the "Khuzana Amira" say is derived from Asa Ahcer, shows that the tribe was of some importance in the Deccan also, and there is no doubt that we have trace of the name in the Abiria of Ptolemy, which he places above Patalene. Aheers were also at one time Rajas of Nepal at the beginning of our era, and they are perhaps connected with the Pala,* or shepherd, Dynasty, which ruled in Bengal from the ninth to the latter part of the eleventh Century, and, which, if we may put trust in monumental inscriptions, were for some time the universal monarchs of India. - (As. Researches, Vol. IX., p. 438.)

In the North Western Provinces Aheers are scattered over various Pergunahs. We find them in great numbers in the southern parts of the Dehli territory, from Revaree on the borders of Menat, to the Bikaneer frontier, in a tract of country

* Although it does not follow that the name Pala necessarily implies herdsmen or shepherds, inasmuch as it was held by Jye Pal, Anund Pal, and other historical characters, whom we know to have been Rajpoots, yet it is impossible not to consider that this pastoral title, which is derived from the Sanscrit root पाल preserve, has some connection with the Pastoria Pales of the Romans, the Goddess who presided over flocks and herds, and in whose honour the Palilia, or shepherd festival, was annually celebrated.—(Tibull., II. 5. Varro de Re Rustica, II. 1.)

Mr. Faber ("Origin of Pagan Idolatry," Vol. III. p. 586) would have us believe that the term had still wider extension. "Now the Pali were formerly lords of all India, and from this region they spread themselves at once into Siam, towards the East; into Italy and Ireland, towards the North-West, under the names of Pelasgi and Phailli; and into Egypt and Palestine, towards the South-West, under the appellation of Philitim, or Philistim or Royal Shepherds."!!!

known under the name of BEEG, HOTO, q. v. A dense population of Aheers (Tecklewala) will also be found in a line extending from the Kalanuddee in the neighbourhood of Marchruh, to near Beebameyoo on the Jumna—(see Ataboo); and from Sulempoor Mujhowlee in Goruckpoor to Singrowlee in Mirzapoor. Indeed, the pergunah of Ahrorah in the latter district, though now without Aheer Zemindars, derives its name from them, being called Aheerwara in ancient records. The only districts which in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee" are said to have Aheer Zemindars are Nugeena and Sirdhana.

The Aheers of these provinces all trace their origin to Muttra, or places a little to the West of it. There appear to be three grand divisions amongst them :- the Nundbuns, the Judbuns (Yadoobuns), and Gwalbuns .- (See Gooal.) - which acknowledge no connexion, except that of being all Aheers. Those of the Central Doab usually style themselves Nundbuns; those to the West of the Jumna and the Upper Doab, Judbuns; and those in the Lower Doab and Benares, Gwalbuns. seem to have no sub-divisions, or Gotes. The principal Gotes of the Nundbuns are Sumurphulla, Kishnout, Bhugta, Bilchnia, Diswar, Nugowa, Kunoudha, Doonr, Rawut, Tengoorea, Kor, Kumurea, Burousea, Moojwar, Dahima, Nirban, K,hurkuree, Dirhor, Sectolea, Jurwurea, Burot, hee, Gonda, and Phatuk; amounting in all to 84. In Beeg, hoto, besides many of these, there are the Moluk, Santorea, K, hosea, K, hullea, Loneewal, Aphurea, or Aphirea, Myla, Mhyla, K,horo, Sesotea, Gundwal, Gird, Bhumsura, Janjurea, Kankourea, and Niganea; amounting in all to 64. Many of the two last-named clans have been converted to the Mahometan faith, and are known as Rangurs.*

* This term is more strictly confined to Rajpoots who have been converted to Mahometanism, but there are several tracts in Dehli, particularly in the district of Rohtuk, where the term is indiscriminately applied to Rajpoots, whether Mahometan or Hindoo.

The origin of the term is very doubtful, and those who have attempted its etymology are by no means agreed among themselves.

Tod ("Asiatic Journal," Feb. 1838, p. 107) says, that "Rangri, or Rangra is an epithet applied to all Rajpoot chieftains; from Ringa (in the dialects)

The two villages whence they derive their name, are celebrated in local legends for turbulence and contumacy.

दिहली तें पेंतीस के।स कांहीर निगाना ज्यपनी बोर्ड ज्याप खारां हाकिम ने नदें दाना

Dehli te pyntees kos Kanhour Niganu;**
Upnee bocc ap k,haen, hakim ne† nu-den danu.

Amongst these, the K,horo rank first; but their claim to superiority is denied by the Aphirea, who have certainly in modern times attained the highest distinction. They all, including the K,horo intermarry on terms of equality, avoiding, like all other Aheers, only the 4 Gotes nearest related. A man for instance, cannot marry into his father's, mother's, paternal, or maternal grandmother's Gotes; and no intermarriages take place between distant clans. Thus, those of the Doab and Boxg,hoto hold little or no personal intercourse, and each declares the other an inferior stock.

The Enc. Metropol. (Art. "Dehli") says, "Rangars i. e. turncoats, are Mahomedan renegadoes from the Hindu faith."

Mr. H. T. Prinsep, in a note to p. 443 of his "Life of Ameer Khan," says, "Ranghras are the lower classes bordering on the Western Desert. They are all thieves and robbers, and mostly Moosulmans," He does not attempt the origin of the name.

Franklin, at p. 275 of his "Memoirs of G. Thomas," says, "Rangurs are Mahomedan Rajpoots," and suggests, like the Enc. Metr., that the word implies coloured, or stained, or of mixed blood.

implies coloured, or stained, or of mixed blood.

Sir J. Malcolm ("Central India" ii. 123) says, "that all the Brahmins of Central India, except those who came from the Deccan, are classed by the Mahralta conquerors as Rangree, or barbarous." At vol. ii. p. 191 he says, "the language taught in Central India is a dialect of the Hindui, termed Rangree, which prevails from Bundlecund to the Indus." Again, at p. 304, he observes, "the Rajpoots say the word is derived from Run, signifying battle, and Gurh a fort, an epithet asserted to have been given them by one of the Kings of Dehli expressive of their bravery; but the Mahraltas say, that the derivation is from Ran a forest, and Gurree a barbarian."

The probabilities are in favor of the Sanscrit र्या ran, battle-so that Rangur would mean " a warrior .. "

* This is the account they themselves give of their origin, but as Kanhour and Niganu are occupied by Powar Rangurs, and Kan-k-ourea can scarcely be derived from Kan-h-our, I do not place much confidence in their assertion.

Popular legends, however, are not easily disproved.

† This troublesome little particle Ne, this "inexplicable and redundant expletive" of Gilchrist, is used instead of Ko in Dehli and the Upper Doab. Thus, hum ne deea, instead of "I gave," is, "gave to me." This is the most puzzling of all the idioms of the local dialect of Upper India, particularly to an European who has taken infinite trouble to learn the correct use of ne. It is not improbable that ne was originally used as a post-position. It is easy to interpret many sentences under this construction.

Aheers conform to the customs of Goojurs and Jats in respect to the marriage of elder brothers' widows, wherever they are much intermixed, as in the Dehli territory; but, the Aheers of the Central Doab forswear all connexion with those tribes, which they consider of an inferior grade; but as each of these tribes, as well as the Ahur, q. v. claims the superiority, it is not easy to settle their comparative rank, and the difficulty is increased, with regard to the latter, by the close similarity of name. In the Dehli territory, the Aheers eat, drink, and smoke, in common, not only with Jats and Goojurs, but also, under a few restrictions, with Rajpoots. In other places, Rajpoots would indignantly repudiate all connection with Aheers.

Besides the families above-mentioned, names are also given according to the place of residence. Thus we have the Dhoondaree of Mewar; the Hurianea of Huriana; the Poorubee, of the Eastward; the Birjia, of Brij: the Kohkohee of the Bindachul Hills; and the Punjabee of Lahore.

AHEETA, তুরু সুহীতা ahíta

A person appointed to watch the grain when it is ripe, and see that none of it is carried away before the demand is paid. The word is Hindee, and has no connexion with the Arabic watching, preserving.

AHERYA, व्या अहेरिया aherya

A fowler, a sportsman.—See Dнаноок.

Ahud, अहट ग्रहद ahad

An agreement, or contract. Ahudnama is the written document containing an agreement.

Ahuddar, अध्याप अहददार ahaddar

Literally, holder of a contract. An Officer of the Moghul Government, who for a commission of 2 or 3 per cent engaged for the revenue of a district, and made himself responsible for the balance.

11

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

Ahur, । जाहर áhar Ahuree, विद्

A small pond; smaller than a Pok,hur, and Tulao, and larger than a Tulya and Muroo. These two last words are chiefly in use to the Eastward. In Dehli, and the neighbourhood, Johur is a large pond, Joree is a middling sized one, and Let is a small one, more resembling a puddle. Thus, Let panee bursa means "it has rained but little." Higher proportions are indicated by Còònr panee bursa, "it has rained a furrow full"—Keearee bhur, "to the extent of the bed of a garden"—Naka tor panee bursa, "the embankment has broken by the violence of the rain."

Tulao in Delhi is applied generally only to such tanks as are lined with Masonry.

In the Doab and Rohilcund, the words more generally known are, Sagur, Tulao, Pok, hur, Dubra, And, Liwar, Tuluree, and Gurhya, or Gurhela;—Sagur being the largest.

Ahur is also a salt-pit, a trough for watering cattle, a drain.

Ahur, ्रे अहर ahar

Ahurs are found on the banks of the Ramgunga, and in Sumbhul, Rujpoora, Usudpoor, Oojhanee, and Saheswan, and some other Pergunahs in Rohilcund, West of that river. These tracts, indeed, are known familiarly under the name Ahurat. They are also found in great numbers in Fyzpoor Budurea, and the country in the neighbourhood, between the Ganges and Bòodh Gunga. They have Hooka pance (smoke and drink) in common with Jats and Goojurs, but disclaim all connexion with Aheers, whom they consider an inferior stock; and the Aheers repay the compliment. Ahurs say they are descended from Jadonbunsee (Yadu) Rajpoots; but Aheers say that they themselves are the real Jadonbunsee, being descended in a direct line from Crishna, and that Ahurs are descended from the cowherds in the service of that illustrious Avatar, and that the inferiority of Ahurs is fully proved by their eating fish and milking cows. From the slight difference in the pronunciation of the two names, it is very difficult to ascertain what are the distinctive features in the two tribes. They are almost universally confounded by other classes; and very often disagree in the accounts of their own genealogies. Some of the most noted tribes of the Ahurs in the N. West are Bhuttee, Nugawut, Nougoree, Rookur, Basean, Ora, Bukeeain, Diswar, Bhooseeain, and Birrurea.—See Aheer.

Parsley. (Apium involucratum). The word, which is also used in Persian, is derived from the Sanserit मृज a goat, and मुद् to rejoice.

Perquisite of the lower castes from the threshing floor.— Benares. The word is derived from Anjula or Anjulee, i. e. as much as one can carry in two hands joined.

Advances, particularly to agricultural laborers.—Eastern Oudh. Agrowrhee is used in a similar sense in Beiswara. Both words are perhaps derived from age, before, in advance.

Gigantic Swallow-wort, (Asclepias Gigantea). It is a common shrub all over upper India, and is celebrated in the Talleef-i-Shureef for its many valuable properties. It is of high repute amongst the Indian practitioners, and at one time much attracted the notice of European Physicians. The plant is more commonly known under the name of Mudar.

Ak is also a sprout of Sugar Cane.

0

Akas Bel, اکاسی بیل आकास बेल ákás bel

The air creeper (Cuscuta reflexa?). It has no root or leaves, but grows luxuriantly on the tops of trees. It is from this circumstance that the name is derived—Ahas meaning in Hindee, the sky, the atmosphere. It is also called Umur Bouria, or the undying creeper, and under this name is much used in native medicine as a remedy for rheumatism, and in Alchemy is considered very efficacious as a transmuter of metals.

Ak,HA, रिश्री त्राखा ák'há

A pair of grain bags used as a pannier.

Ak,нтееј, ह्याँश्री ऋखतीज ák'htíj

The 18th day of the month Bysak,h, upon which frequently the obligations incurred by the Agriculturists to enable them to provide for the cultivation of the Rubbee season are adjusted, on the principle explained in the article Bura-bhao.

The Bura Bhao system prevails most to the East, and Ak,h-teej ka Bhao to the West. The Ak,hteej is to the Rubbee, what the Devalee is to the Khureef—the day appointed for settling the accounts of the past harvest. It is proper to commence the manufacture of agricultural implements, and to feed Brahmins on the Ak,hteej, as well as to eat new grain, which scrupulous men generally forbear doing till the return of this auspicious festival. A plough is also slightly passed over the fields, as the ceremony is supposed to secure good luck; but to sow seed on that day, except on certain conditions, is expressly forbidden in the points and precepts of some Oriental Tusser.

पेर माउस मूल बिन बिन रीहिनी खेतीज स्वया सलोनो बारि क्यां बखेरे बीज

Poce Mawus Mool bin, bin Rohinee K,heteej, Surwun Sulono bare, keoon buk,here beej.

The practice of engaging for a short time in the ordinary occupation from which the means of subsistence are derived was also observed by the Roman handicraftsmen on New Year's day—

Tempora commisi nascentia rebus agendis,
Totus ab auspicio ne foret annus iners.
Quisque suas artes ob idem delibat agendo,
Nec plus quam solitum testificatur opus.
Ov. Fast. I. 170.

The name of this festival is derived from  $\exists priv$ .  $\exists u$  decay, and  $\exists l$  third; the undying 3rd of the lunar half of Bysak,h; or 18th, according to the usual computation: "the consequences of meritorious actions performed on this day being permanent, as it is the first day of the  $Satya\ Yuga$ , or the anniversary of Creation."— $Sanscrit\ Dict.,\ p.\ 4$ .

Akor, १९९१ च्रकीर akór,

A bribe. Hence it is applied in the North West to the coaxing a cow, or buffalo, which has lost its calf, to eat grain. The same process is called Toria in Benares.

Akor, or Kor, as it is sometimes pronounced, is also applied to the food which a labourer eats in the intervals of work in the open field.

Akra, रिहा चिकरा akrá,

A grass, or vetch, which grows in fields under spring-crop, creeping round the stem of the young plant, and checking its growth; (Vicia Sativa.) Akra, or Ankree, as it is often called, is something like the Musoor, and it used as fodder for cattle.

Akun, ्री त्राकन ákan

Grass and weeds collected from a ploughed field.—See GODHUR.

Aкуа, ा च्रिजेया akaia

One of the sacks or baskets of a pannier.

AL, 🎝 त्राल ál

The "Morinda Citrifolia." Its roots give a permanent red dye to the well-known K, harooa cotton cloth. It is said in the "Mòòalijat-i-Dara-Shikohee" to be the same as Munjeet; but the latter is the "Rubia Tinctorum," or, perhaps more correctly, the "Rubia Cordifolia." The plant, which is very hardy and rarely ever affected by drought, is generally considered not to be productive till the third year of its growth. It is cultivated in several provinces of India. In the Peninsula, the best quality comes from Mysore. In the N. W. Provinces, the Al of Hutta and Bundelcund is the most prized: and the chief Emporium of its sale is Moosanugur in the Doab. It is grown only in Mar and Cabur soils, and, when ripe, is dug out of the ground with narrow pickaxes; every care being taken to prevent the small roots sustaining injury, from the bark of which the most valuable portion of the dye is extracted. It is not an exhausting crop, and is usually followed by gram.

Al is also sometimes used in the North West for a Pana, or division of a village.

ALA, ट्रेडी त्राला álá

Highest; from the Arabic sublime.

ALA. भे त्राला álá

Wet; moist; land saturated with water, especially with rain water. This is the correct word, but it is provincially pronounced Al, Ahul, Alee, and Ael.

ALEE, الي त्राली álí

A land measure equivalent to four Beesees. Nine Alee go to a Joola.—Gurhwal and Kumaon.—See further under the articles Beesee and Joola.

ALEEA, पूर्ण त्रालीया álía

A branch of the Toorkea sub-division of Bunjaras.—See Bunjara.

Almaree, المارى त्रलमारी almárí

A chest of drawers; a book-case. The word is said to be derived from the Portuguese ulmaria, which, though its aspect is rather Arabian, is itself perhaps derived from the Low Latin almaria, the archives of a chuch or library.

Alo, अं त्राली álo

The word is in use in Benares in the same sense as Dudree, q. v. to signify a portion of unripe corn.

Aloof, الوف त्रालुफ़ alúf

Thousands; plural of the Arabic (alf). This word is found in most of the Semitic languages, (Klaproth, "Asia Polyglotta" p. 107), but its actual value varies in some of them;—thus, it signifies ten thousand in the Amharic.

ALTA, धाँ ग्रालता álta

Was till lately on our Tariff. It consists of balls of cotton impregnated with lac dye, and manufactured in all large towns where jungle produce is procurable. It is more generally known by the name of "Muhawur."

ALTUMGHA, धिंद्री त्रालतमगा áltamghá

A royal grant, which the British Government have declared to convey a title to a rent-free tenure in perpetuity.

Altumgha is derived from two Toorkee words, Al and Tumgha; both which signify the royal signet. Al in Persian implies also a scarlet colour سرخ نيم رنگ را گريند and therefore it has been supposed to mean the Emperor's red Signet; (Gladwin says, "a red patent," and Harington, in his "Analysis" I, 4, "a red seal-from which its name is derived"): but it may be doubted if the Altumgha seal is necessarily a red one; and the "Bòòrhan-i-Kata," the "Furhung-i-Jehangeeree," and the "Huft Kòòlzum," while they give the meaning of scarlet to Al in Persian, and at the same time mention the Hindee Al, noticed in the preceding article—also add that, in Toorkee, "it is the seal and ring of the king", به ترکی مهر و نگین بادشاهي باشد without any special mention of its being a red seal, or a red It would appear, however, from the extract from the "Furhung-i-Rusheedee," given below, that Altumgha originally meant a red seal; and that Al, by itself, was never taken in the sense of signet, except by reason of its having been coupled with Tumgha, to imply that the Tumgha was red.

و بتركي مهر بادشاهان كه انرا التمغا گويند لي مهر سرخ و گاهي بجهت تخفيف تمغا انداخته تنها آل گويند

The assertion therefore rests upon which is the best authority,—the "Bòòrhan-i-Kata," coupled with the "Jehangeeree," or the "Rusheedee." The "Huft Kòòlzum" is a mere copy, and of no weight in such controversies.

17

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

It is difficult to say when Allumgha began first to be used in the Revenue language of India, in the sense either of a seal or grant. In Persia and Central Asia, we have notices of its use at an early period. Towards the close of the 13th Century, the illustrious Ghazan Khan caused the Allumgha, or the imperial seal of state, to be altered from a quadrangular to an oval shape, considered the most auspicious as well as most elegant of all forms, and on this he at the same time directed to be engraved the Mohomedan profession of faith.—(Price's Retrospect of Mahomedan Itistory, Vol. 11., p. 612).

Again, Timoor bestows upon the son of Bajazet the Government of Anatolia, under a Patent containing the impression of his hand in red ink.—(Ibid: Vol. III., p. 423; and Sherefeddin, Lib: v, Cap. 60): but it is not stated whether the title of this Patent was Altumgha. In the Institutes of this Tyrant, we find no mention of any thing but Tumgha, and that with a different meaning.

But, with respect to India, the term certainly does not appear to have been in common and practical use in the fiscal language of the country in Akber's time; though, as we have seen from the extract just quoted, it is mentioned in the "Furhung-i-Jehangeeree", which was compiled at his dictation and dedicated to his son; but then it is to be considered that the authority of certain Poets is given for its use; -which would of itself seem to imply that the word was a foreign importation, and up to that time had merely found admission into dictionaries, and literary compositions. It is not once mentioned in the passage on Seyoorghal, in his Institutes; the perusal of which chapter, by the way, would afford an instructive lesson to those who assert that the Moghul Government never resumed Rent-free Tenures; for in it we have the very founder of the system enjoining resumption, and getting more and more exasperated at the shameless frauds practised upon the Exchequer even by his own officers. Yet notwithstanding this apparently modern introduction of the word, it is to be feared that some grants, purporting to be Allumgha of his reign, have been released by our Officials.

We find frequent mention of the word Tumgha in his time, but so far from conferring a privilege or immunity, it meant only a tax, or tribute, when applied fiscally.

In the following passage Baj &! is coupled with Tumgha,

و چنان کند که پیرامون باج و تمغا نکرده مگر از سلاح و فیل و اسپ و شتر و گاو و گوسفند و بز و قماش در هر صوبه اندکی در یکجا ستانند

Tungha is again called a Tax which is raised in excess of the Land Revenue.

ممر در زمان خود از بیگانگان بآئین خویش در اعلی چهل و هشت درم و اوسط بیست و چهار و ادنی درازده گرفت و آنرا جزیه نام نهاده اند و در هر ملکی جز کشتکار از مال صودم چیزی خواهند و آنرا تمغا گویند و در توران و ایران بوخی را بعنوان مال بر گیرند

In one of the general Firmans issued by him in the 37th year of his reign, by which he justly earned the love of his subjects, and admiration of posterity, he remits the Tumgha, Baj, and Zekat, on all articles, with a few exceptions.

و دیگر اشیا و اسباب و امتعه و اجناس که مدار معاش جمهور انام و ملاک معیشت خواس و عوام است سواي اسپ و فیل و شتو و گوسفند و بزو اسلحه و قماش که در تمامي ممالک محووسه تمغا و باج و زکولا و صدیک و انچه رز قلیل و کثیر میگرفته اند معاف و موفوع القلم بوده باشد

This is differently translated by Dr. Bird in his History of Guzerat, in which he calls Tungha "vested interest," and it must be confessed it is used in that sense in one of Akber's letters to Abdòòlla Khan Uzbek.

In "Timoor's Institutes" (Book II. p. 308) Tumgha is spoken of as pay, or personal allowance, and therefore approaches nearer to our modern meaning.

و امر نمودم که از جمله چهل اریماق که بعیطهٔ ضبط درآمده درازده اریماق را تمغا نمایند که از جمله نوکران خاصه باشند

In the following passage it also means a stipend, according to "White's translation," p. 361; or, a body-mark, according to Colonel Galloway's "Law and Constitution of India," p. 87. The context shews that either may be correct.

These passages serve to shew that the word Tumgha must have somewhat altered its meaning since its first importation into Hindoostan; but they do not enable us to determine at what period Tumgha, or Altumgha, grants were first made.

We have already seen that they do not appear to have been introduced up to Akber's time; and with respect to his successor, Jehangeer, we find him in his auto-biography, so far from asserting that a red seal was exclusively devoted to Altumghas, saying expressly that he changed the seals of Jageer Patents from mixed gold and vermilion to gold alone.

From these remarks it is to be gleaned, that the period of the introduction of even the word Attumgha is a problem in Sphragistics which still remains to be solved; and though it appears to have been used in its present sense in Persia and Tòòrkistan before the establishment of the Moghul dynasty in India, yet there seems reason to conclude that some time elapsed before the term was generally introduced into this country; and we are therefore justified in looking on any Altumgha grant older than Shahjehan with strong suspicion.

That it was not necessarily a rent-free grant, the British Government themselves had incontrovertible evidence, in that they stipulated to pay 26 lacs per annum for their Altumgha Firman from Shah Alum, A. D. 1765. It was, nevertheless, proclaimed by our Government that a grant of this nature was rent-free, and conveyed, moreover, an hereditary and transferable right. That the native subordinates of our Government were anxious to persuade us to that effect was naturally to be expected, and that the European Functionaries were glad to assent to any opinion uttered by men who professed to have a knowledge of the laws and customs of the country, was also to be expected; but that the same opinion should have been entertained and confirmed when the Regulations came subsequently to be enacted, is somewhat surprising, for there was much to make us pause before we committed ourselves to so positive a declaration. In several instances evidence had been given which was opposed to the construction finally adopted by the Government.

20

In the case of Julal-òod-Deen versus Mehir-òon-Nissa Begum, tried before the Provincial Council of Patna, in September 1774, the Amanut Officer, whose authority should have carried with it some weight, says, "from the reign of the kings of old, the orders of one king have continued valid, but it is now the ancient custom for the possessors of Altunghas and Mudua Mashes to be turned out or removed." And we know that Nuwab Mahomed Reza Khan resumed several Altumgha grants in the year 1766, after the Demance was granted to the Company; which he would scarcely have ventured to do, had he not been authorized by the practice of the country.—(See "Colebrooke's Digest," III. 238, and "Extracts from Official Records regarding Mafee," p. 16). It is therefore the more remarkable that we gave such ready acquiescence to representations not only entirely opposed to our own interests, and to the customs, laws, and records of the country, but frequently to the very language and tenor of the documents which purported to be Altumgha.

Amanee, الماني अमानी amání

Land managed by a Collector on the part of Government;—called also Kham and Khas. The Regulations have given the word greater currency in the Benares Province than elsewhere.

The literal meaning is, Security, Deposit; from the Arabic

Aмет,ніа, امیتّهیا अमेटिया amet'hia

A tribe of Chouhan Rajpoots of the Bandhulgotee sub-division, of whom a few have settled in Sulempoor Mujhowlee, in the District of Goruckpoor. They came from Amet, hee in Oudh.

AMUL PUTTA, عمل پته अमल पट्टा aml patta
AMUL SUNUD عمل سند अमल सनद aml sanad
AMUL DUSTUK, عمل دستگ अमल दस्त्रक aml dastak

A deed appointing an agent, or granting authority to collect rents. From the Arabic Jos action practice, rule.

21

ANA,

७ जाना

ána

A native land measure equal to 16 Roosees. Sixteen Anas go to a Kancha.—Sauger.

The sixteenth part of a rupee—which is usually written by Europeans, anna.

The native account books containing the following rule in arithmetical poetry for converting annas into rupees:

Ana jor ekhut,ha kure Ta men se ek ank pure Adhe kurke kure suwaee Mano rok rupya paee.

That is, put down the numbers of Anas, cut off the final digit, halve the remainder, add a quarter to the half, and you have rupees. Thus 2000 Anas.

100 25 125 Rupees.

ANAJ,

्<sup>ध</sup>। त्रनाज

anáj

Grain.

It is more usually pronouned Naj, but incorrectly, for the word is derived from Sanscrit স্থান food.

Anardana, انار دانة ज्ञनारदाना anárdána

A species of Millet, so called from its resemblance to the seed of the Pomegranate.

Andhee, إندهي त्रंभि ándhí

A hurricane, or storm. The word is pure Hindee, but M. Langles in an amusing note on the travels of Mr. Hodges, presumes that the word is a corruption from the French. "Aoundy. ouragans. J'ignore l'origine de ce mot sur lequel toutes mes recherches ne m'ont procuré aucun renseignement. Je serais tenté de croire qu'il y a erreur de la part de M. Hodges; car plusieurs savans voyageurs que j'ai consultés m'ont avoué ne point connaître ce mot, et ne se rappelaient pas l'avoir entendu prononcer dans l'Inde; peut-être est-ce une corruption du mot Français ondée."

Ang, إنگ áng

This word answers to one meaning of the English Law-term, Agistment—as it signifies the demand on each head of cattle for the right of pasture.—Delhi. This is paid to the proprietor of the land. Beet is that which is paid per head to the cowherd.

Angolnga, रिंग्डिश चंगींगा angaunga

Perquisites from the Threshing-ground to the Brahman, Purohit, Góóroo, Grazier, and Village God.—Benares.

In the North West, the corresponding term is Seaoodee, or T, hapa; and Anjulee in Bundlecund.

From the time of distributing the Angounga to that of weighing, a deep silence is observed, and strangers are carefully excluded. A short time since, a party engaged in this operation were brought before the Magistrate for conniving at a criminal's escape; whereas, they had merely made a sign to him to keep off, and not profane the ceremony with his unhallowed presence.

In Delhi, and the North West, as well as in some parts of Benares, this deep and mysterious silence is observed at an earlier stage of the proceedings. When the corn is ready to be formed into a heap, a man seats himself down with a ploughshare in his hand, which he digs into the ground, and which is supported on each side by some koos grass and cowdung. Another person from behind then throws some corn over the head of the man sitting on the ground, who employs himself in carefully adjusting it around the ploughshare, taking care, all the time, to keep it as much as possible concealed from the gaze of inquisitive persons. When it is well covered he gets up, and every one present assists in forming the heap.

This is the Delhi custom.

In Rohilcund a somewhat different ceremony is observed—after burning a Hom, or a little sacrificial fire, a ploughshare and a pot full of water are placed to the north of the pole round which the bullocks are driven when treading out the corn. The heap of corn is then raised to the south of the plough-share, and not over it, as in Delhi. The subsequent proceedings will find a more appropriate place under Chank.

But, in whatever way the ceremony is observed, during the whole time the strictest silence is observed, and is not to be broken within the threshing ground until the corn is measured out and distributed.

It would be deemed unlucky were any talking to take place; even if an articulation or ejaculation of any kind were made, mischievous sprites would come, and extract much of the strength and substance of the corn. Let us not wonder at the superstition of these simple and ignorant people,-we cannot ourselves yet boast at home of an entire emancipation from similar shackles. Arabella Whimsey says in the "Connoisseur" No. 56,-" I and my two sisters tried the dumb cake together: you must know two must make it, two bake it, two break it; and the third put it under each of their pillows; (but you must not speak a word all the time,) and then you will dream of the man you are to have-after that I took a clean shift, and turned it, and hung it upon the back of a chair; and very likely my sweetheart would have come and turned it right again, but I was frightened, and could not help speaking, which broke the charm." Many similar practices prevail to this day.

It is from the apprehension of a visit from these malignant Goblins that the agriculturists of these provinces commence forming their heaps of winnowed corn either exactly at twelve in the day time, or shortly after twelve at night, at which times sprites are said not to wander—

For then, they say, no spirit dares stir abroad: No fairy takes, nor witch hath power to charm; So hallowed and so gracious is the time.

Hamlet, Act I. Sc. 1.

23

If the work is begun in the day time, and not over by sunset, the party retire from the threshing ground, and do not recommence operations till starlight. The intermediate period being very inauspicious.

These hours do not seem in accordance with those which popular superstition in our own country has vested with mysterious dread and solemnity. The dead of night, till the first cock-crow, is with us the worst period; whereas here, the time immediately after midnight is favorable—

Ferunt vagantes Dæmonas
Lætos tenebris noctium,
Gallo canente exterritos
Sparsim timere et cedere.
Invisa nam vicinitas
Lucis, salutis, numinis, Rupto tenebrarum situ,
Noctis fugat satellites.

During the harvest season, however, of Upper India, the "vicinitas lucis" follows closer upon midnight than it does in the countries whose traditions Prudentius records.

Angourea, انگوريغ त्रीतिंखा angauria

A ploughman. Allowing the use of a plough, instead of paying wages in money or kind.—Benares.

This practice is called JEETERA in Bundlecund and Rohil-cund.

Anguddea, نگتيع angaddia

Said in the Glossary to be applied to persons in the Northern Provinces, who carry money concealed in their quilted clothes. The word may perhaps, therefore, be derived, or somehow corrupted, from Angurk, ha; but it is used, I believe, only in Guzerat, and not in our Northern Provinces, where Rokurea is the term applied to such persons; from Rokur money.

Angun, । । ग्रांगन ángan

A court yard. An enclosed area near a house—Angna is also used in the same sense.

Angwara, انگوارا ग्रंगवारा angwara

The proprietor of a small portion of a village.—Eastern Oudh and Benares.

It is also applied in the former provinces to reciprocal assistance in tillage.

This practice goes by other names, in other parts of the country: see Dungwara, Huree, Hursot, and Jeeta.

The custom, however, is not confined to India: for it is observed in many parts of our own native land. Boon-er and Boen-Harow occur in an old MS. for ploughing and harrowing gratis, or rendering mutual assistance in those occupations. In the north of England the contributed Ploughing Days are called Bone-Dargs; in the same way as a Bon-fire is a contributed fire—a Boon-fire; i. e. a fire made of materials obtained by voluntary aids or donation.

In Wales also this friendly assistance is known by the name of Cymhorth or Cymhortha.

"In some districts of South Wales, all the neighbours of a small farmer without means appoint a day, when they all attend to plough his land, and at such a time it is a custom for each individual to bring his portion of leeks, to be used in making pottage for the whole company; and they bring nothing else, but the leek in particular, for the occasion." "Owen's Cambrian Biography," p. 86. He consequently attributes this as the origin of wearing leeks on St. David's day—I should prefer, however, the reason assigned by the gallant Fluellen.—See Henry V. Act IV., Sc. 7.

The same terms are applied in Wales to a marriage of contribution, which is known in England as a Bride-Ale. The marriages in India also, among the lower classes, bear a resemblance in many respects to a Cymhorth. See "Owen's Welsh Dictionary," and "Popular Antiquites," ii. 91.

Anjula, ध्रञ्जं श्रंजला anjalá

As much as can be held in the cavity formed by joining the two hands together in the shape of a bowl. There is probably some connection between this word and the Greek ankalee, an armful; so, in the "Prometheus Vinetus," akhthos ouk cuankalon, "a burthen not easily grasped."

Anjulee, रिन्री ग्रंजली anjalí

This has the same meaning as Anjula; but is current chiefly in Bundlecund. It is also applied to a mode of salutation by carrying the hands in this form to the forehead.—See also Angounga.

Anjun, ुन्ं। म्रंजन anjan

A grass which grows in great abundance in the Upper Provinces, and is largely used as fodder for cattle.

Anjuna, विद्यो बंजना anjana

An inferior kind of rice,—See DHAN.

Ank, آنک ánk

Figure; unit; number; amount; a share. Hence, Ankdar is used in the Central Doab to signify a sharer.

The initial A is either long or short—both are correct; but the former is most usual in Bhak,ha

Ankbandí चंस्वदी ankbandí

An adjustment of rents asameewar by the Malgòòzar, at the close of each harvest.—See above under Ank.

Anoa, li त्रुन्वा anuá

The place where men stand who throw the Douree, (which see).—See also Beree, Boka, Poudha and Pyrha.

Anola, बिंगुंबला ánola

(Phyllanthus Emblica.) A kind of Myrobalane. The fruit is acid, and is stated in the "Taleef-i-Shureef" to be of great use in cutaneous eruptions, and to be known also as Bijjee and عابري يهل Dhabri Phul.

The tree is worshipped by Agriculturists on the 11th of Phagoon, which day is therefore known by the name of آفردا Anola (Ounla) ekadusee, and on this occasion libations are poured at the foot of the tree, a thread (generally red, or yellow), is bound round the trunk, prayers are offered up for its fruitfulness, and the ceremony is concluded by a Pranam, or reverential inclination of the head to the ancient tree, whose branches wear The marks of village reverence and care.

Megha Dûta v. 158.

A somewhat similar custom is still observed in the South Western Counties of England on the eve of the Epiphany. In the South-hams of Devonshire, a farmer, attended by his workmen, goes with a large pitcher of cider to the orchard, and there encircling one of the best bearing trees, they drink the following toast three several times.

Here's to thee, old apple tree,
Whence thou may'st bud, and whence thou may'st blow!
And whence thou may'st bear apples enow,
Hats full! caps full!
Bushel—bushel—sacks full,
And my pockets full too! Huzza!

(Gent. Mag. 1791, p. 403.)

ANNPURASUN, انَّبُورُاسِي च्रित्तप्रासन annparásan
The first feeding of children with grain; from the Sanscrit च्रित्त ann, food, प्र pru, forth, and স্থান usun, eating; called also पस्नी Pusnee, which appears a mere corruption of Prasunce, formed by the omission of the initial Ann.

The Pusnce takes place (see Menu, 11. 34) usually six months after birth. It is an important ceremony with a Hindoo child, who is then considered to enter on a new stage of life.

• ऋत सूल प्राण प्राण सूल पुरुष पुरुष सूल हरम जदगी Аnsaree, انصاري अनमारी ansárí

A tribe of Sheikhs who now are found chiefly in the Scharunpoor district, Keerulpoor in Bijnore, and the Benares province. They are represented by Abool Fuzl as being the proprietors of Sydpoor Bhitree and Chunar in Akber's time.

They profess themselves to be descendants of the citizens of Medina, who gave the prophet an asylum against his enemies when he fled from Mecca; hence called Ansaree auxiliaries. They appear to have come to this country from Herat in the time of Feroze Shah.—See the "Mirat-i-Jehan," which was compiled from the papers of Mahomed Buka an Ansaree.

Pocock ("Specimen Hist: Arab:" p. 42) says, they are of the tribe of Azb and the family of Khazraj. Alkhazraj; Yathrebi (scil. Medinæ) incolæ qui الانصار al Ansar, Ansarii, scilicet Mohammediæ profugi adjutores, dicti"—deriving his information from Abulfeda.—See p. 473 of White's edition.

الخزرج اهل يثوب المسلمون منهم هم الانصار

It seems, however, more usual among Oriental writers of early Mahometan history to call the inhabitants of Medina generally, Ansaree.

It is strange that this distinguished title should also be given to Christians, by corruption from Nusari—Nazarenes. Vide "D'Herbelot Bibl. Or." voce Ansari. The Ansarees of Syria whom Burckhardt reports to have some idolatrous connexion with the natives of Hindoostan, are a comparatively modern sect, and not any how related to the Ansarees mentioned in this article.

ANTURBED, انتر بيك इंतरबेद antarbed

The old name for the lower Doab, extending from about Etawah to Allahabad. Occasionally it is used to signify the whole Doab—Thus, Cuchwahas are said by the Poet Chand to be in Anturbed; and it does not seem probable that they were in any numbers except in the Upper Doab—(see Cuchwahas), The word is now seldom used, except by Sanscrit scholars. In that language, it bears much the same meaning as Doab, signifying the level country intervening (i. c. between the Ganges and Jumna)—from Art between and at level earth.

Aokan, हिंदी जावे। जावे

Aok, Hul, বিশ্ব সুরী জ্বল aok, hal

Land reclaimed from waste, and brought under cultivation.

Aolania, हिंदी चुवीलानिया aolánia

A tribe of Jats holding about 40 villages in Paneeput Bangur, so called from the name of their chief village in that neighbourhood. They are in reality Gutwaras. Though they are Hindoos, they claim the title of Mulik, which they say was bestowed upon them by some king as a token of their superiority to their brethren.

Aolee, آولي त्रावाली áolí

Mode of estimating by the ascertained produce of a Bisma that of a Beegah.—E. Oudh. The rule is very simple—Take the number of seers yielded by a Bisma, halve it, and you have the produce per Beegah in maunds. The produce of a Bismah is ascertained from the produce of a Beegah, by doubling the latter, in maunds, and calling the product seers.

29

Aoodee, آودي आवादी aùde

A tribe of Jats, proprietors of about 20 villages in Paneeput Bangur, and 20 in Soneput Bangur. They are called indiscriminately Aoode and Hoode, with perhaps a leaning in favor of the latter pronunciation.

Aoree, آوري न्रवीरी áori

Bank of a pond or rivulet to the water's edge; applied generally to signify a piece of dry land left uncultivated.

Aphurea, אָאָלְגֵוּ त्रुफिर्या apharia

See AHEEB, of which tribe they form a sub-divison.

AR, ) । স্থাर ar

Ladle used in Sugar factories.—E. Oudh. The same word, or rather 51 is applied in Benares as an abbreviation of Arara, the Dank of a pond. And in Hindee generally Ar signifies a goad.

Araba, श्री त्रावा araba

A Cart.

It is usually spelt with an &, but the Boorhan-i-Kata gives it correctly, with an 1. The word being purely Persian, cannot begin with z. In the Furhung-i-Rusheedce and in the Huft Kóólzum, the king of Oudh's Dictionary, I find no mention of it under either letter, but in the former, under the article Bunadur, it is spelt with an z. Araba is not much used in India, except in writing; but it is in common use throughout the Turkish Empire. "We then arrived at a range of sheds where there were many gilded Arabats for hire," (Hobhouse Letter 50.) Richardson describes it as a two wheeled carriage, but in Constantinople it has four wheels. "An Araba or Turkish coach, drawn by buffaloes, was waiting at the door: this consisted of a long platform of boards laid upon four wheels, and surmounted with a gaudy canopy of wood, carved and gilded." (Dr. Walsh. "Amulet" 1827) .- See also Pl. 84, Vol. II. of "Chevalier d'Ohsson's Empire Othoman."

Arar, र्हिट्ट वार्वर

Outsheds for cattle; harvest floor for Muhwa blossoms— Eastern Oudh and Benares.

Arara, ्रित्रे चडाडा arára

Steep bank of a river, pond, or tank.

Araree, हिं। ऋडाडी arárí

The old established measurement of a field. A man says his Araree is so much, say two beegahs—and though modern measurement may rate it higher he will not consent to any change.—Benares. The term is perhaps derived from Arara 15151 a high bank of a river or tank, which may therefore be supposed to enclose an unalterable area.

Arazee, राज़ी arází

Land; plural of Arz  $\gamma \omega$  land. In Revenue language, the word is chiefly applied to detached portions of land, which are generally either rent free, or recovered by the recession of rivers. It is therefore nearly synonymous with Chuk.

Ardawa, ४,००० च्रदीवा ardawa

Ground meal. The mixture now known by the name of Ardawa comprises equal portions of the chick pea and barley, and forms almost universally, in Upper India, the food of horses kept by Europeans.

AREEUT, عاريت त्रागियत áriat

Borrowing any thing which is itself to be returned—from the Arabic of it differs from Qurz, inasmuch as in the latter, the articles borrowed are not to be identically returned.—See "Hedaya" Book XXIX.

Arg, H ४५७) त्रदी argh

The ceremony of making a libation of water between the threshold and the spot where the first bundle of corn is deposited after being brought home from the threshing ground. This particular ceremony is supposed to be propitious, as it unites the two chief elements of man's sustenance.

The blessing of new Apples on the 25th July, was an observance of the same kind among our ancestors. Brand gives us the following benediction from the "Manuale ad Usum Sarum."

Benedictio Pomorum in Die Sancti Jacobi.

"Te deprecamur, omnipotens Deus, ut benedicas hunc fructum novorum pomorum: **** depulsisque primi facinoris intentatoris insidiis, salubriter ex hujus diei anniversaria solemnitate diversis terris edenda germina sumamus per eundem Dominum in unitate ejusdem."—Deinde Sacerdos aspergat ex aqua benedicta.

Another kind of agricultural Arg,h bears a resemblance to the Feriæ Sementivæ of the Romans. It consists in placing on the threshold, at seed time, a cake of cowdung formed into a cup, filling it with corn, and then pouring water upon it. The practice is supposed to propitiate the deities and secure a good harvest.

The word Arg,h means in Sanscrit any libation of water to a deity.

ARHUR, १००१ त्राहर arhar

The species of pulse (Cytisus Cajan) called also frequently z<sub>t</sub>, tuar.

The "Mirat-i-Aftabnuma" says that tuar, or toor, is only amongst the people of Shahjehanabad synonymous with Arhur, and that elsewhere Toor is another species and larger than Arhur.

ارهزا بزبان مردم شاهجهان آبادي تور میگریند و در امکنه دیگر تور را قسمی از انسام آن میدانند درختش را همراه گندم و درخت ترو را همراه نیشکر می کارند دانه اش از دانه تر خورد میشود

This is quite correct, but the error is not confined to Shah-jehanabad.

ARHUT, ाणे च्याहर arhat

A revolving wheel for raising water, used chiefly on the banks of the Jumna, wherever the water is near the surface.

It is very rarely used near the Ganges, but there is an excellent one at Bit,hoor, constructed by the ex-Peshwa or some of his adherents.

Arhwul প্রেল্ড স্কুরল arhwal

A day labourer.—Eastern Oudh and Benares.

Arsut, भ्रम्ड arsat,l

A kind of account which the author of the "Zoobdut-ul Quwaneen" says, is the same as a monthly Juma Khurch.

ارستنه که عبارت از جمع خرچ ماهواري و مجمل و از خام است

The "Dewan Pusund" also says it is a monthly entry or abstract of several accounts, called Wazkham, and that it is in reality only another name for Juma Khurch. في بطور جمع خربية والمنته نيز كرينه المسته نيز كرينه المسته نيز كرينه This is the meaning the word bears in the printed Glossary, and the word Arsotta, which precedes it, is probably an error.

AR, THIA, रिक्स्मा art, hia

A client, a broker, an agent, a dependant.

Aruk, ट्रंट त्रस्क araq

Juice; whence we derive our "Arrack."

Arund, ارنک अरंद arand

The Castor oil plant. (Palma Christi.)

ARWEE, ९९९। च्रारवी arwi

A species of Arum, an esculent root, sometimes called Kuchaloo.

Arwun, (१९९) च्रावन arwan

The first cuttings of corn, not taken to the threshing floor, but brought home to be eaten by the family and presented to the Lares and Brahmans. It is not cut without previously ascertaining the fortunate moment for commencing the harvest. In the Khureef, Shamakh, in the Rubbee, Barley is the grain used in the Arwun. When the Arwun is brought home, the grain is taken out of the ear, mixed up with milk and sugar, and every member of the family tastes it seven times. The season is of course one of festivity.

फुला फुला क्यों फिरे घर चरवन चया भुका भुका क्यों फिरे पियादा चया

Phòòla phòòla kyoon phire? G,hur arwun aya; Jhòòka jhòòka kyoon phire? Pecada aya.

"Why so happy? because the Armun has been brought home.
—Now, why so downcast? because the Revenue is demanded from us."

Arwun is chiefly used in Rohilcund and the Upper Doab. The more general, and the proper term is Nuwan, from wing nya new, and of ann corn.—See Dithuwn and Jooree.

ARYE । रहे araí

Goad at the end of a whip. The diminutive of AR. q. v.

Arzdasht व्यंग्यास वारdásht

An address or memorial, so called from its initial words; just as Quorum is derived from the words of the commission, Quorum X. Y. Z. unum esse volumus; and the Bull Unigenitus from the initial word of the famous edict issued against the Jansenists by Pope Clement XI. in 1713.

Asamee, اساصی असामी asámí

Literally, names. A cultivator, a dependant, a culprit—all of which meanings we may suppose to be derived from such persons being entered in Registers and Tabular Forms under the head of Asamee. It has been supposed, as Asamee frequently means a criminal, that it is derived from Ism (in a crime; and the practice commonly adopted by Kayeths of writing the word with a se, in instead of seen, instead of seen, gives some colour to this opinion. Asamee is the plural of the plural of Ism (in a name (De Sacy, "Grammaire Arabe." II.

It must be confessed that Richardson's, Shakspeare's, and Smyth's Dictionaries give الثامي as "a criminal," and Golius' Arabic Lexicon has اثام in the same sense, and hence it may be formed into a Persian word by the addition of the & Wuhdut; but it is more probable that we are to look to only for the origin of the word in its Indian acceptation.

An Asamee Ch, hupurbund is a resident cultivator, that is, an Asamee who has a Ch, hupur were or that ched house.

An Asance Mouroosee is an hereditary cultivator, that is, an Asance who has Irs of or inheritance.

An Asance Paheekasht is a man who cultivates land of a village different from that in which he resides.—See Paheekasht, Khoodkasht.

An Asamce Shikmee is one who cultivates the land of, and pays the rent to, another Asamce.—See Shikmee.

Asameewar, اساميوار त्रमामीवार asámíwár

Including all the names; usually applied to statements; and to Revenue Settlements made with the proprietors in detail.

Asarn, ১০ মুবাত asárh

The name of the 3rd Hindoo Solar month (June, July.) The first month of the rainy season, and consequently of cultivation. It is therefore a busy period in the country, and cultivators are on the alert. There is an old proverb—

त्रमाढ नांधे हाची बांधे सावन नांधे घारा वांधे भादेां नांधे कुंभि बांधे

Asarh nandhe, hat,hee bandhe, Sawun nandhe, g,hora bandhe, Bhadon nandhe, koombhee bandhe.

That is, begin in Asarh, and you will become a proprietor of elephants; wait a month, and instead of elephants you will have horses; wait two months, and your family will become slaves.

In the printed Glossary Assam, (evidently a mistake for Asarh) is called the 6th month, but it can only be considered so according to the European Calendar.

The same error occurs under Assen, usually called Kooar, and under Augun usually Ag,hun.

Asarnee, إسار क्रिश्च asárhi

This word does not preserve an identical meaning throughout these provinces. In the North West it is used only for the Rubbee, or spring harvest, and is frequently corrupted into Sadhee. Sawunee is used in the same parts for the Khureef, or autumnal harvest. This latter word is not known to the eastward. In Benares and Eastern Oudh, Asarhee signifies the Khureef, and not the Rubbee harvest. The people in the North West say, their meaning is derived from the ploughing in Asarh: those of Benares say, theirs is derived from the sowing in Asarh. The latter have the more reason on their side, for the land is ploughed in Asarh for either harvest.—See Asarh.

Aseecha, रइंटेंक्यी त्रसीचा asíchá

Unirrigated : from च्र priv. and विचना to water.

Aseel, اصيل ऋसील asil

A female servant amongst Mussulmans. It bears also a contrary meaning; as, noble by birth. The origin of both is the same word, namely, the Arabic Loul, a root. The former meaning is derived from a free servant being superior to a Loundee or purchased slave; the second from the stem of an illustrious lineage. It is not uncommon amongst ill educated people to call a slave Aseel, but it is proper to observe the distinction noted above.

Ashjar, اشچار ashjár

Trees : plural of the Arabic >= Shujur.

Ashraf, बिंगुरोफ ashráf

Plural of the Arabic شريف Shurcef, noble. A class of cultivators in hobilcund and Oudh and Benarcs, who designate themselves by this title, and claim certain privileges. The opposite of the term is ارزال inzal i. e. those of low degree, the vulgar.

Ashrat, व्यारात ashrát

Tens: plural of the Arabic عشر ashur, ten.

ASHURFEE, اشرفي স্থাইদ্দী asharfí A gold mohur.—See "Prinsep's Useful Tables," p. 4. ASLEE, اصلي সুম্বলী aslí

A registered village—literally, original, from Asal, a root. Dakhilee cliek is the term applied to hamlets, included in the Aslee village. It is not known at what particular time these words originated, but it must have been subsequent to Todur Mul's settlement. Our new settlements have swept away the distinction, which there was no occasion for preserving in the revised register.

Ason, woul द्विमां ason

The current year; the word is not used much in the North West, but when used is generally pronounced Eson.

Ast, ভালা স্থল ast

"For from the rising of the Sun even unto the going down of the same, his name shall be great among the Gentiles."—Malachi i, 11, and Psalm exiii. 3.

Tibull. Lib. ii. El. v.

یکی خیمهٔ داشت افراسیاب زمشرق بمغرب کشیده طناب

Shahnamah.

* It is somewhat curious to consider how general is this mode of expressing universal dominion. It is a familiar saying, and one used with considerable applause and rapture at public meetings, that on English territory the sun never sets; and though the sentiment is directly borrowed from the proud boast of the Courtiers of Philip II. of Spain, it may in some shape or other be considered to be universally naturalized.

&quot;Roma, tuum nomen terris fatale regendis
"Qua sua de cœlo prospicit arva Ceres,
"Quaque patent ortus, et qua fluitantibus undis
"Solis anhelantes abluit amnis equos."

Ast, нап, आस्त्रान ast'hán

An abode, residence. From the Sanscrit gr stand, which is also the root of very many words in European languages.

Ast, Hul, अस्यल ast'hal

A fixed residence; usually applied to the spot in which Fakeers remain.

Ata, ७ अटा atá

Ataree, । उ। त्राही atárí

An upper-roomed house; an upper story.

Ataboo, भुं । त्राया atábú

The local name given by the resident Aheers to a tract of country between the Kala Nuddee and the Rutva Nuddee, including the greater part of the pergunah of Marehra.

Ат,нмля, रिकुठीमा at'hmás

Lands constantly ploughed from Asorh to Mag,h for Sugarcane.

AT,HMUNA, Liogil त्रयमना at'hmana

The West.—Dehli. The word used in opposition to At,hmuna is Oógmuna, the East. At,hae সুমুম is also occasionally used to signify the West, but its more correct and universal meaning is "the Evening."* Both words appear to be derived from Ast, q. v.

All these in fact amount to very nearly the same declaration as that the "sun never set" on Philip's dominions, though the latter is confessedly grander in its enunciation. Nevertheless, a cotemporary of his own, Botero, a Piedmontese Jesuit, uses an expression regarding the Papal power which perhaps exceeds, in terseness and power, the spanish vaunt. He speaks of it as "Una jurisdizione che no conosce Oriente.

Another Spanish expression, which we have adopted with reference to India, is that if every native (some say every Brahmin) were each to take up a handful of earth, they might bury all the Europeans in the country. We find in a Spanish Historian the same comparison made between the Mexicans and Spaniards. See "Robertson's America," Vol. ii., Note 74.

and Spaniards. See "Robertson's America," Vol. ii., Note 74.

* Under this sense it is given as a local word of Bundlecund, in the Vocabulary printed in No. 144 of the "Journal of the Asiatic Society;" but it is a common Hindee term, by no means confined to that Province. In the same Vocabulary there are some other words which do not appear to be correctly entered, either with regard to their meaning or local application:

ATURPAL, ग्रिंशी च्रतपाल atarpál

Land which has been once under cultivation, and then abandoned. The word is more correctly Anturpal; and is derived from antur between, and pulna, or purna, to fall, to lie.—Central and Lover Doab.

Awa, 19 द्वावा áwá

A furnace or potter's kiln. A brick kiln is s, pujana, a corruption of s, puzana, from puzana, from puzanacdun, to cook; the root of which ( ;; ) seems to enter into several of the Indo-European languages. Sanscrit pachati, Greek pceso, Persian poothtun and puzancedun, Hindee pukana, Russian peczenie, Phrygian (according to Herodotus; Clio, 2.) bek, bread, German backen, Dutch bakken, Saxon bacan, English bake, bacon.

AWAEE, १ विद्या अवादी awaí A pick axe.—Eastern Oudh.

Awarija lelرجة awarija

A diary, a rough note book, an abstract account of collections, remittances, &c. &c. The "Zòòbdut-òòl-Quwaneen" says, the word is derived from Anara scattered, wandering, unfixed, because the Anarija is a collection of detached notes which would otherwise be dispersed. It is applied generally to an account of any description.

The work above quoted says .-

اررجه اطلاق و أن در حقيقت جمع خرج

It would seem therefore to be much the same as the Arsut, h, such as, Chipec, "a tailor," Charo "grass," Putwaree "statistics of a village," Daiidra "cares and troubles," Sahna "Revenue (ollector for village," The nine short sentences also at the conclusion seem somewhat suspicious. Amongst them we have—Rotee bhat hai, "He is eating bread," Ko thakur hai, "What caste are you?" Raja kee bhet to nahoohen. "You may not have seen the Kaja." Humaro nara Lowri mengado hai, Lowri is the place, I (literally my naod?) (by mistake perhaps for navel) sprang from." The meaning of the last sentence appears to be, literally, "my secundine is buried in Lowri." For it is a common saying in British Bundleeund, that Brahmins will not allow even the nara of Rajpoots to be buried within the boundaries of their villages, in superstitious fear lest the latter tribe may some day supplant and dispossess them. The industrious compiler, however, who has written many able and useful papers of the same kind, may after all be right; for the Vocabulary is that of Foreign, not British, Bundleeund.

except that the latter is more strictly confined to a monthly account.

The "Furhung-i-Rusheedee" also states that the word is derived from Awara, scattered. The same work adds that Abar, Abara, Awara, and Awarija mean not only an account, but an office of account, an exchequer; and quotes as authority a passage from Firdoosee, copied, as usual without acknowledgement, from the "Furhung-i-Jehangeree."

اراره دفتر حساب که حساب پراکنده دیران برآن فریسند رارارجه گریند ر بارگاه که دیران در آن کنند و بهر در معنی بغیر مد الف تیز آمده فردرسی گریند درصد درج پرطون ر پاره همه که بدنام شان در اراره همه

See Awerja in the printed Glossary, which appears a mistake for Awarija, though closely following Awarija Juma Khurch.

A WASEE او اسي त्रजाशी awasi
A word used in the province of Benares.—(See Dudree.)

AWUST, HEE, إرستي अत्रसयी awast'hi
One of the sub-divisons of Kanoujea Brahmins, q. v.

B

BABOO,

भेश बाबू

babú

Formerly Baboo was used only as a title of respect; now, especially among Europeans, it is used chiefly to designate a native clerk who writes English.

In Goruckpore, the descendants of the younger brothers of the Surreyt Raja are called Baboo, and there the term still maintaining its original dignity, is applied generally to any man of family or influence. Crossing the Gogra into Benoudha, and Benares, we find it applied only to the younger brothers, or near relatives of Rajas. Thus in Reg. VIII. of 1795, Sec. X., Baboos are defined to mean "persons of the (Benares) Raja's blood and family."

BACH, HUL,

र्रें चाक्त

bách, hal

A tribe of Rajpoots of the Sombunsee stock. We find them in Julalee of Aligurh; Kote Salbahan, Oojhanee, and Nidhpoor of Budaon; Suhar and Areeng of Muttra; and in Tilhur and Shahjehanpoor. They are recorded in the Ayeen Akberee as being the Zumeendars of Fureeda and of *Kant Gola, the old

* Kant, in Turkish, signifies a town, and its frequent recurrence as the name of a town in India may confirm the opinion of the original Northern descent of the Hindoos. Masadi states, that on the Oxus there is a Turkish city by name Yangi Kant, which he translates in Arabic by Mudeenut-ul-Judeed, or New Town. Hence we learn that Kant means town; for Yangi certainly means new, Yangi Dania being the name applied to America, or the new continent, according to all the geographical works, and Huft Akleems of the East. From this word Yangi, no doubt, we derive our Yankee notwithstanding all the controversies which have been raised respecting its origin. Some say it is derived from the name given to the English by Native Americans, "Yangeese;" others from the national air of "Yankee doodle:" but it is now well known that "Yankee doodle" was composed in the campaign of 1755, by Dr. Shackburgh, and palmed upon the colonists as a favorite air. Whereas the eastern use of the word is at least as old as A. D. 1635; being entered in the geographical work of Sadik Isfahani, called the "Tuhqeeq-ul-Irab." "Since its discovery," he says, "all the nations of Europe have contributed to its population and improvement, and it has become another, or as the name Yangi Dunia signifies, "a new world."

name of Shahjehanpoor; and the fact is interesting, as showing the changes of possession which have occurred in this tract within a short space of time. The Bach,hul Rajpoots are said to have succeeded the Goelas or Goojurs. They were in turn succeeded by Kut,herya Rajpoots, who themselves have been of late years succeeded by the Gour Rajpoots, whom they called in as allies to aid them against the encroachments of the Rohillas. Nevertheless, an important decree has just issued from the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut confirming the right of the Gour against the Kut,herya Rajpoots.

BAD, अर् बाद bád

A remission on account of deficient produce. One of the many meanings of the word in Persian is "annihilated," مثني نابرد و هني باشد according to the "Boorhan-i-Kata" and "Huft Koolzum;" and has thus been extended in the Revenue language of India to signify remissions occasioned by annihilation (of crops).

Badshahee, प्रोक्षेत्र बादणाही bádsháhí

Literally, royal, from statistical a king. In the language of Revenue Officers it is generally applied to royal grants of rent free land. Thus we say, "Badshahee Sunud;" "Badshahee Tenures." The conditions of their validity are given in Reg. XXXVI. of 1803, and the corresponding enactments Reg. XIII. of 1795 and Reg. VIII. of 1805. The first being applicable to the Ceded Provinces, the second to Benares, and the third to the Conquered Provinces.

BA-FURZUNDAN, بافرزندان वाफरजंदान báfarzandan,

BA-OULAD, अीट्र बात्रीलाद báaulád

Literally, with sons, with children: words inserted in a Grant, when it was intended that the land should be inherited by the heirs of the Grantee. The opinion of the Supreme Government (in the famous case of Furzund Ali,) was that these terms refer to the immediate heirs of the Grantee's body, whether male or female, not to descendants generally; and this no doubt, is correct; but according to the lenient interpretation of the Officers concerned in the investigations respecting Maafee tenures, the words are now generally declared to convey an hereditary title, without any restriction.

The Judges of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut have also ruled that a Bafurzundan Grant is descendable to the heirs general: (Reports Vol. IV. p. 222) being opposed to the opinion of their Law Officers, who declared that the words in themselves, and apart from other expressions in the Grant, created a joint interest with benefit of survivorship in the Grantee and his children; or in the event of his having at the time of Grant no children, but only grand-children, in the Grantee and his grand-children.—(See "Macnaghten's Precedents of Mahomedan Law," p. 332, and pp. 48-52 of "Extracts from Official Records on Maafee investigations.")

Bagu, باغ वाग् bágh बाग् bághícha Bagheecha, پاغ वाग् bághícha

A garden, an orchard, a plantation of trees. Bagheecha, or Baghcha, is the diminutive of Bagh.

Bagree, और वाग्री bágrí

A tribe inhabiting the Bagur country, a tract between the South-western border of Huriana and the Sutledge, who appear at one time to have been of great consideration, as we find a Bagree Rao mentioned by Chand Bardi as accompanying Pirt, hee Raj. They seem to have been originally Rajpoots, but are now held to be an inferior tribe, and are usually denominated Jats. Tod considers the Bagrees to be one of the aboriginal races of India, but he does not mention which Bagrees; and the term is so extensively applied, that any reference to them, without mentioning their locality, is very indefinite. There is an extensive clan of Bagree Brahmins, and the name enters into the sub-divisions of several other castes.—(See Jadon.)

Bagur is also the name of a large tract of country in Malwa,* the inhabitants of which are called Bagree; but in the

· &quot;Among the tribes settled in Central India, who are professed robbers

North Western Provinces, we rarely hear the word used except as applicable to the Bagree Jats of Hissar and Bhuttceana.

Bagur, और वागर bágar

A hedge of thorns or twigs.-Hoshungabad.

Reendhna, is used in the same sense in Benares, and Bar in the North West.

BAHA, LDL GIEI báhá

A watercourse: generally an artificial one, but in Dehli it is applied to a natural one; and K,hal and K,hala, which generally signify natural, are there applied to artificial water courses.

BAHNA, LiDh बाह्ना báhná

To plough. The word is in common use, but is not apparently mentioned in any Dictionary except Gilchrist's.

Bahun, ्रेक्ट्र बाह्न báhan

Fallow land, from bahna tizt to plough.

BAHURA, ४,०० वंहरा báhara

The man who stands at the well to upset the water from the Churus, q. v.—Dehli.

Ваіт,н, хайн बैंड báit'h value of Government share of produce. The amount settled on the land, from beithna have to sit. Thus bearing the same etymological meaning as assessment: though the latter is obtained by a more circuitous course; remotely from assessive, assidere, to sit; and proximately from assise, assize, because a tax could not be imposed except by an assize of men specially convened.

and thieves, the two principal are Bangries and Moghies, both Hindoos of the lowest caste. They came originally from the Western parts of India, chiefly from the neighbourhood of Chittore. The Moghies can hardly be said to have passed the Chumbul, but the Bangries have settled in the Eastern parts of Malwa in considerable numbers."—Malcolm's "Central India," II. p. 182.

Baj, हैं बान bá

A tax, a toll. Originally, tribute taken by one king from another. The "Boorhan-i-Kata" and the "Huft Koolzum" say—

مال باشد که بادشاهان بزرگ از بادشاهان زیردست گیرنه

The word is also frequently written بناز

Bajpaee, باج پائی वाजपादी bájpáí

See Canoujea Brahmin, of which tribe they are a sub-division.

Bajra, धंन्र बाजरा bájra

BAJREE, ं धं बाजरो bájr

(Panicum spicatum, Roxb.) (Holcus spicatus, Linn.) Bajra is every where cultivated in these Provinces; but very sparingly to the East of Allahabad. The Bajree is a smaller species of millet than the Bajra, and ripens a month before it. Village Zumeendars also comprehend by the term Bajree the stalk of the Bajra, used as fodder.

BAJUNTUREE प्रंभंद्री bajantari

Bajunturee, or rather Bajunturee Muhal, was an item of collection under the Mahomedan Regime, derived from musicians and dancing girls. From the Sanscrit नाम, any musical instrument.

BAK, باک बाक bák

اهل دنیا کافران مطلق اند روز ر شب در جق جق ر در بق بق اند

This root appears to be used similarly both in the Arabic, and Sanscrit.
 Mooluvee-i-Manuvee in reproving idle talk, says—used in these provinces; viz. the amount has been spoken by the appraiser, and is not open to further controversy. The practice of Bak is also called Bhak, from Bhak,ha, language.

45

Bak, Hur, १६८१ बाखर bák'hur

A house. An enclosure. Dwellings contained within an enclosure.

In Dehli the word is applied to cattle sheds.

In Bundelcund, Saugor and Malma, it is an agricultural implement, a sort of bullock hoe, usually employed instead of the plough in the preparation of the black soil of those provinces. It has an iron scythe, in the room of a share, about twenty inches broad and five deep, fixed to the centre of a beam of wood between four and five feet long and six inches broad. This scythe enters about eight inches into the ground, effectually eradicating weeds and grass, and the beam pulverizing the earth as it is turned up. The land intended for the Khureef, or rainy season crop, is once turned by this instrument before the seed is scattered. It is then ploughed to cover the seed, and protect it against the birds. The Rubbee land is turned up two or three times with the Bak, hur during the rains, and sown with the drill plough about eight inches deep.

BAKREE, अर्ध बाकरी bákri

A cow advanced about five months in pregnancy. A small buffaloe is also sometimes called a Bakree.

BAKUND, प्रांत bákand

The proportion of two-fifths of the crop, which is sometime s paid as rent by cultivators to zumeendars. It is also known as Puchdo, Puchdoolee, i. e. do (two) out of parch (five.)

BAL, بال वाल bál

An ear of corn.

BALA, प्रिं बाला bálá

A grub which eats the young plants of wheat or barley when they are about six inches high—Benores. See Koongee.

BALAEN, अर्थाः बालाएन báláen

A large sub-division of the JATS, q. v.

BALAKHANA, धांचेरा वालाखाना bálákhána

An upper story. A balcony; of which word, probably, Balakhana is the origin. English Lexicographers seem to hesitate very much about its origin, and appeal to very remote, and far more improbable sources than Balakhana. Thus Richardson says—"Fr. Balcon, from the Italian Balcone, from the Latin palcus, patco, palconis, palcone. Balcone Menage. Duchat and Skinner agree from the German Balck a beam. Vox (balco) a Francis relicta, says Wachter, and from it, he and Ihre think the Italian Balco is taken."

Where the Latin palcus is found I know not, but if it was ever used as the German Balck, it is more likely to be the origin of the word Palkee, than the Hungarian Palanca, from which the name of the vehicle is usually said to be derived.

There is no greater improbability that balcony should be derived from Balakhana, than that Virandah should be derived from the Persian Buramuda, spinor which seems now pretty well agreed upon.

Baloobòòrd, الوبرى वालूबुर्द bálùburd

From the baloo sand, is boord carried away. A term applied to a tract of land which is covered with a deposit of sand after an inundation. An item of remission of Revenue on this account.

BALUND, प्रांत báland

A tribe which was formerly predominant in Agoree Burhur and the Southern parts of Mirzapoor, whence they were expelled by the Chundel Rajpoots. They retired to Munwas, where they retain a principality in subordination to the Raja of Rema. They are said still to remember with fondness their former possessions in Agoree Burhur, and declare they will not bind on their turbans till their restoration to their ancestral rights is accomplished. It is not easy to say when this expulsion took place, but the immigration of Chundels to these parts appears to have occurred after the capture of Muhoba, some time previous to the defeat of Pirt, hee Raj by Suhaboodeen, towards the close of the 12th century.

It is sometimes said that Balund is merely the name of a Raja of the K, hurwar tribe, but there seems more reason to suppose that it is the name of a distinct clan.

Bandh, Jick aiu bándh

An embankment:—See Bundhan.

BANDHULGOTEE, باندهاگرو تی बांघलगाती bándhalgoti

A tribe of Rajpoots of Chouhan descent, occupying part of Bundlecund and Benoudha (which see). There are a few also in Huvelee Ghazeepoor. The name is frequently pronounced like Budhilgotee, and Bunjhilgotee.

Banee, إن वानी bání

Besides the meanings given ordinarily in the Dictionaries, it is the name of a yellow earth with which potters sometimes ornament their vessels. In parts of Rohilcund it is called Kupus.

Banga, क्षिप् बांगा bángá

Raw cotton: not confined to one species, as mentioned in the Glossary.

Bangur, प्रांगर bángar

High ground, or uplands. Thus "Paneeput Bangur," "Soneput Bangur," are the elevated portions of those Pergunahs, in distinction to "Paneeput K,hadir," "Soneput K,hadir."

Banjh, ४इं७ वानम bánjh

Barren: from the Sanscrit squi It is sometimes used as an abbreviation of the word Bunjur which owns the same root.

BANK, بانک aia bánk

A bend in a river; from the Sanscrit root বৃদ্ধ, to be curved.

Bansa, النسا bánsá

From Bans بانس a bamboo. The channel through which the seed descends in a drilling machine. In Dehli it is generally known by the name of Orna. In the North West the Bansa is generally fixed to the ordinary plough. The mouth into which the seed is cast is called Doura or Mala in the East, and Weira in the West.—See HULTUDDEE.

In Benares the entire drilling machine is called Tar. It is a separate instrument, and not attached to the ordinary plough.

BANSUREE, ्रांध्य वांबरी bánsarí

A weed found in parts of the Doab near the Jumna, which is very injurious, and most difficult to eradicate from arable land.

BAONEE, باونى बाउनी báuní

Seed time.—Rohilcund and Doab: called Banug in Benares, and Bera in Dehli.

BAOREE, باوري बाबरो báurí

A vagrant tribe found chiefly in the Bhuttee territory and Western parts of Dchli, who subsist by the occupation of thieving. They bear some resemblance to the Kunjurs and Gundheelas, except that the latter do support themselves in a measure by their own industry in matting and tumbling.

Baqee, باقى aiañ báqí

Arrears, balance of Revenue. From the Arabic نقا

BAQEEDAR, القيدار वाकीदार báqídár

Withholding a balance. Revenue Defaulter.

BAQLA, प्रदेश बाकला báqlá

A bean. Pot-herbs. The Kidney bean (Phaseolus vulgaris). From the Arabic "producing herbage." From which root is also derived the familiar word Bukkal the Arabic name of a Bunya, or grain seller; but, originally, a person who sells pot-herbs and beans. A green-grocer.

BAR, जुं! बाड bár

A fence; a hedge; a margin: from the Sanscrit root as surround.

Bara, १९ वार bár Bara, १९९१ वारा bára

Perquisite of the Aheer in milk; generally the milk of every eighth day.—Rohilcund.

BARAHEE, ्रेटी वाराही báráhí

Land, according to the dictionary in the "Tohfut-ool Hind."

BARANEE, ارائي बारानी bárání

Unirrigated land; land dependant on the seasons; from the Persian باران baran, rain. Also a coat or cloak for keeping off rain, which Europeans usually corrupt into "brandy."

BARBURDAREE, الإبرداري बार्बर्दारी bárbardárí

Carriage hire; from the Persian برداري bar, a load, and برداري burdaree, conveyance.

BARBUTAEE, باربتائی बारबटाद्री bárbatáí

Division of the crops by sheaves or shocks, before the corn is trodden out. From the Persain by bar, a load. In Robilcund it is more usually called by the Hindee synonyme of Bojh-butace.

BAREE, श्री बारी bárí

A class of men who occupy themselves in making and lighting torches, and occasionally as barbers. They are said in Brahma and Padma Puranas to be descended from a barber and female tobacconist.

In the Oudh Service they have acquired the reputation of being very excellent soldiers, and some of them have attained to the dignity of Raja.

Baree, باری बाडी bárí

A plot for Sugar Cane or other garden produce. An enclosed piece of ground. A kitchen garden: also cotton. From the Hindee of or other garden also cotton.

Barnee, प्रांचि bárhí

Interest in kind paid upon seed grain. From increase, to rise, to advance.

BARHAH SADAT, إن المسادات हा पादात bárhah sádát

A powerful tribe of Syuds in the Eastern part of the Moozuffernugur district. They hold a great portion of Pergunahs Bhookerheree, Bhooma, Jansut,h, Sumbhulheree, Jowlee, and the Eastern parts of Pergunahs Moozuffernugur and K,hutowlee. A few colonies of them are occasionally found elsewhere, as in Amroha of Moradahad, and Secundra of Allahabad; but their strong hold is the Moozuffernugur district.

The origin of the name Barhah is ascribed to various sources; some say that, scandalized at the debaucheries of the Mecna bazar of Dehli, which they considered unsuited to their sacred character, they obtained leave to reside outside (bahir) of the town—others that it was the chief town of twelve (baruh) which belonged to the clan; but the spelling is opposed to both derivations.

There are four sub-divisions of the Barhah Syuds; the Tihunpooree, whose chief town is Jansut, h; the Chantroudee, whose chief town is Sumbhulherce; the Koondleval, whose chief town is Mujhera; and the Jugneree, who claim Bidowlee on the Jumna as their chief town. They assert that they have been located since the time of Mahmood of Ghuzni: but this is evidently false. There appears reason, however, to believe, from the collateral evidence afforded by the interesting history of the Bilgram Syuds, called the "Jooneydea," that their occupation dates as far back as the time of Shums-oo-deen Altumish. Besides these divisions, they have private marks of recognition which they say have been very successful in excluding imposters from the tribe. Particular families have denominations, such as dog, ass, sweeper, &c. which are derived from the menial offices which it is said some of the Syuds of this family performed for the emperor Humayoon, when reduced to extremities during his flight from Shere Shah.

The improbability of men assuming such humiliating designations without a good cause, gives some colour to the story; particularly when we learn the devotion of the Emperor's attendants, which is so amusingly detailed by his right reverential Afiabchee, Jouhur, in the "Tuzkirut-ul-Vikaya."

-

The Barhah Sadat must have obtained their highest stage of prosperity in the time of Furòòkhseer; but we read in the 'Memoirs of Jehangeer' and in the "Tareekh-i-Budaonee' that members of this family attained distinction not only in his court but in that of his father. Thus, the Syud Mahomed, mentioned in the article Bhudourea, Syud Ahmed Khan, and Syud Hashim, were all men of distinction in Akber's Court. Jehangeer particularly mentions Syud Ali Asof, as the son of the Syud Mahomed, above mentioned, "one of the great Ameers of his father's court". And in the Padshahnamu we find mentioned among the Munsubdars of Shahjehan's time, Syud Khan Jehan, Barhah, Munsubdar of 5000: and Shojaut Khan and Debee Khan, each of 4000. In Aurungzebe's reign they were not less conspicuous.

Furbokhseer being indebted for his elevation to the assistance afforded by Hosein Ali Khan, Governor of Behar, and Abdobllah Khan, Governor of Allahabad, two brothers of the Barhah stock, their influence continued unabated during his reign, as well as for some time subsequent; and it is probable that to this period must be ascribed the handsome and expensive structures of which the ruins are now scattered over so extensive a tract of country in the Upper Doab, from Mowana to Jowlee.

The Syuds have gained themselves honor by the constancy with which they adhered to the Minister's family during its decline, and the courage they displayed on the hard fought field of Husunpoor, where Abdòòllah Khan was defeated and slain. This adherence, however, proved their destruction. Full particulars will be found in the "Siar-ul-Mutakhireen" and the "Tareekh-i-Moozuffuree."

BARIK, بارک बार्क bárik

Rain: according to the Dictionary in the "Tohfut-ool-Hind."

BARIZ, j) अंदिज báriz

A term in arithmetic. The page of an account book is divided into two equal parts called Zillah; each Zillah is divided into two Rukanas. The right hand Zillah is called the Husho. The first right hand quarter (some say half) of the left Zillah is appropriated to the Bariz, and the remaining portion is called the Irada. The Bariz contains the sum finally brought to account, after the necessary deductions have been made from the gross amount in the Irada and Husho, q. v.

Barun, ४०% बारह bárah

Land next to, or surrounding, the village generally enriched by manure. The term is chiefly used in Dehli and the Upper Doab, and is probably derived from it or it an enclosure.

BARUMBA, अंग्रं बार्वा báramba

Literally, fruit of mangoes. Revenue derived from the lease of mangoe-groves. From, if ruit, and if a mangoe.

BASEEAN, ילייבוני פוּשׁוּקוּם básián See Gour Tuga and Aheer.

Basmutee, باسمتي बाग्रमती básmatí

A fragrant kind of rice and millet. From the Sans rit जास scent.—See Dhan and Juwar.

Batin, अं बातिन bátin

A tract of land in Etawah, lying between the river Jumna and the G, HAR, (which see.)

Baugm, ब्रीप बागम baugm

Said, in the printed Glossary, to be the most productive lands in the southern division of Dehli, situate on the banks of canals; but this must be a mistake, as there are no canals in the Southern Division. The word whatever it is, is most probably derived from bagh, a garden, or any richly cultivated and irrigated spot.

Bawug, باوگ बावग báwag

Seed time.—Eastern Oudh.—See BAONEE.

 BAZEE
 العضي زسين على المسلق الم

An office established in A. D. 1782, before the enactment of the Regulations, for the purpose of enquiring into improper alienation of land. Literally "the office of certain lands." The plan for the institution of this office is given at p. 224 of "Colebrooke's Digest of the Regulations," Vol. iii.

Bebaq, إلى बेबाका bebáq

Without arrears—paid up in full.—See BAKEE.

Bechiragh, ६०० ६०० विचिगान bechiragh

Without a vestige: (a village) ruined beyond hope. It means literally, without a light; جراخ privative, and جراخ a light.

Beeal, हिन्नाज bíáj

Interest on money. Becajoo is the capital put out to interest.

Beear, ग्री श्री वीन्नार bíár

Seed bed. Also, air; wind. In the former sense the word is usually spelt with an  $\bar{j}$

In Dehli, the evening is called Beear.

In Saugor, it signifies waste land fit for cultivation.

In the Lower Doab, it is used in the same sense as Puttee is elsewhere; that is, as a sub-division of a Village.

Beeas, ध्राम bíás

Land cultivated, to be sown in the following year. Field under preparation for rice cultivation. The word is chiefly used in Robilcund.

Beeda, (এই) बीडा bídá

Mounds.—E Oudh. The word is probably a corruption of uneven, rugged ground.

Beedha, এতি শুনা ভাষা bídhá

Synonimous with Bundobust. Determination of the amount to be paid as Government Revenue. Upper Doub and Robilcund.

Beeg'ha, धेर्गह बोगह bíg'há

A measure of land, subject to local variation. In the Upper Provinces it is usually considered in the English Surveys to be 3,025 square yards, or \$ths of an acre. In Bengal it is 1,600 square yards, or little more than  $\frac{1}{3}$ rd of an aere. A kuchcha beeg, ha is in some places a 3rd, in others a 4th of a full beeg, ha.

Akber's beeg, ha contained 3,600 Ilahee Guz, (see that article).

The following are some of the local variations of the beeg,ha in the Upper Provinces.

In Furruckabad, 100 acres.

In the E. and S. parts of Goruckpoor, =192 19 7

In the W. and N. parts the beeg, has are much smaller.
In Allahabad and part of Azimgurh, =177 5 15

In part of Azimgurh and Ghazeepoor, =154 6 8

In Bijnore, =187 19 15

In the Upper Doab it was found that the average measurement of the side of a Beeg,ha, deduced from the paces of 148 Zumindars, who were accustomed to practice this kind of mensuration, amounted to 28  $\frac{831}{1000}$  English yards; making the local (kuchcha) beeg,ha equal to 831  $\frac{4}{10}$ ; and 100 statute acres equal to 582 kuchcha beeg,has, 3 biswas.

It is needless to continue the comparisons; but see for further information "Prinsep's Useful Tables," p. 89.

Веесното, پگهو تو विदेशता bíg'hoto

The name given to a tract of country bordered by Mewat on the East, Loharoo on the West, Huriana, Dhòòndhotee, and Chundan on the North, and Rat, h on the South. It includes Rewaree, Bawul, Kanm, Patody, Kot Kasim, and a great part of the Bahraitch Jageer. The word is only of local application, and does not appear to be known much beyond its own limits.

विघाती की दी धनी खीरी अउर चीहान

Beeg, hoto ko do dhunnee, K, horo our Chouhan.

That is, "the chief tribes of Beeg, hoto are the K, horos, amongst Aheers, and Chouhans, amongst Rajpoots."

The name of Beeg, hoto, or Beeg, hota, as it is sometimes called, is derived from Beeg, ha Raj, a worthy descendant of the illustrious Chouhan, Pirt, hee Raj.—See Dhòondhotee and Chouhan.

Beeguntee, और विगहरी bigahti

Rent fixed on lands per Beeg, ha. The same as Beegotee in the Glossary, which is also correct.

Beenur, जुनूः वोहड bihar

Sterile land, uneven or cragged land. Waste land. Land full of ravines.

Веелнекча, प्रश्निक्स बीजहेरया bijherya

There are a few of this clan of Rajpoots in the district of Goruckpoor.

Веејк,нар, טנאל बीजखाद bíjk'hád

A term used in Rohilcund to signify advance of seed and food to agriculturists: Tuccavee being understood to apply solely to advances for cattle.

The word is derived from یبج seed, and کهاه manure.

Beejmar, المجين वीजमार bíjmár

Failure of germination: from beej seed, and who marna to strike, to kill.—See ABEEJ.

Beejuk, ८इंध बीजक bijak

A memo. deposited with grain when stored, specifying its amount: an invoice; a list: also an inscription.

Beejur, भून् शे बीजर bíjar

A description of soil in which the cereal grains are generally grown.—Lower Doab.

Beema, بيما बीमा bímá

Insurance. The word is also written

Beend, بند बीन्द bind

A reed. A rush.

Beenda, ध्रांडा bínda

A kind of rope made of grass or of the fibres of the Arhur plant. The word appears to be derived from ينتقي to plait, to braid. Hence ينتقي the hair plaited behind.

Beer, भूः बीर bír

Pasturage. The word is in general use, but is most common in Delhi, and the Saugor territory.

Beera, ১৮ বীভা bira

A parcel made up of betel leaves and other ingredients, called Pan Sooparee, which comprises betel leaves, areca or betelnut, catechu, quick-lime, aniseed, coriander seed, cardamums and cloves.—Qanoon-i-Islam.

Beerbanee, بيرباني बीरबानी bírbání

A common expression in the North West, particularly among the Jats, applied to designate a man's own wife. The word Beer and signifies in Sanscrit eminent; a warrior; a man; hence the Latin vir. and Greek Heros. Bance is derived from the Sanscrit and vanita, a woman, which we find in Persian under Banco, a princess, and in the Greek Bance, a Doric word signifying a woman, a daughter. Sure Variative

Beesee. ييسي बोसो bísí

A term peculiar to Kumaon.

Mr. Trail, the English Commissioner of the Province, reduced all the miscellaneous measures of quantity in land to nominal (not actually measured) Beesees. The Beesee is equal to 20 Pat, has of Gurhwal or 20 Nalees of Kumaon. The Pat, ha, or Nalee, represents a measure of seed with a capacity of about two seers, and the number of Pat, has in any area is estimated by the quantity of seed (generally wheat) required to sow it. The actual extent varies according to the quality and position of the land. The grain is sown much wider in the poor Oopuraon lands near the summit, than in the rich Tulaon lands near the base.

Beesur, ہیسر वीसर bísar

Gleanings left in the field for the lower orders. E. Oudh. Seelo or Sulla are the words used in the Doab, Rohilcund, Dehli, Bundlecund, and Benares.

Beet, ज्रिंध बीट bít

A Dehli word .- See explanation under Ang.

Begar, کیای वेगार begár

Begaree, सूत्रीत् वेगारी begárí

A person forced to work and carry burdens. Under the former regime, he got no pay. Now, though he gets pay, yet if he is ordered to work by any public official, he is still generally called Begar.

In Shakspeare's and Smyth's Dictionaries, these words are represented as Hindee, but they are Persian also, and are entered in all the best Persian Lexicons.

کار فرمودن بے مزہ برد یعنی کار بفرمایذں ر اجرت ندهند

And the "Huft Koolzum" adds, that the word is spelt either Begar or Bekar.

Behnour, १७३६% वेहनीर behnaur

Behun, ुर्शः वेहन behan

Nursery for rice plants.—E. Oudh and Benares.—Puncer is more commonly used in the North-West, and Jyce in Bundle-cund, Pecod in Dehli is used as a nursery, not only of rice, but of any other plant.

Behra, ४०%: बेहरा behra

Grass kept for pasturage.—Rohilcund. The word is probably a corruption of Beer, q. v.

Behree, ७०% बेहरी behrí

A subscription; an assessment on a share. Instalments paid by under-tenants to the landlord. Distribution of an aggregate sum on several individuals. A monthly collection according to their respective circumstances. Term given to a division of a Bhyachara estate. The share or interest of one of the brotherhood in an estate. The Persian Buhra has the same meaning.

Behreedar, जेंद्रा behridár Holder of a share, denominated Behree.—See "Glossary" Beyrydar.

Beis, ज्रांश विंच bais

One of the 36 royal races of Rajpoots, giving name to the province of Beiswara, in Oudh, and not in the Doah, as Colonel Tod supposes. Beiswara lies between Cawnpore on the West, and the Sye river on the East; and between the Ch,hooab rivulet on the South, and Dik,htan (the country of the Dik,hit Rajpoots) on the North.

There are several Beis Rajpoots in these provinces, but they are not found to the Westward of Dubhace in Boolundshuhur. To the East of that Pergunah they are found in greater number than any other clan of Rajpoots; particularly in Kote Salbahun, Nidhpoor and Suheswan of Buduon; in Burwur of Mynpooree; in Atrowlee of Aligurh; in T, huttea, and Souruk of Furruckabad; in Dehlee Jak, hun of Etawah; in Jajmow, G, hhatumpoor, Akberpoor, and Sarh Sulempoor of Campoor; in Futtehpoor Huswa (Mussulman), Hutgaon, Ekdulla, Ayeah Sah, Muttour (Mussulman and Hindoo), and Ghazeepoor, of Futtehpoor; in Kurra, Kewaee, and Bara of Allahabad; in Banda, Julalpoor, Cheboo, Mondha, Soomerepoor, and Humeerpoor, and many other Pergunahs of Bundlecund; in Secunderpoor, Mahol. Bilhabans, Deogaon, and Chiryakote of Azimgurh; in Ruttunpoor Bansee, Dhòòreapar, Hussunpoor Mugur, and Amorha of Goruckpoor; in Khanpoor and Buhreeabad of Ghazeepoor; and in Singramon, Raree, Zufurabad, and Kurakut of Jounpoor. There are also several in the neighbourhood of Furruckabad, especially in Purumnugur, whose turbulence has long been notorious; and who in A. D. 1391 and 1392 created such disturbances, in concert with the Rat, hores, that it was thought necessary to send out large bodies of imperial troops against them. (Zea-ood-deen Burnee.)

All the Beis in our provinces state that they came from Doondya K,hera in Beiswara. Their accounts respecting the place whence they emigrated to Doondya K,hera do not coincide, but it is most usual for them to assert that they came from Moongee Peitun in the Deccan. No other Rajpoot tribe is represented to have come from that quarter. They state themselves to be of the same lineage as Salivahana, and he also is reported in ancient histories to have emigrated from Moongee Peitun to the banks of the Nerbudda, whence he expelled the famous Vicramaditiya.**

The scale of the Beis in the rank of Rajpoots may be judged by their intermarriages, as is the case with all the Rajpoot The ordinary Beis of our provinces give their daughters in marriage, amongst others, to Seyngurs, Bhudoureas, Chouhans, Cuchwahas, Goutums, Purihars, Dik, hits, and Gurhwars; and receive daughters in marriage form Bunaphurs, Jinwars, K, heechurs, Rugbunsees, Rykwars, and the Kurcholee Gehlotes. But the Tilokchundee Beis, who reside in Boondya K, hera, and their near relations, such as those of Burwar, Dehlee Jak, hun, and Kote Salbahun, consider themselves fur superior to all other Beis, and profess to give their daughters to none but the very highest tribes. There is reason to suppose that they practice female infanticide, at least in the Oudh territory. Those Tilokchundees who reside in our provinces cannot make away so freely with their offspring, and have consequently consented more readily to intermarriages. Thus the Tilokchundees of Domraon, in Bhojpoor, give their daughters in marriage to the Hurechobuns of Bullcea, in Ghazeepoor, and those of Deogaon give theirs to Rajcoomars. Besides the Tilokchundce, there are said to be no less than 360 sub-divisions of Beis Rajpoots, the descendants of as many wives of Salivahana. Amongst the progeny of these "queens of a day," (see TILORCHUNDEE), the most noted in our provinces are the • Colonel Tod in one place calls Salivahana a Takshac, and in another a Yadu Prince. He also is of opinion that the Beis are a sub-division of the Suryavansi Rajpoots, and gives them a place in his list of the royal tribes. Mongee Peitun is on the Godavery, and is probably the Pilthana of the Periplus.

Tilsaree, Chuk Beis, Nununug, Bhununug, Buch, Pursurya, Putsurya, Bijhonya, Khutbeis, Bhutkurya, and Chunumea or Gurgbuns—but it may doubted if all these are really Beis. (See these Articles, as well as Benoudha, Nagbunsee, and Goutum.)

The Tilokchundec Beis of Doondya K,hera are sub-divided into four clans of Rao, Raja, Nyhut,ha, and Synbussec. These all profess to derive their rights from the Goutum Raja of Argul.

Вејникл, ड्रिड्र्ड्र विम्नडा bejhará

A mixed crop, generally of grain and barley.

Bejwar, المجوار वेजवार bejwar

Perquisite of the lower classes, consisting of a portion of seed-corn which is brought away each day from the field. Robileund.

It is called Bijaee in Dehli. Both words are derived from Beej seed.

Bekus, स्ट्रिंश वेंक्स bekas

A kind of grass growing in low ground, which resembles the Doob, but its leaves and stem are larger. It is good fodder for horned cattle, but is reckoned injurious to horses. It grows throughout the N. W. Provinces.

Вев, এই बेब beb

A grass from which a twine is made, which is much used for native beds. Babur is also used for thatching.

Bel. ييل बेल bel

Bel is the name applied to a spot in which the receiving pans are placed when Sugar is manufactured. In most places the pans amount to three, Kurah, Chasnee and Phoolha, the first being the biggest, and Chasnee, which occupies a place between the other two, the smallest. In Dehli, Bojh sometimes takes the place of the Kurah, and Kurahee of the Chasnee; the Phoolha being frequently omitted, especially of late years.

Bel is also applied to a line marked out on a road or garden with an axe, indicating the direction of any proposed work. Bel is also the name of the thorny quince. (Egle Marmelos) and the single Arabian jasmine (Jasminum Sambac). Also a creeper, a tendril, a pole for directing a boat, a spade, or hoe. In this latter sense, it seems to be connected with our English Bill, an instrument of steel. German Beil—Danish Bile—Greek Beles.

The "Boorhan-i-Kata" says that in the Zend language, Bel means a well.

ВЕLВООТА, يبلبوتك वेलवूटा belbúta
A bush. From Bel a tendril and Boota, a flower.

Belchuk, ಅन्द्रीय वेनचम belchak

Belcha, ४इं बेलचा belcha

A small hoe, or spade. Diminutive of Bel.

Belkee, এই ইন্ডিন चेलकी belkí A cattle grazier.—Baitool.

Велоси, हां बिलोच

A few Beloch Zumeendars are to be found in the Pergunahs of Hodul, Baghput, and Jewur. A large Beloch Jageer in the Dehli territory has encouraged their resort to these parts.

Beldar, ييلدار वेलदार beldár

A class of Hindoos engaged in digging with a Bel. They are said in the Pooranas to be descended from a Tyon boatman, and a woman of the Aheer tribe; but Beldars are how a with as a distinct caste, even if they ever were one, and which may be doubted, as Beldar is a pure Persian word.

beloch

The Beldars now met with are composed mostly of different inferior tribes, Cachhees, Coormees, Chumars, and others, who follow the occupation of digging.

Beluk, श्री: बेलक belak

A small mattock .- See Bel, Belchuk.

Bengut, ज्यों बंगत bengat

Seed. Seed given to an indigent ryut for sowing, who is to repay the same at the time of harvest with such additional quantity as may be agreed on.—Benares.

Benoudha, किर्मुं बेनउधा benaudhá

A name commonly given by the natives to the country between Allahabad and Surwur, i. e. Surjoopar, the other side of the Surjoo, the present district of Goruckpoor; and between the Ganges and the Ch, hooab Nala, by which it is separated on the North-West from Beiswara. Benoudha appears to include the Western parts of Jounpoor, Azimgurh, and Benares, and the Southern part of Oudh. Indeed, some authorities make it extend from Beiswara to Bijypoor, and from Goruckpoor to Bhojpoor. The common saying is that Benoudha. or Benavut. as it is sometimes called, contained 12 Rajas, who comprised one Paut, and were considered to have common interests. 1st-The Gurhwar of Bijypoor, 2nd-the Khanzada Buchgotee, 3rd-Beis, 4th-Surneyt, 5th-Hyobuns of Hurdee, 6th-Oojein of Doomraon, 7th-Rajkomar of Teoree Bhugwanpoor, 8th-Chundel of Agorce, 9th-Kulhuns of Survar, 10th -Goutum of Nugra, 11th-Hindoo Buchgotee of Kurhwar, 12th-Bisen of Mujhowlee. These dimensions would imply that Benoudha was an extensive province, including the whole of Benares and Eastern Oudh; but I believe the limits first mentioned are the correct ones, and out of this narrower space it would be easy to construct the 52 Pergunahs, of which Benoudha is said to consist.

Венаwut, ভুটা ইনারন benáwat See above, under Веноирна.

Bent, Eili az bent

The handle of an axe, hoe, and similar implements. Bent is the correct word; but it is generally pronounced Beeta in Rohilcund, and Binta in Dehli.

Beohar, श्रेक श्रेश वेउहार beohár

Money lending, or traffic of any kind. A calling; a trade. In Jubulpoor, the name is applied to a Canoongoe. The Sudder Beohar, besides his salary, holds large rent-free estates.

Ber, 🦙 ों: वेर bera

The Lotus of the Ancients.—See JHURBEREE.

BERANA, अंश्रेश वेराना berána

A grove of Ber trees. The Ber is the Zizyphus jujuba.—See JHURBEREE.

Berar, १ १ १ वरार birár PANDIA, پانڌيا पाडिंया pándia

In Baitool and the Deccan, is the Canoongoe of the N. W. Provinces.

Beree, بيزي वेडी berí

Irons fastened to the legs of either bipeds or quadrupeds: also the basket used for raising water for the purpose of irrigation. It is generally made of bamboo in the East, and of leather in the West. It is suspended from four ropes, and swung by two men. The word is used in the Doab and Robilcund, as are also Lehuree, Chihapa, and Boka. In Benares the word Douree is used, and sometimes Boka. In Debli, Dal, and in Bundlecund, Dulea and Doogla.—See these articles.

Berha, ध्रें बेढा berhá

A paling. From Berhna to enclose with a fence, to surround.—See next article.

Berhna, ध्रें बेढना berhná

Besides the meaning above given, the word signifies in the Doab, Bundlecund, and Rohilcund, "to drive off cattle by force." In this sense it is used generally in Hindoostan, but K, hedke lejana is the equivalent term in the Dehli Territory.

نړ

Beshee, بیشي वेषा beshí

Increase, surplus: from the Persian بيش more.

Besun स्था वेसन besan

The flour of pulse; especially of Chuna, or the Chick pea.

Вет,н, ਫੜੌੜ਼ ਕੇਰ bet'h

Sandy unproductive soil.—Rohilcund.

Bhabur, भावर bhábar

The forest under the Sewalic Hills. The tract varies in breadth, from 10 to 20 miles, and the slope of the ground varies from 50 to 17 feet per mile, diminishing rapidly after the first few miles. Cultivation is confined only to the vicinity of the rivers issuing from the Hills, but the soil in many parts is good, and consists of a rich black mould at the extreme verges of the tract, North and South. There are occasional patches also free from trees, but covered with high grass; and many spots afford good pasturage. With these exceptions, the Bhabur is a dense forest, but almost destitute of trees valuable for timber; and water is at such a depth below the surface, that all attempts to dig wells have been fruitless.—See printed "Report on Rohilcund Canals," p. 107.

Bhabur is also the name of a light black soil in Baitool.

Внаее Вант, إلى بانت bháibánt A term equivalent to Buyaguara a a It is dorived fro

A term equivalent to Bhyachara, q. v. It is derived from Bhaee بمائي a brother, and bantna المائي to divide.

Bhag, अग bhág

Tax; duty; share in kind. Also fortune, destiny.

Bhagnur, अंदि! भागनर bhágnar

The name given to the rich alluvial lands under the banks of the Jumna.—Central Doab.

Bhal, जिल्ला bhál

A tribe of Rajpoots, proprietors of part of Secunderabad in Boolundshuhur, and Hatras and Tuppul in Aligurh.

65

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

BHALA SULTAN, الكالي سلطار भानामुनतान bhála sultan

A tribe of Rajpoots in Benoudha. q. v. and Goruckpoor. Both these tribes may probably be connected with the Balla, who are included in the Rajcula, and were the lords of Bhal in Saurashtra.

The Bhal and Bhala Sultan are the same tribe, but the Bhal by intermarriages with inferior stocks are not held in the same consideration as the Bhala Sultan.

Buand, الجانت bhánd Buhroopeea, אַננָיָאֵא वहरूपिया bahrúpía

The text of the printed Glossary requires modification.

Bhands are a separate clan from the Buhroopeeas but are descended from them. Those also are called Bhands who without reference to caste follow the occupation of singing, dancing, and assuming disguises. "The Bhoee Sootur" says that Buhroopeeas spring from the intercourse of a Mullah, or boatman, with a widow of the Gungapooter tribe. Their name is derived from the Sanscrit ex many, and eq appearance—

(i. e.) multiform, assuming many disguises—a mimic.

It is an error to suppose that Bhand is written by mistake for Bhat. The two are quite distinct, so much so that Bhands are frequently known by the name of Bhundela, which shows the distinction more plainly. Bhands are now all Mussulmans. Buhroopeeas are many of them Mussulmans, but the greater portion have adhered to their ancient faith.

BHANKUREE, अंद्रिंश भांकरी bhánkarí

A jungle shrub found in great abundance in the Dehli Territory. It differs in no respect from the Gokroo, q. v. It is used as a specific in certain complaints, and to attract purchasers its vulgar name is transformed by the druggists into Husd Sing, hara.

Bhaolee, १ भावती bháolí

Distribution of the produce of a harvest between Zumeendar and Asamee. Rent paid in kind instead of money.—See Glossary under Behavilly and Bhaweley.

Bhat, जी bhát

Advances to ploughmen without interest.—Benares and Eastern Oudh.

Bhunta is used in this sense in Rohilcund.

Bhat is also the name of a soil to the North of the Ganges that retains its humidity for a long time, and contains a large quantity of nitre. It is a peculiar soil, and is not found West of the little Gunduk.

In the Lower Doab and Bundlecund, Bhat means uneven ground.—See Вилтоо̀а.

Внат छीड़! भाट bhát

Bhat is said in the Glossary to be one of the illegitimate tribes springing from the intercourse of a man of the Beis, and a woman of the Chhutree caste; so also says Wilson, voce मागध as well as the Vocabulary to Johnson's "Selections from the Mahabharat," p. 207: but Bhats are usually considered to spring from the intercourse of a Chhutree with a Brahmin widow. Other authorities say that they were produced to amuse Parvati, from the drops of sweat on Siva's brow, but as they chose to sing his praises, rather than her's, they were expelled from heaven, and condemned to live a wandering life, as terrestrial bards. Sir John Malcolm, "Central India," Vol. II. p. 132 says-" According the fable of their origin, Mahadeva first created Bhats to attend his lion and bull; but the former killing the latter, every day gave him infinite vexation and trouble in creating new ones. He therefore formed the Charun equally devout as the Bhat, but of bolder spirit, and gave him in charge these favorite animals. From that period no bull was ever destroyed by the lion.

A Bhat is a genealogist, a family bard. By some tribes, the Bhat and Jaga are considered synonymous; but those who pretend to greater accuracy, distinguish them by calling the former Birmbhat or Badee, and the latter Jagabhat. The former recite the deeds of ancestors at weddings and other festive occasions:

the latter keep the family record, particularly of Rajpoots, and are entitled by right of succession to retain the office; whereas the Birmbhats are hired and paid for the particular occasion. Jagabhats pay visits to their constituents every two or three years, and receive perquisites to which they are entitled. After recording all the births which have taken place since their last tour, they are remunerated with rupees, cattle, or clothes, according to the ability of the registering party. Those of the North Western Rajpoots generally reside between the borders of Rajpootana and the Dehli Territory. Many also live at Daranugur on the Ganges, and travel to the remote East in order to collect their fees. Whereas the Birmbhats are residents in towns, and Kusbas, and do not emigrate periodically.

Both of these classes are held in the same dread for their exactions; which are satisfied by their constituents for fear of being lampooned, and paraded in effigy, (Gòòdda,) before the other members of the family; reminding us in this respect of the Irish Bards, of whom Spencer says, "There is amongst the Irish a certain kind of people called Bards, who set forth the praises and dispraises of men in their poems, the which are held in so high regard and estimation amongst them, that none dare displease them for fear to run into reproach through their offence, and to be made infamous in the mouths of all men." Several communities of Bhats exist in the North of Oudh, and a few are scattered over our provinces. There are, for instance, several villages belonging to Bhats in Azimgurh, Goruckpoor and Ghazeepoor.

In Rohilcund the occupation of Bhats, as bards, is frequently usurped by Gour Brahmins.

There are several sub-divisions among the Bhats of these Provinces, and an attempt is sometimes made, as with many other classes, to reduce them to the definite number of seven; viz. Utsela, Mahapatr, Kylea, Mynpooreewala, Jungira, Bhutura and Dusoundhee. But there are several which are not included under these heads, as Chourasee, Gujbhim, Choongele, Goojureewala, Seekutpoorea, Nagouree, Burda, &c. which shews that the classification into seven is not correct.

Steel, in his "Summary of Indian Classes," p. 108, divides Bhats into Bhat Rajpoot, or Kuvee, and Bhat Koonbee; the former he says are in Hindoostan, the latter in the Marhatta country; but the difference, if any, between them, refers perhaps more to the tribes they serve, than to any family distinction amongst themselves.

Of Bhais several have been converted to the Mahometan religion; some are said to have become Mussulmans as early as the time of Shuhab-òòd-Deen Ghorce, when they received the title of Races.

Besides their employment as genealogists, it is, or rather, was, considered their special duty to learn the Purans, for which it is needless to say, they are now no longer conspicuous. (Pudma Purana. See "Journal of R. A. S.," No. V. 281.)

The word Bhat bears a resemblance to the designation by which persons engaged in the same occupation are known in other languages. Sanscrit bhatta, a sage; Greek, phatis; Latin, vates. But the English and Gaelic bard, and Hebrew parat, have more correspondence with bardeit, another Hindee term of the same meaning. The word bardeit again has an evident connexion with barditus, which Tacitus, in his "Germania," says was the name of the German battle song.

BHEEHUR, अर्रे भीहर bhíhar

This is the name of a tribe which, according to local tradition, appears to have been one of the aboriginal races of Rohilcund and Upper Doab. They are said to have been expelled from Nirowlee, Buhjoce and the neighbouring districts by the Birgoojur Rajpoots. In the Doab, they are more commonly called Beimhar, and in parts of Rohilcund, Bechar. There may have been some connection between them and the Bhurs.

Bheet, ज्यं भीट bhít

An elevation of earth made near a tank for the purpose of planting Pan. Mounds of a tank. The vestige of an old house.

BHEJ, ਨੁਮੰਦੇ ਮੇਤ bhej

Rent; a proportionate share; an instalment. Bhej is in common use, but is not noticed in any of the Dictionaries. It may be a corruption of the Sanscrit Bhag, a portion.

BHEJ-BURAR, المناح المناط bhej-barár

A tenure frequently met with in Bundlecund, in which the shares of the brotherhood are liable to periodical, or occasional, adjustment; and in which balances of Revenue and Village expences, occasioned by the fraud or insolvency of a sharer, are made good by a rateable contribution from the other sharers. Strangers are often introduced in over-assessed estates on condition of paying the burar, but their admission by no means, as is sometimes supposed, forms a necessary incident of the tenure, of which the chief characteristic is the re-adjustment of the burar. At the late settlement of Bundlecund it was stipulated in many instances that this liability to re-adjustment should cease; and practically, for some time previous; the readjustment had not been demanded, except upon occasion of a new settlement. It is probable that in a short time, as the value of property increases, the Bhej-burar tenure will altogether cease to exist.

Bhelee, अंधः मेली bhelí

A lump of coarse sugar; generally consisting of 4 or 5 seers.

Bhis, अर्थः भिष bhis

The edible root of the Lotus. The correct word is Bhuseenr, but it is provincially corrupted into Bhisenda, Bhis, and Busend.

BHOGBUNDHUK, अर्थें अंशें भागवंधक bhogbandhak

Mortgage. A debt in which land, trees, or animals are pledged to the lender; the produce in corn, fruits, milk, labour, &c. being considered an equivalent for interest.

"The rent, or use, or occupation of a pledged house, or the produce of a pledged field, is called bhoga babdha, interest by enjoyment."—"Vrihaspati, Digest," B. I. C. I. Sect. 35.

The word is derived from Bhog possession, and Bundhuk pledge.

Putbundhuk is a pledge, the usufruct of which pays principal and interest within a certain period, and therefore ensures its own redemption. A debt is thus said put jana, from the Sanscrit Root put, to fall.

Dishtbundhuk, q. v. is equivalent to hypothecation. These expressions though in general acceptation as law-terms, are not much used in the transactions of the common people, except in the lower Doab and Benares.

BHCOEE, है भूदे bhúí

Used in the neighbourhood of the Nerbudda to signify a "bearer." The same word is used in the Peninsula, and corrupted by Europeans into boy. Hence the exclamation of boy, so commonly used at Madras, is not, as has been supposed, a pure English word, but a corruption of Bhooce.

Bhooce is also, to the South of the Nerbudda, applied to designate the head of a Gond village.

BHOOEENDUGDHA, אָפּר נֿגניי ט אוא भूद्देदगधा bhúíndagdhá

Gifts at marriages and funerals. The word is derived from the ceremony of burning earth, which is performed previous to their presentation: bhoosen عادين earth, dugudhna دكوها to burn—E. Oudh.

Bhòòksa. ४००६१ भुक्सा bhuksa

A tribe found inhabiting the forest under hills from Poorunpoor Subna, on the Sarda, to Chandpoor on the Ganges.

Bhòòksas claim to be Powar Rajpoots, and assert that their chief, Oodya Jeet, was driven from house and home in a quarrel he had with his brother Jugut Deo, the Raja of Dharanugur, and came to dwell with a few dependents in Bunbusa, a village in the Oudh Territory. He had not been there long before his aid was solicited by the Raja of Kumaon, whose territories required defence against the invasion of some neighbouring potentate. Success attended the efforts of the Powar, and the gratitude of the Raja induced him to offer his defenders an asylum in his territories. Upon this they are represented to have left Bunbusa, and to have taken up their residence in their present abodes under the hills, chiefly on the lower edge of the Bhabur, where the springs rise to the surface. A part of the tribe remained in attendance upon the Raja of Kumaon.* Bhòòksas are considered bad cultivators, and rarely remain in the same spot above two years, for by that time they generally contrive to exhaust the soil they have had under tillage .- See printed "Reports on Rohilcund Canals," p. 107.

Of Bhooksas there are 15 different Gotes, or Clans-12 superior, and 3 inferior. The superior are Birgoojur, Tubaree, Burhunyee, Juliwur, Udhoee, Doogoogea, Rat, hore, Negourea, Julal, Oopudhea, Chouhan, and Doonwarea. The 3 inferior are the Deemur Rat, hore descended from a Telun (oil-presser); Dhungra from a hill-woman; and Golee from a woman of the barber cast. The names of these tribes indicate considerable intermixture with other classes, both Rajpoot and Brahmin.

Bhooksas are prohibited marrying in their own Gotes, but may select any other Gote they choose. Those who reside in Kilpoorce and Subna are said occasionally to intermarry with the T.haroos.—See T.HAROO.

The Bhats of the Bhooksas, who are descended from a follower of Oodya Jeet, reside still at Bunbusa, and pay occasional visits to their constituents.

The Purohits of the Bhooksas are Canoujea Brahmins who are also descended from one of the companions of Oodya Jeet.

१९६? भम bhúm Вноом,

The earth. Land. In Persian Boom py; but the Native Dictionaries add that Boom is exclusively appled to uncultivated and unoccupied land.

This close identity in the relation of the origin of two such distant tribes, which could have had no communication with each other for centuries, is rather favorable to the claims of the Bhooksas, and leads us to suspect that their name may possibly have originally had some connection with that of their great progenitor Raja Bhoj .- (See Oojen.)

* It may be proper to remark that there may possibly have been some connection between the Powars and Bhooksas; for Chund, the Bard, records that Ram, the Powar, or Pramar, bestowed Kuttair upon Kehur; which shews that this province must once have been included within the dominions of the Chukwa lord of Oojein. It may also be added that an Oodya Jeet, or Oodya Deet, Pramar, son of Bhoj, was Raja of Dhar in the first half of the eleventh century as has been established by numerous the first half of the eleventh century, as has been established by numerous inscriptions, (Trans. R. A. S. Vol. I. 133), and that the Bhojpoor family of Arrah claim a similar descent. They differ, however, in saying that Juggut Deo, was the son, not the brother, of Oodya Jeet. Rana Deo, the brother of Jugut Deo was the founder of the Bhojpoor family.

BHOOMIA, ४५०% सुमिया bhúmia

Landlord; a proprietor of the soil. Descendant of the founder of the village. It is derived from the preceding word.

BHOOMIAWUT, अ्राज्य क्षेत्रचावत bhúmiáwat A general plundering.—Saugor.

BHOONBHAEE, अंशाई bhúnbháí

A term used in the Dehli Territory to signify a man invited by a proprietor to reside in a village, and invested by him with a portion of land, which he is not at liberty to dispose of to others. From Bhoon special land, and Bhaee special brother.

Bhoondia, एउटा भाडिया bhúndiá

One who cultivates with a borrowed plough or hand instrument-—Central Doab.

Bhoonduree, अंडरी bhúndarí

A small patch of cultivation. Lands let without rent by Zumeendars, either to village servants, such as barbers, bearers, watchmen, and the like; or to indigent relations, fukeers, and friends, who come to sojourn in a village for a season.

Bounda is the term used generally in Rohileund and the Doab; but it is variously pronounced, Bhounduree, Bhodonda, Bhoonduree, and perhaps most correctly, Bohnduree.

Bhoongaee, پونگئي bhúngaí

Is the name of a tax levied by the Raja of Bidjepour on part of the forest produce of Tuppa Sukteesgurh, in zillah Mirzapore. In the Official Report of the Settlement of the Tuppa, the word is said to be derived from Bhoonga, a mallet. Tangaee is another of these taxes; from Tanga, an axe.

BHOONHAR, नेहार bhúnhár

1

A tribe of Hindoos to be found in great numbers in Goruckpore, Azimgurh, and the province of Benares. The Raja of Benares is of this caste. They call themselves sometimes Brahmins, sometimes Thakoors. They were originally Brahmins of the Surwurea stock; but from having, as they say, received the Pergunah of Kuswar from Raja Bunar, and become addicted to agricultural pursuits and cultivators of Bhoon (5) land) they lost their rank as Brahmins, though they frequently receive marks of respect due only to that privileged class. Others say that when Parasaráma destroyed all the Kshatriyas he introduced Brahmins to occupy their place, and hence they became proprietors of land.

We perhaps have some indications of the true origin of Bhoonhar in the names Gargabhumi, and Vatsabhumi, who are mentioned in the Harivansa, as Kshatriya Brahmins, descendants of Kasya Princes, (p. 123). Their name of Bhumi and residence at Kasee are much in favor of this view; moreover, there are to this day Garga and Vatsa Gotes, or Gotras, amongst the Surmurea Brahmins: but Wilson seems disposed to give another meaning to the tribe. (Vishnu Purana, p. 410).

Bhoonhars are congregated chiefly in Deogaon of Azimgurh; in Goruckpoor; in Doabeh, and Sydpoor Bhitree of Ghazee-poor; and in Mujhawur, Mehwaree, Sheopoor, Nurwun, Cole Asla, Dhoos, and Kuswar of Benares.

Besides the Garga, and Vatsa Gotes, there are several subdivisions of Bhoonhars, such as Sandel, Goutum, (of which family is the Benares Raja) Dichhit, Oopudhya, Pande, Sunkurwar, Kinwar. It will be observed that several of these are sub-divisions of the Surwurea Brahmins, and those whose origin is disguised by new names have all some title connecting them with the Suwurea stock. Thus, the Sunkurwar are Misr, the Donwar, Tewaree; and so on.

In their marriages they do not observe the same distinctions which are enforced among Surwureas between the Goutum Garg, Sandel, and the inferior ranks; for all the Bhoonhars intermarry on terms of equality.—See Canoujea Brahmins and Surwurea Brahmins.

BHOONHURA, अट्रंभ्ट्रा bhúnhara

A subterraneous dwelling: according to the Dictionary of Khan Arzoo.

Bnoor, 59%? भूड bhúr

A sandy soil. The word is frequently pronounced Bhooda.

Bhòòruree, ७७%! भुडरी bhurarí

A term applied to the corn which remains in the ear after being trodden out.—Rohilcund and Dehli.

The corresponding word in Benares and the L. Doab is Lindide and in the U. and L. Doab, Dobree, Pukòdree and Chittee.

These words are applied to the Rubbee grains chiefly, as wheat, barley, &c. To juwar, moong, &c. &c, Chanchuree, Gooree, Kosee, Kuruhee, and T,hunt,hee are more commonly applied.

Buòòs, भुस bhus Bhoosa, अध्या bhúsa

The husk of corn; chaff. The English Gypsies use Pus in the same sense. (Trans. R. A. S. Vol. II. 543.)

Bhòòsouree, अर्थः भुसीरी bhusaurí

Bnòòsoula, अधीला bhusaula

Bhòòsehra, प्रसंभक्षः भुषेह्रा bhusehra

The place in a dwelling house for keeping straw. These terms are in general use; but Obra יל, ל, is also so applied in Dehli.

Bhòòsra, إيسو भुस्रा bhusra
An inferior kind of wheat.—Saugor.

Bнòòтта, ॐइ: भुद्धा bhutta The Indian Corn; any large bunch.

BHOR, अश्रेश भार bhor

Bhrigobunsee, بهرگوبنسي भिगुजंसी bhrigubansí A tribe of Rajpoots.—See Burholea.

Bhuda, তিন্তু: মভা bhada

A kind of grass which grows in poor soil, attaining the height of a little more than a foot. It makes excellent fodder.

Bhudahur, ्रेडीउद्देश भदाहर bhadáhar

The cutting of a grain when it is only half ripe. It is a common saying—

चना भदाहर त्रीर जी कुरा

गेहूं ढेंका ढारा

Chuna bhudahur, our jou kòòra, Gehoon dhenka dhara.

"Cut your Chuna half ripe, your barley ripe, your wheat when the ear bends down."

The word is confined to Rohilcund. Bhudbhudana and Hooreha are used in a similar sense in the Doab; and Dhesur, and Gudra in other places. These last terms are applied generally to any half ripe fruit.

Bhudbhudana, Ujugiugi भद्भदाना bhadbhadáná

Used in the Upper Doab in the same sense as Bhudahur, (which see). It also means the shaking of fruit from a tree. Shakespear does not give this application of the term in his Dictionary; but bhudbhud and bhudbhudahut, are said in it to denote the sound which is made by the fall of fruits.

Bhudouria, بهدوريا भदीत्या bhadauriá

A branch of the Chouhan Rajpoots; but the Chouhans are disposed to deny this relationship, now that from motives of convenience the two tribes have begun to intermarry.

They are divided into the six Clans of At, hbhyea, Kòòlhya, Mynoo, Tusselee, Chundersenya, and Rawut.

We find Bhudourias in Mehrabad of Shahpehanpoor, Janibrast of Etawah, in a few Pergunnahs of Campore, and in the Saugor Territory, to which they were invited by Akber after his partial conquest of that province. They are in chief force in Bah Punahut of Agra, and the country to the South, which after them is called Bhudawur. Some say their name is derived from Buddura between the Chumbul and the Jumna; others, more correctly, from Bhudoura in the neighbourhood of Atair.

K 2

The family of the Raja of Bhudawur aspire to a high antiquity*, but the entire absence of any notice of them in Chand's description of the attack of Pirt, hee Raj on Canouj, in which he takes occasion to mention all the tribes that joined either party, and in the annals of the early Mussulman Empire, discredits their claim. Yet on the grounds of this antiquity of lineage, as well as of their fidelity to the British Government, (which was otherwise most amply rewarded by a Sayer compensation of 24,000 Rupees per annum,) a rent free grant of 30 villages has very lately been bestowed upon the adopted heir of the family. Amongst other pretensions advanced, it was stated that the Bhudouria Hurchul Deo, joined Timour's standard, and received Rapree and Chundwar as a reward for his allegiance. Now, it is evident from the accounts in the "Zufurnama," "Hubeeb-oos-Seer," "Rouzut-oos-Sufa," and "Mutla-oos-Sadeyn," which all treat in great detail of Timour's invasion, that no Hindoo Chief united himself with that Conqueror; and even if he had, the tyrant, during his rapid course in Upper India, could have bestowed no fief that was worth acceptance; and much less would his bigotry have suffered him to bestow it on an infidel. It also appears that he never advanced † 50 miles to the South of Dchli, and therefore could not have conquered the Raja of Rapree and Chundwar. Moreover, what serves entirely to disprove this alleged gift is, that it is expressly stated in the "Tuwareekh-i-Mòòbaruk-Shahee," that Timour had scarcely turned his back on India, when Syud Khizr Khan sent his Wuzeer to levy the Revenue of Chundwar, "which had been due for some years, and recovered Juleysur out of the hands of the Rajpoots of Chundwar,;" so that the Chundwar family, instead of losing, must have increased their possessions during the troubles succeeding Timour's invasion.

We are led to infer from a passage in Tod's Rajasthan (II. 44, 45,) that the Bhadourias were established on the Chumbul by Manika Rave, Prince of Ajmere, or at least shortly after his reign. Now as he flourished towards the close of the 7th century, the Bhudourias must have preceded the Chouhans of the Doab, if reliance is to be placed on his statement.

† It may be as well to observe here, that the "Rouzut oos-Sufa," and "Tubukat-i-Akberee" state, that Ameer Jehan Shah was sent with other distinguished commanders to sweep the country on all sides (جازب) of Dehli; whereas Ferishta and the "Mutla-oos-Sadeyn" say, "the country South (جنرب) of Dehli." Whichever reading we assume to be correct, it is evident that if these foraging parties had reached even as far as Muttra, that important seat of idolatry would not have escaped the notice of these annalists.

Again, it is said that in the reign of the Emperor Akber, the holder of the Raj, Rujjoo Rawut, distinguished himself by slaying Heyta, a Meo freebooter, who resided at * Hutkant, a fastness in the Ravines of the Chumbul: but the contemporary author of the "Akbernama" confutes the assertion, as he states that, in the third year of the Juloos, the Muhal of Hutkant was given in Jageer to Oodhum Khan, for the purpose of suppressing "the Bhudouria Zumeendars of that place, who had long been famous for their turbulent opposition to the imperial authorities."

ر از سرانیم آنست که ادهمخان ر جمعی را برسر هتکانت فرستادند شرح این اجمال انکه هتکانت درنزدیکی دارالخلافت آگره است ازر مستحکم ترجائی نیست رزمینداران آنجا از طایفهٔ بهدرریه ر غیرآن بربسیاری مردانگی اشتهار دارند رهمراره با سلاطین هند سرکشی کردندی بیرامخان چون همیشهٔ از ادهمخان مترهم برد اندیشید که آن صحال بجاگیر او مقرر شرد تا باین رسیله از درخانه در گرده رهم متمردان نواحی سزا یابند و بیک خیال در کار نیکتر بتقدیم آید بنابران اندیشهٔ آنوا بجاگیر مقرر کرده رخصت داد

This account is confirmed in the second volume of the "Jehangeernama," a work of which the first parts have been too much neglected.

* The first direct mention we have of their stronghold Hutkant is in the Mukhaun Afghanee; but in that they receive any thing but honorable mention. It is said of Secunder Lodi in 915, H.

ر درسن نهصد و بانزده از لهاور بنواحي هتكانت رسيده آن محال را از اهل شرك و طغيان مصفا ساخته و متمودان آنجا را بقتل رسانيده و جالجا تهانجات نشانده بدارالخلافت آكره نزول اجلال فرمود

و همدرین ایام ادهمخان کوکلتاش را به تسخیر هتکانت که در نواحی دارالخلافة اکبراباد ازان محکم تر جائی نیست ربهدریه نام قومی درانجا توطن دارند ربشجاعت و مودانگی از اکثر زمینداران علم امتیاز می افرازند تعین فرمودند رگروهی از امواء نامدار مثل بهادرخان و حسین قلیخان و سید محمد بارهه و شاه قلیخان محرم و صادق محمدخان و اسمعیل قلیخان و خرمخان بکومک او مقرر شدند ادهمخان و سایر امواء بتائید درلت ابد پیوند مفسدان بهدرریه را تادیب سزا داده آنولایت را که اجاکیر ادهمخان از دیران اعلی مقرر گشته و دند متصوف گودیدند

It appears, therefore, that the Bhudourias, so far from performing any service to the Imperial Government, were themselves the parties on whom punishment was inflicted. is nevertheless said that for this service (that is of expelling the Bhudourias), the Bhudouria Raja received not only an assignment of the conquered land, but also a Munsub of 7,000. Here again they are completely at fault, and disproved by the same author, who distinctly asserts, in his admirable work the " Ayeen-i-Akberee," that no dignity above 5,000 was ever bestowed upon any but the King's own sons. The higher and more extravagant Munsubs, which we read of in later periods, were not given during the reign of that monarch. to be introduced by his son, who commenced the practice by bestowing a Munsub of 30,000 on his Queen, Noorjehan. Whether a member of the Bhudouria family ever attained in Akber's time the dignity even of 500, which is claimed for him on the authority of the Ayeen Akberee, may be doubted; for in several copies which have been consulted the name of the family is not given in the Register of the Munsubdars of 500.

In the reign of Akber's successor, the family does not appear to have been held in any higher consideration; for in the memoirs of Jehangeer, translated by Major Price, it is said "Among other objects which I accomplished about this period was the suppression of a tribe of robbers, called Fehndia, who had long infested the roads about Agra, and whom getting into my power, I caused to be trampled to death by elephants." In all the Persian MSS. copies which have been examined, this strange word Fehndia is written Bhudouria; and the fact tells much against the alleged respectability of the family, The words of the original are as follows:

بهدرریه حماعتی بردند که اکثر راهها میزدند و دردي میکردند

These instances have been adduced in order to shew that the high claims that have been put forward in favor of the family are somewhat unreasonable; and were indeed entirely needless, as its respectability for many years past has been unquestionable.

It was from the time of Jehangeer's successor that they appear to have been held in consideration by the Royal Family of Dehli.

In Shahjehan's reign Kishen Sing, Bhudouria is down as Munsubdar of 1000.

In Mohumed Shah's reign we find one of the family, Anroadh Sing, a Munsubdar of 6,000, and Foujdar of Lahawur; and although the Patentee had to pay the handsome price of 15 lacs of rupees, it must be confessed the dignity was high for a Rajpoot of so small a principality. In the time of this Emperor, the personal virtues of Raja Gopal Singh, the father of Anroadh Sing, were also held in high consideration, as we may learn from the interesting correspondence of Nownidh Rae. "Tareekh-i-Moozuffuree" also says of Anroadh Sing, that Saudat Khan had such a regard for him that he used familiarly to call him his son; but it is evident from the perusal of the many contemporary histories of that period that the consequence of the Bhudourias declined before the close of Mahommud Shah's We find the Raja's Fort invested by the Mahrattas. his country plundered, and afterwards subjected to heavy contributions, and one of his successors compelled to go into exile for several years to escape the ravages of the victorious Jats, who had subdued the Bhudourias and confiscated the Raj: and when at last Raja Bukht Sing was restored, he succeeded to but little of his former possessions, for in the words of the accurate Moortuza Khan, "times are now changed, and weakness has fallen on the Bhudouria; much of his territory has been retained by the neighbouring Rajas, and he is obliged to be content with but a small principality." This was written about the year 1790, A. D.

To sum up all, it may be said that the immediate cause of their aggrandizement is obscure, but is as likely to have been a pair of large eyes, as the capture of a fort (see Виштооца); that their political importance lasted no longer than for a few years at the beginning of the last century; that their illustrious lineage even now invests them with consideration in the eyes of surrounding Rajas, who allow the Bhudouria to sit higher than themselves, who receive from him the investiture, or rather impress of the Tiluk, who confess that he alone can cover with grain the lingam at Butesur (the Rana of Gohud having tried twenty-one maunds in vain, while the Bhudouria accomplished it with seven); and that though influential, they are not of that high importance which they would arrogate to themselves. It is to be feared, also, they are much addicted to infanticide; so that when we take all these circumstances into consideration, there seems reason to acknowledge, that the indiscriminate bounty of the British Government might perhaps have been more worthily bestowed.

Внидикіа, গুলু স্থা bhadaria See Dukout, of which tribe they are a sub-division.

Bhudwar, अट्वार bhadwar

Land prepared for Sugar Cane. Land ploughed during the Khureef, and allowed to lie fallow till Cotton is sown. Land ploughed from Asarh to Bhadon for the Rubbee sowing. The name is derived from Bhadon, apparently because the entire rain of that month is allowed to saturate the field when ploughed. It is called Bhudwar Purul, in parts of Rohilcund and the Doab.

Внирубе, अटई эна bhadaí

The produce of the month Bhadon.

Bhugta, धिर्द्धः भगता bhagtá

A tribe of Aheers.—See AHEER.

Bнима, ыйл bhang

BHANG, ישונא אוֹח bháng
In Persian Bung. An intoxicating drink made from the leaves of the Cannabis Sativa. The plant from which it is made has female flowers; the male being the Ganja plant, which is also applied to the purpose of intoxication, and is usually inhaled from a pipe. It is commonly considered that there is no difference between the plants which produce Bhung and Ganja, but natives generally recognise the distinction of the male and female plant noted above.

O'Shaughnessy says that Bung, or Sidhee, or Subzee, consists of the large leaves and capsules without the stalks, but makes no allusion to Bhung being produced from a plant different from that which produces Ganja.

The best Bhung of the N. W. Provinces comes from Bahraich and its neighbourhood, and from Dundwaree in Canouj; the best Ganja from Bengal. Bhung is also known by the name of Bijaya.—(See Ganja.)

Bhungee, अंगी bhangí

The name given to the low caste occupied in sweeping and other menial domestic services. The Purans say, the Bhungees are descended from a Soodra and a Brahman's widow. They extend throughout the whole of Hindoostan, and are called indifferently Bhungee, Lalbegee, Khakrob, Hulalkhor, and Mehtur. Those who have remained, like their ancestors, Hindoos, chiefly worship Lal Gooroo, which is the familiar name of the Rakshasha Aronakarat; and those who affect Mussulman observances have converted this name into Lalbeg, and state that he was an immediate follower of the prophet.

The names of some of their Gotes are Buneewal, Beelpurwar Tak, Gehlote, K,holee, Gagra, Surohee, Chundalia, Statual, and Siriar. There are several besides these; but all the different Gotes intermarry on terms of equality.

Low as this tribe is in the scale of social life, they consider others engaged in the same occupation far lower than themselves, such as the Dhanuks, Sekres, Rawuts, and Helas. Bhungees however eat the leavings of all classes. Helas pride themselves as eating only those of Hindoos. The claims put forward by these lower classes shows how much more caste is a privilege than a degradation.—See Choohra.

Bhungees cannot in general be said to be of any particular religion, but they are perhaps more Mussulman than Hindoo. They bury their dead, occasionally sacrifice, in the name of Lalbeg, a fowl which has its throat cut after the Mussulman fashion, and perform Teeja after the death of relations, which is also a custom peculiar to Mussulmans. They generally, nevertheless, profess to be Hindoos, because their marriage, and a few other, ceremonies conform chiefly to the Hindoo modes.

Buungela, द्रीया bhangela

A sack or pannier made from the fibres of the Bhung plant. It is not so coarse or strong as the Gon.

Buungooria, अंगेरिया bhangúria

A tribe of Tugas, which has a few villages in Sceana, a pergunah of Boolundshuhur.—See Gour Tuga.

Bhungra, ४७६३ भंगरा bhangra

A small creeping herb with minute flowers which grows in a wet soil (verbesina prostrata). There are said to be two species, the white and the black. The white is very common, and is much used in medicinal preparations; the black is unknown, but is much sought after by Alchymists, and is reputed by native practitioners to be a Panacea.

BHUNSURA, ४ अंधरः भंदरा bhansara
A sub-division of the Aheer tribe, q. v.

BHUNTA, SÄig! भनटा bhanta

Ploughman's wages in kind.—Rohilcund.

Bhutta is used in this sense in Dehli and the Doab.

Bhunwug, अंश भनवग bhanwag

A small class of Rajpoots, of which we find a few in Mureeahoo of Jounpoor, and Sydpoor Bhitree of Ghazeepoor.

Bhur, ) अर bhar

One of the Aboriginal races of India, called also Rajbhur,

Bhurut, and Bhurpuiwa. Common tradition assigns to them the possession of the whole tract from Goruckpoor to Bundle-cund and Saugor, and the large Pergunah of Bhudoee in Benares (formerly Bhurdoee) is called after their name. Many old stone forts, embankments, and subterraneous caverns in Goruckpoor, Azimgurh, Jounpoor, Mirzapoor and Allahabad, which are ascribed to them, would seem to indicate no inconsiderable advance in civilization.

The wild Bheels of Marwar are called Bhourees, (Irvine on Ajmere, p. 17. See also, J. A. S. No. 145 of 1844)—but I know not whether there is any connexion between them and the Bhurs. The Bhoyas and Bhootteas of Agoree and Singrowlee, who are generally classed as Aheers, may probably bear some relation to the Bhurs, though no trace can now be had of their descent. The Chenoos also q. v. are sometimes said to be a branch of the Bhurs.

Bhurs are now occasionally found in the original seats of their occupation, filling the meanest offices: swine are especially given over to their care; and they have credit with the common people for being well acquainted with the depositories of hidden treasure.

On the hills to the Eastward of Mirzapoor, they retain a few principalities. Korar, Kuraich, and Hooraha are each held by Bhur Rojas, and the country between Bijyegurh and Chynpoor is full of them. The famous fort of Bijyegurh, amongst many others, is attributed to them, being called a Bhuraotee fort.

It is strange that no trace of Bhurs is to be found in the Purans, unless we may consider that there is an obscure indication of them in the "Brahma Purana", where it is said that among the descendants of Jayadhwaja are the Bháratas, who, it is added, "are not commonly specified from their great number*": or they may perhaps be the Bhurgas, of the "Mahabharata," subdued by BhimSen on his Eastern expedition.

The Bhurs consider themselves superior to Rajbhurs, notwithstanding the prenomen of Raj; but this claim to superiority is not conceded by the Rajbhurs. They do not eat or drink with one another.—See RAJBHUR.

• So also the "Harivansa" says of the Bharatas I. p. 157, "They form an immense family whose numbers it is impossible to mention."

Вниквноомыл, ४इं१३११ सडमूंना bharbhùnja

In the Glossary Bhudbhooja, and again Burbhoonja; in which place they are said to be the same as Hulwaee, which is not quite correct. The literal meaning of the word is Grain-parcher, and denotes the general occupation of the tribe. They spring from the intercourse of a Kuhar with a Soodra woman. They are generally considered to be divided into seven Koorees or clans, of which the most famous appear to be the Canonjea, Suksena, and Octuraha. They do not intermarry.

A class of Kayeths, particularly those of the Mat,hoor tribe who follow this occupation are distinguished by the same name, but have no other connection with the original Bhurbhoonjas. Bhurbhoonjas can never be got to enumerate the names of the seven clans with any uniformity; and it may therefore be doubted if that definite number of them exists.

BHURE, ८)% भरे bhare

A grass which grows in the jungles to the height of about nine feet, and is used for thatches and tatties. Its canes are known by the name of Noonre.

A cess levied in the Province of Benares, of which one half was given to the Amil for charges of remittance, and the other carried to the credit of Government.—See Sec. 6 and 7, of Regn. II. of 1795.

Bhurna, ७ ७३ भना bharna

To give property in re-payment of a debt.

Bhurouna, ७,७३१ भरीना bharauná

A load of wood .- Ghuraeb-ool-Loghat.

85

Bhuroutee, بهروتي भरोती bharautí Bhurpaee, بهرپائي अरपाई bharpáí

Bhuroutee is a release in full.—Saugor and Benares.

Bhurpace is more commonly used in the same sense in the N. W. Provinces.

The latter word is derived from Bhur full, and Pana to receive—a receipt in full—a cocket—and like as Bhurpaee is derived from two words which are entered in the receipt, as in the endorsement, "Mein ne cowree cowree bhur paee;" 'so is Cocket (anciently written Quoquet) from two words in the body of the acquittance: for the original form of Cocket was as follows; "Edwardus omnibus, ad quos, Salutem. Sciatis quod A. B. nobis solvit in portu nostro London: custumas nobis debitas pro tribus saccis lanæ quo quietus est, testibus collectore et controlatore custumarum nostrarum in portu prædicto," &c. &c.

The equivalent term in Persian is Ruseed, a receipt; but though these two words are so closely alike in sound, they have no connexion with each other, and the similarity is merely accidental.

Вникритил, १९६३ भरपतुन्त्रा bharpatwá
A sub-division of the Вник tribe, q. v.—See also Gurнwar.

BHURTKOOL, אויאנייטלפי भतेंकूल bhartkúl
One of the sub-divisions of Gour Brahmins, q. v.

BHURUT, अश्र भरत bharat

Amount of Revenue paid by an individual or party. The word is chiefly used in Dehli, and is frequently pronounced Bhurit and Burut.

BHUT, जिल्ला भेड bhat

The name of a Brahminical tribe in Cureat Seck, hur, and other parts of the Benares province. They derive their origin from a Mahratta Brahmin of the name of Morbhut and a Survurea mother.

Bhut is also the name of a grass which commonly grows in mangoe groves, and is used as a medicine by natives.

Brutea, ১৯৯৪ পতিয়া bhatia

The poorest kind of land in the Saugor Territory and Bundlecund. It is of a reddish colour, and has Kunkur and other stones mixed up with it. It is very shallow in depth, and generally exhausted at the end of the third year, after which it requires a fallow of four years to restore it. Only Codon and Kootkee, and the poorest sort of corn can be raised on Bhutea land. It is more generally called Bhutti and Bhutòòa in Bundlecund.—See "Spry's Mod. India," II. 276.

Buut Gour, अटगीर bhat gour

A sub-division of the Gour Rajpoots, q. v.

BHUTKUREA, ४३७८३ अटकरिया bhatkaria

The name of a class of inferior Beis Rajpoots resident in the district of Jounpoor.—See Beis.

Bhutkuteya, ५३३३३ भटकटईया bhatkataiá

(Solanum Jacquini). There are two kinds of this herb according to the "Taleef-i-Shureef;" the white is usually called the Kutace, and the large and red kind the Burehta. The flower is called Goolkhar. It may be doubted if this statement is quite correct. There are generally reckoned to be four kinds of Kuteya of which the Bhutkuteya, frequently miscalled the Camel's thorn, is one, and the common people, who see these weeds growing wild, do not acknowledge that there are two kinds of Bhutkuteya. The only Bhutkuteya which they know is much used in veterinary practice, particularly in diseases which affect horned cattle. It is also devoutly believed that if the roots of the Bhutkuteya are shown to a man bitten by a snake, he immediately recovers.—(See Juwasa).

The other three kinds of Kuteya are the following.

Bung Kuteya. This resembles a common thistle, and is not applied to any useful purpose. It is known also by the name of Sutyanasee, and found in all parts of the country.

Gol Kuteya. This is not so erect as the others, but spreads more over the surface of the ground. It has purple flowers, and produces a round berry. It is frequently used in native prescriptions.

Kuteya, proper. This is the largest of the four, and is more frequently found in jungles than near the abode of man. It is a prickly shrub, growing to the height of ten or twelve feet, and does not at all resemble the other Kuteyas.

BHUTNAGUR, अंग्रेंड्र भटनागर bhatnágar

A large tribe of Kayeths, who derive their name from Bhutnere. They are found in great numbers, almost conterminous with the Gour Brahmins, from Sumbhul and Moradabad to Agroha and Ajmere: but are also scattered over some of the Eastern provinces, in which their establishment dates from the time of (Iheas-ood-deen in the middle of the 13th century. When the King's son, Nasir-ood-deen Kurra Khan was appointed to the Government of Bengal, he was accompanied by several Bhutnagur Kayeths, who were high in his favor. These men soon became much intermixed with the Gour Kayeths, the old residents of that country, at which the old Bhutnagurs were scandalized; in so much, that when Nasir-ood-deen returned, some years after, to Dehli, to dispute the succession with Keikobad, and was for some time encamped at Kasna, the old Bhutnagurs refused to associate with them, and the heretics consequently became distinguished by the name of Goura Bhutnagur or Bhutgour.

The Bhutnagurs are not considered very pure Hindoos, and are more addicted to drinking than other Kayeths, but their official position has enabled them in some places to acquire considerable influence. They are the Canoongoes of Gwalier and of Muhabun in Muttra.

The Goura Bhuinagurs are Canoongoes of Mureeahoo in Jounpoor, of Chupra and Moongeer. To these Eastern divisions they appear to have been appointed by Nasir-ood-deen. The females of these families are taken in marriage by the Western Bhuinagurs, but a reciprocal privilege is denied to the Goura Bhuinagurs, as they are considered to have forfeited their claims to an equal rank by their amalgamation with the Gours.—See Gour Kayeths.

BHUTOLUR, अद्भेट्ट भटे।लर bhatolar Lands allotted to Bhats or Bards.

Buutòòla, क्षीयुंश भटुला bhatula

The name given to bread made from the grain of Arhur, Chuna, and Moong. It is called also Gankur. It is notorious for its hardness, and is therefore seldom eaten by those who can afford to grow or purchase the better grains.

Bhutòòla is said to have been the cause of the elevation of the Bhudourias, and the story, absurd as it may appear, is commonly believed in the neighbourhood of Bhudáwur, and is not denied by the Bhudourias themselves. One of the Bhudouria chiefs, Gopal Singh, went to pay his respects to the King, Mahomed Shah. The chief had very large eyes, so much so, as to attract the attention of the King who asked him how he obtained them. The chief, who was a wit, replied that in his district nothing but Arhur was grown, and that from the constant practice of straining at swallowing Bhutòòla, his eyes had nearly started out of his head. The King was pleased at his readiness, and bestowed on him other Pergunahs on which he could produce the finer grains.—See Bhudouria.

BHUTTA, ওঁনে স্না bhatta
Ploughman's wages in kind.—See BHUNTA.

BHUTTA CHARJ, श्रीड़ी अट्टाचार्ज bhatta chárj See Canoujea Brahmin.

Bhuttee, कृष्टी bhattí

A Rajpoot tribe of Yadoobunsee descent, the rulers of Jeyselmere, giving name to the Bhuttee territory between Hissar and the Garra. (See Bhutteeana.) The once formidable Fort of Bhutnere, perhaps, also derives its name from them, though a different origin is ascribed to it. The Bhuttees of those parts were, it is said in the "Survey Report," converted to Mahomedanism in the time of Akber, but the fact is not probable, as few conversions took place in his reign. It is stated in the "Annals of Rajast,han" (II. 213, 260) that they were converted shortly after Timour's invasion, and that on this occasion they changed their name from Bhatti to Bhutti. It does not appear, however, that there is any authority for this latter statement.

It was shortly after Timour left India, that a Colony of Bhuttees migrated from the neighbourhood of Buhamulpoor, under their leader Bersi, and captured Bhutnere from a Mahomedan chief, who had himself lately conquered it from the Jats. It is not improbable, however, that there were Bhuttees even at that time already in the neighbourhood, though the annalists of Timour's invasion mention the Jats only. The son of Bersi was after his father's death compelled to sustain three several attacks of the Mahomedans, and on the third occasion was reduced to such straits as to be obliged to consent to conversion as the condition of retaining his conquest. The circumstantiality of the account invests it with some probability.

A large clan of Bhuttee Rajpoots are said to have come to Bòòlundshuhur under a Raja Kansul in the time of Pirt,hee Raj. A few of the descendants of the original stock are now in Tilbegumpoor, Dadree, &c. but the greater part of them have by intermarriages become Goojurs. The Bhuttees are held to have had 360 villages, and the tract from Loni to Kasna was called after them, Bhutnere. There are a few also in Tigree and Oojharee of Rohileund.

Bhutteeana, ১ইটুং মত্তীস্থানা bhattiána

Is the name given to a large tract of land between the Hissar district and the Garra, which is tenanted chiefly by Bhuttee Rajpoots. Bhutteeana, or Bhuttea, is a country of growing importance, the population and cultivation having greatly increased since our occupation.

It will be observed, by referring to the map of Dustoons, that the Western boundary of Sircar Hissar Feroza has been extended only to the bed of the War Nuddee, which runs not far to the Westward of the Cuggur, the new Pergunnah of Wuttoo, and Bhutteeana being altogether excluded: for this tract, full of sandy plains and * T, huls, seems to have been little known in the time of Akber, nor, with the exception of Mulout, which was in Multan, does it appear to be included in any Sircar of the adjoining Soobahs. It is to be observed. that Abool Fuzl, in mentioning the breadth and length of the several Soobahs, measures from Hissar in the Dehli Soobah. from Ferozepoor in the Mooltan Soobah, from the Sutlej in the Lahore Soobah, and from Beekanere in the Ajmere Soobah. He appears therefore, with the above exception, to leave the tract between all these places as neutral ground. To be sure, the Reverend Mr. Renouard, in his article on Dehli in the "Encyclopædia Metropolitana," includes Futtehabad in Ajmere. on the sole authority, apparently, of Hamilton's Gazetteer: but Abool Fuzl certainly places it in Hissar Feroza, and it was included in Hissar before his time, as we learn from the 5th Chapter of the 2d book of Shumsi Serajee, where he says.— پیش ازین در عهد سلاطین ماضیه آن سمت را در دفاتر راین شق هانی نوشته چون شهر حصار فيروزة بنا كردند سلطان فروز فرصود ازين تاريخ باز شق حصار فيورزة نويسند اتطاعات هانسي و الكروة و فتع آباه و سوستي وسالورة و خصواباه و اقطاعات دیگر بنام داخل شق حصار فیروزه کردند "In the Imperial Registers before his time, the Shuq (district) was called Hansi; but Feroz Shah included Hansi,

There are also the Chaldee t, hur, the Greek tur-sos, the Persian toor, the German thurm, the Saxon tor, the Danish taarn, the Welsh tur, the Latin tur-ris, with its derivatives throughout the languages of modern Europe. Sye observes in his Dictionarium Saxonico et Gothico-Latinum, "Originem autem habet in lingua Celtica, qua mons dicebatur Thor, quæ Syris et Chaldais efferebatur Thur. * * * * Taurus, Mons Asiæ. Tauri, Montes Sarmatiæ. Taurini, gentes Alpinæ. Taurinum, capat Pedemontii. Thuringi, vel Toringi, monticelæ. Retinetur etiam apud Derbeienses Cestrication.

enses aliosque nostrates vox ista Tor, montem significans."

* It is curious that this word T,hul bears precisely the same meaning in the Coptic (a small hill, or sand ridge) as in the passage quoted from the Cancubjound, in the article BOODHGUNGA; but this close identity of meaning and sound can scarcely afford food for the speculations of those who advocate an original connection between Egypt and India, because we have the word in many other languages also, under the varying aspects of t,hul, tull, til, t,hur, tur and tor. Thus in Arabic Tull Toba, the hill of repentance, on the Tigris, so named, according to the Marasid ul Itta "because when Jonas threatened them with God's vengeance, the people of Nineveh went out to it and repented." In Gaelic, Tillee Bellein, a town in Perthshire, i. e. the eminence of the fire of Baal, where the festival of Beltane, mentioned in a note on the article CHANK, is annually held on old May day.

Agroha, Futtehabad, and Sirsootee, even to Suloura and Khizrabad, in the new huq of Hissar Feroza," which must therefore have included Akber's Sircar of Sirhind, as well as Hissar, for Suloura is under the Sewalik Hills and Khizrabad is on the Jumna.*

We may perhaps attribute the little knowledge entertained of these tracts by Abool Fuzl to the depopulation caused by "the firebrand of the universe," Timoor. There is not a place in these parts which was not the scene of his wanton cruelty. Bhutnere, Ahroony, Futtchabad and Tohana, all suffered at his hands. Sirsa also was attacked and plundered, if we may be allowed, as there seems reason, to look upon Sirsa as the town of Sirsootce. Indeed, it is still called Sirsootce by men that come from these parts; and Timoor's Sirsootce is represented as being precisely the same distance and direction from Bhutnere, Futtchabad, Tohana and Ahrony, as Sirsa is. If this really be the old Sirsootce, the town must have changed its name before Akber's time, as he only mentions Sirsa, stating that Feroze Shah's canal passes near the town of that name.

It does not appear that the extensive desiccation which this country has undergone, and the further progress of which it is now hoped will cease, (our attention being directed to improving the meanst of irrigation) had proceeded to such an extent as we now view it, when Timoor invaded India. Mirkhond, Abdool Ruzzak, Shuruf-ood-deen, and all the other historians of his time, though they mention that he had to cross one continuous desert from the Sullej to Bhutnere, yet describe the great populousness of that town in terms which but ill accord with its present state. Sirsootee is also said to be on the bank of the river of the same name, so that it had not ceased to flow in those days, and had not yielded to the Cuggur, by which the dry river bed under Sirsa is now known. A short time before, also, Ibn Batuta,† while he states he had to cross a desert to Ubohur, "the first city in Hindoostan," says of Sirsootee, "It is large, and abounds with rice, which they carry hence to Dehli;" so that neither in his time could the means of irrigation have been deficient. The river indeed up to the commencement of Akber's time, seems to have been still called Sirsootee, for in the "Akbernama" we read that in Humayoon's re-conquest of Dehli, he bestowed upon the young Prince Akber, the Government of Hissar, and the provinces on the river Sirsootee; which had they been the provinces on the modern Sirsootee, would most probably have been called Sirhind. Yet it must be confessed that Abool Fuzl in his detailed description of the Soobah of Dehli gives prominent notice to the Cuggur river, and he may therefore have Major Brown in his Survey of Hissar fell in with a part of that which is now called the old Sirsootee. "The Sirsootee river was come upon quite unexpectedly. The best maps shew this river as joining the Cuggar between Mooruck and Samanah in the Puttiala states. As the survey approached Tohanuh, † It is much to be regretted, that we have not a perfect copy of this enterprising traveller's work. The abridgment translated by Dr. Lee increases the desire to see the entire work as well edited. Professor De Gayangos, in a note to the first volume of his "Mahomedan Dynasties in Spain," states that he obtained a perfect copy, and that he has it in contemplation to publish a translation of it—a declaration which it is to be hoped he will shortly fulfil. The period of Ibn Batuta's visit to India (A. D. 1332—1342) is highly interesting, and makes us regret the more that the geographical details have been much confused by the Epitomator. After leaving Dehli, he goes to Biana (Burun?)—thence to Kol,—thence to Julalee, a place seven days journey? distant from Kol—back to Dehli—back again to Kol—thence to Yieh Barah (Mynpoorve?) thence to the shores of a lake called "the Water of life" (Talgram?)—thence to Canouj,—thence to Merwa?—thence to Gwalior. The Chinese Embassy which he accompanied on its return, appears to have come with a view to the restoration of some Buddhist place of worship below the Hills, and perhaps in the district of Sumbhul, which had been destroyed by the Mahometans, who "had also prevented the Hindoos from cultivating the plains which were necessary to their subsistence." Hence we may perhaps obtain some information of the precise period when the depopulation of the country below the Sewalik Hills commenced; a question which has been cursorily noticed in the article Des.

* It was from the vicinity of these towns that the famous Feroz Shah's Lat was taken and placed in its present position in Dehli. A very particular and interesting account of the removal of the Lat, and of the first discovery of Indian osteological remains in the neighbourhood, is given by the same author; who, notwithstanding the adulatory tope of his history, gives us more valuable details respecting the condition of Hindoostan in his time, than any other Historian of that, or any subsequent, period.

† One of the first measures should be the opening of the dams in the Native States. There are at this time no less than twenty-four Bunds on the Sirsootee from T,hanesur to Sagara, where it joints the Cuggur.

the Zumeendars and native Officers brought it to notice, and directed our enquiries to this subject. It was stated that formerly this river flooded and enriched the lands to a great extent, and that even within the last ten years many villages derived great benefits from it. The bed of the river, however has for some years been lost sight of altogether, and it was only in a few villages near Huns-duhur that any vestige of it could be found; the remainder of its tract was laid down from information from the Zumeendars as far as it could be depended upon." (Reports on Projected Canals in the Dehli Territory, p. 120.)

As this bed of the Sirsootee is nearly parallel with the course of the Cuggur River, and with the Cuggur Nulla, or Choya, there seems little room for doubt that it combined with the latter, and formed the river of Sirsootee, which was flowing under the walls of Sirsa (Sirsootee) in the time of Ibn Batuta and Timoor. Whether the Cuggur* and Sirsootee were originally two entirely different streams, or whether they were originally one and the same, or whether, as is the case now, it has always been that the Sirsootee is merely a tributary of the Cuggur, are questions that would lead us into too long a discussion, and are irrelevant to the present enquiry.

I am aware that it is usual to ascribe the deterioration of this tract solely to the Chalecsa famine of A. D. 1783, but there seems sufficient ground for believing it commenced before that period. That the tract to the East of the Hyphasis was a desert at the period of Alexander's invasion, we learn from Diodorus and Quintus Curtius, and though they differ from Arrian in this respect, there is no doubt they represent truly the condition of a great part of this country in the time of that Conqueror. Succeeding events must have increased the natural sterility of this region. The first Mahomedan invasions, which were frequently accompanied by extermination of the old inhabitants, may be considered one of the original causes of depopulation. As these occurred for 200 years, more or less, there was ample time for the desert to extend its reign. These were, after a short space, succeeded by reiterated Moghul invasions up to the time of Timoor, who crowned them by his ravages. The tract could have been but little improved up to the time of Akber, and whatever prosperity it subsequently attained was reversed* by the Chalcesa Famine. It is perhaps to that period, when the deficiency of water was so grievously felt, that we are to attribute the drying up of many of the streams; which used to flow up to a late period in the Western Desert. It is a curious fact that the stream (Sunkur or Sunkra) which in 1739 was of sufficient volume to form the ‡ Treaty Boundary between the possessions of Nadir Shah and Mahomed Shah, has not now even a puddle to moisten its arid bed. The further examination of this interesting question is foreign to the immediate subject of this enquiry, which is to consider the condition of Bhutteeana in Akber's time, so as to shew what place it should occupy in the Dustoon Map; and, all circumstances considered, there can be no great error in having limited the boundary of Sircar Hissar to the neighbourhood of the modern Cuggur.

* Wilford says, that the famous Drishadwati is the name of the Cuggur; but in the "Tirtha Yatra" of the "Mahabharut," where it is mentioned as forming one of the boundaries of Kurukshetra, it is said, "those who dwell South of the Saraswati, and North of the Drishadwati, or in Kurukshetra, dwell in heaven." So that if Wilford's surmise is correct, what is now the Sirsootee was formerly the Cuggur, and, vice versa; which would supply us with a fourth subject of enquiry. See further "Vishnu Purana," p. 181.

BHUTT,HEE, ਫ਼ੁਫ਼ੌਂਝ: ਮਟਰੀ bhatt,hí A liquor shop. A Distillery.

* All notice of the ravages of the Bhuttees is omitted, which was of itself no inconsiderable cause of depopulation.

† With respect to the Sirsootee, it may be doubted if at any time it ever reached the Indus or any of its affluents. From the earliest periods it is recorded as being absorbed by the sand. Some of the oldest legends of the country relate to this peculiarity, and allusions are constantly made to it by the ancient poets: "sicut samim arborem, in qua ignis latet, sicut Saresvatim fluvium, cujus aqua sub terra fluit." "Strenzler's Raghuvansa," p. 17.—See also "Hurivansa," p. 507, 509.

The words of the Treaty are,

تا حدیکه دریای سند و نالهٔ سنکو بدریای صحیط اتصال دارد و آنچه سایر جات و صهمات در سمت غربی دریای سنده و نالهٔ سنکو واقع شده باشد صخصوص اندولت نادوه و ضمیمهٔ صمالک صحورسه آن سلطنت قاهره نمودیم

Внитт, неедак, אָבֶּקּבּאָפּי भटडीदार bhatt, hídár A person who manufactures and sells spirituous liquors.

Bnuwun, ১ house, a temple.

BHYABANT, अद्यानांट bhaiyábánt See Bhaeebant and Bhyachara.

Внуаснава, الهياچار भद्रयाचारा bhaiyáchára

The definition in the Printed Glossary is for the most part correct.

Bhyachara is a term applied to villages owned by descendants from a common stock.

In such villages the whole of the land is occupied by the proprietary brotherhood, and the revenue assessed by a rate, or bachh; and if there be non-proprietary cultivators, they are not responsible to the general body, but are introduced by some individual sharer, and pay him rent for land on which he pays by rate, or bachh.

In many of these holdings are sub-divisions paying an ascertained amount of Juma, levied by the proprietors of each sub-division among themselves. These are called thokes, puttees, and various other names; but the existence, or non-existence of the interior sub-divisions, does not affect the general character of the holding of proprietors paying by a rate.

There are also various ways of assessing the rate, as on ploughs, on the actual cultivation of each year, on wells, on the amount of cultivation ascertained at the settlement, &c. &c. but the general distinction continues unchanged.—See Par. 199—201, of the Revenue Board's Printed Circular Order on Settlements.

Внувит, ше: भेवट bhaibat

Bhyhissee, بھی دھي सेहिण्यी bhaihissí

Bhypunsee, إنسى भेपनसीं bhaipansí

The shares of a brotherhood, especially in the lands of a village or township.

Buyuns, بهى انس भेत्रंच bhaians

Division of property or interests among brothers.

These three words are chiefly used in Bundlecund, E. Oudh, Benares, and Lower Doab.

To pay and receive on the footing of one of the brotherhood. the word Bhaee splay brother, enters into the composition of this, and the six preceding words.

Bihund, उंदेश बिहंड bihand

Land cut up by a torrent; according to the Ghuraeb-ool-Loghát.

Bijhgah, ४६६इं विस्तगाह bijhgah

A scare-crow. The word is in general use, and is derived from Bijhkana, to frighten. Durawa قرارا is more frequently used in Dehli, and Dhaee يعاني if it is moved by a string, as when a bamboo or a stick is pulled against a bough of a tree, to produce a noise and frighten away the birds. Other words in common use are Dhok,ha رهر که, Dhurukka دهر که, and Dhooka دهر که, and Dhooka دهر که, and Dhooka دهر که و دهر که.

Bijhonia, الجهونيا चिस्तानिया bijhonia

A tribe of Rajpoots in the Pergunah of  $Ghis\`o a$ , Zillah Jounpoor.

Bikree, अर्थ विकरी bikrí

Sale. From Eikna to be sold.

Bikwan, نکوان विकवान bikwán

A sub-division of the Gour Tugas, q. v.

BILUIIBUNDEE, अअंश्री विलह्बनदी bilahbandí

The Glossary is correct under Beelabundy; but in the North West, the word is most usually applied to arrangements made for securing the Revenue.

Bilk, Huria, ४३, ५६८१ विलखरिया bilk'haria

A tribe of Rajpoots of the Buchgotee Chouhan stock. There are many of them in Dhòòreapara, a Pergunah of Goruckpoor. They derive their name from Bilk, hur in Oudh.

Billee-Lotun بلى او تبى बिल्लीलाटन billi-lotan

Valerian. The name is derived from its reputed effect upon Cats, who are said to be so delighted with its fragrance, as to roll about in their ecstasies. From billee بلي a cat, and lotna to wallow, to roll.

Bilmóóqta, ওছিত্রীয় বিলমুন্ধনা bilmuqta

A Putta under which a Ryut pays a certain fixed sum at so much per plough or per beeg, ha, not being liable to any further demand.

An engagement stipulating to pay a fixed money rent for the land under cultivation, not subject to enhancement during the currency of the lease. See the Glossary under Bilmugta. The word is derived from the Arabic Root تعلع cutting; forming; determining.

In Benarcs it signifies consolidated rate, including Mal and Abwab.—See Reg. LI. of 1795.

BILOUNGEE, بلونگي बिलांगी bilaungí A species of grass.

Binoula, अंश विनीला binaula

Cotton seed. It is much used as fodder for cattle.

BINOUREA, بنوريغ विनीरिया binouria

The name of a herb which grows about a foot and a half high in fields which have been sown with Khureef crops. It bears several little flowers of a purple colour, and is given as fodder to horned cattle.

Binuhur, अं: बिनहर binahar

A gatherer of Cotton; from binna tie to pick .- Benares.

The corresponding word in the Doab and Rohilcund is Pykar; in Bundlecund, Pyhura; and in Dehli, Pooce. He generally receives one-tenth of the gross produce, as well as a share, sometimes amounting to a fourth, of the cleaned cotton.

Birgoojur, प्रेन् विस्मूजर birgújar

One of the 36 Royal Races of Rajpoots, descended, like their opponents the Cuchwahas, from Rama, but through Lava, the second son. We find them in great numbers from Sumbhul, Scondara and Sulempoor in Rohilcund to Atrowlee and Cocl, and even Juleysir in Muttra. They are also in Shumsabad of Furruckabad, Eyta of Mynpoorce, and in Goruckpoor. Another clan, now entirely Mussulman, is found to the Westward of Moozuffernugur.

Colonel Tod says, that it was in Anoopshuhur that the Birgoojurs on their expulsion by the Cuchwahas from Rajore found refuge; and that is still the chief town of the Birgoojur family. But, as this expulsion occurred only in the time of the illustrious Sewace Jye Sing, in the beginning of the last century, the chief of Rajore must have chosen for his residence a part of the country which was already in occupation of his brethren; for Birgoojurs are mentioned, even in Akber's time, as the Zemindars of Khoorja, Dhubaee, and Puhassoo.

Their own assertion is that they came from Rajore, the capital of Deoti in the Macherri country, under Raja Purtab Sing, and first resided in K,herea near Peetumpoor, and that the Raja after marrying at Coel into a Rajpoot family of the Dor tribe, which at that time occupied the whole country between Coel and Bòòlundshuhur, obtained favor in the sight of the Dors, and got authority to establish himself as far Eastward as he chose. Having, in consequence, exterminated the Menatees and Bheehurs, who are represented to have been in previous occupation, he was so successful as to acquire the possession of sixteen hundred villages, eight hundred on the East, and eight hundred on the West of the Ganges. At the time of his death, Choundera, near Puhassoo, was reckoned the chief possession of the Birgoojurs, and one of the descendants of Purtab Sing, Raja Salbahun, whose residence was at Choundera, gave his own name to a Pergunah which comprised the present divisions of Peetumpoor, Puhassoo and Birowlee.

Raja Purtab Sing left two sons, Jatoo and Ranoo. Jatoo took up his abode in Kutchr, or Rohilcund, and Rana remained as chieftain of Choundera.

The antiquity of the Kutchr Birgoojurs may be surmised from a passage in the Rat, hore Genealogies, "Bhurut, the 11th grandson of Nayn Pal, the Rat, hore, at the age of sixty-one, conquered Keneksir, under the Northern Hills, from Roodrasen of the Birgoojur tribe." Nayn Pal is supposed to have lived in the 5th century. Though there appears no occasion for ascribing to his reign so early a date, he must, at any rate, have long preceded the final Mahomedan conquest of Canouj.

While the Kutchr Birgoojurs and the Anoopshuhur family have preserved their ancient faith, nearly all the Doab tribes, which preceded the expulsion of their chief from Rajore, have turned Mahometans; and the early opponents of the British in Kumonuh and Pundranul were Birgoojurs of that persuasion. They still however appear proud of their Rajpoot lineage, for they assume the appellation of T,hakoor. Thus we hear the strange combinations of T,hakoor Akber Ali Khan, and T,hakoor Murdan Ali Khan.

At their marriages they paint on their doors, and worship, the image of a Kuharee or female bearer, under whose instructions they executed a stratagem by which they exterminated the Mewaices who had been engaged in a drunken revel during the Hoolee. Some of the Mussulman families have of late discontinued this custom, which is at least curious as bearing a semblance to the Hoke-day of our Ancestors, and the Fugalia of the Romans.

The Birgoojurs to the West of Moozuffurnugur were all converted to the Mahomedan faith in the time of Ala-ood-deen Khiljee, but they still retain most of their old Hindoo customs. A stricter conformity to the Mussulman tenets was endeavoured to be introduced by some reformers, and all Hindoo observances were sedulously proscribed by them; but when it was found, as they themselves assert, that all their children became blind and maimed, in consequence of their apostacy, they were induced to revert to their ancestral customs, and still adhere to them with so much pertinacity, that it is almost doubtful which faith prevails most.

The Moozuffernugur Birgoojurs state, that they came from Dobundeser near Dhacen Duwasa, South of the Alwur country, under one Koorasen, whose ancestor, Baba Meg,ha, is still invoked when they make their offerings at the time of naming their children. They intermarry with the converted Poondeer Rajpoots of Sukrouda in Scharunpoor, and the Rao Birgoojurs in Furcedabad of Bulubgurh, to the South of Dehli. They seem to know but little of their brethren who reside in the neighbourhood of Anoopshuhur.

The place whence they emigrated may be easily traced, for Duwasa, or Deosah, lies on the Banganga river, about 30 miles East of Jyepoor, and Dhaeen is about 8 miles to the South of Deosah. Deosah is famous as being the first place belonging to the Birgoojurs which was occupied by the Cuchwahas after their emigration from Nurwur in the middle of the tenth century. It is not improbable that the Cuchwaha may at this period have compelled the Birgoojurs to emigrate in search of other seats, and they in their turn may have wreaked their vengeance on the Cuchwahas of the Upper Doab and established their Chourasee among the brethren of their distant foe. Certain it is, that tradition assigns a large tract of country in these parts to the Cuchwahas, before the Birgoojurs, Jats, and Put, hans obtained possession.— See Cuchwaha.

The Sikerwal Rajpoots state, that they are a branch of the Birgoojurs; but they are separately entered among the thirty-six Royal Races in Tod's list. It is to be observed, however, that in some of the other lists which he has given ("Annals of Rajast,han," Vol I. p.81), neither Birgoojurs nor Sikerwals are entered.—See Sikerwal.

Birhana, धार्मा birhana

Lands in which culinary herbs are produced.-Rohilcund.

Birnierea, ट्रिड्रिया birheriá One of the sub-divisions of the Chumar tribe, q. v.

Birinjphool, प्रक्रिंड शिंदजफूल birinjphúl A species of Rice.—See Dhan.

BIRJEA, אָבְיֵא विजिया birjia
One of the sub-divisions of the Aheer tribe, q. v.

Birka, १८०० विकी birka

BIRMBHAT, ं चंडा के वर्मभाट birmbhát See an account of this tribe under the article Bhat.

Birra, ४५१ विरी birra

Gram and barley sown in the same field: Bejura and Bejur are the more usual terms.

In Dehli it is applied to Chuna, or gram, injured by wet. It is also the name of a ceremony connected with the building of a house.—E. Oud h.

BIRRABURAR, برابرار चिर्वचरार birrábarár Collection in kind.—Central Doab.

The expression seems derived either from Birah sy separation, division, on account of the crops being divided before appropriation; or from the Birra of the Putwaree's account books, which is applied to the entry of every crop under a distinct head. The proper word, in book-keeping, is Beora explanation; detail; knowledge; which is frequently corrupted into Birra.

Birt, ५७० विर्त birt

A right; custom; privilege; derived from the performance of offices whether religious or secular. Proprietary right. The tenure in Goruckpoor under which the Birteeas pay a fixed yearly sum equivalent to 20 per cent. of the Government Revenue, on account of the Raja or superior; but are the owners of the soil, entitled to the entire management of their Mouzas, not liable to be ousted, holding a hereditary and transferable tenure, and subject to enhancement of rent only when the Government Juma should be increased.

The Shunkulup Birt is a religious grant of some kind or other given to a Brahmin, and held at first free; but in almost all these cases the necessities of the Raja of Goruckpoor had compelled him to demand a small rent from the holder.

The Murwut Birt was a compensation made by the Raja to the family of any man who was killed in his service in open fight, either with a neighbouring chief or in resistance to the Government, and is also called Khoon Buha; it was chargeable according to the custom of the Raj with half the rent demandable for a regular Birt village.

Jewun Birt is an assignment made by the Raja of the day to a younger son, of a certain number of villages in the Talooka for subsistence, to be held by such son and his descendants as Jewun Birt for ever. The assignce was accustomed to take a Putta from the Raja for these villages, paying a certain sum as rent.—See Talookdar.

The term Birta is applied in Nepal to rent free land, of which there are four kinds in that principality, Jageer, Manachowl, Bckh, and Birta. By the last a perpetual title is conveyed, and the land is at the absolute disposal of the Grantee and his heirs.

Birtia, प्रदेश वितिया birtiyá

A tenant who holds his land upon a fixed annual assessment which cannot be altered except on certain conditions previously stipulated; nor can the land held by him be claimed by the donor. The definition in the Printed Glossary is correct.—See Birt.

Birwa, ५०० श्रिका birwá

A tree. In Eastern Oudh it is the name given to the labourer employed upon the Dourse or Berse, q. v.

السا إطمالة BISAR, bisár

Loan of seed, upon stipulation of ample refund after harvest.

विषाती राजी bisátí

A pedlar, from the Hindee Bisat ... means; capital; stock. The Arabic Bizat بضاعت has also the same signification. opum, " says Golius, " quæ impenditur in mercaturam, lucroque exponitur." Bisatce, &c. is sometimes spelt with an Arabic & but incorrectly; though, as Bisat means a carpet spread out, there may appear to be some reason in calling a new a pedlar; as in that mode Bisatees usually dispose of their goods at country fairs.

्रिंग्यः विहेन BISEN, bisen

A powerful tribe of Rajpoots in the Eastern parts of these Provinces. To the Westward they do not extend beyond Rusoolabad of Campoor. We find them in Kewaee, Kuraree, Kurra, Chaile, Bara, K, heiragurh, and At, hurbun in the Allahabad district; Cheeboomow in Banda; Budlapoor and Murreahoo in Jounpoor; Bhudoce, Pundra, and Athgawan in Benares; Shadceabad, Puchotur, Buhrecabad, and Iluvelee in Ghazeepoor; Mahomedabad Gohna, Nizamabad, Mahool, and Bhudaon of Azimgurh; and Chillopar, and Sulempoor Mujhowlee of Goruckpoor. In Oudh they have 360 villages.

The Bisen families to the North of the Gogra intermarry with the Surneyt, Soorujbuns and Kulhuns Rajpoots, and receive the daughters of Chundel, Beis, and inferior Chouhans.

The acknowledged chief of the Biscn stock is the Raja of Sulempoor Mujhowlee. The founder of the political influence of the family was Mewur Bhut, whose ancestors had for many generations resided as Devotees in the neighbourhood of Nowupar, now known as Sulempoor Mujhowlee. Mewur Bhut, though himself a religious man, was not able to withstand the solicitations of ambition, and taking up arms after returning from a Pilgrimage to Benarcs, acquired possession of the greater part of the country between the Ganges and the great Gunduk.

Mewur Bhut had four wives. By one a Rajpootnee, he had issue Bisoo Sen, the founder of the name of Bisen, and the ancestor of the Raja's family. By a Bhoonhar, he had Bugmur Sahee, the ancestor of the Kowaree and Timkohee Rajas. By a Brahminee, he had Nuges, whose descendants hold a few villages in Sulempoor Mujhowlee. By a Coormee, he had the ancestor of those now resident in G,hosee of Azimgurh.

The present incumbent of the Raj is said to be in the hundred and fifteenth generation from Mewur Bhut.

Bishnowee, بشنوى विषानावी bishnowí

A tribe of growing importance in Rehur, Sherecote, and some of the neighbouring Pergunahs of Rohilcund. They are found also in great numbers in Beekaneer, Nagore, and Hissar; and small communities of them are also found in the Upper Doab. They are not to be confounded with the ordinary Vishnovas, of whom Wilson has given us an account in the Asiatic Researches: yet they do not appear a sect of modern origin, as they are mentioned in the Ayeen-i-Akberee as the Zumeendars of Islampoor in Sircar Budaon. The "Tumbeeh-ool-Jahileen" says, that they derive their name from Bishno, a Tuga Brahmin, a pupil of a Mussulman Fakeer who appears to have been a freethinker: and that hence arises their regard of Mussulman observances. They worship according to the Hindoo ceremonial three times a day, and pray after the Mussulman fashion five times a day. They keep 28 holidays during the year, and observe the fast of Rumzan. They read both the Koran and Hindoo Pot, hees. They refrain from meat and intoxicating drinks, and intermarry. They generally call themselves Sheikhs, adding that title to a Hindoo name, or adding sometimes a Hindoo title to a Mussulman name. Sometimes they bury, and sometimes burn, their dead. They consider themselves more Hindoos than Mussulmans; which gives the author of the abovementioned work the opportunity of remarking how strange it is that, notwithstanding most of the teachers of the dissenting sects have been Mussulmans, as is the case with Kubeer Punt, hees, Purnamees, Daoodpunt, hees, Sadhs, Sutnamees, Kulalpunt, hees, and Bishnovees, yet they all call themselves Hindoos.

In Coleman's "Mythology of the Hindoos," p. 310, there is a description of a sect of Bishnovces, called Dhamian, inhabiting Bundlecund, but it is evident from the description given of their tenets that they are followers of the famous Pran Nat,h, who established a notorious influence over the mind of Raja Chuttur Sal.

BISHNPREETDAR,شرپريٽدار;वज्ञनप्रीतदारbishnprítdar

Grantees of Brahmin easte to whom land has been assigned in the name of Bishn, or Vishnu, from religious and charitable motives by Zumeendars.—Benares.—E. Oudh.

Bisht, ज्यां विषद bisht

A provincial term in Kumaon for a kind of Talookdar, whose office is in the gift of Government.

Bisk, ниркл, ४५६६८००१ विण्खपरा bisk'hapra

The name of a grass which is used in medicine, (Trianthema pentandra). It spreads over the ground, and forms a circle of nearly a yard in diameter.

Bisuhroo, ज्या विसहरू bisahrú

A purchaser, from Bisahna lielas to buy.

Biswaburar, بسو ४६९ विस्वावरार biswabarár

Collecting by the Biswa .- Central Doab.

The Biswa, from the twenty, is the twentieth part of a Beeg, ha; and besides being a measure of land, is also used to signify the extent of proprietary right in an estate. Each estate or village, is considered an integer of one Beeg, ha, which is sub-divided into imaginary Biswas and Biswansees, to show the right of any particular party. Thus, the holder of 5 Biswas is a holder to the extent of one-fourth of the entire village. Precisely in the same way as the As was used amongst the Romans. Thus "heres ex semuncia," "heir to one twenty-fourth"—"heres ex dodrante," "heir to three-fourths"—heres ex asse, "sole proprietor." (Cic: Att: IV. 15, VII. 8.—Cic: pro Cæcina, C. 6.— Plin: L. V. Ep. 5.)

In the same manner bes, bessis, was used to express a biswa burar—"Socius ex besse"—and thus in sound and meaning (of course there is no real connexion) there is a close resemblance between the words. Bes when it was thus applied as a subdivision of the As, was the eight part of a Jugerum or acre: not, as is usually supposed, two thirds.—"Partes due tertie pedes decem novem millia et ducentos hoc est bes, in quo scripula CXCII" (Colum: Lib. V. C. 2.)

Biswadaree, بسولاداري विचवादारी biswadári

A name given to the tenure of independant village communities holding under a superior Talookdar; as in Alligurh, Mynpooree, and Goruckpoor. It is in some places, as in Dehli, used as equivalent to Zumeendaree or Putteedarec. If a man's share in an estate is sold, he says his Bisna is sold.

Biswee, إسرى विसर्वी biswí

The alienation of land on low Jumas on the payment of fines in advance.—E. Oudh.

In the North-west it generally means 2 biswas deduced from each beeg, ha cultivated by under tenants, which are taken by the landlord as his right.—See Dobiswee.

Bit, Huk, द्रिये विढक bithak

Ant hills.—Fastern Oudh and Benares. Literally, a seat or platform, where people meet to converse.

Bitoura, अंट्रहे वितीरा bitaura

A heap of dried Cowdung, called Buttya in Rohilcund.

BITRABUNDEE, ג'ווגע विचावन्दी bitrábandí
The same as BILUHBUNDEE, q. v.—Saugor.

Bo, 🥍 बें। bo

Cultivation. It is usually combined with Jote which signifies the same. Bo is the verbal root of Bona, to sow.

Boara, १००१ वे(चारा boara

Seed time. Sowing. Boace براي Banug برني and Bonee برني are also used : from Bona برنا to sow.

Вов, بوب वोब bob

The sowing of grain by the drill.—Bundlecund.

The term Jyea is so applied in Dehli; and Wuer in Rohilcund and the Doab.—See Bansa.

Boda, १८०१ वादा bodá

A buffaloe.-Saugor.

Bodur, १८०१ बीद्र bodar

A place to stand on for throwing the Douree, or basket by which water is raised to a higher level.—Benares.

Pyra is the corresponding word in Dehli.—See Douree, Boka, Beree.

Boebachh, १९३५) वार्बाक bóíbáchh

Assessment to be realized on cultivation.—Dehli. From by to sow and spi selection, division. See Printed Glossary, under Bacu.

Bohnee, १ वोहनी bohní

The first money received during the day by shopkeepers and hucksters. No credit is allowed, nothing but ready money being received on such occasions. The practice is universal in India, and is precisely like the Handsel of England, which Lemon, in his Dictionary, explains to be, "The first money received at market, which many superstitious people will spit on, either to render it tenacious, that it may remain with them, and not vanish away like a fairy gift, or else to render it propitious and lucky, that it may draw more money to it."

Bohra, १,००१ वाहरा bohra

A class of money lenders frequently met with in the North West Provinces, more especially in the Upper Doab. A description of those who have been converted to the Mahomedan faith is given in Vol. VII. of the Asiatic Researches, and Malcolm's Central India, II. 212. The Printed Glossary would seem to imply that there are in India none except those on the Western Coast.

The Bohras of these Provinces, either come from the neighbourhood of Jyepoor, or are descendants of the original settlers from that quarter, and preserve some peculiarities of speech and dress by which they are readily known. An inferior class of Bohras is known under the name of Koyyans and Rehtees. They lend money to agriculturists and others in a small way, generally by tens, and for every ten rupees take a bond for twelve rupees, payable by instalments of one rupee per mensem, by which means they realize a large interest upon their money. The continually revolving nature of their dealings, and monthly visits to each of their debtors, have, with reference to the constant revolutions of the Rehut, or Persian wheel and buckets, procured them the designation of Rehtees. The derivation of the term Koyyan is not so certain.

The Bohras, who probably derive their designation from the word Beohar or trade, are monied men, and possessing credit elsewhere, have larger dealings, and with higher classes than the Rehtees have, but like the latter are generally eager to acquire possession of profitable estates; there is, however, this difference between the two, that the Rehtees lend, and will take in return, only money; whereas the Bohras are ready to receive every marketable article, including the produce of the soil as well as cattle, among which may be enumerated horses, camels, sheep, and goats, in payment of their debts. (Public MS.)

Волн, ४२-७! वेशम bojh

Literally, a load. In agricultural language it comprises about five Dhokas of corn.—See Dubea and Bel.

BOJHBUTAEE ्रंडीहैं वोम्तत्रटाई bojhbatáí

A mode of division by stocks, or bundles of mowed corn.— Rohilcund. It is derived from the preceding word.

Вока, ১১ ৯ বানা boka,

A basket, pail, or leather bag, for throwing water to a higher elevation: called also Berre and Dourse (which see). This word is not in Shakspeare's Dictionary, but it would appear to be common in India and generally in the Indo-European languages.

The word bouk (derived from the Anglo Saxon buk,) is used now in the West of England for a pail of water; Chaucer uses boket for our modern bucket. Thus, in the Knight's tale

" Now up, now down, as boket in a well."

We have, perhaps the same word, or at least, the root, in the Hebrew buk-buk (Jer. XIX. 1 and 10) translated by the LXX. bikos; from which word Menage derives the Italian bicchiere. The Latin bacar, which Festus calls a "vas vinarium," has probably a similar origin; but if, as Scaliger suggests, it should be written bacvar, a more obvious root for the word is found in Bacchus.

Bola, ४७ बोला bolá

The verbal agreement (from !: to speak,) between the viliage lessees and the Asamecs, either Pahcekasht or Khoodkasht. Any agreement between the Lumberdar and Asamee.—Dehli.

Boluns, १५ वीलनम bolans

Making over one's share to another. - Benares and E. Oudh.

Bolunsee, १९६५ वे:लनसी bolansee

The holder of another's share or inheritance. An adopted heir.—Benares and E. Oudh.

These words are derived from bolna نبر to speak, to declare; and uns انس right, portion, inheritance.

Bood, ७० वूद bood

Literally, existing; being. In fiscal language Bood is much used in combination with other words, as Hustobood, Bood-nabood.—See Hustobood.

Bòòdh Gunga, ابته पुढगंगा budh ganga

Bòòdh Gunga, or more properly Boorh Gunga, from lage old, is the name given to the bed of the old Ganges where it shifted its stream; more especially to the two old courses of which one is traced below Hustinapoor and the other below Soron and Kumpil. These changes appear to have occurred since the time of Akber, and I have therefore in the map of Dustoons restored the old stream as it probably ran in his time.

This has not been done without cause. The reasons for restoring the Hustinapoor stream, and throwing Tarapoor to the eastern side of the Ganges, are the following.

When Timoor marched from Meerut, he is said, in the "Mutla-oos-Sadyn," and "Zufurnama," and other histories nearly contemporary, to reach Ferozepoor, which is distinctly described as being " on the banks of the Ganges." برکنار گدگ The course of the Ganges, then, in his time must have flowed in the bed of the present Boodh Gunga. In the "Khoolasutool-Tuwareekh" also, written in the 40th year of Aurungzebe's . reign, copied by Shere Ali Afsos in the "Araish-i-Muhfil" (which professes to be a more original work than it really is) the Ganges is described as following under Barha, which would show that at a much later period the Ganges preserved its old course; for this does not mean indefinitely that it flowed under the extensive tract of country in the possesion of the Barha Sadat, q. v. but literally, under the town of Barha, which was then in a flourishing condition, before it was sacked in A D. 1748, by the rabble army of Sufdur Jung. Moreover, in the Revenue Board's Records of the year 1819, there is a correspondence respecting several villages then within the area of Tarapoor, but included originally in Azumpoor Bashta, which is still on the Eastern side of the Ganges.

From the Dustoon it will also be seen, that the Soron and Kumpil branch has been restored, by giving Fyzpoor Budurca to Suheswan, and Nidhpoor and Aolaec to Buduon: to which I have been led by the following considerations. They may be thought perhaps of no great force, but where, as in Oriental History, we are never indulged with topographical details, and have no accounts of the habits and pursuits of the people, nor of the intercourse and relations of social life, we must be content with the remotest allusions, and rejoice if, after a whole day's perusal of some almost illegible volume, we can extract a single fact worthy of record.

When the heroic Pirt, hee Raj retreats from Canouj, he is represented in the "Cancubj Kund," as following the course of the Ganges, till he reaches Soron.

सिंहाल गंगघल वयल वल पर स प्रान मुक्ति नरिह्य जुरि योग मगग सारी समर चवत युह चंदह करिय * * * *

पुर से।रैं। गंगा उद जोग मगग तिथि वित चादभत रस चासि वर वहयी। विम्निन वर्न कवित * * * * * *

*

एतनें सूर जमांत रन पुर सारीं पृधिराज गय पर्या पिषिष पहार राजकमधून कीप किय

These lines do not follow each other consecutively, but at intervals of 8 or 10 lines. Taken together, they plainly imply that up to the time of the first Mahomedan occupation, the Ganges retained its old course under the ancient city of Soron.

In the somewhat apocryphal biography of Shah Azeez-ood-deen, contained in one of the many collections of the lives of Mahomedan Saints, he is represented as being aided by the Emperor Shums-ood-deen in the capture of Kusba K,hor, in a naval battle under the walls of that town with the Raja, who after his defeat fled to Kumaon. Now we know that K,hor is on the bank of the Boorh Gunga close to Shumsabad, which city was (it is said) built by Shums-ood-deen from the ruins of K,hor. There may possibly be a shadow of truth in this account, which is also preserved in the traditions of the common people; though, as K,hor is mentioned later than the time of Shums-ood-deen, his building Shumsabad may be doubted.

Let us come to a later period, and we find the Emperor Mahomed Toghluk in one of his mad schemes removing his capital to Surgdwaree, "near Kumpil and Putialee on the banks of the Ganges," according to "Ferishta;" and "near KusbaK, hor on the Ganges' according to "Zeea-ood-deen Burny."

Either way, it shows that the course of the river was then unchanged.

Still later, in the time of Synd Khizr Khan, when there was unusual communication with Kutchur, or Rohilcund, we find the following allusions which may assist us in our investigation. Taj-ool-Moolk, after subduing Rac Hursingh of Kutchur, "arrived at the ferry of Surgdwarce, and passing the Ganges, punished the Kafirs of K, hor and Kumpil."

The same General, after another campaign, marching from Budaon to Etawa, passes the Ganges at Puchlana.

In the same year, the Emperor himself, after plundering Sumbhul, crossed the Ganges near Putialee.

These quotations are taken from the "Tubukat-i-Akberee." The "Tareckh-i-Budaonee" uses precisely the same expression in two of these instances: and it is important to observe it, for the author was himself a great traveller, and was constantly on the move between Agra, Sumbhul, and Budaon. Both he and the author of "Tubukat-i-Akberee" were contemporaries of Akber, and could not fail, if any change in the course of the Ganges had occurred up to their time, to give prominent notice of the circumstance.

All the places noted above are on the right bank of the old Ganges, and would most probably not have been mentioned had the Ganges not run under them. At least in these days there are no such ferries as those of Puchlana, Putialce, and Surgdwarce. But as it may perhaps be said that, notwithstanding the change in the River's bed, the expressions quoted above would not altogether have been inapplicable, other more decisive testimony may be adduced from a document in an old "Dustoor-ool-Umul," in which mention is made of a Mouza in Tuppa Aoolace, Pergunah Budaon, which though the document may not be an exact copy of one publicly issued (it being merely inserted as a mode for imitation,) may yet serve to show without further question, that Aoolace was once an integral part of Pergunah * Budaon. If it be remarked that the change in the course of the river is too great to have occurred within the period which has elapsed since the compilation of the Ayeen-i-Akberee, it may be replied that in our own time the change is almost every year perceptible, and that the Ganges has shifted its bed so much since the two opposite banks were measured, that although only five years elapsed between the surveys, they cannot be combined with any accuracy.

It is to be hoped therefore that the reasons given above may be considered to justify the innovation which has been ventured in the map.

Bòòjharut, ज्रेक्ट्रं बुभारत bujhárat

Adjustment of accounts. From Boojhana !! to cause to comprehend.

Book, وك बूक búk

Land recovered by the recession of a river.—Rohilcund.

Bookara, ४,७७ वुकारा búkára

Bears the same meaning, but is applied only when the land is rendered useless, by a deposit of sand.—Rohilcund.

BòòLundee, يلندي वूलन्दी bulandí High land ; from Bòòlund high.

Bòòn, ु बुन bun

Unground Coffee. Coffee before it is made into Kuhwa 8245

Boondela, १ भू बूंदेला búndela

A spurious tribe of Rajpoots, who give name to the province of Bundlecund (Boondelk,hund). They are descended from * Moreover, in the book entitled the "Uhwali Soobajat," a new Pergunah under the name of Nidhpoor is entered as "in the Sircar of Budaon." This work was written before the final disruption of the empire, and is a highly interesting memorial of the state of India at the time of its composition. It was obtained from the library of Nuwab Mahomed Meer Khan, whose family has had close connection with the house of Timoor since its decline.

Gurhwars of Kuntit and K,hyragurh. Various accounts are given of the origin of the name. They themselves state, that they are so called from the devotion to Binda (Vindhya) Basnce, for which their ancestors were conspicuous. The "Kshutr Purkash" says, that Raja Punchum, one of their ancestors, determined to sacrifice his life in honor of Binda Basnee Bhuwance but that she kindly interposed just after he had begun to inflict a wound on himself, and that the drop of blood (boond) which fell from the wound on the earth became a Kowur, or Prince, and hence his descendants are called Boondelas.

ताते रुधिर वूंद एक छूटया

मनहुं गगनते तारा टूटया

हिति पर पर्या हलिक हिव जाग्या

जनि हिया कर्ना रस पाग्या

सीस उठाय बूंद वह देखया

साहस चतुल भत्क का लेखया

कर्ना रस जल यल सरसाया

सिर सिमक्ता च्रमृत बरसाया

वरस्या च्रमृत बूंद पर च्यांही

उपच्या कुंवर तहां से त्यांही

The whole genealogy, however, of this work, which is the foundation of Colonel Pogson's "History of Bundlecund," is completely wrong, and this story has been made up to cover the disgrace of a humble origin.

The intelligent author of the "Hudeekut-ool-Akaleem" gives a much more probable origin of the name. He says that Hurdeo, one of the Gurhwar family, came with a slave girl from K,hyragurh, and took up his abode at Gurh Kurar in the neighbourhood of Oorcha. He was there invited to give his daughter in marriage to the Raja of Oorcha, which he refused to do as the Raja was a Kuhkar. After much importunity he consented, on the condition that the Raja and his family should come to the marriage feast, partake of the viands, and thus lose all distinction of caste. The Raja consented, was poisoned with all his family, and the Gurhwar obtained possession of the country. His son was called Boondela, because he was the son of a slave girl (Bandee), some say the daughter of the Kuhkar Raja; and this name has been given to his descendants.

The establishment of the Boondelas, to whatever it owes its origin, probably occurred about the beginning of the thirteenth century, after the Chundels had been humiliated by the Chouhans, and they in their turn had been compelled to yield to the supremacy of the Mussulmans. The country around Calinger and Mahoba must then have been in so distracted a state, as to have invited the attack of the first chieftain who could muster a band of followers sufficiently strong to maintain their occupation.*

Nursing Deo one of the descendants of Hurdeo, obtained the appellation of Dang, equivalent to a dacoit, and hence arose the name of Dangaya applied to Eastern Bundlecund, particularly the part East of the Dussan, which was held by the descendants of Chuttersaul; so that neither from the name of Boondela, nor that of Dangaya, does this stock derive any honor. The estimation in which it is held for fraud and chicanery may be learnt from the familiar proverb:

न मैं। डंडी न एक बूंदेलखंडी

"Na sou dundee, na ek Boondelk,hundee."

That is one native of Bundlecund commits as much fraud as one hundred weighmen.

In British Bundlecund there are few Boondelas, except in the Pergunah of Punwaree.

* Franklin (Trans. R. A. S. Vol. I.) gives a later origin to the Boondelas. He says that from the time of Mahmood to Timour anarchy prevailed in the country of Bundlecund; and that about the time of Timour's invasion, Dewadri Bir from Goharbhuni (evidently the country of the Gurhwars) established himself with his followers at Mao Mahoni (Mow on the Junna,) and thence by degrees the dominions of the Gurhwars extended to the Westward, till they included the whole of what is now called Bundlecund.

116 sup	PLEMENTAL GI	COSSARY	, N. W. P.
Boonga,	ونگنه	बूंगा	búnga
A stack of Bhoos, or straw. It is frequently pronounced Bonga.
Boont,	بونت	बूंट	búnt
The green unripe gram, (Cicer arietinum).—See Chuna.
Boora,	४)५!		búra
Redeemable mortgage—Eastern Oudh.
Bòòreeda,	بريده	बुरीदा	búrída
Fields cut by stealth by a cultivator; from the Persian Bodreedun بريدن to cut down.—Rohilcund.
Bòòrree,	بري	बुर	burrí
Sowing, by dropping seed from the hand into the furrow; instead of sowing broadcast, or with the drill. The words Gòòrree, Gòòllee and See, are also so applied.
0001100, 00000	ee and bee, are also	so appir	cu.
Bora,		न्नारा वारा	bora
Bora,
Bora,	بوره	वीरा
Bora, A sack for Boro, Marsh rice.	بورة holding rice. بورو	वारा बारा ich is add	bora boro ed to the word in the
Bora, A sack for Boro, Marsh rice.	بوره! holding rice. 'ورو The "Fusl," wh ary, means the har	वारा बारा ich is add	bora boro ed to the word in the
Bora, A sack for Boro, Marsh rice. Printed Gloss Bou, Is the name ever a daught	holding rice.  '''  The "Fusl," wheary, means the hare e of the fee or perger of any cultivator	वारा बारा ich is add evest of th बा uisite of in his vil	bora  boro  ed to the word in the his rice.  bau  the Zemindar when-lage is married. The
Bora, A sack for Boro, Marsh rice. Printed Gloss Bou, Is the name ever a daught	holding rice. ' ' The "Fusl," wheary, means the hare of the fee or pergen	वारा बारा ich is add evest of th बा uisite of in his vil	bora  boro  ed to the word in the his rice.  bau  the Zemindar when-lage is married. The
Bora, A sack for Boro, Marsh rice. Printed Gloss Bou, Is the name ever a daught word is proba	holding rice.  '''  The "Fusl," wheary, means the hare e of the fee or perger of any cultivator	वारा बारा ich is add evest of th बा uisite of in his vil f Buhoo ब	bora  boro  ed to the word in the his rice.  bau  the Zemindar when-lage is married. The game a bride.
Bora, A sack for Boro, Marsh rice. Printed Gloss Bou, Is the name ever a daught word is proba Moorasa an	holding rice.  '''  The "Fusl," wheary, means the hare of the fee or perger of any cultivator obly a corruption of the Mundwuch are also seed to the seed to the fee of any cultivator of any cultivator of the fee of any cultivator of the fee or perger of any cultivator of the fee or perger of any cultivator of the fee or perger of the fee or pe	वारा बारा ich is add evest of th बा uisite of in his vil f Buhoo ब	bora  boro  ed to the word in the his rice.  bau  the Zemindar when-lage is married. The game a bride.
Bora, A sack for Boro, Marsh rice. Printed Gloss Bou, Is the name ever a daught word is proba Moorasa an	holding rice.  ''y?  The "Fusl," wheary, means the hare of the fee or perger of any cultivator old Mundwuch are and the second of the second o	वारा बारा ich is add evest of th बा uisite of in his vil f Buhoo ब lso used i	bora  boro  ed to the word in the his rice.  bau  the Zemindar when- lage is married. The ga bride.  n this sense.  bauchhár
Bora, A sack for Boro, Marsh rice. Printed Gloss Bou, Is the name ever a daught word is proba Moorasa an Bouchhar, Wind and de Boulee,	بوره holding rice. بورو The "Fusl," wheary, means the hare e of the fee or perger of any cultivator bly a corruption of the description of the fee or perger of any cultivator. bly a corruption of the fee or perger of any cultivator.	वारा बारा ich is add evest of the uisite of in his vil f Buhoo ब lso used i बाह्यार	bora  boro  ed to the word in the ais rice.  bau the Zemindar when- lage is married. The gas a bride.  n this sense.

Bowaee, إدائي वीत्राई boáí

Sowing. Bonec, Buwera and Boara have the same meaning.—See Boara.

Brita, ५७% ज़िता brita

A grant, generally of land, to a religious person, or to a tenant on certain stipulation, See Birt, and the Printed Glossary under Burt.

BRITTANTPUTTUR,אינטוים ज़ित्तांतपनर brittantpattar

The record of a decision, given by a Punchayet. From Brittant بزتانت: circumstance, narration; and Puttur عنب a leaf, a deed.

Bubool, अर्थ बबूत babúl

Buboor, अंश वबूर babúr

The name of a tree, called also Keekur (Acacia Arabica, Roxb.)—See Printed Glossary under BAVULLA. The wood is much used in making agricultural implements, such as ploughs, sugar mills, &c. and in the construction of carts. The Bubool produces also a valuable gum; and its bark, being a powerful astringent, is used in tanning by Chumars.

Buch, इं बच bach

An inferior tribe of Rajpoots in Mongra of Jounpoor.

Buchgotee, چگوتی बचगाती bachgotí

A Rajpoot tribe said to be descended from the Mynpoorce Chouhans. The names of their progenitors were four brothers Googe, Gage, G, hatum, and Raee.—See Rajkoomar, and Rajwar.

There are several Buchgotees, on the borders of Jounpoor and Goruckpoor, and in the South Eastern part of Oudh, where the two most conspicuous chiefs of the tribe are the Raja of Koorwar and the Dewan of Husunpoor Bundhwa. The last notwithstanding his being a Mussulman, and hence called Khanzada, invests all the Rajas of Benoudha with the Tiluk. The Sombunsee chief of Arour, the Bisen of Rampoor, the Kunpoorya of Tiloee and Bandhulgotee of Amet, hee would not be considered entitled to the privileges exercised by their ancestors without receiving it from his hands. The consequence of this family has however somewhat declined since the Dewan Roshun Ali Khan Khanzada, was killed in action by Mahomed Coollee Khan, the nephew of Nuwab Sufder Jung.

It may be proper to add, that most people deny the right of the Husunpoor Bundhwa family to the title of Dewan, which they say belongs only to the Bilk, hurea family; and in practice it is certainly usual to give the title to the latter.

The Buchgotees are of old notorious for their turbulence. We read of it as early as the time of Secunder Lodi and Shere Shah, in the "Tuwareekh-i-Afaghuna;" and again in Mahomed Kazim's history of the reign of Alumgeer. From these histories, and from the "Tubukat-i-Akberee" and "Tareekh-i-Budaonee," we learn also that the Khanzadas must have been converted to Mahometanism before the Moghul dynasty commenced, as we read of Buchgotees with Mussulman names before that period.

The BILK, HUREAS, RAJWARS, and RAJKOOMARS,  $(q.\ v.)$  are offshoots of the Buchgotees.

* There are two works called the "Tubukat-i-Akberee," and two works called the "Tareekh-i-Budaonee." Of the former only that by Nazim-ooddeen Ahmud Bukshee has been quoted throughout these notes; and of the latter that by Abdool Qadir Mulook Shah.. He himself calls the work "Moontukhub-oot-Tuwareekh;" but this is the title of so very many works, that I have preferred "Tareekh-i-Budaonee," by which title the work is now more generally known in Hindoostan. The other "Tareekh-i-Budaonee" contains "a valuable history of Hindoostan by Abdool Ruzzak Mulook Shah of Samarcund," which I have never had an opportunity of seeing. This description of the work rests on the highly repectable authority of Dr. Lee: (Preface to Ibn Batuta, p. x111.) yet I cannot help thinking he may possibly have been mistaken; and what somewhat encourages the suspicion, is that the next work he quotes is the "Mutla-oos-Sadyn" by Abdool Ruzzak Ibn Ishak of Samarcund, which title is perfectly correct. As the names so closely resemble each other, and follow so closely, may we not suppose that Ruzzak and Samarcund have been given to Dr. Lee's "Tareekh-i-Budaonee" by some oversight, and that it may really be the same work which has been occasionally cited in this supplement.

Buchhonta, जिल्हां चहींटा bachhonta Distribution of an aggregate sum on several individuals. (See Венкее.)—Upper Doab.

BUDAMEE, بدأمي बदामी badámí.
A species of Rice. (See further under Dhan.)

BUDBACHA, १८०० वदवाचा badbácha A false or fraudulent Bach or division.—Dehli.

Budee, إلى वदी badí
The dark half of the month, from full to new moon.

Budhia, হৈতিয়া badhiyá A disease affecting Juwar, Bajra, Sugar Cane, and Indian

Budnee, بدنى बदनी badní

Corn, which prevents the head from shooting.

A contract by which the borrower gives a bond at high interest, and in satisfaction of which he assigns his crops valued far below the market price. It is called Buddunnee in the Glossary. The word is derived from Budna is to wager, to agree.

Bugar, और वगार bagár

Pasture ground.—Bundlecund.

Applied generally as synonymous with Bunjur.

Bug, HEL, अरेड़ बघेल bag'hel

Literally Tigers' whelps, from باگه a tiger.

A branch of the Solunk, hee tribe of Rajpoots. They give name to the large principality of Bug, helk, hund, or Rewa, to the South of Allahabad, and were formerly rulers of Guzerat, where some chieftains of this family are still to be found. They acquired considerable influence during the time of Akber, who in his youth was for a long time a companion of Raja Ram Bug, hel, and whose mother was indebted to him for protection during the troubles of Humayoon.

In our own provinces we find Bug, hels in Bundlecund; Chibramow, Tiròòa and T, huttea of Furruckabad; (the Raja of T, huttea is a Bug, hel) in Sarh Sulempoor of Campoor; Barah and Arail of Allahabad; Bhudoee of the Benares Raja's Domains; Sulempoor Mujhowlee of Goruckpoor; and Sohagpoor.

The Bug,hel chief of Reva, or Bhugel (for it appears to be written in both ways) is the descendant of the famous Sid Race Jye Singh, the ruler of Anhulwara Puttun from A. D. 1094 to 1145. His Court was visited by the Nubian Geographer, Edrisi, who distinctly states, that at the time of his visit the chief adhered to the tenets of Budd,ha.

Bugsurea, بكسريا वगषरित्रा bagsariyá

A small clan of Rajpoots chiefly found in Koondoorkee and Sirsee of Moradabad. It is also the appellation of a clan of Canoujea Brahmins, of which there are a few families in Goruckpoor.

Buguree, और बगरी bagarí

A species of Rice cultivated chiefly in the province of Benares.—See DHAN.

Buhee, १९ वही bahi

An account book; a register; a ledger.

Thus, Buhee K,hata is the day book kept by merchants, and Buhee Putwaree, the village accountant's, or Putwaree's, register.

Buhera, ४५% बहेरा bahera

The Belleric Myrobalan (Terminalia bellerica, Roxb.)

Buherya, १३३५१ वहेरिया baheriya

A clan of Rajpoots in G, hiswa of Jounpoor and in Chunar.

Buhleem, भूरें बहलीम bahlim

This tribe has a few villages in Dasna, and Meerut. They are Sheikhs, but do not rank high in the scale of respectability. Some of the sub-divisions of Rohilcund Bunjaras are called Buhleem, and evidently derive their name from this tribe.

Buhoro, १९७५ बहोरी bahoro

The name given to the sloping pathway for bullocks drawing a well; especially that by which the bullocks return towards the well. The more general word is Pueree.

Buhoro is chiefly used in the Central Doab; but the origin of the word can be traced, where Buhoro is unknown, in the verbal root Buhòòr return, come back. Thus a man standing at the well-head, amongst other ditties which he chants, as well to soothe his toils as mark the time, will frequently say—

बहुरके ले त्राव माई भेरा राम

Buhóórke le ao Bhace mera Ram.*

That is "bring back the bullocks," as the water bag is raised. Hence Buhoro comes to signify the road by which the bullocks are brought back. We trace it again in the common Hindee word Buhuron "again."

Bujeedar, क्रिज्ं बजीद्र bajídár

An agricultural servant in Rohilcund; who takes corn (beej

as a recompense for his labour, in distinction to a Mihdar who receives money. The latter is derived from Mihnut labour, and might therefore apply equally to both.

Bujhwut, अहम वस्त्र bajhwat
Stalk without ear.—Eastern Gudh.

Bukar, अर्थ बन्नार bakár

Amount fixed by the appraiser.—See Bak.

गाडी की मसकरी कुत्रा राम राम

Garee kee muskuree kooa Ram Ram.

In which a driver's rudeness and incivility are contrasted with the courtesy of the well-man.

• Ram is a mode of salutation and friendly address almost always used during well irrigation. Hence the common proverb—

Bukara, १,८१ वकारा bakárá

Intelligence forwarded by word of mouth: from Bak باک speech.

Buker, अर्थ वक्रेल bakel

Twine made from the root of the Dhak tree. The word is chiefly used in the Eastern Provinces, not in the North-West.

Buk, HA, १६८ वजा bak'ha Grass kept for pasturage.—Rohilcund.

Buk, HAR, अध्रं वखार bak'hár

Buk, Haree, إكهاري बखारी bak hárí

A granary or store house .- Khan Arzoo spells it

Buk, Hur, १६८: बखर bak'har

A kind of plough or bullock hoe in use in Bundlecund, Saugor and Malwa. Its use has been fully described under Bak, Hur, but the more correct and usual pronounciation is Buk, Hur.

A deed of gift: from نخش share, portion, imparting, and a letter, a document.

Bukhsheeat, فخشياء बख्यीत्रात bakhshíát

The name of a division of the Jounpoor Sircar mentioned in Regulation II. of 1795. This Pergunah no longer exists as a separate division. Its former history and the derivation of its name are very obscure; apparently however the designation of Bukhsheeat or Dehat Bukhsheeguree, prior to the Cession, applied only to certain villages which were assigned to the Bukhshee of the Fort at Jounpoor, for repairs and other necessary expences, and it was not till after we got possession of the country, that the Talookas of Soet,ha, Kurecanun, Nowyee, and Bhadee, all of which are Peshkushee Mehals, were included in the Purgunah called Bukhsheeat. Under these circumstances, there was no objection at the late settlement to absorb the sub-division in the manner most convenient, and the villages were accordingly distributed between G,hisòòa, Huvelee, Kurakut and Unglee Mahòòl.

BUKOLEE, بكولي वकाली bakolí
Name of a green Caterpillar destructive of rice crops.

Bulahur, अधीः बलाहर balahar

A low caste servant, a village guide or messenger. The word is not generally in use to the East of Allahabad. In the "Ghuraeb-ool-Loghat" it is spelt Buladhur. The word is probably derived from boolana Uli to call, to summons; just as another village menial, the Douraha, is derived from dourna U. to run.

BULBHOG, بلبهرك बलभाग balbhog Taking possession by force of another's right. The word is derived from the Sanscrit Bul वल force, and Bhog भाग possession, wealth, enjoyment.

Buld, धार्म बलद bald

Bullocks, horned cattle. The word is not in the Dictionaries, though Buldea ינגט is given as a cow-herd, a bullock driver.

Buldeo, باديو बलदेव baldeo

A Cow-herd: from the preceding word.

Buldihaee, بلىهائي बलदहाई baldiháí

Compensation for pasture ground.—Rohilcund.

It is usually called Burdyhee to the Eastward .- See Ang.

Bulesur, प्राप्ता वलेवर halesar

A sub-division of the Goosun tribe, q. v.

Bulkut, जल्कर balkat

Rent taken in advance.—Lower Doab, Bundlecund and Benares.

The word is also applied to the cutting of ears of corn without going through the usual process of reaping. Kutaee is likewise used in this sense in Benares.

From this word is derived the name of the old Mahomedan tax Balkutee, which used to be demanded on commencement of reaping. The etymology is bal is an ear of corn, and katna to cut.

Bulòòa, धे बलुत्रा balua

Sandy. The word is used chiefly in Benares.—See Dorus.

Bulsõõndur, بلسندر बलन्दगुर balsundar

The name of a kind of soil in Azimgurh. The origin of both these words is Baloo !! sand.

Bumeet, на, יָּסְבֵּינֵאָן बमीटा bamít'há

A term applied to Ant hills in the Lower Doab. Bambhee which is the correct word, is used in the North West, and Bit, huk in Eastern Oudh. Bumba means the spout of a fountain, and may be the origin of the word, as the Ant hills resemble a jet d'eau both in their shape and numerous orifices. The name is applied also generally to the hole or retreat of snakes, as they are frequently found tenanting deserted Ant hills.

Bumhnee, به عني बमहनी bamhní Light red soil.—Eastern Oudh.

Bumhunea, ्रेडिंश वमहनिया bamhaniá A subdivision of the Cach, нее tribe, q. v.

Bumhungour, بههن हैं। बमहनगीर bamhangaur See Gour Rajpoot.

Bumtele, फ्रांधे वमतेले bamtele

The name of a Rajpoot tribe which preceded the present Zumeendars of the Eastern portion of parts of the Central Doab. They still remain in the original seats of their occupation, but are not held in high consideration.

Bunafur, अंधं बनाफर banáfar

A tribe of Yadoobunsee Rajpoots which is found in considerable numbers in the Southern part of Oudh. There are some also in Kurra of Allahabad; in Nurwun, Huvelee, and Kutehur of Benares; in Gurra Mundla; and in Bundlecund* Their original seat is Mahoba, and they have acquired much celebrity from their clansmen, Ala and Oodul, whose desperate bravery in their contests with Pirt, hee Raj forms the subject of several well known ballads, and gives title to one of the sections of Chund's voluminous poem.

Bunbhanta, بيبهانته anhizi banbhanta
The wild egg plant. (Solanum Melongena.)

Bunchuree, بي چرى बनचरी bancharí

A high jungle grass, the leaves of which are much like the Junar. Wild elephants are very fond of this grass, which is known also by the name of Buro.

Bunda, जिल्हा banda

A grain Magazine above ground.—Saugor.

Bundbehriee, بندييهري बन्दबेहरी bandbehri

Statement of the amount of each money instalment or share of a village. The word Bund is used in many other combinations in the sense of statement, account, ledger; thus Bundburdasht or Bundbutaee is a statement of the amount of each instalment in grain. Bund-hisab is an abstract account. Bundphantah is a paper like the Bundbehree which shows the liabilities of each sharer of a village.—See K, HEWUT.

• There is a tract in Pergunnah Chandla called after them Bunfari, or more correctly Bunphari.

Bundhan, بندهای वनधान bandhán A Pension.

Bundhan, ניטפוט बनधान bandhán Bundhea, גיטפגן बंधीया bandhia

Raised earthen embankments for flooding lands. Bandh, from Bandhna vication bind, is in more general use.—See Bundhwas.

Bundhan, بندهای बनधान bandhán
Bundhoor, بندهور बनधुर bandhúr

Purchase of grain in advance of the harvest .- Saugor.

Bundhwas, ندهواس वनधवापा bandhwás

Land embanked all round, or in such manner as to retain the water. It is also generally applied to level ground; uneven ground being called Tagur, and when surrounded by embankments Tagur Bundhea.—Jubulpoor.

Bundlee, प्रंटी bandlí

A species of Rohilcund Rice, called also Racemòònea and Tilokchundhun.—See Dнан.

Bundree, بندري बनद्री bandrí

A grass which is found in fields of rice and Codo. It grows to the height of about two feet, and has an ear, but produces no grain. It is used as fodder for cattle.

Bundtal, יגעטט बनदताल bandtal

Damming a water course for the purpose of irrigation.

Buneewal, بنيوال वनीवाल baniwal One of the sub-divisions of the Bhungee caste, q. v.

Bunga, प्रिंश बंगा banga

Is the name given to the white kind of Surson (Sinapis dichotoma: Roxb:). It is also applied locally to well-water, slightly brackish.—Central Doab.

Bungka, ध्रींश वंगना bangka

An aquatic Beetle which eats rice plants. It is said to manufacture something like a boat from leaves, and to paddle itself along from plant to plant. It is harmless when the water is let out from the field. It is also called Kutòòa.—Benares.

Bungkee, بنگکې बंगकी bangkí

A species of Rice cultivated in Benares .- See DHAN.

Bungkuteya, نكتَيا वंगऋटद्या bangkataiyá See Juwasa and Вниткитеуа.

Bungout, на, एडंड) वनगांडा bangaut'ha Cowdung found in the forests.—See Bunkunda.

Bungulea, प्रीप्रं वंगलिया bangalia

A species of rice cultivated in the Eastern part of these provinces.—See Dhan.

Bunihar, अद्धे विनहार banihar

The word is used to signify a ploughman, or labourer, whose services are paid in Bunnee, or in kind.—Benares.

Bunjara, انجارا वनजारा banjára

In addition to what is stated in the Printed Glossary, it may be as well to mention that the word appears to be derived from the Sanscrit Bunij at merchant, and not, as Shakspeare's Dictionary tells us, from the Persian Birunjar Rice carrier; the word being of higher antiquity than (omitting fabulous legends) the Indian connection with Persia. Thus, we find mention of a cock fight in a Bunjara Camp in the story of Ramati in the "Dasa Kumàra Cheritra," written by Dandi—a predecessor of Calidasa, according to Colebrooke ("Introd. to Hitopadesa"). It is to be confessed, however, that Wilson does not assign an earlier origin to this compilation than the ninth century—("Journ. R. A. S." No, IX. p. 135.) Nevertheless, independent of this testimony, Bunjaras seem to be clearly indicated, even by Arrian, as constituting one of the classes of Indian Society — (Indic: xi.) We may therefore rest assured, that we are not to look to Persia for the origin of the name.

The Bunjaras of these provinces are not always wandering merchants, but many are denizens of the long tract of country, under the Northern hills from Goruckpoor to Hurdwar. Most of those who are Mussulmans ascribe, like the Lodanahs of Central India, their origin to Multan, or its neighbourhood, and state that they were converted to Mahometanism by Shuhab-òòd-deen Ghoree; but it is probable that, like the Multanies of the Deccan and the Lodanahs, they did not leave their native country till about the time of Nadir Shah's invasion. The Hindoo Genealogical Records usually consider Bunjaras to be Charuns, or bards, who have chosen a wandering life, and disregarded the literary accomplishments which are considered to be their birthright. Their origin however, as the text says, is involved in great obscurity.

Those of Central and Western India, are doubtless usually Charuns. The sacred character of their office inspires respect among the lawless, but superstitious, people with whom they have to deal, and grain and merchandize under their charge are allowed to pass without question.

The original stock of Bunjaras mentioned above as living in the Northern forests, have become much intermixed with other classes, and men of all tribes are constantly deserting their homes, and joining the Bunjara fraternity.

The mere names of their tribes are sufficient to show this. The Toorkea Bunjaras are divided into 36 tribes—Tomur, Chouhan, Gehlote, Dulwaree, Ulwee, Kunot, hee, Boorkee, Doorkee, Sheikh, Nut, hameer, Aghwan, Budun, Chakeeraha, Buhraree, Pudur, Kuneeke, Ghuree, Chundoul, Telee, Churk, hu, Dhungya, Dhunkeekya, Guddee, Gotuhnee, Teetur, Hindia, Raha, Murout, hya, K, hak, hura, Kureya, Buhleem, Bhuttee, Bundwaree, Burgudda, Aleea and Khiljee. These assert that they came originally from Multan, and left their newly chosen country of the Deccan under a leader called Ròòstum Khan, * and first of all took up their abode at Badlee Tanda near Moradabad, from which they have gradually spread to Belaspoor, Richho, and the neighbouring tracts. They are for the most part occupied as carriers.—See Tòòrk.

The Beyd Bunjaras came from Bhutneer under a leader called Doalha. Of them there are eleven Gotes—Jhuloee, Tundur, Hutar, Kupahee, Dunderee, Kuchnee, Tureen, Dhorpahee, Keeree, and Buhleem. Their occupations are more various than those of the Tòòrkeas, as they are occasionally employed as Doctors and Weavers. They are found in Pilibheet, Kant, and in the neighbourhood of those places.

The Lubana Bunjaras have also eleven Gotes. They state that they are descended from Gour Brahmins, and came in Aurungzebe's time from Runt, humbor. They engage almost entirely in agricultural pursuits alone.

The Mookeree Bunjaras of the Northern Pergunahs of Bareilly assert that they derive their name from Mecca, which one of their Naeks, who had his tanda in the neighbourhood, assisted Father Abraham in building! Leaving Mecca, they came and resided at Jhujjur, where their illustrious name became corrupted from Meccace into Mookeree. Their fabulous history is not worth recording, but their names also betray a strange compound of tribes, Mussulman and Hindoo —Aghwan, Moghul, K,hok,hura, Chouhan, Simlee-Chouhan, Chot,hya-Chouhan, Punjtukya-Chouhan, Touhur, Kut,herya, Put,han, Tureen-Put,han, Ghoree, Ghoreeval, Bunguroa, Kunt,hya, and Buhleem.

The Buhroop Bunjaras are for the most part Hindoos, and lead a more wandering life than the Mussulmans. They are divided into the tribes of Rat, hore, Chouhan or Koorree, Powar, Tomur, and Burtea. The origin of the four first is sufficiently apparent from their names. The fifth is said to be derived from a Gour Brahmin. Of these tribes again there are several ramifications. Of the Rat, hore there are four, Moochharec, Buhookee, Moorhawut, and Panot. Of the Moochharee there are fifty-two divisions; of the Buhookee there are twenty-seven: of the Moorhawut there are fifty-six; and of the Panot there are twenty-three. The Chouhan, who have forty-two Gotes, are unanimous in stating that they came from Munpoorce. The Powars have twenty Gotes, and state that they came from Dharanugur. The Tomur, Tuar, or Toree, have forty-two Gotes, and state that they came from Dehli. The Burtea have fifty-two Gotes. They claim Chittore as their original seat. The Buhroop Bunjaras, like all the other clans, intermarry, but do not allow of any connexion between members of the same Gote. They receive the daughters of Nuts in marriage, but do not allow their own daughters to marry into Nut families; and they have some curious customs at their marriages, which need not be detailed in this place.—See further under Nut.

* They probably mean the famous Rodstum Khan, who held the Government of Sumbhul for some time during the reign of Shahjehan. He was the founder of Moradabad, which he originally called Rodstumnugur; but as that name gave offence to the Emperor, he called it it after Prince Modrad; to whom, however, he was subsequently opposed in the famous action in the Chumbul, in A. D. 1658, in which he lost his life.

It is evident that the Buhroop Bunjaras have a close connection with those of the Deccan. In a paper in the "Bombay Literary Transactions," (Vol. I.) General Briggs divides them into Chouhan, Rat, hore, Powar and Bhurtea. In a paper published in the "Journal Asiatic Society," (No. 145, for the year 1844,) the last is omitted. It seems strange, where the sub-divisions are, in the four cases mentioned in the Bombay Transactions, identical, we should miss the fifth (Tomur) who form so large a clan of our Buhroop Bunjaras.

Before the predominance of the Rohilla Afghans, the jurisdiction of the Rohilcand Bunjaras was of great extension, and in the middle of last century, they held a great portion of the forest, as well as of the country to the South of it. But after the defeat of Raja Hurnund by Ali Mahomed Khan, the pergunah of Pilibheet was wrested from Daisput Bunjara by Painda Khan, and added to the Jageer of Hafiz Rehmut.

The Bunjaras of Goruckpoor used to commit extensive depredations in that district, and were not put down till a short time previous to the British accession, when they were severely punished by Raja Surbaject of Bansi.

The turbulence of the Bunjaras has now been entirely suppressed both in Goruckpoor and elsewhere, and they have become under our pacific rule, a quiet and well conducted people. They now confine themselves principally to the occupations of cattle graziers and carriers.

During the early part of the cold weather, many parties of them visit the Northern and Eastern forests to graze their cattle, and dispose of their cargoes of salt; and on their departure in the hot season load them with rice, turmeric, and other produce of those regions; and as they are distinguished for the honesty of their mercantile transactions, their credit is considerable. They usually take advances from a Native Merchant to purchase the goods they require, and repay him by a bill from the market where they are disposed of. Each community has a chief or Naek, whom all implicitly obey, and trust in all matters connected with their traffic and conduct. Through him the city Merchants make their bargains, for the punctual execution of which he is security. Any Bunjara committing an offence against the tribe, or its head, in his public capacity, is tried by Punchaet, and punished by fine or expulsion, as may be thought proper. Their decisions, indeed, are said sometimes to extend to the length of inflicting capital punishment, and such may possibly have, till within the last few years, been the case; for the regions they visit are so remote, that they are pretty secure of escaping detection.

Bunjin, उड़्रें बंजिन banjin

Lands close by the village.

Also, the name of a weed about three feet high, which springs up with Khureef crops. It is much sought after by Fukeers who practice Alchemy.

Bunk, Hura, १७६६ं वनखरा bank'hara

Lands on which Cotton has grown during the past season.— Central Doab.

The word is derived from bun, cotton, which, though very commonly used in this sense, is not in the Dictionaries. It is not improbable that it is so applied, because a field of cotton bears resemblance to a bun an or forest. Buroundha is more commonly used in the same sense as Bunk, hura, in Rohilcund and the Upper Doab; and Moodee, (perhaps from Usi, to shave) in Dehli.

Kupseta is also very generally used for a field of cut cotton; from the Sanscrit Kurpas कपास, the cotton plant, or undressed cotton; which is the origin perhaps of the Latin Carbasus, a eloth, a curtain, a sail.

Bunkunda, いいこと वनकनडा bankandá

Cowdung found in a jungle or forest, and dried for fuel; from Bun : a forest, and Kunda is cowdung. Bungout, ha is also used in this sense. Urnee Kunda is likewise applied to this useful article of Hindoo economy; from the Sanscrit satural a forest. In Dehli this is corrupted into Rana, and coupled with is Gosa, i. e. a cake of cowdung. The familiar words Copla and Gobur are applied to that which is collected at home.

In Persian the distinction is observed of calling the former Pachuk Dushtee پاچک دشتی a forest, and the latter Pachuk Dustee پاچک دستی from دست a hand.

Bunkur, अदेश बनकर bankar

Spontaneous produce of jungle or forest land, such as gums, brush-wood, paunage,* cablish, honey, &c. &c. It is generally supposed that the person who possesses the right of collecting Bunkur, or any tax or cess in lieu of it, holds necessarily a Zemindaree title in the ground which produces it. But this is * Paunage, or pawnage, is applied properly to the mast of the woods; "Cablish signifies brush-wood according to the writers of the forest laws, but Spelman thinks it more properly windfall-wood, because it was written of old Cadibulum, from Cadere; or if derived from the French Chabilis, it also must be windfall-wood."—Tomkins' Law Dictionary.

It might have been added that, as this Cablish was the perquisite of the keeper of the forest, it gives rise to the familiar expression of Tailor's Cabbage; but as their Cablish admits of much latitude of interpretation, it has now become almost synonymous with stolen property. Sartoribus nemo Deorum veterum præest, cum ipsi sint furacissimi.—" Papatus."

an erroneous impression. The Sudder Dewany Adamlut have ruled that the sale of Bunkur does not convey Zemindaree right. One case is reported in which A. purchased, at a public sale, a portion of a Zemindaree.—B. purchased another portion, besides the Bunkur of the whole estate. The Sudder Dewany Adamlut ruled that the purchase made by B. conveyed to him a right over all the forest timber of the entire estate, though growing on the portion purchased by A. It was declared however that the latter from his right in the soil was permitted to clear away the trees, and to cultivate it; proceeds of the timber felled appertaining to B.—(See "Reports," Vol, II. p. 105.)

It will be seen also at Section 9, Reg. I. of 1804, that the British Government consider Bunkur as a thing altogether distinct from Zemindaree.

Bunkus, प्रंत्रे बनक्स bankas

A grass used in making ropes.

Bunkutee, بنكتى वनकरी bankatí

The right obtained by clearing jungle, and bringing it into cultivation.—Benares.

Bunnee, प्रं बन्नी banní

A portion of grain given to a labourer as remuneration for his services.—Benares.

Bunotsurg, بنوسسرگ वनातसर्गे banotsarg

Is the name given to the marriage ceremony performed in honor of a newly planted Orchard, without which preliminary observance it is not proper to partake of its fruit.

A man holding the Salikram personates the bridegroom, and another holding the sacred Toolsee (Ocymum sanctum) personates the bride. After burning a hom, or sacrificial fire, the Officiating Brahmin puts the usual questions to the couple about to be united. The bride then perambulates a small spot marked out in the centre of the Orchard. Proceeding from the South towards the West, she makes the circuit three times, followed at a short distance by the bridegroom holding in his hand a strip of her chudder or garment. After this the bridegroom takes precedence making his three circuits, and followed in like manner by his bride. The ceremony concludes with the usual offerings.

The word is derived from the Sanscrit বৃদ্ bun, a forest, a grove, and বুন্ধুন্ন ootsurg, abandoning, resigning, a donation, a presentation of any thing promised to a God or Brahmin with suitable ceremonies. (Wilson's Sanscrit Dictionary, p. 144.) Thus also Brik-hotsurg* বিদ্যান্ধ্য is applied to the ceremony of marriage performed in the name of the bullock which is abandoned to the wide world on the eleventh day of mourning for a near relative, and which infests our streets and high roads under the name of Bijar, Sanr, and Brahminee Bull.—See Julotsurg.

Buns, ्रं बनस bans

Lineage; race; family.

Bunsa, प्रां वनमा bansá

A grass which grows in fields of Rice and Oord. It is given as fodder to cattle.

Bunsee, प्रं बनसी bansí

A kind of Wheat with blackish ears.—Hoshungabad.

* Brik,h means a Bull; the Zodiacal sign of Taurus. It may be questioned if English Farmers do not retain the word in Broc, which, though the vulgar name of a badger, is still in many parts of England applied to draught oxen: and so Chaucer uses it—

They saw a cart, that charged was with hay,
The which a carter drove forth on his way:
Depe was the way, for which the carte stode;
The carter smote and cryde as he were wode,
Heit Scot! heit Brok! what spare ye for the stones?
The Fend, quoth he, you fetch, body and bones.

135

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W P.

Bunturia, ننترية वन्तरिया bantaria

A class of wood rangers, or verderers, in the Northern Pergunahs of Goruckpoor, holding about 20,000 acres granted by the Native Government in lieu of Police services. As the services are no longer performed, the lands have been resumed, and settled at very easy rates with the occupant Bunturias.

Bupuns, एंड्रंग वर्ष bapans

Father's share -Benares and Eastern Oudh.

Bupoutee is more usual in the N. West and Bundlecund.

The word is derived from Bap باپ a father, and Uns انس right, division, share.

Buqaya, धूर्धः वज्राया bakáyá

Old balances of Revenue; plural of the Arabic Báqee باتي an arrear, a residue.

Bur, रू. बंड bar

The Banian tree. The large Bengal or Indian Fig tree. (Ficus Indica). It is commonly known also as the Burgut arno. In Sanscrit the word is spelt as.

Burabhao, ्रांशिक्ष वडाभाव barábháo

A kind of appraisement. Literally, a high price, from Bura is large, and Bhao, is rate. The term is used in distinction to the Ak,hteej ka bhao in which when money is borrowed by a cultivator, he agrees to re-pay it in corn, with the oop or interest, at the price prevailing on the day of Ak,hteej. (See AK,HTEEJ.) The Grain merchant can scarcely ever lose under this engagement, as in consequence of the season of the year, the average necessarily ranges high.

In borrowing money on Burabhao, the cultivator agrees to re-pay it with interest at the highest rate of the whole season, Suppose a man at the beginning of the season, when wheat is selling at 20 seers per rupee, borrows 10 rupees on Burabhao, at the rate of 5 seers oop; and supposing corn subsequently at any time during the season to range up to 25 seers, he will have to pay 1½ maund as interest, added to 6½ maunds principal, in all  $7\frac{1}{2}$  maunds, having borrowed only a few months previous what was equal to 5 maunds.

Burahee, ५००० वराही baráhí

A small species of Sugar cane.—Saugor, Lower Doab, and Bundelcund.

Burar, १९१२ वरार barár

Tod says, (Annals of Raj: Vol. I. p. 143). "Burrar is an indefinite term for taxation, and is connected with the thing taxed, as hulburrar, plough-tax."

An apportionment of Bhyachara Kists according to the agreement of the village community. Generally, any division; bearing much the same meaning as Bach.

The word, though common in the Doab and Western India, is not found in Hindee Dictionaries.

Buraree, १९१२ वसरी barárí

A shareholder paying his portion of the Juma according to the Burar.

Burawóórd, براآورد बराबुदे baráwurd

An estimate; calculating; casting up. From the Persain بع above, and اردون to bring.

Burbun, १९१७ बर्बन barban

A North wind, according to Khan Arzoo.—See Dundward.

Burdee, १५०० चंडी bardi Light stony soil. Burda is also so used. —— Saugor.

Burenta, प्रिंश वरेहर्टा barehtá

Land of the third quality; also a plot of ground on which Sugar cane has been lately grown.—— Saugor.—See Bhutkuteya.

Burej, १ वरेंज barej

Bureja, ६५३) बरेजा bareja

A Betel garden.

Buresiree, १८६० वरेणिरी baresirí

A tribe of inferior Jadon Rajpoots in Futtehabad, and Shumsabad of Agra.

Burgun, ५०० व्यान bargan

Partition; a share.—Hoshungabad.

Burna, ्रिंश वरहा barhá

A channel for the passage of water from a well to a field, or from one field to another. To the Eastward it may be considered the smallest size of water course; the size in the ascending grade being indicated by the terms Burha, Nulkee, Nalee, Nurwa and Gool. But in the West, Burha is by no means a small water course. The word is probably derived from Burha to increase, though the usual mode of spelling it is against that etymology.

A field in which cows are fed. A rope, or string; especially one by which a harrow is drawn, or one that is thrown over a cart to keep the load from falling or getting injured.

In parts of Central and Upper Deab, Burha is the term applied to the land of a Township which is farthest from the homestead. Bara is the nearest to the village; Munjha between both.

Burhaee, र्केंट्र वढई barhaí

A carpenter.—There are usually said to be, as in many other inferior tribes, seven sub-divisions. Their names are never given accurately; but it is easy to ascertain that there are many more than seven; even the list of the most conspicuous exceeds that number, for among them are enumerated those of Kookas, Mahòòr, Tank, K,hatee, Ooproutya, Bamun Burhace or Mut,hòòrea, Ojha Gour, and Chumur Burhace.

Burhawun, ورهاوي वढावन barháwan

A round cake of cowdung placed on the top of a heap of corn, to prevent the effects of an evil eye, and for good luck's sake, in order that the corn (burhe) may increase. There is a well known satirical couplet in ridicule of the practice.

138

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

जग वै। राहा चिण्ना विवस भूत पूज भावलेयं बढे न बढे बढावना जन किसान रचदेयं

Jug bouraha trishna bibus bhoot pooj bhou len, Burheenu burhe Burhawun jun kisan ruch den.

"The world is mad, and for the sake of avarice will worship devils, and will still put on the Burhawun, whether increase result from it or not."

The word is used chiefly to the East of Allahabad. To the Westward Chank and Chhuttòòr, q. v. are applied in the same sense.

BURHEE,

८०५! बढी

barhí

Profits, a corruption of Burhoturee: from time; to increase.

BURHEA,

रिष्ठें विद्या

barhiá

The name of a Sugar Millstone, extracted from the Chunar quarries.

BURHEYA,

हिंद्या हिंदी

barhiya

The name of a species of pulse.—Eastern Oudh.

A grain measure of one seer, and in some places of a seer and a half.—Saugor.

A small clan of Rajpoots of which we find a few in Secunder-poor and Bhudaon of Azimgurh, and Sydpoor Bhittree of Ghazeepoor.

Burholia, গুলুগুল ব্রালিয়া barholia

A branch of the Bhrigubunsee* stock of Rajpoots, and the chief proprietors of Burhoul in Benares, from the principal town of which Pergunah they derive their name. They are said to have come from Reingurh in Marwar, and were on their way to Juggernat, h, when their chief Nurotum Rae accepted service with the Scoree, or Cheroo, Raja.—See Cheroo.

* And therefore of the same illustrious lineage as Parasurama, who was descended from Bhrigu, one of the first Prajapatis or sons of Brahma. The BISEN Rajpoots also claim the same descent.

The Raja rewarded him with several villages, in consequence of being relieved from some dangerous illness by his skill. Rae Nurotum was also authorised to raise troops for the expulsion of the Rugbunsee Rajpoots, who ravaged the borders of the Raja's territory. When the Raja died, Nurotum usurped the chieftainship, and from that the Burholias have increased their possessions, and still hold several villages in Mujhwar, Huvelee, Dhoos, Muwee, and Mehwaree. Raja Bulwund Singh's favourite wife was a Burholia girl whom he seized in one of his forages, and her influence was much exercised in advancing the interests of her own tribe.

Burnoturee, קשׁנְינֶם बढोतरी barhotarí See Burnee.

Burkòòyan, نركويان वडकुदमां barkuiyán A Kuchha well, i. c. one without a cylinder of masonry.—E.

Burkula, १९४५ वरकला barkala
An inferior clan of Rajpoots found in some of the Western and Central Pergunahs of Boolundshuhur.

BURMHOTUR, द्वार श्रेश व्यमहोत्र barmhotar A free grant given to Brahmins for religious purposes.

Buro, 🤲 वरी baro
The name of a high jungle grass.—See Bunchuree.

Buronk, १५८३) चरांखा baronk'ha
A kind of Sugar Cane with long thin joints.

BUROT, HEE, १९६७ श्रेश barot'hi

A tribe of Aheers in the neighbourhood of Pyndhut in the Mynpooree district.—See Aheer.

Buroundha, بروندها वराधा baraundhá
Cotton land,—Rohilcund.—See Винк,ника.

Burra, १९०१ वरी barrá

A rope; especially that which is pulled on the fourteenth of Kooar Sòòdee; which day is known as the Banta Choudus, vizitie. The rope, which is made of the grass called Mukra, is thicker than a man's arm; and that village party in whose quarter the rope is broken, or by whom the rope is pulled out of the hands of their antagonists, remain the champions during the ensuing year, and retain possession of the rope. If during the next year, no other party succeed in breaking the new rope, that also remains as their spoil, and so continues till more successful competitors are found. The practice is observed chiefly in the East of these Provinces, being unknown, even by name, in the West.

I believe, that a custom of the same kind is observed during Michaelmas at Ludlow in Shropshire.

Burroh, ४००% वर् हि barroh

A name given to the Uplands in the Pergunah of Janibrast i. c. the right bank of the Jumna, Zillah Etawah.

Bursana, १५०० चरणाना barsáná To winnow the grain; literally, to cause to rain.

Bursodia, برسوديا वरणोदिया barsodia Bursalia, برساليا वरणानिया barsália

A servant engaged in cultivation, who contracts for one year's service; from برس burus, a year.

Burtòòsn, برتش bartush

Land sown with Sugar Cane, after a Rice crop.—Rohilcund.

Burut, ७३ वस्त barat

A disease which affects Rice crops.

A leathern girth, or large cable; especially one used for drawing water by a poor, or large well bag.

In the Dehli territory, Burut or Burit, is also used to signify the Government Juma, or a portion of it.—See BHURIT.

Burwaek, ५००० व्याएक barwaek

A class of hereditary Chokeedars, introduced into the South Eastern extremity of the Bhabur, q. v. for the purpose of guarding and patrolling that inhospitable region. Nearer the hills in the same direction, we have the Jooteal, who have been introduced into that tract for the same purpose.

Burwar, ५०% वरवार barwar

The name given in the North West to a class of people engaged in cleaning and selling rice—See Dhunwyea.

It is also the name of a tribe of Rajpoots in Munsoornugur and Chiloopaa of Goruckpoor; Sugree, G,hosee, Secunderpoor, and Mohomedabad of Azimgurh; Khureed and Kopacheet of Ghazeepore; and Huvelee, Benares.

Buseekut, स्मान्न वर्गाकत basíkat

Inhabited; from Busna بسنا to dwell.

an adze.

Buseet, स्थान basit

The head manager in a village: the same as Muhetya or Mokuddum.—Central Doab.

Busend, بسينت वसंंड basend

An edible root which is found in Jheels. In Rohilcund the word signifies a Khakrob, or sweeper.

Busgit, بسگت वसगित basgit

Homestead. Site of a village residence; from to dwell. The word is pure Hindee, but is chiefly used in Eastern Oudh, Bundlecund, Lower Doab, and Benares.

Busoolee, بسواي वसूली basúlí
A small instrument for cutting. The diminutive of Busoola

Bustuh, इंग्ला bastah

A cloth in which papers are bound up. A bundle of papers: from the Persian to bind.

Bustobund, अंश्वराक्षां वस्तीवनद bastoband

An agreement. Settlement. The same as Bundobust. From and بندن both signifying to bind.

Buswaree, إسواري वसवारो baswárí Busour, إسور वसीर basaur

A bamboo garden. From بنس or بنس a bamboo.

Bur, चट bat

A partition; division. The root of  $ti \bar{x}$ ; to be divided; to twist.

Butaee, प्राहें बटाई batáí

Is derived from the word preceding, and signifies the same as the Metayer system of Europe; but it includes not only the literal Metayer i. e. "a moitié fruit," but the "tier franc," or any share into which the crops may be divided. In poor lands a Butace of one-sixth only is not unfrequently the extent of the Zemindar's demand.

Butaee Noascea is applied to a division which gives nine shares to one party, and seven to another.—Benares.—See Hureeanw.

Butar, प्रदेश बटार batár

A tribe of Goojurs, who are considered to hold a Banun (i. e. fifty-two villages) in Gungoh and Luk, hnoutee in Zillah Scharunpoor. There are many also in Bijnore on the opposite side of the Ganges.

Butent, ابتّینیی बटेंच batent'h Butunea, بتّنیا बटनिया batania

Proprietor, or holder of a share.—Central Doab.—See above, under But and Butaee.

Butes, ग्राम् वटेस bates

A passage, a pathway. Butea তু is in more general use in the same sense. Both are from the Sanscrit Bat বাত a road, a highway.

But, Han, יגאון פוד bat'hán

Pasture ground. From to sit, to settle.—Eastern Oudh.—See Bysuk; which is also similarly derived; just as Agist, that is, taking in and feeding the cattle of strangers in the King's forest, is derived from the French giste, a bed or resting place.

But, ноол, १९६० वयुवा bat'hua

A herb which springs up with Rubbee crops, and in the neighbourhood of water. It is sometimes cooked as a pot-herb by the poorer classes. (Chenopodium Album.)

But, Hya, एउँ विश्व bat'hya

See BITOURA.

BUTNUN-BAD-BUTNUN, batnan-bad-batnan

" بعد بطنا بعد بطنا عما عمر علنا بعد بطنا

Generation after generation—words frequently inserted in grants, after the corresponding expression of Nusulun bad Nusulun, to signify that the tenure is heritable by lineal descendants in the male line. Under the present interpretation of the resumption laws, the expression is construed to convey the right of perpetuity, without this restriction.

Butooree, بترري बतूरी batúrí

A name given in Benares to Chunee, or the small kind of Chuna, q. v.

144	SUPPLEM	ENTAL	GLOSSAR	Y, N. W. P.
Витоци	N,	بتوكي	बटोलन	batolan
BUTORU	N,	بتورن	बटोर्न	batoran Gathering or collecting grain in one place at the time of harvest, from بقررنا butorna, to gather up.
BUTTA,		بتتع	वटटा	batta
Difference of exchange; any thing extra; an extra allowance; discount on uncurrent or short weight coins: usually called Batta . The word has been supposed to be a corruption of Bhurta increase, but it is a pure Hindee vocable, and is more usually applied to discount, than premium.
Butur,		بتر	वतर्	batar
Land in	a state fit f
BUTWAR A Custor A tax ga	ms or Police therer, who	e Officer s	tationed or	batwár n a road.
Buwada,		بواده	बवादा	bawáda
A herb somewhat like the Turmeric. It springs up in the rains, and is sometimes sown, as it is considered a specific in Rheumatism.
BUWERA		بويره	बवेरा	bawera
Sowing.	See Boar
Bya,		بیا	वैया	bayá
A person is principall	appointed y used in t	in bazars : he Lower :	to measure Doab and	grain. The word Bundlecund.
Byaee,		بيائي	बैयाई	bayáí
Weighman's perquisite; from the preceding word.
Вув,		بيب	बैब	baib
Afar off-	at a distan	ce.—Bund	lecund.

BYDAR, المعدار वैदार baidár

A proprietor by purchase; from the Arabic يبع commerce selling. Hence Bynama, a deed of sale.

Bybilwufadar,

baibilwafàdàr

ارفادار विविलवफादार

A person having the possession and usufruct of a property on its conditional sale to him; the stipulation being that if a sum of money borrowed from him be not repaid by a fixed period, the sale shall become absolute; from sale, and is, performance of a promise.

Bygan, کیلی बैगार baigàr

One of the names by which the K, hurwar tribe are known, Affecting also a Rajpoot lineage, they frequently call themselves Benburs.—See K, HUBWAR.

Byjila, ওঁকু ! बैजिला baijila

A species of black pulse.-E. Oudh.

BYK, HUT, न्यूद्रंश बैखट baik'hat

Sale .- Eastern Oudh and Benares.

Bynsee, प्रथं वैनसी bainsì

A subdivision of the Goodun tribe, q. v.

Bysuk, प्राथम वैस्तर baisak

A spot in a jungle to which cattle are sent out to graze.—

Dehli.

It is elsewhere called K, huruk (a cowshed) and But, han.—See But, HAN.

The word is also applied, generally, to old and worn out animals.

146

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

C

CABUR,

भूध कावर

cábar

The second description of the Mar, or black soil of Bundle-cund.

CACHHEE,

ुर्€्रि काही

cáchhí

A tribe of industrious cultivators extending throughout the greater part of Hindoost, han. They are much employed in market and flower gardens. Those of the North Western Provinces assert that they have, like the Còòrmees and Chumars, seven sub-divisions, which are generally enumerated as the Canoujea, Hurdecha, Singrourea Jumunpoorea, Bumhunea or Mug, hya, Juret, ha and Cuchhwaha. These tribes do not eat together or intermarry. The Canoujea are considered to rank the highest of the seven; the Cuchhwaha the lowest. By the Cuchhwahas themselves this relative rank is reversed.

The Canoujea extend from about Canouj to Benares. The Hurdeeha are chiefly in Eastern Oudh and Beiswara, the Singrourea in the South West corner of Oudh, the Jumunpoorea in Benoudha, the Bumhunea and Juret, ha in Behar, and the Cuchhwaha are chiefly found to the Westward, as in Birj and Jyepoor.

There are, however, other Cachhees besides these, such as the Dhukolea, Suksena, and Suchan: in short, like the Còòrmees, Cachhees seldom coincide in the names of their seven sub-divisions; and it is evident that that definite number does not exist.—See Cuchhwara, Koeree, Morao.

Canoujea قنوجيك कनीजिया kanaujia

This is the name of a sub-division of several tribes in the North West, who trace their origin from the ancient city of Canouj; (See Còòrmee and Cachhee): but, taken by itself, it is more especially applied to a large and influential clan of the Brahminical order.

Of Brahmins there are ten well-known sub-divisions, of which 5 are Gour, and 5 Dravira. Of the 5 Gour, Canonica is one. and may also be considered the most numerous; as it extends from the Sewalik Hills to the Nerbudda, and the Bay of Bengal. The sub-divisions of the Canoujeas are five. Canoujea proper, Surwura, Sunadh or Sunoudha, Jijhotea, and Bhoonhar. These Canoujcas again, according to the statement in the "Tumbeeh-ool-Jahileen," are sub-divided into 16 denominations, of which most, as in the other Brahmin classes, are derived from the occupations and abilities which each was supposed to posses. The sixteen name sare here repeated from the same work-Gurg, Goutum, Sandel, Pande, Deechhut, Patuk, h, Sookool Doobe, Tewaree, Choube, Awust, hee, Tirbedee, Bhuttacharj, Oopudhea, Bajpace and Misr, of which the three first are said to be far superior to the rest. There seems reason to believe that the author is quite wrong in this classification, and that his error partly arises from his confusing the accounts of the Surwureas and Canoujeas. The three first are the chief amongst the Surwureas, but amongst the Canoujeas are either of no importance, or not extant.

Amongst the Canoujeas the chief families are called the  $K,hut\ k\partial\partial l$ , or six houses. There are, however, really, six and a half chief houses, and their names and  $Gotes\ (Gotra)$  are as follows:

Sandel Gote. Pursoo ka Misr, &c. Oopmun Gote.
Luk,hnow ka Bajpace,
Gurhwas ka Dòòbe,
Purbnakur ka Awusthee, &c.

Bharadwaj Gote. Bala ka Sòòkòòl, &c.

Bhuradwaj Gote, Kateayun or Viswamitra Gote. Kusip Gote.

K,hor ka Pande, Manjganw ka Misr, Jehangeerabad ka Tewa-Gurgason ka Pande. &c. Soot hean ka Misr, &c. ree, &c.

64 Sakrint Gote. Nubhele ka Sòòkòòl, Futtoohabadee. &c.

• Professor Wilson in a note to the Uttara Rama Cheritra observes that the acounts of Bharadwaja are rather obscure. "In some places he is called the son of Vrihaspati, and in the Harivans is said to have been adopted by Bharata, as King of Pratisthana. In the Ràmàyana, Bharadwaja appears as

The divisons below these are almost endless, and few Canoujeas can ever be got to enumerate them. It may be sufficient to remark that these 6½ houses, or the K,hutkòòl, are of much greater consequence than the rest, and receive from them daughters in marriage: but do not allow their own daughters to marry, except in one of the K,hutkòòl tribes. The honor of an alliance with these privileged classes is so great, that like the Kòòleens of Bengal, some of them have as many as twenty or twenty-five wives.

The equally intricate divisions of the Surwureas will be noticed in their proper place, but it may be as well to mention here that amongst them are included the Suwaluk, hee, who are said to have been made Brahmins by Raja Ram Bug, hel, when he was in a hurry to make a sacrifice, but as he could not perform it without assembing a lac and a quarter of Brahmins, he a sage residing at Prayàga, or Allahabad, where a temple dedicated to him still exists on the high bank of the Ganges. In the Mahàbhàrat, he is described as residing at Haridwar, and the father of Drona the military preceptor of the Pandava and Kaurava princes. He is also the parent of Arundhati, the wife of Vasishtha." May not this obscurity be cleared up by supposing, as the above genealogy purports, that there are two saints of nearly the same name, Bharadwaja and Bhuradwaja? The Canonjeas certainly acknowledge the distinction, and this kind of evidence being founded on immemorial tradition and usage in respect to intermarriages, is not to be slighted.

In Sanscrit the long A indicates descent: as  $S\'{a}gara$  from Sagara;  $Bh\'{a}gira$ -thee from Bhagiratha. In the same way Drona, the son of Bhuradwaj, is called  $Bh\'{a}radwaj$  in the  $Mah\'{a}bh\'{a}rata$ .—(See page 3 of "Johnson's Selections," "Wilkins' Sanscrit Grammar," page 494, and Langlois' "Harivansa," pp. 70, 71. 145.) But that cannot be the relationship existing between these two persons; because, if they had been father and son, the son could not have established a separate Gote, being already of the Gote of his father—himself the child of two fathers (see "Vishnu Purana" p. 449). The "Prubur Munjuree" appears to explain the difficulty, Bhuradwaj, the father. established no Gote, but his son Bharadwaj did—and the Bhuradwaj, whose Gote we now have, was the son of Ungira.—See also the "Nirnye Sindh," (Chap. iii.) in which the "Prubur Munjuree" is quoted.

Again, in Vol. 11. p. 12, of the Hindu Theatre, Professor Wilson says, "it is asserted that thirteen Gotras or families of Brahmins own their origin to as many divine sages called after their name. Kasyapa (Kusip) is one of the number. The Aswalayana Sutra of the Rig Veda contains the enumeration of the Gotras, and their sub-divisions, but in a very involved and unintelligible style. The popular enumeration of them, however, is not uncommon; but it is nearly, if not wholly, confined to the South of India, where several of the reputed representatives of these tribes yet exist."

He again says at p. 3, of his notes to "Johnson's Extracts from the Mahábhárata," that in the South of India Brahmans are still found pretending to be sprung from some of the patriarchal families. Do not these statements require qualification, with reference to the Gotras of the Canoujeas given above?

collected people from all classes and parts, and invested them with the Juneoo, or sacred thread. Others say that Manik Chund, the brother of the famous Jye Chund Rat, hore, others, that one of the Surneyt Rajas, others, that the redoubtable Ram Chunder himself was the manufacturer. However this may be, they rank very low in the scale of Brahmins.

The Canoujeas are found chiefly in the Central Doab, where many, particularly in Etana, are possessed of Zumeendarees. They extend also into Koonch and the Western portion of British Bundlecund, and into Beiswara in the Oudh Territory.

The Sunoudhas, or Sunadhs as they are more familiarly called, touch the Canoujeas on the North-West, extending over Central Rohilcund, and part of the Upper and Central Doab, from Pilibheet to Gwalior.

The boundary line (which has been delineated on a small map) runs from the North-West angle of Rampoor, through Richa, Jehanabad, Nuwabgunge, Earcilly, Furcedpoor, to the Ramgunga; thence through Sulempoor and the borders of Mehrabad; thence down the Ganges to the borders of Canoui; thence up the Kaleenuddee to the Western border of Alipoor Pattee, through Bhoeegaon, Soj, Etawa, Beebamow, and down the Jumna to the junction of the Chumbul. Instances of course occur of occupation by either party on the other line, but they are very rare.

On the North-West the Sunadh are met by the Gour Brahmins, whose boundary line is also sufficiently definite to admit of description. It runs through the Rampoor territory as far as the Ramgunga, thence through Serowlee, Seondara, Nerowlee, Buhjoce. Rujpoora, Dubhace, and the Western borders of Cocl, Chundous, Noh Jheel, and Kosee.

The whole of the British territory to the Westward of this line is in their occupation. It might have been expected, that a great portion of this would have been occupied by Sirsootee Brahmins, but they are not to be found in any numbers, except in a small tract on the borders of Rampoor.

The Jijhoteas commence only in the South-West portion of Budousa, and thence extend Southward and Westward.

The Survereas, including the Bhoonhars, touch the Ca-noujeas on the East, extending from Bahraitch in Oudh, through the Pergunahs of Kotila, Hutgaon, Ekdulla, Oogasee, Dursenda, and Budousa, to the hills of Bundlecund..

The name of Surwurea is an abbreviation of Surjooparea,* or people living in Surwar, i. c. the other side of the Surjoo, or Gogra. Surwar is pretty nearly comprised within the limits of the present district of Gorukpoor. They say that they offended the great Ram Chunder, because they would not officiate at a Jug which he wished to perform without divesting himself of his arms. They refused, as this was contrary to the Shasters. The Sunoudhas however were not so scrupulous, and satisfied his desires. He subsequently respected the independence of the Surwureas, and promised to give them as much land for their residence as the flight of his arrow would cover. The hero drew his bow on the banks of the Surjoo, and the arrow, as is devoutly believed, sped as far as the Turacc. Hence that country was assigned to them, and from it they derive their name.

It is strange that a somewhat similar legend is told respecting the location of Brahmins and other Colonists in Malabar. The traditions of the Peninsula relate that Parasurama stood on the promontory of Dilli, compelled the ocean to retire, and shot his arrow over the site of Kerala or Malabar, and presented the new territory to the Colonists whom he invited from the North, and thus, to the present day, the Brahmins of Malabar and Canara are mostly of the five Northern nations. ("Catal. of the Mackenzie Collection").—See Jijhotea, Surwurea, Sunadh, Bhoonhar, and Gour Brahmin.

Cas, ১ ১ জাব càs

Saccharum Spontaneum. A grass which is found in every part of the Upper Provinces. Its existence is generally considered to be indicative of extreme poverty of soil, but this is not always the case, It particularly affects soils which have been allowed to remain long untilled, and as its roots strike deep it is very difficult to eradicate.

* In the Jatimala given in "Price's Hindee Selections," Canoujea Brahmins are divided into four clans—namely, Surwurea, Surjooparea Jijhotea, and Sunoudha. But it is surely a mistake to divide the Surwurea from the Surjooparea. Perhaps by the former is meant the Canoujea proper, for of this, the most important subdivision, no mention is made; but the Canoujeas would be very loath to acknowledge such a title.

In the Sauçor territory it is said to grow in great abundance on lands which have been exhausted by over-cropping; it is also said that when the weed rots and disappears, it denotes that the soil has gained heart again, and is fit for cultivation; that it is stronger in proportion as the lands are richer; and that the strongest disappears in fourteen years.

Cas, however, is not altogether useless; it is sometimes applied as a thatch, is in much demand for twine; and elephants, horses, and horned cattle do not object to it as fodder.

The grass grows from three to fifteen feet high, and it flowers in great profusion after the rains. The base of the flowers is surrounded with a bright silvery fleece, which whitens the neighbouring fields so much as frequently to resemble a fall of snow. It is hence frequently called in aid by the Hindoo Poets:

"Like Siva's ashen whiteness, autumn bears
The budding grass, and like the foul hide wears
The dun clouds, &c."

Mudra Rakshasa, p. 196.

The word is more generally pronounced Cans, with a nasal n as the penultimate letter; but it is correctly Cas, as in Casgunge. The familiar couplet, in which the hunger and avarice of Brahmins are sportively alluded to, shows the correct pronunciation as well as the season of its flowering.—

च्याया कनागत फूले कास बामहन बैठे चूलहे पास

Aye kunagut phoole Cas Bamhun buet,he choolhe pas.

"The time (Kooar) for performing the ceremony in honor of deceased ancestors has arrived, the Cas is in flower, and Brahmins surround the fire place."

CASHTKAR, সমৌত কাম্বাকার cáshtcár
A cultivator. This is a Persian word; the Hindee Kisan is in more general use.

CASTE,

The Printed Glossary says, "a word employed by Europeans to express the sub-divisions of the different Hindoo tribes, although properly it has only reference to one, the Kayestha or writer division." This surely is a very fanciful origin to assign to the name. It is more probably derived from the Portuguese word Casta, signifying race, lineage.

Caste is by no means exclusively an Anglo-Indian word. It has a place, I believe, in the early copies of Johnson's Dictionary, and an old authority is given for its use; but it appears to be excluded from the later editions.

Снанее, इंधे चाही cháhí

Lands irrigated from wells; from the Persian Chah & a well.

CHAHIL, इंग्लिं cháhil

Chahil, or Chahira, is the name of a tribe of Rajpoots of which the greater part is now converted to Mahometanism. There are a few in the Hissar district and on the borders of Bihaneer. A peculiar intrest attaches to them from their connexion with Goga Chouhan, whose wife, Sireal, was the daughter of Sinja, the Chahil, Raja of Sirsa Putun. The memory of this relationship is still preserved by the Chahil tribe being the exclusive managers of the Saint's tomb.

According to some authorities the Chahil ranks as one of the thirty-six Royal Races; but the distinction is not usually conceded to them.—See Goga Peer.

CHAK, এু বাল chák

A wheel. Especially applied amongst cultivators to the Pulley over which the Lao passes; called Bhon in Dehli; Chuhlee and Churk, hee in Rohilcund, Gurree and Gureelee in the Doab; and Girra and Guraree in Benares and Bundlecund. But these four last terms are only applied if the wheel is formed out of one block of wood.

Chak means also a mill; rings of earth for forming a well; a vessel in which Sugar is manufactured, after being transferred from the Chasnee or Kurahee.—See Bel.

ह्यंकरी چاکری chákarí CHAKUREE, Grant for personal services in the village; from Chakur a servant.

ड्रांड्ड चांचरी cháncharí CHANCHUREE The meaning of the word is explained under BHOOLREE.

४७३ चानदा chánda CHANDA, A common station of the Revenue Survey.

न्यानदम chándam CHANDUM, There are some Rajpoots of this clan in Allahabad and Jounpoor.

चांक नांक chánk CHANK,

Chank, or Chanka, is a stamp fixed on a stack or heap of grain, called also Chhapa, ; from Chhapna جهاينا to print.

The Chank is cut on wood, and impressed on a cake of moist earth, called the Burkut kee mittee. The legend engraved upon it generally consists of such words as مانبت بخير باه Akbut bu khyr bad, or إيمان كي سلامةي Eman kee sulamutee, to imply that the honor of the parties to whose care the corn is entrusted is appealed to against any dishonest alienation of it. The seal is then placed on the sides of the heap, never as in the Синиттооп, q. v., on the top, lest the increase of corn may be thereby prevented. The Chank is only impressed where Butace tenures prevail, and only on heaps which are to be divided, or, having been divided, are left under charge of only one of the parties.

Another meaning of Chank is given under the articles

CHHUTTÒÒR and BURHAWUN.

Chank is also the name of the ceremony which is observed in the threshing ground at the time of forming the winnowed corn into a heap.

After the foundation has been laid as described in the article Angounga, or according to any other mode in local use, and after the heap has been raised about a foot, a man, standing with his face to the North, takes the winnowing basket in his right hand, his left hand being full of grain, and commencing from the South, goes round from West to East,* and again to the South, pressing the basket against the bottom of the heap. When the heap is raised to about three feet, each hand changes its occupation, his left hand holds the basket, and his right the grain, and he circumambulates the heap the contrary way, from East to West, pressing the basket against it. When the heap is raised about five feet, he changes hands again, and goes through the same form as he did on the first occasion, pressing the basket against the top of the heap. It is seldom that more than three circuits are made, but if the heap is very high, as many as five, or even six, are made.

Sometimes the Chank is not performed till the entire heap is made, when it is perambulated three times successively in the order above-mentioned.

When the performer again reaches the South at the conclusion of his last circuit, he places the basket hefore him on the ground, and joining the palms of his hands together, makes a low bow to the corn, exclaiming:

स्यावढ पर्मेश्वर जी

वै बर्जत दीजिये

Secamurh Purmeshurjec Sy burkut decjiye,

or,

चन देवता जी

सहेस गुना हूजिये Ann Deota Jee, Suhes goona hoojiye,

* A superstitious observance in the Highlands of Scotland bears a remote resemblance to this. In an extract given in Brande's notes to May-Day Customs we read. "Baltein signifies the Fire of Baal. Baal or Bal is the only word in Gaelic for a globe. This fistival was probably in honor of the sun, whose return, in this apparent annual course, they celebrated on account of his having such a visible influence by his genial warmth on the productions of the earth. That the Caledonians paid a superstitious respect to the sun, as was the

or

सहदेवन गाणाद्रन हम की तुम राज वधीहर केमे उरगिन करी

Sahdewun Gosain hum ko tòòm raj beohur ke se òòrgin kuro, or some other ejaculation, by which he hopes to obtain a blessing on his corn.

This is the mode as it is practiced in the Upper Doab and Dehli. In Rehilcund it is different. In the Northern parts of that province, a man, holding nothing in the left hand, goes from the South towards the West, then towards the North till he reaches the Merh or pole: he then returns the same way, and goes towards the East till he reaches the pole, and back again to the South—he then places the basket on the ground, and makes the same obeisance, concluding with some pious ejaculation. In the Southern portion of Rohilcund they generally press their hands from bottom to top in six different parts of the heap, and repeat each time the name of one of the Chukrvurtee Rajas, such as Mandhata, Ben, Dulcep, &c. &c.

In the Lower and Central Doab and Saugor, the ceremony generally consists in making a circle with cow dung or ashes round the Ras and T,hapa at the same time, commencing form the East, and going from South to West till the East point is again reached; the operator taking care all the while to hold his breath. Sometimes the South is again reached by practice among many other nations, is evident, not only by the sacrifice at Baltein, or Beltane, but upon many other occasions. When a Highlander goes to bathe, or to drink water out of a consecrated fountain, he must always approach by going round the place from East to West on the South side, in imitation of the apparent diurnal motion of the sun. This is called in Gaelic going round the right, or the lucky way." And again, in "Martin's History of the Western Islands, "P. 116." In this Island of Lewis, there was an ancient custom to make a fiery circle about the houses, corn, cattle, &c. belonging to to each particular family. A man carried fire in his right hand, and went round, and it was called Dessil, from the right hand, which, in the ancient language, is called Dess. There is another way of the Dessil, or carrying fire round about women before they are churched, and about children until they be christened, both of which are performed in the morning and at night. They told me this fire round was an effectual means to preserve both the mother and the infant from the power of evil spirits, who are ready at such times to do mischief, and sometimes carry away the infants, and return them poor meagre skeletons; and these infants are said to have voracious appetites, constantly craving for meat."

going back again from the East, and thus a complete circle is not formed. The part from the East to the South being left, because from that part the presentations to the Brahmins and Gods are taken and put aside. The same happens at the Purkurma in worship, for a more obvious reason, that the foot may not overstep the running water.

In most other places the ceremony of going round the T,hapa, or heap formed for the village servants, is somewhat different. The man goes from the South to the North, and back again, not placing his foot anywhere on the Eastern side, because that is the amun or kand, which contains the refuse corn belonging to the Chumars, which having fallen behind the winnower, is of a very inferor quality.

The entire ceremony of Chank is gone through with the utmost silence, which is to be observed till the grain is measured and distributed. The reason is said to be that evil sprites who "bootless make the breathless housewife churn," injure the corn if any talking takes place.

All these rites, ridiculous as they are, are devoutly supposed to be efficacious for obtaining the advantages which it is their aim and object to secure, and though from the influence of the opinions of their utilitarian masters the common people are getting gradually weaned from their credulity and superstition, and these trifling observances begin to be less thought of than they were a century ago, a long time yet will elapse before they cease to be practised.

"Yet in the vulgar this weak humor's bred, They'll sooner be with idle customs led, Or fond opinions, such as they have store, Than learn of reason or of virtue's lore."

G. Withers.

CHANTEE,

इंग्डं चांटी

chántí

Cesses levied from artizans and others; from Chantna خانتنا to squeeze, to press.

CHAONREE,

री جانري

cháunrí

A police station; usually the Kotwal's.—Saugor.

Chap, چاپ বাদ cháp

The refuse of the Jhurberee after the Pala is beaten from it. Delhi and Upper Doab.—See Jhurberee.

CHAPRE, چاپڙي वापडे chápre

Cakes of Cow-dung. They are also known by the names of Gobur, Oopla, Gosa, Doja, T, hepree and Chot.

CHARA, ১১ হান chára
Truss, sheaf, grass, food.

Chasnee, چاسنی चामनी chásní

A pan in which the juice of the Sugar cane is boiled. It is much the same as the Kurahee, except that it is somewhat larger. From the Chasnee it is transferred into the Char q. v.

It is probably a corruption of the Persian چاشني flavour, syrup.

CHAWUL, چاول चावल cháwal

Undressed rice, but cleared of the husk.

CHEEBHUR, इंग्लंड चीभर chíbhar

Land which remains long moist.—Saugor.

CHEEHE, इतेह chihe

See Goojur, of which tribe they form a sub-division.

Cheek, چيک चीक chík

CHEEKUR ÇİŞ चीकर chikar

Mud, slime. The name of Cheek is consequently given to the turf or rushes on which the water pot of the Dhenklee is made to rest, when it is brought to the top of the well. Parchha and Chilwaee are likewise so applied.

CHEEKUT, इंग्लंड chikat

CHIKTEE, इस्त्रे चिकटी chiktí

Clayey soil .- Saugor.

Снеетл, چينة चीता chíta

The name of a creeping herb. It is used in medicine as a cure for leprosy. (Plumbago Zeylonica).

CHEHRA, ४) 💝 चेह्रा chehra

A descriptive roll of a servant : literally, a face.

CHENA, ४३६६६ चेना chena

(Panicum Miliaceum.) (Panicum pilosum. Roxb.)

Chena, Cheena, or Chyna, for it seems to be known by any of these names, is sown and reaped in the hot season, after nearly all the Rubbee crops have been cut. It requires much irrigation, and is a precarious crop; hence the saying:

चेना जीका लेना

चैादह पानी देना

बयार चले ते। लेना न देना

Chena jee ka lena Chouduh panee dena

Byar chule to na lena na dena.

"You may irrigate your Chena as much as you like, but a blast will destroy it, and you get nothing for your pains."

CHENCH, इंडेंच chench

A herb which springs up in uncultivated places during the rainy season. Its fruit is frequently called Jonk, from its resemblance to a leech.

Cheroo, ১৯৯ चेভ cherú

Cheroos appear to be the aborigines of Ghazeepoor, a part of Goruckpoor, the Southern portion of Benares and Mirzapoor, and of Behar. They are sometimes said to be a branch of the Bhurs.

There seems great reason to suppose that Cheroos are called also Sivira, or Scoree; though Buchanan is of opinion that the two are distinct, and that the Scorees subdued and expelled the Cheroos. At the same time, he considers the Coles and the Cheroos to be the same, and even to be the ancestors of the Beis Rajpoots; ("Eastern India," Vol. I., pp. 24. 406. 407. 457. 465. 466. 494. and Vol. II., pp. 345. 348. 372. 460.) but his statements can rarely be relied on, and are especially confused when he has to deal with the abstruse subject of Indian Ethnography.

It is, however, confessedly very difficult to trace the connexion or difference between the aboriginal tribes of Bhurs, Cheroos, Scorees, and Coles, and to learn whether their occupation of the above-mentioned tracts was successive or synchronous. As the Cheroos declare themselves to be descended from the great Serpent, we may possibly have in them the remnant of the Nagbunsee dynasty of Magadha.—(See Gour Tuga.)

Remains of buildings attributed to them are found near Buddha Gya, Sasram, and Ramgurh, and the images of Siva and Hundoman, which are found in them, indicate the prevalence of the Hindoo religion.

They appear to have been expelled from their ancient abodes by the Pramars of Bhojpoor, the Hyobuns of Hurdee, and the Bhoonhars, not long perhaps before the first Mahometan invasion, about which time there appears to have been a general convulsion throughout India, during which several tribes acquired their present possessions. The features of the Cheroos are said ("Eastern India," I. 495) to mark them as belonging to the aboriginal tribes of the Vindya mountains. They live chiefly by cutting timber, collecting drugs, and killing game, and though their numbers are reduced very low, they continue to create a Raja for every five or six houses, and invest him with the Tiluk in due form.

We do not read of Cheroos any where in history, except in the life of the Emperor Shere Shah, who is stated to have ordered out Khawas Khan against Muharta, the Cheroo, Zumeendar of the districts of Behar. Thus far had the progress of the Rajpoots compelled the aboriginal clan to emigrate; and the extravagant joy shewn by the Emperor at the conquest of Muharta shews that the last effort of the Cheroos to maintain their independence was sustained with considerable vigour.

The present chief of Singrowlee in Mirzapoor is said to be a Cheroo, but he attempts to disguise his origin by the assumption of the title of Benbuns. (See BYGAR and K,HURWAR.) Cheroos are still found in the Southern parts of the Province of Benares, and in the fastnesses of Ramgurh.

It is probable that the limits assigned in the first paragraph to the Cheroos are too narrow, for in the Central Doab a tradition is still preserved that the Rajpoots of that quarter expelled Cheroos. The Kayet, hs also of Bhoegaon state, that their predecessors were Chirars; and the Cherahs, who are alluded to in the Glossary as slaves in Etawah, are perhaps of the same race; unless, which is not improbable, this word has been written by mistake for Chela. It would be highly interesting to obtain any authentic memorials of this race, but it does not at present appear that there is any likelihood of adding to our information respecting this or any other aboriginal tribe.

It may not be out of place to hint the bare possibility that in the Siviras, Seorces, and Cheroos we may have the descen-Souras, dants of the ancient Suraseni. There is a passage in the "Harivansa" worth transcribing. "From this race came the Souraviras, and Sourasenas. The great King Sourasena has given his name to the country over which he reigned" (p. 158). And the following passage from a note by the translator is also worthy of record, as shewing the connection between the countries of the Souviras and Sourasenas—"Le Târâ-tantra appelle le Souvira le pire des pays, et le place à l'est du Soûraséna." ("Harivansa," p. 141.) But how does this Eastern position of Souvira coincide with that which is assigned to it on the better authority of Wilson?—See "Vishnu Purana," p. 177, and notes to "Johnson's Selections from the Mahábhárata," p. 65.

May it not be possible also that there may be some allusion to the Scoree, where the Chouhan Raja describes the Scorji as being to the Eastward of Chundelcund?—See the "Transactions of the Roy: As: Soc:" Vol. I., p. 260.

Синаее, چهنی chhaí

A pad, to prevent laden bullocks from being galled.

Синал, ट्रेंड्र हाज chháj

A basket used in winnowing grain.

CHHAKNA, धंडीहरू हाजनो chhákná

To clean the water of a well.

Сннлр, چهاپ chháp

A stamp; generally the Potdar's stamp.

In Dehli and the Upper Doab, it is the name applied to a small bundle or heap of thorns about a foot high. When large, it is called K, Hewa 1,25 q. v.

Синара, چهاپنې हापा chhápa

The village seal used to impress grain with. See Chank and T, napa.

It also means the heap of refuse corn and chaff which is formed in winnowing. In a heap of cleaned corn there is about 4 per cent. Chhapa. Also, a small heap of grain appropriated to purposes of charity.

Chhapa is likewise in some places the name given to the basket used for throwing water out of a pond, for the purpose of irrigation.—See Beree, Boka, and Dourse.

CHHAR, १५३ छार chhár

A bank of a river; hence Chharchittee, a permit, or pass, over a river.

CHHEDA, اليه हेदा chhedá

Chheeda, الله چهیدا chhida

Thin, not close—according to Shakspeare's Dictionary, "said of a person or animal whose legs are much separated." But it is also applied to cornfields, or plantations, in opposition to G,huna tigs or G,hinka, Kigs close, thick.

Chheemee, इक्रिमी chhímí A pod, a legume;

Chheenka, হিন্দুকু ক্রিকা chhínká

An ox muzzle.—Dehli; called Mook,ha, Mooshka, and Jalec in Rohilcund and the Doab; K,honta in Benares; and Mooska in Bundlecund. Also, a net for hanging pots, &c.—(See Jab.)

CHHEENTA, द्वांटा chhinta

From Chheentna tiling to sprinkle; a field in which Peas and Linseed have been sown by broad-casting, while the Rice crops are standing on the ground. When the Rice is cut, these crops are left to grow, and harvested in the beginning of Chyte. In Dehli, the term Chhanta is applied to throwing more seed amongst a growing Rice crop.

The same word is employed in Goruckpoor to signify lands in which seed has been scattered after a single ploughing; more particularly at the extremities of villages, with a view to secure possession.

Синевоог, گيرو कीयूल chhíúl A jungle tree; called also Dнак, q. v.

Chheer, भूड़ हीर chhír

The lessee's own cultivation; corrupted from Sede, q. v.—Saugor.

Chheoná, एंजूड़े हेवना chheoná To extract juice from a Tar tree.

CHHIKAEE, इर्डिकाई chhikáí

Bears the same meaning in Rohilcund as FARIGHKHUTANA, q. v. The word is perhaps derived from Chhinkwana Ul, Sigo to cancel.

CHHILKA, ১৯৯৯ ক্রিবনা chhilka Bark, rind.

क्ट्रिंब क्टूबा CHHITOÒA, chhituá

Sowing broad-cast: from Ch,heentna tizing to sprinkle.-Benares.

The usual words in the Doab, Rohilcund, and Dehli, are Puberce, or Pubar phenk dena, or Jel kurna. In Bundlecund it is called Chheentub, from the same root Chheentna.

हुउँ इक् हितरी chhitrí CHHITREE,

Said in Shakspeare's Dictionary to be "a small basket without lid or handle," but it is more generally understood to be a broken basket, or Dulea; one nearly ineffective from being worn out.

क्षेत्रक हीला chhola CHHOLA,

Gram-Saugor and Bundlecund. Also the title of the man who cuts the standing Sugar Cane. He strips off the leaves, and lops off the head, which he receives as his perquisite, besides about ten Canes per diem during the time he is employed. The name is derived from Chholna Wass to pare, to scrape.

क्ष्मि के होलनी chholní CHHOLNEE, A scraper.

ज्यु स्भर् chhút Синоот,

Синоотоитев, چهو ترتي हूटोती chhútautí

Remissions, allowed either on the Beeg, ha or in Rupees, by Malgoozars, after forming an estimate of a field. Also, generally any remission of Revenue by Government; from Chhootna القربي to be dismissed, to escape.

Chhoot, Chhoot Mafee, or Moojraee, are terms specially applied in Benares to the reductions which have been made in the assessment of 1197 Fuslee. Some of these have been authorized by the Government but most of them have been granted without any such authority. Some of those in the former Category are alluded to in Sect. 22, Reg. II. of 1795.

Синовсигтнее, چهورچتهی होरचिट्ठी chhorchitthí

A deed of release, from Chhorna (5), to abandon, and Chitt, hee $\frac{1}{2}$ a note.

Chhour, १९५३ होर chhaur

A large stack of Jovar or Bajra collected for fodder, comprising several smaller stacks called Syec. In years of plenty this is added to, till the village stock amounts to several hundreds of maunds.—Dehli.

In some districts, as in Rohilcund, this is known by the name of Gurree—elsewhere by the name of Kòòndur and K,huruce.
—See Gurree.

Chhour also means walking a boundary with a raw cowskin on the head, under a solemn oath to decide correctly. Five sticks are also held in the hand to imply that the arbitrator is the representative of the Punchayet.

The word is in use in the North West. Moochhunduree (which see) is used in Saugor and Rajpootana, and Dill in Benares, in which latter province the Hurbuns Pooran is laid on the head.—See Gola.

Chhudam, چهدام chhadám

Literally, six dams; equal to two dumrees. The proper amount is six and a quarter dams, but by abbreviation it is called Chhudam.—See Dumbee, Adhela, and Gunda.

Сининкоо̀я, इह कुर chhahkur

Division of crops, where the Zumeendar gets only one-sixth.

—E. Oudh.

Синикка, দুক্তি ক্করা chhakrá

A carriage. It is built on the principle of a Buhlee, has no sides like the Garee, but carries burdens on a sort of platform. It is much used for the conveyance of Cotton, to which its construction is well adapted. The names of some of its component parts are Nusouree, Gorea, Toolawa, Akuree, Korha, Phur, Shugoon, Ank, Teef, Dantoa, Choukura, and Bichooa, the uses of which it is needless to particularize.—See Garee.

Синитло, چهتاو chhatáo

Clearing rice from the husk.

Синиткее, इबे chhatrí

A small ornamented pavilion, generally built over a place of interment, or a Cenotaph in honor of a Hindoo chief.

Синиттоо̀я, भंदे छतुर chhattur

Is the name given to the covering placed on a heap of winnowed corn: from the Hindee Chhuttur yeş an Umbrella, Persian Chutr ye It is known also by the names of Burnawun and Chank, q. v. In Benares it is generally a mere cake of cow-dung; elsewhere, it is a shoot of grass, or a dry stick of Arhur, with several (generally five) projecting twigs, on each of which a small piece of cow-dung is placed, or a flower of the Ak or Mudar (Asclepias gigantea). Sometimes a spear is stuck in the ground, not on, but at the side of, the heap; and sometimes an artificial flower is placed at a short distance from the bottom of the heap.

The object in fixing the chhuttòòr upon, or near, the corn, is to prevent the effect of an evil eye, or the injury which is sure to be sustained from the praises of any casual visitor, or any "eyebiter," as an Irishman would say. It is for this reason that natives, when their children are sent out on a visit, always place upon their cheek or forehead some black spot, as it is considered to have the virtue of preventing the effects which would be occasioned by any expression of admiration. The general dissemination of this strange opinion is matter of considerable surprize. That it was entertained among the ancients is known to every reader of Virgil and Theocritus, and that it is a prevalent opinion not only among the Scotch and Irish, but with almost every other nation of the globe, is a matter of common obseration. By the superstitious natives of this country the Chhuttddr is devoutly believed to offer a sure remedy against the disastrous effects of fascination. If his Ras or heap be but surmounted with this fanciful emblem, the husbandman may sleep secure; but as sure as he neglects it, should an evil eye fall upon the grain, it is infallibly gone, and he will have to weep over the lost hopes of a year's labours.

Nam quocunque aciem horribilem intendisset, ibi omnes Cernere erat subito afflatos languescere flores.

Spemque anni Agricolæ mæsti flevere caducam.

Vida. Bombyc: II. 137.

Сиінец, ट्रेंड्र चिहेल chihel

Wet oozy land; from Chihla 14 mud.

Снік,ник, چکی चिखर chik'har

The husk of CHUNA, q. v.

Снік, ник маєв, چکهروائی चिखरवाई chik, harwáí

Wages for weeding.—E. Oudh; called generally Nirace and Noulace elsewhere.

Chiknawur, छ्रिंद्रे चिन्ननावट chiknawát

A clayey soil; from Chikna like greasy, oily.

Chilla, ध्रीकृ चिह्ना chilla

A holy place where Fakeers abide; so called from the initiatory abstinence of 40 days (Chalees) which they undergo.

CHILWAEE, چلوائی चिलवाई chilwáí

See an explanation of its meaning under CHEEK.

Снімво̀о̀я, अंके चिंबुर chimbur

An inferior kind of grass which grows in the Bhuttee territory. It is perhaps the same as the Chuprooda of Huriana.

Chin, , चिन chin

A kind of Sugar Cane.—Upper Doab and Rohilcund.—See Еек,н.

Сніксніка, ४५००० चिचिंश chirchira

Name of a medicinal plant (Achyranthes aspera). Its ashes also are used in washing linen. It is called also Cheechura, Chitirra and Sutjeera. In Sanscrit it is known by the name of Apamarg अपामार्ग. There is a white and a red kind. The former, if it is carried about the person, is firmly believed to render one invulnerable, particularly against scorpions; and the application of it to the part effected is as immediate and certain a remedy as was the application of basil according to the classical writers: but whether those so healed feel themselves, like Olearius, particularly affected ever after, whenever the Sun is in Scorpio, is not said.

Ситентта, چرچتّه चिर्चिट्टा chirchitta

The name of a grass which somewhat resembles young Bajra. It produces an ear like that of the Kungnee كنگني (Panicum Italicum), and its grain is about the size of a barley corn. This plant also is said in Native Herbals to have secret virtue. If any one will eat a chuttack of its grain, he will not feel the pressure of hunger for twenty-one days. As the experiment is easily made, and it is not a common practice to eat Chirchitta, we may presume it is somewhat nauseous.

Снітт,на, । द्विन्न चिटठा chitt'ha

A rough note. Servants' pay. A memorandum.

CHITT, HEE, ভূমুভু বিহতী chitt'hí

A note; paper containing an order or demand. From this word are formed chitt, hee tulub, or tulub chitt, hee, meaning a process or precept; a summons; from the Arabic demand; and Chitnuvees, (written Chitnees in the printed Glossary) a writer of notes or precepts: a Secretary; from the Persian if the write.

CHIWANA, ७ ६ चिवाना chiwana

A place for cremation; called also Chihace and Chihace. These three are derived from Chace, ashes. Murg, hut, Bhoeedugdha and Smusan, or Sumsan (in Benarcs) are also employed to signify the same.

Сноел, چويا चोड्या choya

A hole dug in the dry bed of a river, to get water. Also a name commonly applied to rivulets.

Снона, چوها चेाहा choha

A small well. Both these words are derived from Choona to to leak, to be filtered.

Снока, ८०० चोका choká

Rice. - Saugor.

Chonda, چونڌا chonda

Kuchha wells where the water is near the surface. - E. Oudh.

Сноол, १००३ चुत्रा chúá

Chooa, battoo, or marsa, forms one of the chief Khureef products of the hills. The flowers are of a fine red colour. It is supposed to be the Amaranthus oleraceus.

Chooa is also the siliqua, seed vessel, or pod of a pulse.

Chòògaee, چگائی चुगाई chugáí

Pasturage; from chòògna the to peck, to graze.

Сноонка, ्रिके चूहडा chúhrà

The lowest caste of Village servants. They are known also by the names Bhungee, Hulalkhor, and Khakrob; (See Bhungee); but Choohra is the most usual term in villages. The head of this tribe, as well as that of Chumars, is known by the title of Mihtur, and receives perquisites under the name of Mihturaee; so that the word Mihtur, far from being contemptuous, as is usually supposed, is one of honour and dignity. In Persian Mihtur; signifies a prince; literally, greater, being the comparative of segreat. In Sanscrit also HEAT signifies greater, more—a man of the fourth or servile tribe; from HEAT great, with the affix of comparison: "perhaps." according to Wilson (Sanscrit Dict: p. 648,) "given in derision, or in comparison with the mixed tribes." The latter is more probable than the former, but it appears more likely that the title was derived from the fourth being more in number than the other three tribes. Either way, both the Persian and Sanscrit terms convey no dishonorable distinction.

Chòòkara, إلك चुन्नारा chukára

Customs duty .- Saugor.

Сноокоитл, چکو दुकीता chukauta

Field rates of rent; money rate; from Chookana UKs to settle, or complete.

Chòòkree, इकरी chukrí

A fractional division of land.—Gurhwal and Kumaon.

Сно̀о̀кит, چکټ дяп chukat

A settlement; from Chòòkana UÇ to settle.—Dehli and Upper Doab.

Choola, ४) चूला chúla

Choola, or Choolut, is a tribe of Tugas in Baghput; so called from their having come from Chooloo in Bikaneer; which is more commonly known as the mart of Chooroo on the Eastern border of that territory.

Сно̀о̀ьье, इली chullí

The supports which are placed below stacks of straw, or stores of grain: called by English Farmers, staddles. In some places the ground is merely cleaned and elevated, and no supports are raised; it is then called G,hye.

Chòòlloo, चूलू chullú

The palm of the hand contracted for the purpose of holding water. Sometimes incorrectly pronounced Chulloo.—See Ajoulee and Chòòngul.

Choon, ৩০৯ বুল chún

CHOONEE, इ्लं चूनी chúní

Flou, pulse coarsely ground.

Chòòngee, چنگی चुंगी chungí

Illegal abstraction of handfuls of market produce. It is frequently, however, given voluntarily as a sort of rent for the use of market conveniences, such as booths, sheds, &c.; and in this sense is equivalent to the Bytuk of the Deccan and the English Bord-half-penny.

Bhàdngee is also sometimes given to Fukeers, Zumeendars, or Bunias, for the establishment of new markets.

Chòòngul, इंगल chungal

A handful of any thing dry, as Chòòlloo is of any thing liquid. K,honch is used in the same sense. In Rohilcund, Lup, or Luf, is as much as two hands joined can hold; but in Benares, Dehli and the Doab, it means only one handful.*—See Ajoulee, Chòòlloo.

Сноонткоо, چونقرو चूंच् chúntrú Headman of a district in Dehra Doon.

CHOPNA, نچوپنا ते।पना chopná

To throw water from a Douree. q. v.—Oolchub dena is the equivalent term in Bundlecund.

Снот, कु चाट chot

An ingenious way adopted by shepherds and husbandmen of folding a blanket or sheet into a covering for the head and shoulders, making it nearly impervious to the rain. It is somewhat similar to the mode by which a Scotchman converts a

It is strange that, in Scotch Luff, or Loof, signifies the hollow of the hand ("Jamieson's Scottish Dict:") and hence is derived the term Love, familiar to us in the scale of the Game of Whist, when the adversaries score none. It originally meant that they have so many love (luff) i. e. so many in hand.

plaid into a sleeved great coat. It also signifies the tying the end of a blanket in a knot, and so placing it over the head, which in some places is called G, hoonghee; but that word is generally otherwise applied.—See G, HOONG, HEE.

A ploughshare.—See HUL and HULUS.

Сноиваснна, ४६३५) ३ चीबाह्य chaubáchha

A levy of Revenue on four things, under the ancient regime, in the Dehli territory; namely, pag, tag, koree, or kóódee, and poonchhee: i. e. pugree* a turban, tag† a rag, or thread worn by a child round its waist, koree a hearth, and poochhee animals' tails, as of buffaloes, bullocks, &c. The two first correspond with the poll tax, the third with hearth money, or the fumage of the Domesday Book, and the fourth with the Hornegeld.

As tag may be considered to be included in pag, another tax is substituted for it according to some authorities. Thus pulkutee, a cess on the pala cuttings—(See Jhurberee);— or a cess on, the durantee or sickle—or on the k,hoorpa or grass-scraper; but the insertion of tag is correct, for the tax upon the pag, or men, was double of that upon the tag, or children.

CHOUBEESA, इंट्रें चीबीसा chaubísa

From Choubees, twenty-four; is a name applied to a tract of country containing that number of villages in the occupation of a particular tribe. There are several of them scattered over our Provinces, but they may perhaps be considered more frequent in the neighbourhood of Muttra than elsewhere. Thus, we have within a circuit of about thirty miles round that city—

* Called by our early travellers puckery. "To scold lustily and to pull one another's puckeries or turbats off, being proverbially termed a banyan fight." Fryer's Trav." Lett. iii., Chap. 3.

In the Somersetshire dialect tacker is issued in the sense of a waxed thread. "Maester, 'tis zaw cawld, I can't work with the tacker at all; I've a brawk it ten times I'm shower ta dà—da vreaze za hord."—Farmer Bennet an Jan Lide.

- A Choubeesa of Jaes Rajpoots.
- A Choubeesa of Jadon Rajpoots.
- A Choubeesa of Bachhul Rajpoots.
- A Choubeesa of Cuchhwaha Rajpoots.
- A Choubeesa of Jyswar Rajpoots.—See Chourasee.

Сноиве, چوني चैाबे chaube

A class of Brahmins who originally received their names from reading the four (chou) Veds, as Dôôbe was derived from reading two, and Tribedee from reading three, of the Veds.—See Canoujea.

CHOUDHURAEE, چودهرائي चेाधराई chaudharái

The jurisdiction of a Choudhuree, whose occupation has been described in the Printed Glossary.

CHOUDHURAET, چودهرایت चेाधरादत chaudharáet A Choudhuree's fees of office.

Сноидирда, ১২০ হ্রীগভ্ভা chaugadda

The place where the boundaries of four villages meet; called by the Roman Agrimensorial writers "Quadrifinium," or "Terminus quadrifinalis." It is known also by the names of *Chou*hudda, Chousingha, Chouk,ha, Chouraha and Chompta.

Chouhan, इल्बीहान chauhán

This highly interesting tribe of Rajpoots trace their origin from the neighbourhood of Sambhur and Ajmere. They have many sub-divisions, such as the K,heechee, Nurban, Nicodmb, T,hoon, Bhudouria, Buchgotee,* Rajcoomar, Hara, Bilk,hurea, Chiryea, Bandhulgotee, &c. These are not all honored with mention in the "Annals of Rajasthan," where, however, twenty-four Sachæ are enumerated, most of which are not at all known in our N. W. Provinces.

Chouhans are very generally distributed throughout the districts of these Provinces, but we find them in great numbers chiefly to the North and East of Scharunpoor, in Jehangeerabad, Fuzabad, Sirsawa, Behut, Jowalapoor, and Sukrouduh. These are now many of them converted to Mahometanism. In K, hyr, Chundous, Secundra Rao, Mahrera, and Moort, hul of Aligurh. In Rohilcund we find them in Ajaon, Ounla, Suneya, Sutasee, Mindiwur, Chandpoor, Nugeena, Nehtour, Huldour, and the Eastern Pergunahs of Bijnore. In Humcerpoor; in Ruttunpoor Bansee, Sulempoor Mujh whee, and Tilpoor of Goruckpoor; in Sugree and Bhudaon of Azimgurh; and in the environs of Dehli and Meerut. But the most important clans of the Chouhan branch in these Provinces are those of the Central Doab, in Khundowlee of Agra; Lucknau, Janibrast, Deolee Jak, hun, and the Huzour Tehseel of Etawah; in Akberpoor of Campoor; and in Moostufabad, Gihror, Sonj, Etah, Kishnee-Nubcegunge, and Bhoongaon in the district of Mynpooree. Of these the most conspicuous are the families of Rajore, Pertapneer, Chukurnugur, and Munchuna, the head of which latter is usually known as the Raja of Mynpoorce. These four families, as well as their relatives, do not allow other Chouhans to associate with them on terms of equality, being descended from the illustrious Pirt, hee Raj, and therefore connected with the regal stem of Neemrana.* Raja Sungut, the great grandson of Chahir Deo, the brother of Pirthhee Raj, had twenty-one sons. † Of these twenty-one, the * These four houses have the title of Raja. The house of Sukrowlee in Etawa has the title of Rana; and the houses of Jussohun and Kishnee have the title of Rao. Thus, also, amongst the Bhudourias, besides the title of Raja, we have that of Deewan, which is held by the house of Parna in Bah Punahut; that of Chaond Raee, held by the house of Chitoulee in Atair; and that of Rao held by six different houses. The Mynov and Tusselee are altogether excluded from those dignities, being of inferior quality, and contaminated, it is said, with a little Mewatee blood in their veins.

* All Chouhans are, in fact, Buchgotee, inasmuch as they are of the Gotra of Buch.

† In Tod's Genealogical Table (Anuals, Vol. II., p. 451,) this number is ascribed to Raja Luk, hunsi, the father of Sungut. He mentions also Nonud Singh as the present chief of Neemrana. But this is a mistake, Nonud Singh, who is still alive, was never chief; being the illegitimate child of Chunderbhan, the grand-father of the present Raja, Bijye Singh, who is in the twenty-ninth generation from Pirt, hee Raj, the last Hindoo King of Delhi, who died in prison at Ghuzni.

The Mussulman historians say that Pirt, hee Raj was killed at the battle of the Cuggur, or shortly afterwards; but Chand, or rather his continuator, represents him as dying in captivity at Ghuzni; and the Bard would gladly have concealed so humiliating a fact, if he could. Several of our Chouhan sepoys, after the capture of that Fortress, sought out, and professed to find, the Chhutree of their ancestor, where they shewed their devation to his memory by presenting their humble offerings in honor of the Champion of their faith.

youngest (as in the case of the sons of Dasarat, ha, and of Raja Sunkur in the Mahábhárata) succeeded to the Guddee, in consequence of an agreement to that effect made in his old age, when he married a bride of the Touhur clan, and of the house of Jeela Patun: the issue of this marriage were Lah and Loure. Lah became Rao of Mundawar, and is now reckoned the head of the clan. Loure became Raja of Neemrana, and receives investiture from the Rao, who marks his superiority by fixing on the Tiluk with his great toe, instead of with his hand.

लाह मंडावर वैठिया चाठ मंगलवार

जा जा बैरी संचर से। से। गैरे मार

Lah Mundawur buet,hi o at,he Mungulwar, Jo jo bueree sunchire so so gire mar, is a common saying indicative of the superiority of Lah.

The other sons sought their fate and fortunes in different parts. Two are said to have established principalities in the Hills, one of which is now represented by the influential lords of Jummoo; two went to Sonkra Sonkree: one to K,hyr; five to Puchwara; from one, the Seoram Jats are descended; from another, the K,horo Aheers; and from another, it is said, the vagabond BAOREES, q. v.

Suhes Mul and Hursroo remained in the neighbourhood of Neemrana. Beeg ha Raj, the grandson of the former, established the name of Beeg, ното ਕੀ ਬੀਨੀ q. v.; the latter that of Dhòndhotee ਬੁੰਬੀਣੀ q. v. The country of the descendants of of Lah is known by the name of Rat, ਮ ਵਾਤ q. v. All the Chouhans of this neighbourhood, and of similar descent, are known by the name of Alunote.

The Mynpooree family are represented to be the descendants in the direct line of Pertab Ròòdur, another son of Raja Sungut. He, and some others of the same family, left their original seat at Necmrana, and invited by the distractions of the Doab not long after the Mahomedan ascendancy, founded the several principalities of Pertapneer, Rajore, Sukeet, Chandwar, Mynpooree, &c. &c. of which the last named is considered to rank the highest.

These Chouhans of the Central Doab formed a sufficiently strong confederacy to oppose frequently a successful resistance to the imperial troops; and the principalities of Rapree and Chandwar on the Jumna, and Mynpooree Bhoongaon, are always spoken of with respect, even by Mussulman historians.

In the reign of Buhhole Lodi, we find Race Pertap, Hakim and Zumeendar,* sufficiently strong to obtain the Government of Mynpooree Bhoongaon; † and his descendants appear to have maintained for some time subsequent a show of independence, which says much for the credit of their adroit management; for, during that period this part of the Doab was constantly exposed to hostile incursions, and was the seat of war for more than half a century, being on the borders of the rival kingdoms of Dehli and Jounpoor.

To the East of the Rewah territory, and to the South of the Kimoor range, between Sirgooja and Sohagpoor, there is a district called Chouhank, hund, of which the occupants trace their descent from the Mynpooree Chouhans, and the same origin is asserted by the Chouhans of Benoudha.—See BUCHGOTEE and RAJCOOMAR.

(Mukhaun Afghance.)

The value of this expression, as applied to Pertab Race, will be considered under TALOOKDAR.

† از آنجا بیرگنه کول آمده تمام صحال عیسی خال را بدستور سابق مقرر داشت ر از آنجا بیرگنه کول آمده تماری خال حاکم سکیته ملازمت نموه صحال جاگیر اررا نیز مسلم داشته ر رای پرتاپ حاکم ر زمیدار نواحی بهرال گانول را نیز بور مقرر داشت ر از آنجا به راپری چندارر آمد

Chouhank, hund is better known to the people themselves* as Chunderkona, so called from their leader Chundersein, from whom also Chundwar takes its name; and did not the Chouhans of Chundwar and Chunderkona concur in the same story, it might have been supposed that the latter were descended from the original Chouhans who peopled Gowalk, hund and Gurra Mundla.

The Chouhans of Upper Rohilcund, as those of Nehtour, Huldour, Sherecote, Afzulgurh, Nugeenu, Chandpoor, and Mundawur, are considered a very inferior stock, and are frequently not ranked with Rajpoots.

The Chouhans of the Goruckpoor district, branches of which have extended into Behar, are said by Buchanan ("Eastern India," Vol. II. 462) to be descended from Raj Sen, son of Rutna Sen the last Raja of Chittore. But the whole account was evidently furnished to him by some ignorant scribe, who has mingled the histories of Chouhans and Seesodyas. Nevertheless, the Doctor has accepted and recorded the statement without question; like too many others of a more injurious tendency, which have been industriously circulated from his works to the prejudice of the Natives of India.

In the history and traditions of the Chouhans of our Provinces, there is little to confirm, or disprove, the alleged modern origin of the race. Many arguments may be adduced against that view of the case, notwithstanding some respectable authorities maintain it. But there is no space for the controversy in this place. (See "Transactions R. A. S.," Vol. I. p. 133.—" Oriental Quarterly Magazine," No. XV.—"Bird's Guzerat," p. 79.—Tod's "Annals of Rajpootana," I. 94, II. 439, and "Journal Asiatique," May, 1827.)

Сноик,нл, विज् नैखा chauk'há

A station where four boundaries meet.—See Chougudda.

* The Chouhans themselves generally assign a more distant position to Chunderkona, asserting that it is in the neighbourhood of Calcutta.

With respect to Chundersein, he is claimed not only as the leader of these Southern Chouhans, but as the ancestor of the Bhudourias q. v. of which one sub-division bears his name to this day.

Choukura, जिंड चैानडा chaukara

Division of crop, in which the cultivator gives only one-fourth; called also by the same of Choukoor.

Choula, अं चीला chaula

Choula or Choura, is the name of a kind of pulse commonly cultivated in Hindoost, han. (Dolichos sinensis). It is also called Ruwas and Rumas; but it is best known throughout the country under its Persian name of LOBEA LUY q. v.

Choulaee, इर्थे चीलाई chauláí

The name of a weed which shoots up during the rainy season, particularly in old buildings. (Amaranthus polygamus.) It is also sometimes sown and eaten as a pot-herb. There are two kinds of of Choulaec, red and green. The one is called Gunder, and the other Mursaec.

CHOUMAS, इल्लीमास chaumás

Lands tilled from Asarh or Kooar, that is, during the Choumasa (four months), or rainy season, and prepared for the Rubbee sowings.

CHOUMASA, द्रीमासा chaumása

The Indian seasons are, according to the Shasters, six in number, each comprising two months. These divisions are more fanciful than real; and the common people are content to adopt the more definite division of three.—Choumasa, or Burk,ha, constitutes the four months of the rainy season. The rest of the year is comprised in Secala, Java or Mohasa, the cold season; and Dhoopkala, or K,hursa, the hot season.

CHOUMUSIA, इंट्रें चीमिया chaumasia A ploughman hired for the season,—Saugor.

Chounra, इंग्डा chaunra

A subterranean apartment for grain.

CHOUNTALEE, چونڌاکي चांताली chauntálí
Cotton pods, in which the fibre is equal to one-fourth of the whole produce. Tihalee, in which the fibre is one-third Puch-doolee, (i. e. two out of five) when it amounts to about 16 seers in the maund.

CHOUPAL, چوپال चेापाल chaupál क्रिपाल chaupál क्रिपार chaupár

A small shed in which the village community meet; generally built by the head man of the village, and used by him in former days as a king of Cuchehree.

Chour, इन्हें चीर chaur

A large open space in the fovest.—Rohilcund. A large tract of low land.—Eastern Oudh.

CHOURAHA, ट्रांचा chauráha
The junction of four villages, or roads.—See Chougunda.

CHOURASEE, इल्लामा chaurásí

The word means, literally, eighty-four: and is territorially applied to a subdivision of a Pergunnah, or district, amounting to 84 villages. Tod, in his "Annals of Rajpootana," where Chourasces are numerous, remarks that they are tantamount to the Saxon Hundreds. (Vol I., p. 141). This may be the case in some respects, but it is evident that Hundreds rarely contained a hundred villages, and sometimes not even half a hundred. Spelman, in his Glossary, says, " Nusquam, quod scio, reperiuntur 100 villæ in aliquo Hundredo per totam Angliam. Magni habentur qui vel 40, vel 30, numerant. Multi ne 10 : Quidam duas tantum." Hallam also observes, ("Middle Ages," Vol II. p. 390,) that the great divisions of the Northern countries had originally a different name, and that in course of time many of them have improperly acquired the name of Hundreds, which is conjectured to be a mere political division more peculiarly belonging to the South of England. Lingard also (Vol. I., p. 335) gives an extract from Domesday Book to show how little uniformity prevailed with respect to the area and number of manors contained within each Hundred. Thus we see that Hundreds were never originally equally partitioned, and in this respect, they differ from Chourasees; for there is no Chourasee, even though it may have dwindled down to ten or twelve villages, of which every originally component village could not be pointed out by the neighbouring Zumeendars; so that Chourasees once comprised, as the name implies, eighty-four villages.

I took occasion, when reporting the Meerut Settlements, to remark that I had discovered some Chourasees in that district, and expressed my surprise that their existence had not been previously observed. The assertion, I well remember, was received with some degree of incredulity, and the existence of Chourasees in any part of these Provinces was altogether denied. I have therefore taken some trouble to ascertain if I was deceived, and the following list, which is the result of my enquiries, will perhaps be considered to establish their existence beyond a question, not only in Meerut, but in almost every district in this Presidency.

In Deolee, now included in the Pergunnah of Bechameyoo in Etuwah, there is a Chourasee of Tilokchundee Beis Rajpoots.

The Pergunah of Kooraolee, in Mynpooree, constitutes a Chourasce of Rat, hore Rajpoots.

In Jewur of Boolundshuhur, the Choukurzadu Jadon Rajpoots have a Chourasec.

In the Pergunah of Chandous in Aligurh, there is a Chourasce of Chouhan Rajpoots.

In Purgunah Kuntit, of Zillah Mirzapoor, there is a Chourasce of Gurhwar Rajpoots, of which most of the villages are now in the possession of Brahmins.

In Pergunah K, hyrabad, of Zillah Allahabad, there is another Chourasce of Gurhwar Rajpoots.

The Lohacen Jats have a Chourasec in Huriana.

One of the Tuppas in Atronlee of Aligurh is a Chourasce.

The Pergunahs of Mulout and Bharungee in Bhuttecana are each a Chourasee.

The Solunk, hee Rajpoots have a Chourasec in Nidhpoor and Suhawur, on the borders of the Mynpooree and Budaon districts. They are the descendants of the Princes of the sacred Soron, before the Rat, hores conquered Canouj.

From Allahabad to Kurra there is a Chourasce of Johya Raj-poots, who have been for a long time converted to Mahometanism.

In the Pergunah of Hansi there is a Chourasce of Jats, comprising the Gotes of Seil, Rongee, Bora, and Sutroungee.

In Pergunah Sheolee of Campoor there is a Chourasce of Chundel Rajpoots.

In Oudh, opposite to Sheorajpoor, there is a Futtehpoor Chourasee, tenanted by Bisen Rajpoots.

There is a Chourasee of Chundel Rajpoots in Cureat Dost, in Zillah Jounpoor.

There is a Chourasee of Touhur Rajpoots in Dasna and Julal-abad, Zillah Meerut.

There is half a Chourasee of the same tribe in Poot, h, in the same District.

The Nagree Goojurs have a Chourasec in Dunkour, Zillah Boolundshuhur.

The Pergunah of Loni was formerly a Chourasee.

The Pergunah of Ghazeepoor, in Futtehpoor, was formerly a Chourasee.

In Mahomedabad Gohna, of Zillah Azimgurh, there was also formerly a Chourasee.

The Balacen Jats, the Suluklacen Jats, and the Kalsean Goojurs, have each a Chourasee in the Western Division of the Moozuffernugur District.

The Nirwal Jats have a Chourasee to the South of Dehli.

In Baghput, the Gour Tugas had a Chourasee, of which but few now remain in their possession.

In the same Pergunah the Deswal Aheers had half a Chourasee. Pergunah Jhillo in Saugor is a Chourasee.

The Teetwal Tugas of the Upper Doab had formerly a Chourasce.

There is a Talooka Chourasee to the North of the Soane, in Agoree Burhur of Mirzapoor.

There is a Chourasee of Birgoojur Rajpoots in Muhendwar, the local name of a tract of country between the Mewat Hills and the Jumna.

There is also a Chourasce of Birgoojur Rajpoots, now Mussulman, on the banks of the Hindun, to the South West of Moozuffernugur.

The Birgoojur Rajpoots had also a Chourasee in Rujpoora, and in Nerowlee, Pergunahs of Rohilcund, and another on the opposite side of the Ganges at Anoopshuhur. These however, are only sub-divisions of the much more extensive possessions they had on either side of the Ganges.

There is a Chourasee of Rangurs in Pergunah Kata of Seharunpoor.

There is a Chourasce of K,hoobur Goojurs in Rampoor in the same district.

The Bunafur Rajpoots have a Chourasee in Gurra Mundla. There is a Chourasee of Goutum Rajpoots, now Mussulman, in Tuppa Jar, Zillah Futtehpoor.

There is a Chourasee also in Hutgaon, in the same District.

The Muhesura Tugas have a Chourasee in Kit,hore, Zillah Meerut.

The Baseean and Dutean Tugas have each a Chourasee in Poot,h and Seeana, on the borders of Boolundshuhur.

There is a Chourasee of Sukurwal Rajpoots in Pergunah Chynpoor of Arrah.

The Pergunah of Rohtuk is a Chourasce.

The Pergunah of Tezgurh, in Dumoh, is a Chourasee.

There is a Chourasce of Chouhans in Aonla, a Pergunah of Bareilly.

There is a Chourasee of T,hòòkurele Játs in the Western parts of Alligurh.

There is a Chourasee near the Cantonment of Ooraee is Jaloun. The Saburun Brahmins have a Chourasee in Pergunah Etawah. The Aheers have a Chourasee in the Northern parts of Shekohabad, in Mynpooree.

There is a Chourasee near Bhojpoor, at a short distance from Furruckabad, known generally by the name of the Chourasee of Sirowlee.

There is a Chouhan Chourasee of Jhilmiles in Sirgooja.

There is a Chuk Chourasee between G,hiswa, and Jounpoor.

There is a Chourasee of Pulwar Rajpoots in Anowla of Goruckpoor.

There is also another kind of Chourasee in Anowla. When Chundersein, the Surneyt Raja, divided his acquisitions among his three sons, he gave a Chourasee (in Coss) to his eldest son, constituting the Raj of Goruckpoor; half a Chourasee (in Coss) to his second, constituting the Raj of Husunpoor Mug,hur; and a quarter Chourasee (also in Coss) to the third, constituting the Raj of Anowla.—See Surneyt.

There are two Chourasecs in Pergunah Chandpoor, Zillah Bijnore.

There are also two Chourasees of Mewatees, one called the Kamoo Chourasee in Bhurtpoor, and the other the Dehli Chourasee, near Sonah.

Soorujpoor, in G,hosee of Azimgurh, is a Chourasee Talooka, belonging to Koorhunya Bhoonhars.

The Suksena* Kayet, hs had formerly a Chourasee around Sunkisa on the Kaleenuddee, between Mynpooree and Furruckabad.

The Suksena Kayet, hs have now entirely deserted Sunkisa (Sunkasya). From this place have also sprung the Suksena Naces, Cachhees, and Bhurbhoonjas; and it is highly interesting as being mentioned in the Ramayana, and by the Chinese Traveller, Fa Hian (A. D. 400), who speaks in terms of high approbation of Seng-kia-shi and its neighbourhood.

"Ce royame est fertile et abondant en toutes sortes de productions. Le peuple y est nombreux, riche, et sans comparaison plus joyeux que partout ailleurs," (p. 126). There is nothing in the present appearance of the country to warrant this high eulogium.

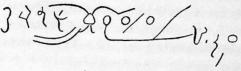

In the 14th Number of the Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society, there is an interesting account of a visit paid to Sunkisa by the Moonshee of Lieutenant Cunningham, Bengal Engineers, which seems to call for a few remarks. The ruins of Sunkisa (not called now Sankassa) can enter into no comparison with those of Canonj, even if we include the ancient k,hera of Suraee Ugut,h. The Gosaeen's Temple, moreover, can scarcely be said to be built of the ancient large bricks, as there are but very few in the whole structure. There is also an important misapprehension to be corrected, as Lieutenant Cunningham and Colonel Sykes both lay too much stress upon it. It is stated as an extraordinary fact that the worship of the identical Noga mentioned by Fa Hian is still annually performed: but the truth is, that the mound where this worship takes place is nothing more than the common heap of bricks, or earth, which we see in every village, erected for worship during the Nag-Punchumee. The only local Deity of Sunkish is Bisarce, whose favor is supposed to be efficacious in removing diseases of the eyes.

The Elephant, mentioned at page 242, is the most interesting object at Sunkisa. It is carved out of precisely the same description of stone as the Lat of Dehli and Allahabad. The body, which is about three feet high and on a pedestal sunk into the ground to the same depth, is well formed, but the snout has been knocked off by some zealous Iconoclast. It bears inscriptions, or rather scratches, on its two flanks, and on the front of the right thigh; the nearest resemblance to which is represented below.

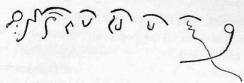

183

There is a Chourasce of Chouhan Rajpoots in Bhopal.

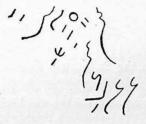

On the right flank.

On the left flank.

On the front of the right thigh.

The outer wall of the Town, which does not appear to have a greater circuit than five miles, has been washed down, and nothing of it is now left but a succession of sloping mounds with several large gaps, which appear to represent the old Gates. Surace Ugut,h, which is indebted for its name to the famous Muni Agastya, the fabled regenerator of the Deccan, is about a mile to the North of Sunkisa, and has every appearance of being equally old. In 1843, about 20,000 Rupees worth of coins were found at Surace Ugut,h, but there were none among them of any type previously unknown. Suraee Ugut,h appears to have been an outwork of Sunkisa, for it is beyond the wall above mentioned. There are mounds beyond the wall in the same direction, which seem to have been rather fortifications than Stupas, though it is not improbable that close search will reward the enquirer with Buddhist remains. Several images of Buddhisatwas, and beautiful specimens of double-glazed pottery, strew the ground in various directions. It was in a vase of this description that the coins lately discovered were enclosed. Lieutenant Cunningham is probably correct in thinking that Sunkisa was destroyed in the wars between Prit, hee Raj and Jyechund, but there seems reason to conclude that the town must have belonged to the latter when it was captured, for it is to the East of the Kalleenuddee, and is familiarly known as one of the Gates of Canouj. Hence perhaps we derive the story of the area of Canouj being so large as to contain 30,000 shops of Betel-sellers.

As the determination of the site of Seng-kia shi confirms the truth of Fa Hian's narrative, the European public are much indebted to Lieutenant

There is a Chourasee of Sukurwal Rajpoots in Pahargurh in Gwalior.

There is a Chourasee of Jutranee Jats in K,hera Bijwasun. There is a Chourasee in the Northern parts of Gudurpoor, Zillah Bareilly. It belonged to the race called Gobree; but the space is perhaps too small to have comprised a Chourasee of villages, and it may therefore have represented a Chourasee of tanks, which are in that spot very numerous. There is one village in the tract which still goes by the name of Chourasee. But here we appear to have a Chourasee within a Chourasee; for the whole tract from the Peera Nuddee to the Surdah, when it was under Hill-jurisdiction, was called the Chourasee Mal (i. e. submontane region,—see Des), because it extended eighty coss in length and four in breadth, or according to some authorities, because it extended eighty-four coss in length.

The Pergunah of Gohana, in the Dehli Territory, constitutes a Chourasee.

Cureat Seek, hur, in the Province of Benares, also constitutes a Chourasee.

The Jourasses have no doubt the same origin. There is a Pergunah Jourasse in Scharunpoor, a Jourasse Khalsa in Paneeput, and a Jourasse near the Muha Bulee temple in Gurhwal.

In Jounpoor, the Pergunah of Bealsee is an abbreviation of Bealessee, or half a Chourasce, of Rug, hoobunsee Rajpoots.

The Pergunahs of Kootea and Gooneer in Futtehpoor also form a Bealeesee, or half Chourasee.

Besides those enumerated in the N. West, and those which are known to exist in Rajpoolana, we find indications of Chourasees in several distant parts of the country.

There is a Pergunah Chourasee in Surat, and a Seeam Chourasee between the Beeah and the Sutlej.

Cunningham for his communication. It is only strange that Professor Wilson, who must have travelled close to, or over its remains, and must have heard of the Suksena Division of Kayet,hs, and their original abode, should have doubted at all respecting its position—for Sunkisa is generally recognized amongst the learned natives of these Provinces to be the site of the Sunkasya of the Ramayuna; and it is not unimportant to add that when any inhabitant of Sunkisa visits Nepal or Kumaon, he is treated with marked respect by the Pundits and men of influence; as a traditional story of some original connection with this ancient city is still preserved in those remote regions.

The "Oopdes Presád" says there are 84 cities in Goojur Des, or Guzerat.

In the Deccan, 84 villages constitute a Desmuk,h, or Pergunah. This can scarcely be universal, but it is so stated ("Journal R. A. S." No. IV. page 208) on the authority of Col. Sykes. Elphinstone, on the contrary, says the Deccan Pergunahs contain 100 villages.—(Hist. of India, Vol. I. 120).

There is a Chourasce Jurah in Orissa. (As. Res. XV. 213.)

Captain Blunt (As. Res. VII. 92) in Pergunah Mahtin, on his way to Ruttunpoor, meets with a Couheir chief, of whom he says, "All that I could collect from this chief was, that in these mountains there are seven small Districts, called Chourasees, containing nominally 84 villages, but that in reality not more than 15 were then in existence."

There is a Chourasce marked on the Surveyor General's Map at a short distance to the South of Cabul; which, if the word is spelt correctly, shews that all vestiges of ancient Hindoo occupation are not yet erased from that country.

I proceed now to adduce instances of the existence in these Provinces, or at least the traditionary remembrance, of the still larger division of 360 villages, which number, as will hereafter be shewn, bears an intimate relation to the Chourasee, and is based on the same principle of computation. I will merely premise here (what is well worthy of remark) that for territorial sub-divisions there is no intermediate number between $4 and 360.

Amongst the six Cantons of Jâts on the borders of Huriana and Bikaneer, there are no less than four, which have each 360 villages, viz. Poonya, Kussòòa, Sarun, and Gudarra.

Panecput Bangur, and K'hadur, are considered to constitute 360 villages.

Soneput Bangur and K,hadur are also considered to constitute 360 villages.

In, and around, Sirsa in the Bhuttee territory, there are, or rather were, 360 villages of Chouhan Rajpoots.

The Bisen Rajpoots have 360 villages in Oudh.

The Pergunah of Barah, in Allahabad, is reckoned to comprise 360 villages.

The Pergunah of Bhoelee, in the province of Benares, consisted of 360 villages.

The Aheers of Beeg, hoto have 360 villages.—See Beeg, noto.
The Pergunah of Meerut is said to have consisted of 360 villages.

The Bhuttee Goojurs have 360 villages in the Western side of the Boolundshuhur District.

The Podndeer Rajpoots, most of whom are now Mussulman, have 360 villages in the North East of Scharunpoor.

The Cuchhwaha Rajpoots had formerly 360 villages in the Northern Doab.

The Chundel Rajpoots in Bit, hoor, and the neighbourhood, formerly had 360 villages.

The Rat, hee Goojurs are said to have had 360 villages in the Upper Doab; but though they claim this number for themselves, it is questionable if they ever had so many.

In the old Province called Narduk, to the West of Kurnaul, the Moondahur Rajpoots (now Mussulman) have 360 villages.

In Pergunah Kutchur, of Benares, the Rug, hoobunsee Rajpoots have 360 villages.

The Kut, herya Raja of Mudhur, in Serowlee, of District Moradabad, claims as the ancient possession of his tribe 360 villages in Rampoor. This, however, could only have been a subdivision, as the Kut, heryas had many more villages in their possession.

Raja Ram, Bug, hel, is said to have given 360 villages to the Brahmins of Arail.

The Dhangul Mewatees, who were formerly Cuchhwaha Raj-poots, have 360 villages.

The Doolout, and the Sarban Mewatees have also, each, 360 villages.

The larger division of 1,440, or 360 × 4, such as the Mohils have at Aureent, (Annals of Rajast, han, Vol. I. p. 627,) does not seem to exist any where in these Provinces, though it is claimed by the Pòdndeer Rajpoots near Hurdwar, the Jurea Lodhees of Ramgurh in Jubbulpoor, the Gour Brahmins and the Jutoo Rajpoots of Huriana, and sometimes by the Beis of Beiswara.—(See Goutum.)

It is not, however, with respect to the occupation of land only that the numbers of 84 and 360 are regarded with such favor. We find them entering into the whole scheme of the Hindoo, Buddhist, and Jain religions, cosmogonies, rituals, and legendary tales; so much so, as to shew that they are not taken by mere chance, as arbitrary numbers to fill up some of their extravagant fictions, but with a designed purpose of veiling a remote allusion under a type of ordinary character.

Thus, within the sacred precints of Brij there are considered to be 84 Forests. (Smyth's Dict. v. Bunjatra.)

Chitterkote (Chittore) is the chief among 84 castles, and has 84 Bazars. (K,homan Rasa.)

The country of Brij is 84* Coss round Muttra. When Mahadeo stole Sri Krishna's cows, the sportive God created new ones which grazed within this precise limit; and from that period, according to the Indian legend, the boundaries of Brij have been fixed, and to this day they are annually perambulated in the month of Bhadon.—(Brij Bilas.)

The Mercantile tribes are 84. (Tod's Raj. Vol. I. p, 120.)

द्रत बरहद द्रत सानहद उत सूरमेन का गांव विजे चारासो कास में मयुरा मंडिल मांह

It Burhud, it Sunhud, ddt Soorsen ku ganw, Brij Chourasee kos men Mut,hddra mundil manh.

That is, the Chourasce of Brij extends on one side to Sonah; on another to the lake of Burra (on the Eesun, near Bijygurh); and on another to Soorsen ka Ganw, or Butesur.

It is strange, that notwithstanding this mention of Soorsen ka ganw in these trite lines, Colonel Tod should so often take credit to himself for being the discoveror of this capital, which he identifies with the Cleisobaras of Arrian. (Trans. R. A. Soc. Vol. III. p. 145.) Even in the Tareekh-i-Sher Shahee (and Mussulmans are rarely antiquarians) "Soorsenee, opposite to Rapree," is spoken of as the scene of an important engagement. In the 1st Vol. of the Transactions, Colonel Tod announces his discovery in these words—"By the acquisition of this coin of Apollodotus, I made a double discovery, namely, of the coin itself, and of an ancient capital city. Conversing with the principal disciple of a celebrated Jain priest of Gwalior

* There appears to be a double Chourasee in Brij. The Purkurma, or annual perambulation, similar to the Roman Amburbium or English Gangings in Rogation-week, extends in Circumference 34 Coss, and does not come nearer to Agra than Gao-G,hat; but the Bhágavata says that Brij is shaped like a Sing,hara, or Pignut; and the three corners of it are thus given in a familiar couplet,

The Tribes of Sudras are also 84*. (Price's Hindee and Hindoost, hance, Selections, Vol. I. p. 265.)

Mount Meru is described as being 84,000 Yojans above the earth. (Bhagavata; 5th Khund: and As: Res: Vol. VIII. pp. 273, 353.)

The important places of Hindoo Pilgrimage are reckened to be 84.—It is the popular belief, which does not appear to rest on written authority.

Vallahba, the founder of the Rudra Sumpradya sect, had 84 followers. (As: Res: Vol. XVI. p. 95.)

There are 84 Gurus, or spiritual chiefs, of the sect of Ramanuj. (Buchanan's Mysore.)

There is an ankle ring called a Chourasce, from that number of Bells upon it. (Qanoon-i-Islam.)

The same name is given to the Bells on an Elephant's How-dah Cloth. (Ayeen-i-Akberee.)

The Temples of Mahadeo at Oojein are 84. Jour. A. S. B. Vol. VI. p. 829.)

The Hindoo Hell is called Chourasce; signifying that 84 places of punishment exist in Narak lo k.† about ancient cities, he related to me an anecdote of a poor man, about thirty-five years ago, having discovered, amidst the few fragments left of Súrapura on the Yamuná, a bit of (what he deemed) glass: shewing it to a Silversmith, he sold it for one rupee; the purchaser carried his prize to Agra, and sold it for 5,000, for it was a diamond. The finder naturally wished to have a portion of the profit, and on refusal, way-laid and slew the Silversmith. The Assassin was carried to Agra to be tried, and thus the name of Súrapura became known beyond its immediate vicinity. This was a sufficient inducement to me to dispatch one of my coin-hunters, and I was rewarded by an Apollodotus and several Parthian coins. The remains of Súrapura are close to the sacred place of pilgrimage, called by us "Bateesur," on the Yamuna, between Agra and Etawah. Tradition tells us, that it was an ancient city, and most probably was founded by Surasena, the grandfather of Crishna, and consequently the capital of the Suraseni of the historians of Alexander." See also Vol. II. p. 286.

* I know no other authority for this statement than the one quoted, which is very poor. The whole Jatimala in the "Selections" is entirely wrong; and though it must be confessed that it would be no easy matter to compile a correct one, yet the more obvious errors should be expunged, as the work is intended to be educational.

† This is the popular belief; but it is not confirmed by the Shasters. In the Vishnu Purana, p. 207, a list of 28 Narakas is given. The Bhagavata also enumerates 28, but the names differ from those of the Vishnu P. In the Marcandeya Purana and in Menu (B. IV. V. 88—92) a list of 21 is given, i. e. a quarter Chourasce. In some other Puranas, a list of 42 is

The grand palace at Dutteah, which was built by Nur Sing,h Deo, was a series of ascending Chourasees (on pillars.)—(Badshanama, by Ubd-ool-Humeed Lahoree:—9th Juloos.)

A Chourasce of minor fortifications is said to have been contained within Rhotas.—(Jahangeernama, 1st Vol.)

The different postures of Jogees are 84. (As: Res: Vol. XVII. p. 184.) These are called Asun; and the same name and number is given to the attitudes illustrated in the Koh Shastras. (Tohfut-ool-Hind.)

The perfect Jogees, or Siddhas, are 84. (As: Res: Vol. XVII. p. 191.)

The Golras of the Goojurs are 84. (Bunsaolee.)

The Gotras of the Aheers are 84. (Tushreeh-ool-Ahwam.) There are reckoned to be 84,00,000 species of animals: and these are comprised in four grand divisions, containing each a quarter Chourasee, or 21,00,000—viz. juraddj, those which are produced from the belly; unduj, from eggs; seoduj, from perspiration; and dodbhid, from the earth. Gáruda Purana,† Pret K,hund.)

The third grade of Bengal Brahmins is divided into 84 families. (Colebrooke's Misc: Essays, Vol. II. p. 188.)

given or half a Chourasee. Wilson, in his Sanscrit Dict: Art: न्रज्ञासुड says there are 86 pits in Tartarus, and the same is asserted by Radha Kanta Deo in the Sabda Kalpa Druma, on the authority of the Brahma Vaivartta Purana.

† The usual sub-division is somewhat different—9,00,000 fish, 10,00,000 birds, 11,00,000 reptiles, 20,00,000 plants, 30,00,000 quadrupeds, and 4,00,000 different species of men. This division is confirmed in popular credit by the following memorial verses.

नीलाष जीव जल में बसे दण पछी परिवारा
ग्यारह लाप कीट करम बीस जस्यावर विस्तारा
तीस लाष पणु जीव चारि लाष नर प्राणी॥

There is also a Chourasce division among the Gour Brahmins. There are 84 different sects of Brahmins in Central India. (Malcolm's Central India, Vol. II. p. 122.)

The Bhats have a Chourasee sub-division.

There is a Chourasce sub-division also among the Hindoo Kumbohs of Upper India.

The Kuhars, or Bearers, of Pergunnahs K,hyr and Coel constitute a Chourasce.

There are 84 Nayat, or families of Brahmins, in Guzerat. (Enc: Metrop: Vol. XXIII. p. 33.)

There is a Chourasee sub-division among Tumbolees. (Martin's Buchanan, Vol. I. p. 164.)

There is a Chourasee sub-division also among Baraces, or Betelsellers. (Ib. p. 165.)

There is another among Koerces. (Ib. Vol. II. p. 470.)

Amongst the 12 divisions of Kayet, hs, the Mat, hoor and Bhutnagur have, each, 84 sub-divisions. The Sireebastum say they also have 84, but this is not confirmed.

Siva has, like Krishna, 1008 names, i. e. 12 × 84. (Linga Purana.

In the Vaya Purana we are told that the water of the ocean, coming down from heaven on Meru, encircles it through 7 channels for the space of 84,000 Yojans. (As. Res. Vol. VIII. p. 322.—See also p. 353.)

One of the four Vicramas lived, or reigned, 84 years.* (As. Res. Vol. X. p. 43.)

It is scarcely to be wondered at, that this imaginative writer should have noticed the very questionable existence of Chourasces amongst Christians and Jews, and should have altogether passed over their obvious prevalence amongst * Col. Wilford considers this Vicramaditya (Bikermajeet) to be the same as the Salivahana, mentioned below; and adds, "it is not obvious at first, why Salivahana is made to have lived eighty-four years; but it appears to me, that this number was in some measure a sacred period among the Christians, and also the Jews, and introduced in order to regulate Easter day; and it is the opinion of the learned, that it began five years before the Christian Era, and the fifth year of that Cycle was really the fifth of Christ, but the first only of his manifestation to the world, according to the Apocryphal Gospels: and it was also the first of the Christian Era. In this manner the cycle of eighty-four years ended on the 79th of the Christian, which was the first of Sáliváhana's Era, and was probably mistaken for the period of his life. It is mentioned by St. Epiphanius, who lived about the middle of the fourth century." (As. Res.

The following Musical Chourasce may be considered more artificial than natural, notwithstanding Sir W. Jones' opinion to the contrary.

"Now, since each of the tones may be divided, we find twelve semitones in the whole series; and, since each semitone may in its turn become the leader of a series formed after the model of every primary mode, we have seven times twelve, or eighty-four, modes in all, of which seventy-seven may be named secondary; and we shall see accordingly that the Persians and the Hindoos (at least in their most popular system) have exactly eighty-four modes, though distinguished by different appellations and arranged in different classes: but, since many of them are unpleasing to the ear, others difficult in execution, and few sufficiently marked by a character of sentiment and expression, which the higher music always requires, the genius of the Indians has enabled them to retain the number of modes, which nature seems to have indicated, and to give each of them a character of its own by a happy and beautiful contrivance." -(Sir W. Jones on the Musical Modes of the Hindoos.)

It may not be unimportant to add, with reference to the particular purposes of our enquiry, that the year is distributed by the Hindoos into six Ritus,* or seasons, each consisting of two months, i. e. two Springs, Summer, Autumn and two Winters; and an original Rag, or God of the mode, is conceived to preside over a particular season. "By appropriating a different mode to each of the different seasons, the artists of India connected certain strains with certain ideas, and were able to recal the memory of autumnal merriment at the close of the harvest, or of separation and melancholy during the cold months: or reviving hilarity on the appearance of blossoms, and complete vernal delight in the month of Madhu, or honey; of languor during the dry heats, and of refreshment by the first rains which cause in this climate a second spring. Yet further: since the lunar year, by which festivals and superstitious duties are constantly regulated, proceeds concurrently with the Solar year, to which the seasons are necessarily referred, devotion comes also to the aid of Music, and all the powers of nature, allegorically worshipped as gods and goddesses on their several holidays, contribute to the influence of song on minds naturally susceptible of religious emotions. Hence it was, that Pavan, or the inventor of his musical system, reduced the number of original modes from seven to six." (Ibid.) And here we cannot but invite attention to the assertion of Dion Cassius, that the planetary theory from which the denomination of the days of the week has been derived—(see note to pp. 170 and 171)—is itself founded upon the doctrine of musical intervals. A highly curious exposition of this idea has been given in the "Mémoires de Trévoux," A. D. 1770 and 1771.

* See CHOUMASA; and note to p. 53 of Babington's Gooroo Paramartan.

The following are a few instances of the use of 360.

The Sun's car is 3600000 Yojans long, and the yoke is a quarter of that amount. (Bhagavata, 5th K,hund.)

Revali, the wife of Bala Ram, was so tall that her stature reached as high as the hands clapped 7 times could be heard, and her age at the time of her marriage was 38,88,000 years. Her age therefore was 360  $\times$  10800 years. (Coleman's Hind. Myth. p. 49.)

The wives of Salivahana, the founder of one of the most noted Indian Eras, were 360.—See Bers.

There are 360 chief places of Pilgrimage at Gya. Mahatmya.)

There are 360 chief places of Pilgrimage at Misruk, h Neemk,har, in Oudh. (Neemk,har Mahatmya.)

There are also 360 at Sumbhul, in Moradabad. (Sumbhul Mahatmya.)

The respirations of a healthy man are said by the Jogees to be 360 in the course of a Ghurree. (Mooalijat-i-Dara Shekohee; and Surode, 1st K,hund.

A Chukrvurtee Raja has 360,000,000 Cooks in his dominions, and 360 for his special use.—(Ayeen-i-Akberee.)

Raja Bikermajeet is said to have raised 360 temples near Ajòòdhya on the places sanctified by the extraordinary actions of Rama. (Buchanan's Eastern India, Vol. II. p. 334.)

In the Mahabharata we read, "Oh twin Aswinas! There are 360 Milch Cows. There is a wheel without an axis, which revolveth without decay. It hath one name, and in its felloes are fixed 720, i. e. 2 × 360, spokes." (Annals Or: Lit: p. 287.)

Again, "In this wheel, furnished with 24 critical divisions, and turned in perpetual motion round about this axis by six boys, are placed in the midst of it 360;" (Ib. 294), which is afterwards (p. 450) explained to mean, that the wheel with 12 spokes, turned by six boys, signifies the year divided into 6 seasons.

Rama's auxiliavies, in his attack on Lunka, amounted to 360,000 Monkics. (Ramayana.)

But, to revert to Chourasees—amongst the Buddhists there is a still more systematic use of them than we have seen to prevail amongst the Hindoos.

Thus, in a Translation by the Hon'ble Mr. Turnour (Jour. As: Society for 1837, p. 526) we read, "How does it by the Dhamma Khardo division consist of 84,000 portions?"

"It comprises the whole of Buddho. It has been said by Anando, I received from Buddho himself 82,000, and from the bhikkhus 2,000; these are the 84,000 Dhamma maintained by me. By this explanation of the Dhamma Khardo it consists of 84,000 divisions." Again, (at p. 792,) "Having learned that there were 84,000 discourses on the tenets of Buddha, I will dedicate a viharo, or monastery, to each."

"Then bestowing 6,000 Kotis of treasure on 84,000 towns in Jambudipo, at those places he caused the construction of temples to be commenced by the Rajas." (Ibid, p. 792.)

Again, "From 84 cities despatches were brought on the same day, announcing that the viharos were completed." (Ibid. p. 793.)

Asoko raised also 84,000 columns throughout India. These are supposed by M. Remusat to have been the same as the viharos above mentioned; but the two seem quite distinct.

* Viharo is rather a temple or pleasure ground, than monastery. See a definition by Wilson (Journ: R. A. S. No. IX. p. 110); by Mr. Joinville (As: Res: Vol. VII. p. 422.) and by B. Hodgson (Trans; R. A. S. Vol. II. p. 246.) This word Viharo is the origin of the name of the city at Behar, an important seat of Buddhism. (See Sadik Isfahani, p. 24.)

(Nouveau Jour. Asiatique, Tom. XII., p. 417; Fa Hian, Ch. XXIII. and XXVII. and As: Res: Vol. VII. p. 423.)

In the extracts from the Divaparso, we read

"The last of these was Ajitajaoro; his descendents, 84,000 in number, ruled in Kapilanagaram." (Jour. Asiat. Soc., Vol. VII. p. 926.)

The descendants of Makhadewa were 84,000 monarchs, who reigned supreme in Mithala. (Ibid. p. 926.)

Asoko's descendants were 84,000 rulers, who reigned supreme in the capital Baranasi. (Ibid. p. 927.)

In the opinion of Buddhists the life of man reached at one period 84,000 years. This was the highest it attained after successive augmentations.—(Enc. Jap. Cap. IV. p. 32. See also note 14 by M. Landresse to Ch. XXXIX. of Fa Hian's Travels.)

Maitreya was to live 84,000 years, and the law which he was to deliver after his nirvan was also to endure for 84,000 years. (1bid. Ch. VI. Note 8.)

In the third heaven they lived to the number of 1344,000,000 years; i. e. 16 × 84,000,000. (Alphab. Tibet. p. 484, and Journal Asiatique, Tom. VIII. p. 44.)

The life of other gods in the Buddhist Mythologic hierarchy was equal to 360,000,000 years. (Ibid.; and As: Res: Vol. VI. p. 210.)

Buddha had 84,000 wives. (Sieon hing pen kei King, quoted by Remusat.)

The Buddhists assign to Brahma a life of 1008,000,000 years; i. e.  $12 \times 84,000,000$ . (Four Tsou tonug-ki, quoted also by Remusat, in the Foe koue ki.)

The fourth kind of Arupa, a species of spirit residing in the uppermost heavens, live 84,000 Maha kalpas.—(Trans: Royal A.S. Vol. III. p. 91; and As: Res: Vol. VI. p. 214.)

The Cingalese Historians say that 84,000 rocks encircle the great rock Mahameru. The height of this rock is 168,000, (i. e. 2 × 84,000) Yodoons. (Annals of Orien. Lit. pp. 385, 386.)

Meru is generally considered, with the Cingalese, as with the Hindoos, to be 84,000 Yojanas high, and its ranges, according to the following progressive scale, shew the value attached even to sub-divisions of the Chourasee.

Sumeru, or Meru, is in height,	84,000	Yojanas.
1st-Yokhunthara, the first hill, is in height,	42,000	,,
2nd—Isinthara, the second ditto,	21,000	,,
3rd—Karaweka, the third ditto,	10,500	17
4th—The Hill Sudihatsana,	5,250	17
5thDitto Nimethara	2,625	,,
6th—Ditto Wimantaka,	1,312	"
7th—Ditto Atsakana,	656	"

(Trans. R. A. S. Vol. III. p. 78.)

The Cingalese fabulous histories also treat us with periods regulated according to this mysterious number. The "Rajavali" says, the most powerful King amongst them was called Maha Dewe, who remained in the wilderness for 84,000 years. There were also, notwithstanding this pre-eminence, 84,000 Kings, who had this title.—(Annals of Or: Liter: p. 392.)

Four Brothers of King Mohalinde had 84,000 children and grandchildren.—(Ib. p. 391.)

Amongst the Burmese, also, the mountain Mienmo is 84,000 juzeena high. The Juganto is also 84,000 high, and the first River 84,000 juzeenas wide and deep. The seas, in the midst of which the great islands lie, have a depth of 84,000 juzeenas. The seats of the Nat, are placed one above the other at the distance of 42,000 ( $84,000 \div 2$ ) juzeenas. The second chain of mountains is 42,000 juzeenas high, and the second river 42,000 juzeenas wide and deep. The eastern and western islands are each 21,000 ( $84,000 \div 4$ ) juzeenas in circumference, and so on. (Tandy's Birman Empire, Chap. 2 and 3, and As: Res: Vol. VI. pp. 175—186.)

The Buddhists of Nepaul assert that the original body of their sacred Scriptures amounted, when complete, to 84,000 Volumes.—(As: Res: Vol. XVII. p. 42.)

The Shastras, or brief Aphorisms of Buddha, comprise half a Chourasee, or 42; and the book in which they are contained is the first which was translated from the Sanscrit into Chinese. (C. F. Neumann's Catechism of the Shamans, p. 150.)

This is perhaps the Book of Foe, contained in 42 Chapters. (Foe koue ki, pp. 44, and 263.)

In the Jain religion, also, the prevalence of Chourasces is surprisingly great. Thus, Rishabdeo sent 84 teachers to instruct other countries in the principles of his faith. (Ward's Hindoos, Vol. II., p. 244.)

Near him were 84,000 Jains. (Ibid. p. 244.)

The Boy Buddha taught 42,000 boys, i. c. 84,000  $\div$  2. (Ibid. p. 261.)

The same holy personage retained 84,000 concubines, (stated above to be wives,) and he lived 84,00,000 great years. (As: Res: Vol., XVIII., p. 250.)

Sukra, the regent of the North in the Jain Mythology, has 84,000 fellow gods. (Ibid. p. 275.)

In their Cosmogony also, as in the Cingalese, the height of the Mountains bears an evident reference to this mystic number. Himavat is twice as broad as Bharata varsha, (i. e. omitting fractions, 1052 yojanas); the valley beyond it is double its breadth (2105); the mountain Mahà himavat is twice as much (4210); its valley is again double (8421); and the mountain Nishadha has twice that breadth (16842).—Colebrooke's Misc; Ess: Vol. II., p. 223.)

The Swetambaras have 84 Siddhantas. (As: Res: Vol. XVII., p. 242.)

There are 84 points of difference between the Digambaras and Swetambaras, regarded as of infinite importance. (Ibid. p. 289.)

They have 84 Gachehas, or Gotes, of which a list is given in detail. (Ibid. p. 293; and Trans. R. A. S., Vol. III., p. 337.)

Mahavira, in one of his births, reigned victoriously 84,00,000 years. (As: Res: Vol. XVIII. p. 251.)

Rishabdeo lived 84,00,000 great years. (Colebrooke's Misc: Essays, Vol. II. p. 208.)

The ages of many other Jinas, besides Rishabdeo and Mahavira, are based on the number 84. Thus, the 11th lived 84,00,000 of common years; the 18th lived 84,000; the 19th was deified 65,84,000 years before the close of the fourth age; the 20th 11,84,000 ditto; the 21st 5,84,000 ditto; the 22nd died 84,000 years before the close of the 4th age. (Ibid. pp. 310-312.)

It is to be hoped that these many instances of the use of 84 will not be considered to rank with the Trinads, Septads, and Enneads, of Varro, Bungus, Fabritius, Morel, and a host of other laborious triflers, who have occupied themselves in philosophising about the properties of numbers, and have exercised their time and talents in endeavouring to prove that, Numero Deus impare gaudet. The thought may not improbably occur to some, that if works on Indian History and Antiquities were ransacked, it would be as easy to trace a predilection for any other number as for 84; but a little examination would soon end in disappointment. Seven and twelve, as might reasonably be expected, and will be hereafter shown, come in for a good share of attention; but any higher numbers it would be in vain to look for. Popular sentiment has to be sure, invested the numbers 24, 32, 52, 60, and 64 * with some slight degree of favor, and a commune of villages comprising one of these numbers is occasionally to be found, but very rarely; and there are also two instances of 87; that is, if the large tracts of Suttasee in Budaon and Goruckpore derive their names from that number, which may be doubted: but to get any number that can be at all considered to rival 84, it must be shewn that it pervades not only the tenures of land, but the mythology, theogony, and litera-

* There is also a very remarkable use of 74 in Epistolary correspondence. It is an almost universal practice in India to write this number on the outside of letters; it being intended to convey the meaning that no body is to read the letter but the person to whom it is addressed. The practice was originally Hindoo, but has been adopted by the Mussulmans. There is nothing like an intelligible account of its origin and object, but it is a curious fact that, when correctly written, it represents an integral number of 74, and a fractional number of 10; thus, SB|| These additional strokes being now considered, except by well-educated men, merely ornamental, we find it frequently written or after, the number:—with the addition of the words فديگران bu deeguran; which makes it assume the form of an imprecation. May not then, after all, this 74 and 10 have been originally intended to convey a mystic symbol of Chourasee?

<sup>| | 98 | | .</sup> The Mussulmans usually write the 74 with two strokes across,

ture of India. That this is the case with 84, must be considered sufficiently established from the concurrent proofs collected from different parts of India. It is evident from the frequency of its adoption that these manifold coincidences are any thing but fortuitous; and we cannot therefore resist the cumulative evidence here adduced to show that they must have had some esoteric meaning, and been designed with a view to impress the initiated with peculiar veneration for this number.

It becomes then a question to consider what is the cause of the selection of the number 84 for such a marked preference; and in doing so it will first be necessary to revert to the number 360, with which it stands in a kind of reciprocal relation.

It is evident that the selection of 360 rests upon astronomical considerations, and it is important to observe what a clue this interpretation affords to unravel some of the chief difficulties of Hindoo chronology, which so perplex the Student at his first contemplation of the subject, as frequently to deter him altogether from the further prosecution of his enquiries.

Thus we have the following astounding numbers assigned to the four ages:

Sutya Yug,	17,28,000	years.
Treta,	12,96,000	,,
Dwapara,	8,64,000	,,
Kali,	4,32,000	,,
Making a Mahayuga of	43,20,000	years.

But it has been declared (Menu. Chap. I. Sect. 67 to 71) "That a year of Mortals is a day and night of the Gods." Hence, if we divide each of the numbers mentioned above by 360, we obtain the following more rational periods.

Sutya Yug,	4,800
Treata,	3,600
Dwapara,	2,400
Kali,	1,200

which gives a regular decrement in arithmetical progression. according to the notions of diminishing virtue in the several ages. (Wilson's note to Mill's India, Vol. I., p. 157.)

Here the actual divisor * is evidently based on the days comprised in the lesser equal year, which was adopted by most eastern nations, † and founded, as Scaliger ‡ conceives, on the natural lunar year, before the exact period of a lunation was fully understood. It is true that the Indians were acquainted with the equinoctial year, but, in their arbitrary and fanciful computations, they might, nevertheless, on account of the roundness of the number, and its possessing so many convenient divisors, have adopted the luni-solar, the first approximation to a true solar year, and the one with which they first became acquainted; particularly as they had divided the circle into 360 degrees, § and had assigned a degree, or Mandala, to each day of the year. (Maurice's History of Hindoostan, Vol. I. p. 91.) In other countries, besides India, we find the concurrent use of these two years; and occasionally we find one used to the supersession of the other, either by interpolation, or by some other mode available to those in search of the means of correction.

A remarkable instance of the endeavour of the Chaldeans to reconcile the periods of the two years is given in the second

* F. Schlegel is of opinion that the numbers in the Yugs decidedly possess an astronomical import. (" Philosophy of History," Vol. 1., p. 98). Wilson, however, says, it does not seem necessary to refer the invention of these periods to any astronomical computations, or to any attempt to represent actual chronology. (" Vishnu, Purana," p. 24.)

† The great year of these nations was also, according to Anquetil du Perron, composed of 360 ordinary years. "Or les Astronomes Arabes, particulierement Albumasar, comme les Chaldéens, les Grecs, reconnoissent de grandes années du Monde, composées chacune de 360 années solaires; celles-ci n'en faisant alors qu'un jour."—Antiquités de l' Inde, Introd:XXII. See also pp. 549, 589.

<sup>1 (</sup>De emendatione Temporum).

§ It must be borne in mind that this division of the circle is a matter purely conventional, and the 360 parts into which it was divided by the Indians, as well as the Greeks, are evidently dependent on the number of the days of the early year. Just as the Chinese, with a more perfect knowledge, divide their circle into 365 parts, and one fourth. "The division of the circle into 360 seems to have been pointed out to the earlier astronomers, by its being an articulate number nearly equal to the days in the year; and consequently one of the degrees was nearly equal to the portion of the ecliptic described by the sun in one day. Whatever, however, were the grounds on which this division was adopted in the first instance, it was adhered to afterwards in the most improved methods of ancient and modern astronomy, from a sense of the convenience presented by the number 360 in the great number of its divisors."—Peacock's Arithmetic (39.)

Book of Diodorus Siculus, and shows how astronomical periods influenced even the architectural designs of the early ages. He says that Semiramis is stated to have built the walls of Babylon of the extent of 360 stadia, to mark the number of days of the year. Yet he states that, in Alexander's time, the circuit of the walls was 365 stadia: shewing that a subsequent correction had been applied, after the annual revolution had been more accurately ascertained.

Another curious instance of this system of accommodation occurs in the Egyptian year. A fable respecting the birth of three gods and two goddesses was devised, in order to account for the insertion of the five intercalary days, which were superadded to the 360 contained in the old year of twelve months.* We may therefore readily admit the supposition that the knowledge of the true year is not incompatible with the occasional application of the lesser year in such instances as those under discussion.

After this instance from Jablonski, it may be needless to add that the Egyptian Theology was replete with these allusions to siderial revolutions; and the Gnostics, who frequently borrowed from the Egyptians, apply the mystic numbers of their predecessors, without probably being aware of the original purpose for which they were framed. Thus, in the system of Basilides the number of primary Æons is, as in the Persian system, seven; these went on producing and multiplying, till they reached the number 365.† The total number formed, according to the Grecian numeration, the cabalistic ‡ word, Abraxas. (Milman's History of Christianity, Vol. II. 116.) This number has evidently an astronomical reference, as

* Jablonski Panth: Ægyp: Lib: II., C. I. p. 143.

† This is not an exact multiple of 7, but 7 is more nearly than any other short term an aliquot part of 365.

‡ The Romans adopted a strange conceit of representing the period of an annual revolution by indigitation. Pliny tells us the image of Janus was so placed, as to indicate with his fingers the number 365.

&quot;Janus geminus a Numa rege dictus, qui pacis bellique argumento colitur, digitis ita figuratis, ut trecentorum sexaginta quinque dierum nota per significationem anni temporis et ævi se Deum indicaret." Hist: Nat: Lib:

much as the 360 has in the Indian System. In the system of Bardesanes, there were 36 Decani, who ruled the 360 days of the year. (Ib: 125.,) Other instances need not be adduced to shew the value attached to 360, in consequence of its being connected with the supposed period of the year, and therefore based on siderial computation. Let us now see whether the mystical number 84 may not be found to rest on a similar foundation.

As 360 is the multiple of the number of months in a year. with the number of days in a Savana, or Solar month, or the number of lunations, or tit, his, in a Savinya, or lunar, month; so is 84 the multiple of the number of months with the number of days in the week; * the multiple of the number of the planets with the signs of the zodiac; or the multiple of the days of a quarter lunation (in which period the moon passes through seven Nacshitras, or asterisms) with the years of Jupiter's sidereal revolution. (Bently on Hindu Astronomy, p. 129.) That this is no extravagant supposition may be seen in Colonel Warren's Kala Sankalita, (212), where he says, " In the cycle of 60 years are contained 5 cycles of 12 years each. supposed equal to one year of the planet Jupiter:" shewing that Jupiter's revolution was used in counting cyclar periods.

It is needless to particularize all the instances in which the partiality of the natives of India for the numbers 7, 12, and 30

We are so accustomed to regard the week as a natural division of time, that, if there were room, it would be useful to consider the speculations of the learned on its origin. The question is not unimportant as regards the time of the introduction of Chourasees, and it may therefore be as well to mention that it is to the quarter lunations that Bailly ascribes the origin of the Indian week. Prof. Wallace, on the contrary, says, it was most probably fixed with relation to the number of planets. (British India, III. 79.) The following passages from A. W. Schlegel's Preface to Prichard's Egyptian Mythology are also subjoined for consideration.

&quot;Among the Greeks and Romans the observation of the days of the week was introduced very late: although the custom had made some inroads even before the Christian era, through the influence of Egyptian and Chaldes astrologers, and also of the Jews, who were dispersed here and there throughout the Roman Empire. Ideler, in his excellent manual of Chronology, remarks, that the week had a natural origin in the accidental duration of the phases of the moon. Ideler passes over the Indians, and with good reason; for they had not the week, and could not have had it, since they divided the nychthemeron into thirty hours."

is shewn. * It will be sufficient to adduce in detail only two instances of the allegorical uses to which the numbers 7 and 12 are applied.

In Masudi's valuable Historical Encyclopædia, entitled "The Meadows of Gold and Mines of Gems," he says, " In the reign of Balkeet, King of India, the game of Chess was invented. He studied the numbers (of the product of the squares) of this game, and wrote a work on the subject for the Hindus, which is known under the title طرق حنگاتیدا. He laid also an allegory of the higher bodies in the Chess, that is to say, of the Stars of the heavens, observing the numbers 7 and 12. Every piece was consecrated to a star." ...... "He preferred it to Back-Gammon (النرد), in which Game the 12 points of the tables answer to the 12 months of the year, and the 30 tablemen are expressive of the 30 days of the month." Here, then, we have not only a Chourasee on a Chess Board, but the larger symbolical number of 360 on a Back-Gammon Board. Masudi wrote in the early part of the tenth Century, and as he frequently exercises a critical acumen which is highly commendable, his statements may be received with confidence, though it is not quite evident what potentate may be meant by Balkeet.

Let us take also the emblematical figure of Surya, the Indian Sun. He is represented with 12 spokes to his wheel, indicating, as the Bhagavata expressly says, the number of months, times another division of it, into the seven-and twenty Nakshatras, or houses of the moon. In order to fill up the breach, which had been neglected, they were increased, as often as was necessary, to eight-and-twenty by an intercalation."

It may be also proper to add that the order in which the names of the days of the week follow each other is dependent, not upon the size, period, or distance of the planets respectively, but solely upon an astrological conceit. The doctrine was that a planet presides over each of the hours, according to the natural order from Saturn down to the Moon, and that planet to which the first hour belonged was also regent of the whole day.

the natural order from Saturn down to the Moon, and that planet to which the first hour belonged was also regent of the whole day.

• See "Ward's Hindoos," Vol. I. Pref. 98, and pp. 55, 56, 266; Vol. II. pp. 70, 74, 75; Vol. III., Proleg. p. 24, Introd. Rem. p. 4, and pp. 7, 40; and Vol. IV., pp. 17, 20. 315, 457. "Coleman's Hindu Mythology," pp., 195 and 209. Moor's Pantheon," p. 303. "As. Res.," Vol. VI. p. 210, VII., p. 274, and VIII., pp. 289, 290. "Foc Koue Ki," pp. 125, 150, 165, 176, 186, 238. "Wilson's Oxford Lecture," p. 55. Vishnu Purana" Book II. C. 2 and 4, Book III. C. 1 and 2, and pp. 214, 233, 236.

and sitting under a canopy formed by the 7 heads of the Coluber Naga. He is also represented driving 7 steeds, or one steed with 7 heads, and also has 12 titles, forms, or manifestations, which denote his distinct powers (Adityas*) in each of the 12 months throughout his passage through the ecliptic. (See "As. Res." Vol. I. p. 263, and "Brahma Puran," quoted by Vans Kennedy in his Ancient and Hindoo Mythology, p. 349.) The allegorical import of this Chourasee is so evident, that we need go no further to assign causes for the selection of this multiple of 7 and 12, to represent territorial sub-divisions in India: no numbers being considered more appropriate for that purpose, than those which bear reference to the motion of the earth, the revolving seasons, and the succession of seed time and harvest; especially † among a people, whose worship was directed towards physical objects, and the manifold powers and departments of nature, and who in their contemplative moments were fond of marking

"The mighty hand
That, ever busy, wheels the silent spheres;
And as on earth this grateful change revolves,
With transport touches all the springs of life.

Thomson's Seasons.

* त्रादित्य m. sol. (Aut ab त्रादि et त्य, aff. quo adjecc. formantur e præposs. et adverbb. localibus, ita ut sit initium anni faciens vel a cujus constellatione anni initium factum sit; pro mensium enim numero sol duodena nomina accipit, et in duodenos Aditjas discernitur; primus Aditjas धात est, quo nomine Brahmâ, primigenius deorum, dicitur; Mahâbhâr: I. v. 2524. hunc deum solarem ab initio Aditjam dictum fuisse suspicor, nomine ad ceteros posthac extenso; aut vera est Indorum derivatio ab त्रादित्व quae est cunctorum deorum mater; est त्रादित्व etiam deus in universum).

Lassen's Anthologia Sancsritica, p. 172.

† That this multiplication of numbers having in themselves a rational basis, and founded on observation, is at the root of all the extravagant epochs of the Hindoos, has been well shown in an Article on their Astronomy in No. II. of the Calcutta Review. In shewing that the factors which enter into the period of the Kali-Yug are derived from the cycle of precession, the author observes,

&quot;The amount of this precession is, according to the best modern observations, somewhat more than 50" annually; but according to the Hindoo system, as stated by Bailly and all other writers on the subject, it is taken as 54". Whether this is owing to any actual change in the amount since their epoch, or is due to errors in their observations, we shall have to consider immediately; at present we have only to do with the facts. This precession being observed, it would naturally occur to every Astronomer to enquire into the length of the period in the course of which this point would make a complete

This is not the place to enter, as fully as the interesting nature of the subject demands, into the enquiry, when Chourasees were first introduced into the mythology, and administrative details of India; but it is obvious to remark that the Buddhists and Jains are more partial to the number than the Brahmins; and that the Rajpoots, of whom the Agnicibila portion appear to have been supporters of the Buddhist Doctrines (See Gour Tuga), as well as their congeners, the Goojurs and Jats, more particularly affect that number than any other tribes at present found in occupation of the soil. It does not necessarily follow that the Buddhists introduced revolution of the whole equinoctial circle. At the Hindoo rate of precession this period will be immediately found to be 24,000 years, the quotient resulting from dividing the whole circle, or 360° by 54", the assumed precession for one year. Now the duration of the Kali-Yug is just 18 times this period of 24,000 years; or the Kali-Yug is the period during which the equinox will have been 18 times at each point of the equinoctial circle. Why 18 should have been chosen as a multiplier rather than any other number, we are not able positively to determine. It might have been chosen arbitrarily, merely on the ground that 24,000 years being too short a period to satisfy Hindu notions, some number must be chosen as a multiplier; or it might be selected as being the greatest common measure of 360 and 54; or it might be for the following reason. The position of the moon's node, or the point in which her orbit cuts the ecliptic, goes round the ecliptic in a little more than 18 years, just as the intersection of the earth's equator with the ecliptic goes round it in about 25,700 years in reality, but according to the Hindu estimate of the precession, in 24,000 years. If then the Hindu rate of precession were correct, and if the period of the revolution of the moon's node were 18 years, instead of about 18 years and 7 months, then if the sun and moon were in conjunction at any point in the ecliptic, they would be in conjunction again at the same point in the ecliptic after a period of 432,000 years....... The length of the Kali-Yug being thus determined, a short process would lead to the assignment of its commencement. If a point was assigned from which to measure the precession, as we measure it from the first point of Aries, the commencement of the epoch would be at once determined by dividing the distance between that first point and the actual position of the equinox at the period of observation by the annual precession, say 54". Now it is obvious that any point might be assumed arbitrarily as the first point of the zodiac, or the astronomer might be led by some peculiar coincidence to fix upon some particular point in preserence to all others. The latter was the face in the actual case before us. On calculating backwards the position of the planets, they found, that on a particular day in the Month of February in the year 3192 B. C. the Sun, Moon, Saturn, Mars, Jupiter, and Mercury were, not indeed in actual conjunction, but at least in the same quarter of the heavens, the greatest distance between any two of them probably not exceeding 17° or 18°..... It is true that at this period Venus was in a different quarter of the heavens, being about 62° in longitude apart from Saturn; but what theorist would allow a single planet to stand in the way of the establishment of so grand an epoch? Not, certainly, the framers of the Hindu Astronomy; and accordingly they did determine, that at the commencement of the Kali-Yug all the planets were in conjunction in the first point of the Zodiac, and thus was the famous epoch fixed."

Chourasees; but it may fairly be conceded, that if we deduct from the Chourasees mentioned above, those which may perhaps be considered exclusively Brahminical, the greater part may be ascribed to Buddhism, and may have been readily adopted and incorporated at some subsequent period by the Hindoos, according to the usual accommodating spirit of Polytheism. Even the emblematical Solar Chourasee may have been a subsequent importation, as it is questionable if Surya's chariot is represented in the Vedas* as it is in the Puranas.

It is, moreover, very remarkable that Menu (VII. 115) uses only the decimal division when speaking of the civil administration. "Let him appoint a lord of 10 towns, a lord of 20 towns, a lord of 100, and a lord of 1000."

It must not be forgotten also, in the attempt to fix the time of the introduction of Chourasees into India, that in the compilation of Parásara, who by the position of the colures recorded by him, is ascertained to have lived not earlier than 1200 years before Christ, the estimate of the lunation is erroneous, nor is any mention made of the days of the week, or of the twelve signs, which seem to have been introduced into India at a much later period; so that if Chourasees do depend on the astronomical basis which has been assigned to them, they could not have existed in his time.

As therefore, neither in the time of Parásara, nor in that of * It must be confessed, however, that the Sun has 7 steeds and 7 rays according to the Rig Veda. "Seven yellow mares bore thee in a chariot. Oh shining Sun!" (Chap. IX. Hymn. VII.)—according to the numbering in Dr. Rosen's translation of the Rigveda Sanhita. Again, the Sun has seven rays, "These are the seven rays of the Sun, and my abode is in the midst of them." (C.XV. H. XII.) There is also possibly some indication of a quarter Chourasee in an address to Agni. "Thrice seven secret names the priests have found in thee." (C. XII. H. VIII.) According to the Vedas, also, 21 pieces of Pulas wood are to be got ready against a sacrifice. (Stevenson's "Sanhita of the Sáma Veda," p. vii., and As. Res. VII. 274).—A fast of 21 days also is enjoined as an austerity previous to singing the Sama Veda, (Stevenson's Sanhita, p. ix.) and 21 milch cows "yield the true milk in the super-excellent place of Sacrifice." (Ib. p. 217). See also another instance of a quarter Chourasee from the Vedas, in At. Res. VII. p. 252. In the Puranas, as might be expected, the number is very common. (See Langlois' Harivansa, I. p. 112, and II. pp., 68. 440; Strengler's Raghuvansa. C. II. 25; and Surya Narayan Upanishad, quoted by Vans Kennedy, in his "Ancient and Hindu Mythology," p. 346.)

Menu, who is supposed to have flourished about three centuries after Parásara, or in the ninth century before Christ, is there any thing which can be construed into the remotest allusion to Chourasees, we must look for their introduction to some subsequent period; and in the midst of so much uncertainty, it seems lawful at least to conjecture, that the most probable date is that, when the Buddhists from Scythia, following that tide which from the earliest ages has been setting in towards the South East, immigrated to India, and became incorporated with the tribes who were in previous occupation of the country.

CHOURSEE, چورسي चीरसी chaursí

A granary above ground.—Rohilcund.

Chous, چوس चैास chaus

Land four times tilled .- Rohilcund.

Chousing, प्रदेश क्षेत्र चीर्षिया chausing'ha

A raised mound indicating where the boundaries of four villages meet.—See Chougudda.

Chout, нел, इंडिया chauthiyá

A measure in general use for grain and about equal to a seer of wheat; Choukuree is a quarter, and Adhelee, is a half, Chout, hea. Five Chout, heas are equal to a Kòòro, or Puseree, and twenty Kòòros to one K, hanree. These words are equally used in superficial measures. Thus, an area which would require 5 Puseree of seed to sow it, is about equal to a Beeg, ha, (which in Hooshungabad is a little more than a statute acre, being 4,900 square yards,) and was rated at about a Rupee of Revenue. A K, hanree would be about equal to 4 Rupees, and a Manee to twice that amount.—Saugor. See Beesee and Jureeb.

CHOUTRA, इंग्लं चीतरा chautrá

A Court; corrupted perhaps from Chubootra.

CHUH, ८३ चह chah

A platform. A pier head.

CHUHLEE, चहली chahlí

The wheel on which the rope revolves at the top of a well.—See CHAK.

CHUHORNA, U) अन् चहार्ना chahorná

To transplant.—Rohilcund. Elsewhere it signifies to stick up, to fix. The word Rompna is also frequently used to signify transplanting. In Dehli and the Upper Doab, Chuhorna, though rarely used, is preserved in the word Chuhora, which signifies rice dibbled in a field, after being sown in a nursery.

Chuhul, ्रें चहल chahal

A strong soil, ranking between Rouslee and Dakura, or Dankra.—Dehli.

Сник, چک বন্ধ chak

A portion of land divided off. It is applied to detached fields of a village, and to a patch of rent-free land. In old Revenue Account Books it is the name given to that part of the Township which is taken from the residents of the Village, and assigned to a stranger to cultivate.

ر دیهیکه تمام رقبه آن از مالکان و مستاجر اصلا مزورع نشود موانق پرداخت بعهده آن گذاشته ما بقیه بسند مکمل چک بسته در ملکیت شخصی بدهد که پرداخت تراند کود

Zòòbdut-ool-Quwaneen.

CHUKBUNDEE, چکبندی चक्रबन्दी chakbandí

The fixing or registering the abuttals, or boundaries, of a Chuk. In the Deccan the equivalent word is Chutoorseema चत्रसीमा—See "Jour. R. A. S.," No. VI., p. 368.

CHUKBURAR, इस्त्रीर chakbarár

Collecting rents according to the size or productiveness of Chuks.—Central Doab.

Сникка, । ১৯ বলা chakká

The weight (generally of clay) used to press down the small arm of the Dhenklee. The usual meaning is a wheel, or circle, and the word may be therefore applied thus, as the Chukka is almost always of a circular form.

Сниккит, چكىت चझत chakkat

The loss of a whole plot of ground by diluvion; the contrary of Ritkut.

Chukla, ১৯৯ বন্ধৰা chakla

A Chukla, is a sub-division of a Sircar, comprising several Pergunahs. The only Chuklas familiarly known in these Provinces are those of Azimgurh and Corah. The designation is not uncommon in Oudh.

Chuklas first were instituted in the reign of Shahjehan, by Sadòòllah Khan, the Minister:—(See Crore): and therefore there is reason to apprehend that the Sunuds given at p. 253, Vol. III. of "Harington's Analysis" are forgeries. Much stress was laid upon these Documents at the time of their publication, but as they purport to be of the time of Akber, and at the same time mention Chuklas, they are open to dispute.

CHUKLADAR, ভূমিও লক্ষাব্য chukladár
The person appointed as Superintendent of a Chukla.

CHUKNAMA, ४०८६६ चकनामा chaknáma

A Deed, or Statement, shewing the area and boundaries of a Chuk. The word is as old as the time of Akber. It is mentioned in his instructions to Amilguzars.

CHUKWAEN, چکوایی चक्रवाइन chukwáin

A small clan of Rajpoots, in Kopacheet, Zillah Ghazeepoor.

CHUKWUND, چکونت चकवनड chakwand

A common weed, of which there are generally reckoned to be four kinds, though they bear but little resemblance to one another.—Chukwund, Chukoundee or Kusoundee, Gòòlalee, Butoka. The Chukwund, which grows from about eight inches to two feet high, and bears a long legume, is very common in Mangoe groves, and in fields grown with Khureef crops. It is used by the poor people as a potherb.

Chulan, ्रीइ चलान chalán

An invoice; an announcement of despatch: from Chulna tile to go.

Chultee, چلتی चंत्रती chalti

Cultivated lands .- Dehli.

CHUMAR, इकीर chamár

A tribe employed in the curing of leather. They are said, on the authority of the Padma, Varaha, and Brahmavaivartta Puranas, to be descended from a Mullah, or Boatmen, and a Chundal woman. The Chumars are generally said to be subdivided into seven classes—Jatòòa, Kaean, Kòòril, Jyswara, Jhoosea, Azimgurhea, or Birherea, and Koree, or Korchumra. These seven do not eat together or intermarry. The Jotodas are chiefly in the North-West. The Dehli Territory, Rohilcund, and the Upper, and part of Central, Doab are their seats. The Kaeans are in Bundlecund, and Saugor. The Koorils occupy the greater part of the Central and Lower Doab. The Jyswaras meet them in the neighbourhood of Allahabad, and extend through Jounpoor, Mirzapoor and Benares, to the neighbourhood of Sydpoor Bhitree, where they are met by the Jhooseas, who occupy Ghazeepoor and Behar. The Azimgurheas have their seats in Azimqurh, and Goruckpoor; and the Korees, or Korchumras, in Oudh. The last are generally engaged in the occupation of weaving.

Other names are mentioned besides these seven, as the Jatlote of Rohilcund; the Ahurwar Sukurwar and Dohur,* of * The Dohurs are mentioned in "Steele's Summary," p. 128, as existing in the Deccan along with Kutnees (coblers) and Duphgurs (Dubgar, maker of Oil Bottles): but he does not include them amongst Chumars. of whom he enumerates the following classes—Sultungur, Marat, he, Paradosh, Purdesee, Huralbhukt, Dubalee, Woje, Chour.

Central Doab; but as these latter avow some connection with the Kòòrils, they may perhaps be included in that tribe. In Behar we meet also with sub-divisions of Gureyas, Magahis, Dukshinias, Canoujeas, as well as the Jhoosea and Jyswara above mentioned: all tending to shew that the division into seven clans is imaginary.

Chumars are reputed to be a dark race, and a fair Chumar is said to be as rare an object as a black Brahmin.

करीचा ब्रहमन गार चमार इन केसाय न उत्तरिये पार

Kurea Brahmin gor Chumar In ke sat,h nu dotriye par.

That is, go not in the same boat with a black Brahmin or a white Chumar; both objects being considered of evil omen.

CHUMAYEN, इमात्न chamáyen

A clan of Goojurs, proprietors of about twelve villages in Paneeput Bangur.

CHUMBUL, کبی चमबल chambal

A log of wood with grooves, fixed on banks of Canals. It is used in drawing water for the purpose of irrigation.

CHUMRAWUT, ज्रावट chamrawat
The perquisites of Chumars.

Chumurgour, کور گرو chamargaur See Gour Rajpoot.

CHUNA, ५३ चना chaná

Gram; (cicer arictinum:) whence, through the Italian Cece and the French Chicker, we get our Chick-pea. The arictinum is derived from the resemblance of the seed to a ram's head. The word used by the English in India is gram, of which the origin.

has been much disputed, and is, I believe, quite unknown. Might it not possibly be a corruption of the Portuguese word for this pea? In the Peninsula, and on the opposite Coast of the Mediterranean, the pea is called Garvanzos. In English the obsolete word gram means angry, irritated; and it is a strange coincidence that the Spanish phrase Poner GARVANZOS á alcuno, means to throw obstacles, to irritate, to gram a man. There is, however, of course no connection between the two words, because the English is derived direct from the Anglo-Saxon; the resemblance, however, is worthy of remark. The Portuguese words, grao grain, and grama grass, might also be ascribed as the origin of our gram.

Of Chuna there are generally reckoned to be three kinds— Peela, Puchmil, and Kussa. The last is inferior kind, and is also called Rukswa, Chuptaee, and Kussaree in the Eastern part of these Provinces. Puchmil is a mere mixture of Chuna and Kussa.

There is also a small kind of Chuna, called Chunee and Butooree, and Chuna itself is frequently to the Eastward called Rehla and Lona. But, in general, Lona is the name of the oxalic and acetic acid which forms on the leaf of the Chuna. It is used in this country in Alchemical processes, and in the preparation of Nitric and Muriatic Acid. Cloths are spread over the plants of the Chuna, and being well moistened by the deposition of dew, they readily absorb the acidulous salt, which the plants secrete abundantly on the surface of their leaves and shoots.—(Royle, "Antiquity of Hindoo Med:" p. 42.) The presence of this acid is found to injure the feet occasionally when people walk in Chuna fields, and a local tradition has hence arisen that Seeta when she was going to bathe in the Munwa river is said to have cursed the plant, and directed that it should not be grown between that stream and the Gogra and consequently no Chuna is now cultivated between those two rivers.

In the Western part of this Presidency, there is a Cabulee Chuna sometimes grown. It differs from the Desee, or country Chuna, in having a white flower and smaller leaf. It is also grown in the extreme East, and in Bengal, to the North of the Ganges. It is there considered a fit offering for the Gods, probably on the account of its rarity.

This useful grain is highly valued in India, and its praises have been sung by the poets. The following lines, which are attributed to the celebrated Beer Bul, are greatly esteemed by the natives:—

सब देयेंमं महादेब बडे सब ग्रन्न में चकरवत चना जाकी लमवीसी डार गुलाबसा फूल खूंटत खांटत हात घना कहें बीरबल सुना साह ग्रन्नवर नून ग्री मिन्दे से ग्रजब बना

Sub Deon men Muhàdeo bure, sub ann men Chukurbut Chuna; Jakee lumbee see dar, goolab sa phool, k,hoontut k,hantut hot g,huna; Kuhen Beer Bul, sòdno, Shah Akbur, noon our mirch se ujub buna.

"Chuna is the best amongst grains, like Muhadeo amongst the Gods. It has long stems, rose-like flowers, and gets thicker for being plucked, and when eaten as a potherb with pepper and salt is delicious food."

CHUNCHUR, इंन्चर chanchar Land left untilled, for one, two, or three years.

CHUNDA, । प्रांक् चन्दा chandá Subscription ; assessment,

CHANDALEA, چندالیا বনভালিয়া chandáliyá See Bhungee.

Chundel, इंदेल chandel

A tribe of Rajpoots scattered in various parts of these provinces, who for the most part derive their origin from Muhoba in Bundlecund, which, before the Mussulman conquest, appears to have been the capital of a principality which extended to the Nerbudda, and included the province of Chunderee, or Chundelee, which is called after their name. Though they are styled Sombunsce, they are not considered to be of pure descent, and their sons are carefully excluded from marriages with the higher clans.

The Chundels are found in Osait,h, Mehrabad, Poorunpoor Subna, Buragaon, Julalabad, and Imrutpoor, Pergunahs in the South East of Rohilcund; Huvelee, Sidhòòa Jobna and Ruttunpoor Bansee, of Goruckpoor; in Bara, Kurra, and Chaile, of Allahabad; in Mahòòl, Secunderpoor, Mahomedabad Gohna, Nut,hoopoor and Nizamabad, of Azimgurh; in Murreeahoo, of Jounpoor; in Nurwun and Huvelee, of Benares; in Bhugwut, Bidjygurh and Agoree Burhur, of Mirzapoor: in Sheorajpoor, Jajmow, Akberpoor, Sheolee, and Bit,hoor, Pergunahs of Cawnpoor; and in Bundlecund. There is also a large clan of them South of Burdee, giving name to a Province called Chundelk,hund.

They are divided, at least in the Lower Doab, into the four families of Raja, Rao, Rana, and Rawut, like the Goutums of the same neighbourhood. Thus the chiefs of the Sheorajpoor Chundels are known as, the Raja of Sheorajpoor, the Rao of Sanpey, the Rana of Sukrej, and the Rawut of Rawutpoor, the respective residences of the parties. We learn the turbulence of this Doab tribe at the early part of last century from the letters of Runchhore Doss.

The Chundels of Mirzapoor came from Mahoba after the defeat of Brimaditya, the son of their chief Purmal, by Pirthee Raj. For this was not a mere victory: it led to the temporary occupation of the country; since we learn that after the Chouhans had taken Calinger it was occupied by a Garrison of Dehli under the Amberc Prince, Pujoon. These Mirzapoor Chundels are said to have expelled the Balunds, and they themselves in their turn had to flee from the victorious arms of the Goutum Raja of Benares. The chiefs of Agoree Burhur and Bidjygurh, after seeking refuge in Bhojpoor, returned to their old seats on the occasion of the British ascendency.

Those of Azimgurh migrated also from Mahoba, but appear to have lingered for some time about Jounpoor, before proceeding in their onward course to Secunderpoor.

The period of Chundel emigration Eastward is very doubtful. Though no date is so probable as the one above-mentioned for their departure, yet we have some incidental testimony respecting those of Robileund and the Doab which appears to point to an earlier perod.

We find one of the Bunafur heroes boasting in the Al-K,hund. "Our heads were the pillars of Mahoba; by us were the Gonds expelled, and their strong holds Deogurh and Chanbari added to his sway. We maintained the field against the Jadon, sacked Hindown, and planted his standard on the plains of Kuttair." This refers to a period long previous to Pirt, hee Raj's defeat of Brimaditya. We may also be allowed to conjecture that the Chhindu race, which Mr. Prinsep (J. A. S. B. Vol. VI. p. 780) declares to be utterly unknown, and which we find recorded in a very interesting inscription, dated A. D. 992, discovered by Mr. H. S. Boulderson in the neighbourhood of Beesulpoor, is no other than the Chundel, and that they might then have been inhabiting that part of Rohileund, on the way to their more distant principality of Chumpawut,* and Almora, of which the representative is the present titular Raja of Kumaon, or, more strictly speaking, his cousin, who is a British Pensioner at Almora. Chund is the title of the holder of the Raj: his Rajpoot brethren are generally known as Routela.—See Kuttoora and ROUTELA.

The Chundels of Rohilcund themselves state that they derive their origin from Sheorajpoor; and here, again, we have a gleam of evidence that the Sheorajpoor Chundels are older than Pirt hee Raj's conquest.

In the famous Arabic work, the "Kitab-al-Yemini," we find that the victorious Mahmood, after conquering Canouj, in A. D. 1017, and proceeding lower down into the Doab, before passing over to Bundlecund, encounters what appears to be a Chundel Chief and subsequent mention is made of another Chief, called Chund Raee, who might also have had some connexion with the same clan.

* Som Chund, Chunderbunsce, established the Raj of Chumpawut, A. D. 1178. This period would be in accordance with the Beesulpoor inscription. It is a vulgar, but almost universal, error to trace the origin of the Chunds from Jhoosce opposite Allahabad; but the proper reading is Jhansee, in Bundlecund, a position which connects them immediately with the Chundels.

وَ أَخَذَ عَلَىٰ قَصْدِ ذَلِثَ نَحُو قَلُعْةِ آسِي وَ صَاحِبْهَا الْمَعْرُوفُ بَهَنَدالِ بُورَ أَحَدُ أَنْيَابِ ٱلْهَنْوُدِ وَ أَرْبَابِ الْمَعْرُوفُ بَهَنَدالِ بُورَ أَحَدُ أَنْيَابِ ٱلْهَنُودِ وَ أَرْبَابِ الْمَعْرُودِ فَعَرَضَ لَمُ رَأَيُ قَنَوْجَ مَّنَازِعاً * * * * * * أَلَجُنُودِ فَعَرَضَ لَمُ رَأَيُ قَنَوْجَ مَّنَازِعاً * * * * * * وَلَمَّا فَصَلَ السَّلُطَانُ أَمَرُ چَنْدَبَالَ وَ انَاقَهُ فَي مَهُوبِهِ وَلَمَا فَصَلَ السَّلُطَانُ آمَرُ چَنْدَبَالَ وَ انَاقَهُ في مَهُوبِهِ الدَّاءُ الْعَضَالَ عِطفَ عَلَىٰ چَدُد رَأَتُ آحَدُ أَكَابِر ٱلهِنَد في قَلْعِمْ شِرُولًا

The long-expected translation of this work may perhaps throw some further light on the subject. The extracts above quoted are taken from a very incorrect copy, and there is no saying how much the names are disguised.

Chundelee, چندیلي चंदेली chandelí

A very fine species of Cotton fabric, which is of so costly a description as to be used only in Native Courts. It is made from Berar, or Oomraotee, Cotton, and every care is taken in its manipulation. The weavers work in a dark subterranean room, of which the walls are kept purposely damp to prevent the dust from flying about. The chief care is bestowed on the preparation of the thread, which, when of very fine quality, sells for its weight in silver. It is strange that women are allowed to take no part in any of the processes. From a correspondence published in Vol. X. of the "Journ: As: Soc: of Bengal," it would appear that Chundelees are made solely from Nurma Cotton; but this is a mistake, for Oomraotee Cotton is alone used, and the Nurma, or Nurma-bun, instead of being confined to Malwa, is cultivated in small quantities all over Hindoost, han, and its produce is in great request for the manufacture of the best kind of Brahminical thread. It is a bushy plant, grows to the height of about seven feet, and lasts about six years.

Chundelees derive their name from the Town of Chunderee, * on the left bank of the Betwa, in Scindia's Territory. (See Chundel.)

CHUNDEYA, इंदेया chandaia Deep places.—Eastern Gudh.

Chuneada, ४०५३३३३३३३३३३ चिनयादा chaniyáda

Land under a crop of Chuna or Gram.—Rohilcund. In Dehli, the same is called Chuneal and Oòmre, and in some other Provinces Chunara.

Chunee, نې चनी chaní

A small species of Chuna; called Butooree in Benares.

CHUNET,H, ४६००० चनेंड chanet'h Drugs for cattle.

Chunumea, এতা ব্লাদিয়া chanamiá

The name of a tribe of Chunderbunsee Rajpoots in Pergunals Raree of Jounpoor; Sugree and Mahool of Azimgurh; and in Amorha of Goruckpoor. They are generally included among the Beis of inferior descent, and are known also by the name of Gurgbuns; but the Chunumea and Gurgbuns are separately entered in the Jatimala in the "Hindee Selections."

* It is very curious how many of our commonest European cloths and textures derive their name from a similar source. Thus we have Muslin from Mousul, Cambric from Cambray, Jean from Jen in Saxony, Gauze from Gaza, Frieze from Friesland, Dornick from Dornick in the Netherlands, Dornoch from the royal borough of Dornoch in Scotland, Dowlas from Dourlans, a town of Picardy, Calico from Calicut, Worsted from a town in Norwich of that name, Dimity from Damietla, Carpet from Cairo, Diapre from Ipre in Flanders, originally written D'Ipre; an etymology which though disputed, receives confirmation from a passage in Chaucer's Wife of Bath,

Of cloth making she had such a haunt,

She passed them of Ipre and of Gaunt.

See "Warton's History of English Poetry," Vol. I. p. 176.

Besides these, of which we are now beginning to forget the origin, we have the more obvious names of Bergamot, Bandanna, Damask, &c. &c.

Chungel, इंगेल changel

A herb which springs out of old K, heras, or ruined buildings. It has a round leaf, and its seed, which is used as a medicine, is know generally by the name of K, hubajee.

CHUNWAN. इंग्लंबन chanwan Name of a small species of millet.—Eastern Oudh.

Chupree, ७३५३ चपरी chapri

A puddle. Also, the name of a small pulse somewhat resembling Chuna.

Churee, (९) इन् चरी chari

Unripe Jowar, cut as fodder for cattle. It is always sown much thicker than the Jowar which is intended for the threshing floor.

Churce is also the name given in the Lower Doab to small portions of land held rent-free by cultivators: derived either from its chiefly producing fodder or by a corruption from Seer.—See CH, HEER.

CHURHWEE, ९९०० चढनी charhwí Raising rent; from المراهاتي Churhana, to lift up.

Сникнев, چزخي चरखी charkhí

The pulley by which water is raised from a well by two waterpots tied to the ends of a rope and raised alternately; literally, a spinning wheel. It is generally made of pieces of bamboo lashed together in the form of a cylinder.—See Char.

CHURNEE, چرني चरनी charní A feeding trough.

Churus, इर्स charas

The exudation of Hemp flowers. It is collected in Nepal, and elsewhere also it is said, by persons running through a field of Ganja with leathern aprons to which the exudation adheres.

In these provinces the Churus of Bokhara is most admired, and fetches double the price of the country product. Buhadoorgurh in the Dehli Territory appears the grand depôt for the Churus of the Western and Northern states.

Also, the large leathern bucket, or bag, used for filling water from wells; derived from by leather. In some parts of the country it is called Poor and Mote. All parts of the apparatus of a well are differently called at different places. Thus, the upright posts over the well's mouth are, in one place, Feelpaya (elephant leg), in another T,hoonee. The beam which they support is in one place called Bhursuha, in another Putao and Bhuret. The rope is in one place called Burt, in another Lao. The reservoir into which the water is poured is in some places called Pureha, in others Chubucha, and so on.—See Bundro, Chak, Churtee, Churkhee, and Guraree.

Сникwaнее, چرواهي चरवाही charwáhí

Wages of a hayward, or herdsman, in grain; from Churna by to feed, to graze.

Chutree, इंट्री chatri

The name of a herb which springs up with the rubbee grains. It is used as fodder for cattle, and the poorer class of cultivators eat the seeds of it mixed up with barley.

CHYL, ১৯৯ বীল chail

Land twice tilled .- Rohilcund.

Снум, ুংহ্ন चैन chain

Cultivated land.

Снутев, چيٽي चैती chaití

The harvest of the month Chyte. In Bundlecund it is applied generally to the Rubbee, or spring harvest.

CIRCAR, न्यार sircar

This word is more correctly spelt Sircar, but is more familiar to Europeans as Circar, in consequence, perhaps, of the geographical division of the Northern Circars being so written. In other parts of this Supplement it will appear as Sircar.

A Circar is a sub-division of a Soobah. The North Western Provinces, excluding the Saugor and Nerbudda Territories, comprise no complete Soobah, but only portions of the four Soobahs of Agra, Allahabad, Dehli and Oudh. Each Soobah is divided into a certain number of Circars, and each Circar into Pergunahs or Mehals, (which are used as equivalent expressions,) and the Pergunahs again are aggregated into Dustoors or districts; and as the Pergunahs of the same Dustoor are of course always contiguous, the Dustoor statement in old Registers, if copied with any regard to correctness, frequently forms a very important means of the verification of doubtful names.

Soobah is an Arabic word, signifying a head of money, or a granary. Circar is literally a Chief, a Supervisor. Dustoor, besides signifying a rule, is also a Minister, a Moonshee. Pergunah means tax-paying land, as well as a perfume composed of various ingredients—

It is strange that the "Bòòrhan-i-Qata," while giving the Hindoostanee meaning, does not speak of it also as a subdivision of a Province, for it is so given in the older Lexicons, as for instance in the "Furhung-i-Jehangeeree;" and though it is omitted in the "Furhung-i-Ibraheemee," the word was undoubtedly in use in the time of that compilation, being not only found in the almost contemporary memoirs of Baber, but in the "Tubukat-i-Nasiree," and the "Futoohat-i-Ferozshahee," (in which we find that about A. D. 1350, there were fifty-two Imperial Pergunahs in the Doab,) and even on an inscription dated A. D. 1210, discovered at Piplianugur in Bhopal.—(See "Journ: As: Soc: Bengal," Vol. V. p. 377.)

The other words do not appear to have been in use till introduced by the Moghuls, nor do any of them appear to be used in similar senses in foreign countries, except Circar, which is stated in the "Chiragh-i-Hidayut" to be used in Western Asia also, in the sense of a territorial sub-division, the authority quoted being the translation of the "Mujalis-ool-Nufaes."

The words used before Akber's time to represent tracts of country larger than a Pergunah, were Shuqq at, Khitta Lish, Wrsa Lish, Deear Lish, Vilayut Lish, and Ikta Lish, but the latter was generally, though not always, applied when the land was assigned for the support of the nobility, or their contingents, and the presiding Officer was called Mukta or Iktadar. Thus, in the early historical writers before the close of the fourteenth century, we find Shuqq-i-Samanah, Khittu-i-Oudh, Ursu-i-Goruk, hpoor, (this term is rarely used for any other tract,) Deear-i-Luk, hnowtee, Vilayut-i-Meean Doab, and Ikta-i-Kurra.

Between Circar and Dustoor there appears a connexion; one meaning, chief, and the other, minister, between Soobah and Pergunah, a connexion may also be traced; one being a large, the other a small collection; but whether the words were chosen with reference to this connexion may be doubted.

The title of Soobahdar, or lord of the Soobah, is long subsequent to Akber's time. Sipahsalar was then the only designation of the Emperor's Viceroy in each Soobah.

It has been endeavoured to restore the Circars, Dustoors, and Pergunahs as they stood in the time of the Emperor Akber. The copies of the Ayeen-i-Akberce vary so much, and such ignorance is frequently exhibited by the transcribers, that to verify the names of Pergunahs has been a work of great labour, which is by no means to be estimated by the ease with which the eye runs over a coloured Map.

The Pergunahs which retain their own names have frequently occasioned as much doubt as those which have undergone a complete change. The annoyance may be easily estimated by those who know what various phases oriental alphabets can assume; and those who do not, may be convinced by learning that in a single Circar one copy presents you with such complete disguises and metamorphoses as Kut,hul for Kumpil, Sunance for Putialce, and Suncewurburka for Sowruk,h; and the difficulty does not cease when, after frequent conjectures and comparisons, the name has been verified; for the adjustment of areas to meet those represented in the Aycen-i-Akberee has frequently been the source of much perplexity. But it is in separating the Circars into Dustoors that the ignorance of the copyists has been chiefly exhibited, for all the Pergunahs are frequently mixed together, as if there were no meaning at all attached to Dustoor. It has been therefore thought proper to explain in some detail the principle of the construction of the Map, premising that several copies of the Aycen-i-Akberee have been consulted for the occasion.—See Dustoon.

Should it be desired to ascertain the position and names of the Pergunahs as at present constituted, they may be learnt by referring to the Modern Ethnographical Map, which has been drawn up for the purpose of illustrating several articles in this Supplement.

An endeavour has also been made to represent the state of Zumcendarce possession in the time of Akber-but in comparing the difference of colour in the Modern and Ancient Map, it is not to be inferred that is entirely occasioned by change of possession. There is reason to apprehend, as Alool Fuzl generally enters only one tribe as in possession of the Pergunah Zumeendaree, and seldom more than two, that he has only mentioned those which had a predominance or clear majority; omitting all consideration of the others, whose number was inferior; now, the Map of modern possession has been drawn out with a view of shewing as far as the scale would admit, all tribes of importance, so that if one particular class is found in possession of but a small part of a Pergunah, it has been entered under its appropriate colour. As even in the same Pergunah, the villages of each tribe are much intermixed, the colours of course represent the proportions, and not the positions, of each.*

The boundaries of the old Circars appear for the most part well rounded off and defined. There are some which are somewhat doubtful, as will be seen by referring to the articles Buut-

* The original Maps were on a large and legible scale; but it was found necessary to reduce them for the press; which could not of course, be accomplished, without throwing many of the minuter tribes into the miscellaneous colours.

TEEANA, BOODHGUNGA, DES, and G,HORA. There is only one which appears to require notice in this place.

It will be observed from an inspection of the map of Circars and Dustoors, that the Pergunahs of Circars Ghazeepoor and Jounpoor are strangely locked into each other near the confluence of the Goomtee and Ganges. The fact of Syndpoor Numdee being in the old registers entered in the Circar of Ghazeepoor, while Bhittree, which is between Syndpoor and Ghazeepoor, is entered in the Circar of Jounpoor, would seem to show that the proper reading is Syudpoor Bhittree, and that Bhittree has been entered separately by mistake : but Syudpoor used formerly to be called Numdee; so that solution does not help us. The fact is, that Syudpoor and Bhittree, which habit induces us now to couple together, were originally two distinct Pergunahs, and in two different Circurs; nor were they regarded in any other light than as two distinct Pergunahs, till they were given in Jageer to Baboo Oosan Singh: from which time, as they were held under one Sunud-(see the "Bulwuntnamu,")-they began to be spoken of as one Pergunah, and are so entered in the Regulations of 1795. In the Perwanah appointing Sheikh Abdoollah Amil of Ghazeepoor, amongst the 22 Pergunahs mentioned in his Sunud, Syndpoor and Bhittree are given separately; and this consideration throws much suspicion upon the Zumcendarec Sunud given in the Azimgurh Settlement Report, printed in the "Journal of the Asiatic Society" for 1838, and which might otherwise have been of some service in unravelling the difficulty. Syndpoor and Bhittree are written together in the Persian Zimun, and (though they certainly appear to be enumerated as two,) yet they occur without the intervention of the word Pergunah; and in a manuscript copy of the Sunud, the entry of Syudpoor Bhittree as one Pergunah is beyond question. The same is observable in Kourea Tilhenee. Now, these are modern combinations, and could scarcely have been used in the fourth year of Jehangeer, within twenty years after the compilation of the Ayeen-i-Akberce, where they are entered with such marked distinction. Kourea and Tilhence being in all respects separate Pergunahs; and Syudpoor and Bhittree not only separate Pergunahs, but in two different Circars. The entry of Mownat and Bhunjun as two separate Pergunahs in the same Sunud, which are entered simply as Mow in the Ayean-i-Akberee, is also suspicious. These considerations, coupled with the loose wording of the document, lead us to put little faith in it as evidence respecting the mode in which Syudpoor and Bhittree were entered at an early period in the Imperial Records, and justify the implification conveyed in that Report, that the document is not authentic.

We must, therefore, notwithstanding the irregular appearance which this part of the map presents, consider that the entries are correct, and that the division was intentional.

Copo, کون केंदि codo

A small grain, sown early during the rainy season. (Paspalum frumentaceum. Kan:). The season for sowing it is indicated in the following lines:

पुख पुनर्बेस वीद्ये धान इसलेखा कादी प्रमान मघा मसीना दीजिये पेल फिर दीजिये प्रहल में ठेल

Pook,h Pòònurbus boeye dhan, Uslek,ha Kodo purman, Mug,ha Muscena deejiye pel, Phir deejiye Purhul men t,hel.

The first word in each of the three first lines is the name of a lunar Asterism, which points to the proper time of sowing various kinds of grain.

It is a very curious fact, but one which does not admit of doubt, that this grain is frequently found to have inebriating properties, when made into bread. Such Codo is known by the name of Mutouna, (from Mutt And drunk, intoxicated;) but in appearance it resembles Codo in every respect. It is sown as ordinary Codo, and comes up as Mutouna, but only in those fields on which Codo has been previously grown, and only perhaps in one instance out of ten, even in such cases. If wheat or barley is grown, it will not come up, nor will it ever spring up on newly broken soil. It is therefore a necessary condition of the produce of **Alutouna*, that *Codo* was sown the preceding year. The effects of the mania are fortunately not very injurious, and death never supervenes. The intoxication which it causes is generally that of a cheerful kind, lasts for two or three days, produces no convulsions or ulcers, and inflicts no permanent injury on the constitution. In these respects it differs from Raphania, which is caused by eating rye affected by ergot.

These curious properties of Codo have invested it with a degree of mystery in the eyes of the natives, and some classes even worship it as a God. Thus, the Kakun Rajpoots of Ghazeepoor are said to pay worship to this divinity. They never cultivate or eat Codo;

Nefas violare et frangere morsu,

and the reason assigned is that, while under the influence of Mutouna, they were set upon by some of the neighbouring tribes, and thus lost the greater part of their once extensive possessions.

This intoxicating effect of Codo is by no means imaginary, as many may be induced to suppose. Independent of its notoriety in these Provinces, it has been witnessed in distant parts of the country by Medical Officers who have borne testimony to the fact. Dr. Irvine, in his statistical account of Gwalior, mentions it: and Dr. Francis Buchanan has seen its effects in Behar and Bhagulpoor. He states that the natives, as they do in these Provinces, attribute the narcotic quality of the grain in certain fields to its being infected by a large poisonous serpent called Dhemna, and he is disposed to ascribe the lameness called Mughya lung to the common practice of sleeping on Codo straw, which may perhaps emit narcotic exhalations.

Kisaree (lathyrus sativus) is another grain which is found to have injurious properties. A curious instance of a general paralysis caused by it is given in Colonel Sleeman's "Rambles and Recollections," Vol. I, p. 134.

Cole, ७५ केंग्ल col

A few of this primitive tribe are found in the Province of Benares, particularly in the Southern part, and in Bundlecund, near the hills. Their occupations are of the most servile kind.

Sukteesgurh was formerly called after them Colana, and the Pergunah of Cole Usla in Benares still bears their name, and testifies to their former importance, before the Rajpoot immigrations.

From a consideration of the condition, habits, and position of the Coles of Benares and Behar they may probably be found to have some connection with the Colees of Guzcrat and the Colaris of the South of India. I know not whether their languages have ever been compared; but there is no primâ facie improbability that they should be found to resemble each other; for the Moravian Missionaries of Umurkuntuk declared that they could converse with the Gonds of that neighbourhood in the Canarese language, the origin of which is entirely distinct from the Sanscrit. It is to be regretted that the sudden death of these excellent men, in the year 1842, prevented their giving public testimony to this interesting fact. If two countries so remote as Carnata and Umurkuntuk, between which there is no communion or commerce whatever, are found to have essentially the same languages, the Coles, Colees and Colaris, between whom at least there is a resemblance, of name, may be found to be similarly connected.

From the "Harivansa," Vol. I., p. 68, one might conclude the Coles to be of Rajpoot descent.

Colhoo, १६१ भी लाहू colhù

A Sugar Mill. To illustrate the difference of language in different Provinces of this Presidency, the names of the component parts of the Mill are given below in the language of Benares and Rohilcund. In Dehli and the Doab other variations occur, but they are few. The Lower Doab inclines more to the Benares dialect—Dehli and the Upper Doab to that of Rohilcund. Bundlecund has a mixture of both. For instance, there Kuttree is the horizontal, and Jat, the upright beam.

Rohilcund.	Benares.	Explanation.
Pat	Kuttree	The horizontal beam to which the bullocks are attached.
Lat,h & Jat,h	Pat	The upright beam which moves in the Mill.
Mulk,hum	K, hoonta	The upright post which is parallel to the last.
Chirya	Dhenka	The wood by which the two preceding are joined to one another.
Ores	Oree	The basket on the horizontal beam, from which the Mill is fed.
Nares	Naree	The leather thong, by which the horizontal beam is connected with the yoke.
Pyt,h	G,hugra	The circle in which the bullocks move.
Sya	Syka	The cup in which the expressed juice is transferred into the Boiler.
Jhokund	Jhokund	The place from which the fuel is supplied to the fire under the Boiler.
Dhoondra	Dhoondka	The outlet for the smoke.
Dhor	Dohra	The spoon for taking the juice out of the Boiler.
Chundwa	Gòòrda	The scrape to prevent the Sugar resting at the bottom of the Boiler.
Ota	Nesddr	The raised blocks on which the cane is cut.
Gundurwala	Gurerun	The receptacle for the Sugar Cane before it is cut.

This simple mill has, like the native plough, been much ridiculed for the rudeness of its construction; but it is, nevertheless, a very efficient instrument, gaining in power what is loses in rapidity of execution. Every particle of the cane is subjected to three crushings in the Colhoo. In the European triple-roller wheel it is subjected to only one. Native Zemindars repay us with their contempt for our process, by pointing to the juice in the refuse cane, which the European roller has been unable to express.

Cooda Beeg, на, रिंधा रेश कुदाबीगहा cúda bíg'ha

A Beeg,ha measured after a curious fashion in some of the Eastern parts of Rohilcund. The Malgoozar measures the breadth by the rope, or by the ordinary Kudums (steps), and then the cultivator, running by springs as great a space each time as he can stretch, measures the length: each spring being counted half a Kudum. The result is the area. The Beeg,ha of this mode of measurement varies from  $2\frac{1}{2}$  to  $3\frac{1}{2}$  Kuchha Becg,has. The meaning of the words is a Beeg,ha measured by leaps, from 6.5 Koodna, to jump.

There is another curious Beeg, ha of these parts, measured by the paces of a woman eight months gone with child.

Còòlee, قلي कुली kulí

A carrier, a porter. It is difficult to tell the origin of this word, but it appears to have been introduced by the English. It may perhaps be derived from the Turkish Còòllee a slave, yet that word is now chiefly known in Hindoostan as the designation of several influential families, who may have been originally slaves, but whose servile origin is now forgotten. Or it may have been derived from the Colces of Western India, as they were found to be frequently engaged in menial occupations.

Còòrmee, र्ल्यू कुरमी curmí

A large class of Cultivators in the Eastern and Central portion of this Presidency, but there are few in Dehli and the Upper Doab. Under the different names of Còòrmee, or Koormee Kumbhi, Kunabi, or Koombhee, they extend throughout the greater part of Hindoostan, Berar and the Deccan.* They are famous as agriculturists, but frequently engage in other occupations. The Còòrmee women, like the Jatnees, assist the men in husbandry, and have passed into a proverb for industry,

भली जात कुनविन की खुरपी हाथ खेत निरावे ऋपने पी के साथ

Bhulee jat koonbin kee k, hoorpee hat, h

K,het nirawen upne pee ke sat,h.

The Coormees of these Provinces are said to have seven subdivisions, which are usually enumerated as K, hurcebind, Puturya,

Those of the Deccan are divided by Steele (p. 107) into Marat, hee, Koonbee Wanee Kanaree Kumatee, Tylung Kumatee, and Hindoostanee, amongst whom he includes Lodhees Pardesee and Chapperbund. But Lodhees are not Cobrnees nor can we receive them as such on this authority; for it must be confessed that, however excellent the "Summary of Indian Classes" may be with respect to law, the second book, on the sub-divisions of Castes, appears not to be executed with that care which the interesting nature of the subject required.

G, horchurha, Jyswar, Canoujea, Kewut and Jhooneya. These do not eat together or intermarry. The two first are chiefly in the Lower and Central Doab, Benares, and Oudh. The G,horchurha far to the Westward, the Jyswar in Saugor and Bundlecund, the Canoujea in the lower parts of Central Doab, the Kewut to the East of Benares, the Jhooneya, to the West of the Upper Jumna. There are, however, other divisions which appear to be independent of these, as the Singrour and Chupurya of the Lower Doab,; the Tharee of Nagpore; the G, hameta, Sumsawur, Kuchisa, and Chunduni of Behar; the Sait, hawar, Putunawur, At, hurya, Chununoun, and Ak, hurwar of Goruckpoor and Benares; the Rawut, Jadon, Bhatee, Kuttear, and Gungparce of Robilcund. These also have no communion of food or marriage. In short, Coormees are never agreed as to the seven tribes of which they are composed, and it is evident they were never confined to that number.

There are several Còòrmees, or Kumbis, amongst the Marhattas; and the Gwalior, as well as the Satara, families are of that stock. In our own provinces, we find Còòrmees chiefly in the following Pergunahs, Ròòdurpoor, Beesulpoor, Nuwabgunge, Pilibheet, Negohee, Ajaon, and Shahjehanpoor in Rohileund; Nidhpoor, Canouje, Bilhour, Akberpoor, Shumsabad, Secundra, Bhogneepoor, Sheorajpoor, Sarh Sulempoor, Dhata, Chaile, Ekdulla, and G,hatumpoor in the Doab; Aurungabadnugur, Sidhoa Jobna, Dhooreapara and Shahjehanpoor in Goruckpoor; Seondha, Dursenda, Jelalpoor, and Koonch in Bundlecund; K,heiragurh and Bari in Allahabad; Bhugwut, Bhoelee, Agoree Burhur, and Singrowlee in Mirzapoor; and Nut,hoopoor, Nizamabad, Sugree, and Mohomedabad Gohna in Azimgurh.

In Oudh also, there are several, and the notorious Dursun Sing, h has ennobled his tribe by the designation of Raja.

Còònr Mòòndla, धंद्र्यं कुंडमुंदला cunrmundla

Is the name given to the day on which the sowing is concluded.—Benares. It is in the Lower Doab and Beiswara generaly called Coonr Bojee and Huriur. In the North West it is well known by the name of Dulea-jhar, or Pulea-jhar, that is, the cleaning out of the sowing bag or basket. The real meaning of Coonr Moondla is the closing of furrows, from कंड Coonr a furrow, and मुद्ना Modnana to be closed, or The meaning of Coonr Bojee is the filling of furrows. Bojee is from an obsolete word derived from बाजना Bojna, to be full.

It is usual to devote this day to festivity, and, amongst other ceremonies, to decorate the ploughs; and to make the residue of the seed-corn into a cake, which is partaken of in the open field, and in part distributed to Brahmins and beggars. It is impossible not to call to mind the practice of our own country on the same occasion, when the Seed-Cake, and Furmenty of All-Hallows are in request. In Tusser's homely verses we read-

Wife, sometime this weeke, if the wether hold cleare, An end of wheat sowing we make for this yeare, Remember you, therefore, though I do it not The seed cake, the pasties, the furmenty-pot.

See Duleajhar, Huriur, and Hurpoojee.

1) % के। सा corà CORAH,

Is the Mercantile name of plain silk cloth undyed. Ban-The word is derived danna is the same article dyed. from کررا Kora, new, raw, fresh-hence the Hindee, the Ghilek ("Pop: Poetry of Persia," p. 542) and the Greek, Koree, a virgin.

This article of Indian Manufacture has lately been depreciated in the English market, in consequence of the dishonesty of the native workmen, who prepare goods of inferior value and weight, and conceal the deficiency by a composition of ricepaste and sugar. It is said that a sound Corah ought to weigh from 30 to 32 Siccas, faithfully woven throughout, with 1700 threads. The deteriorated Corah has only 1400 threads, and weighs from 26 to 29 Siccas, brought up to the proper standard by the above named composition, which may be easily detected by washing. कोस र cos

The itinerary measure of India of which the precise value has been much disputed, chiefly on account of the difficulties which attend the determination of the exact length of the Guz,

Coss,

or yard. The Ayeen-i-Akberce lays down distinctly that the coss consists of 100 cords (tunab), each cord of 50 Guz; also of 400 poles (bans), each of 12½ Guz; either of which will give to the coss the length of 5000 Guz. The following particulars relative to the distances between the old Minars, or Coss pillars, may be interesting, and may be considered to afford the correctest means we have of ascertaining the true standard.

$R\epsilon$	oad distance in English yards.	Direct dis- tance in ditto.
Octagonal Minar to Nurelah in Delhi,	4,513	4,489
Minar between Nurelah and Shapoorgurhee	, 4,554	4,401
Minar opposite Aleepoor,	. 4,532	4,379
Minar opposite Siruspoor,	. 4,579	4,573
Ruins of Minar opposite to Shalimar,	. 4,610	4,591
Average,	4,558	4,487

Length of the Coss = 2 miles, 4 Furlongs, 158 yards.

It is important to observe that the length of the Ilahee Guz deduced from these measurements is 32  $\frac{81.8}{1000}$  inches, showing how very nearly correct is the length of 33 inches assumed by the British Government.— (See Ilanee Guz.)

The measurements taken to the South of Dehli, between the Minars in the Muttra District, closely correspond. Out of twelve distances it is found that eight give 2 m. 4 f. 19 p. 1 y., three give 2 m. 4 f. 25 p. 3 y., and one gives 2 m. 4 f 38 p. 2 y.

It may be proper to remark that it is frequently supposed that the Minars are set up every two Coss, and that the Coss contained 2,500 yards; but the Ayeen-i-Akberee appears sufficiently explicit on the point. The same work gives the values of the local Coss. It says, the Guzerat Coss is the greatest distance at which the ordinary lowing of a Cow can be heard, which is determined to be 50 Jureebs, or 15,000 Guz. This Coss resembles the Chinese lih, i. e. the distance which can be attained by a man's voice exerted in a plain surface, and in calm weather. Another in Bengal is estimated by plucking a green leaf, and walking with it till it is dry. Another is measured by a hundred steps made by a woman carrying a jar of water on her head, and a child in her arms. All these are very indefinite standards.

The same may be remarked of the oriental Meel, as well as the European mile, and league. The two former evidently derive their name from the Roman Milliare, and the difference of their value in different places proves that the mere name was borrowed, without any reference to its etymological signification. According to the "Kamoos," the oriental Meel is a lax and vague measure, but it has been considered by Dr. Lee to be to the English one, as 139 to 112. The league also, from the German lugen to see, (signifying the distance that can be readily seen by the eye on a plain surface) is as indefinite as a Guzerat, or Gao, and a Bengal, or Dhuppea, Coss, and sufficiently accounts for its varying standard in Europe.

Coss is an Indian word; the equivalent word in Persian is Kuroh, the same as the Sanscrit Krosa, of which four go to the Yojan; about the precise value of which different opinions are held. Bopp ("Nalus," p. 213) says it is equal to eight English miles. Professor Wilson ("Sanscrit Dictionary," p. 689) estimates it at nine miles, and says other computations make it about five miles, or even no more than four miles and a half, and, in his commentary on the Chinese travels, estimates it at no higher than four. But these travels enable us to fix the distance with tolerable precision. By following Fa-Hian's route between places of which the identity is beyond question, as between Muttra and Canouje, and between Patna and Benares, we find the Yojan in his time to be as nearly as possible seven English miles; and this agrees much better with what we find the Yojan to be, if we resolve it into its component parts. Eight barley-corns equal a finger, twenty-four fingers equal a Dund, one thousand Dunds equal one Krosa, and four Krosa, one Yojan. Now, estimating the fingers' breadth at eight barley-corns, this makes the Yojan equal to six miles, one hundred and six yards, and two feet.

It is the generally received opinion that from Coss is derived the word course; used by the European residents of India to represent a Promenade, but the Corso of Southern Europe gives a much more probable origin.

Cote, ভুঠ कीट cot

A fort; a castle; in which sense we find it frequently used in names of places in these Provinces, as Cote-Pootlee, Cote-Salbahun, Shere-Cote and Chirya-Cote. It is derived from the Sanscrit and Kotta, which Klaproth tells us, being adopted into the Mongol, became the origin of the name of Khoten. "Rel: des Roy: Budd." p. 18. We may probably look to the same word for our own Cote, and its numerous derivatives, as Sheepcote, Cotswold, &c., &c.

Coula, ४५५ की ला caula

Coulea, प्री की निया caulea

Derived from Elizable, an embrace or armful, and hence applied to bundles of sheaves of corn, given as perquisites to reapers and village servants. The word more generally used in Benares is Kuk, heealee; from Kank, h an armpit.

Cousik, र्ट्याप्टें कीं विक causik

A tribe of Sombunsee Rajpoots; but their name would seem to imply Brahminical descent or connexion. Considerable numbers of them are in Deogaon, Mahòòl, and Gopalpoor in Azimgurh; Dhooreapar in Goruckpoor; and in Cheet Ferozpoor and Syudpoor Bhittree in Ghazeepoor. In the Ayeen-i-Akberce they are recorded as the Zumeendars of Jounpoor, Khureed, and Mureahoo. Cousiks pretend to derive their origin from Cusika, whose son, Gadhi, built Gadhipoor, or Canouj. (See "Harivansa:" p. 148, and "Vishnu Purana," p. 405.)

CRANIE, ट्रिंग करानी crânì

An English Copyist in a Public Office, generally of mixed European and Native descent. The origin of the name has been disputed, and is, it is believed, utterly unknown. It may probably be a corruption of some Portuguese* word, or it may be a mispronunciation of Carana, by which the Kayet,h (Cayast,ha,) or Writing tribe, is designated in Bengal; and as most native writers in Public Offices are of the Carana caste, it is not unlikely that, by merely extending its signification, the same word might have been used to designate English † writers. The word from being utterly harmless in its application, has begun of late years to be considered decidedly dyslogistic, (to use an expressive word coined by Bentham) and is consequently avoided by all officials of good feeling, for fear of giving offence.

This might imply a Portuguese origin, as many Indian nautical terms are derived from that language.

† Should this really be the origin of the word, it is worthy of observation that Kayet, hs themselves at one time were called by a title, which was originally peculiar to foreign writers. In a Treatise on Revenue Accounts by Raj Roop, who calls himself a Pupil of Raja Todur Mul, but who in reality wrote in, or after, Aurungzebe's reign, he says that, since those who in Eran followed the occupation of writing were called Khwaja, it came to be considered an attributive word, and was in course of time appropriated to Hindoo Writers.

There is no reason to suppose that in India Kayet, hs are now ever called Khwaja, though that word is in common use for other classes. In other Mahomedan countries however the term is still applied to writers and teachers. Dr. Shaw says of the Moors in Barbary, "The Hojas suspend their ink-horns in their girdles," p. 227: and Lady Montagu says, "The monastery is now belonging to a Hojia, or school-master." Letters, p. 176. And in Stow's "Survey of London," we find curious mention of a Persian buried at Bishops-gate, under the title of Coya, in which we could scarcely recognize our Khwaja, were not his occupation noticed. Anthony Munday, Stow's continuator, says, "This monument with characters engraven about it, stands in Petty France, at the West end of the lower Church-yard of St. Botalphe's, Bishops-gate (not within, but without the "walls," the bounds of our consecrated ground) and was erected to the memory of one Coya Shawsware, a Persian Merchant, and a principal servant and Secretary to the Persian Ambassadour; with whom he and his sonne came over. He was aged 44, and buried the 10th of August, 1626."

• It is strange that Abool Fuzl, in detailing the Officers of a ship's company, says the ship's Steward was called Crance, Writer and Clerk have also been for some time past dyslogistic in the opinion of the same class, though the former was two years ago the title of the Junior Civil Servants, and the latter denotes the occupation of many a Nobleman's son in the Public Offices of Great Britain. Assistant is now the title most coveted.

Crore, र्रेड कडेंग्ड cror

Ten millions. The names of the higher numbers are thus given in the "Zoobdut-ool-Quwaneen."  $100 \ Crore = 1 \ Urub$ .  $100 \ Urub = 1 \ K,hurub$ .  $100 \ Kh,urub = 1 \ Neel$ .  $100 \ Neel$   $= 1 \ Pudum$ .  $100 \ Pudum = 1 \ Sunk,h$ .  $100 \ Sunk,h = 1 \ Uld$ .  $100 \ Uld = 1 \ Unk$ .  $100 \ Unk = 1 \ Pudha$ .

The three last names are rarely met with in other account books, but Colebrooke (Hindoo Algebra, p. 4) assigns names to seventeen orders of superior units in the decimal scale, ending with Parard'ha. In one work, the name of which I cannot now remember, the grades in the ascending scale are carried much higher, and the names differ in some respects from those of Colebrooke. Thus 100 Sunk,h = 1 Oodpuda. 100 Oodpuda = 1 Maha Oodpuda. 100 Maha Oodpuda == 1 Juld. 100 Juld = 1 Mudh. 100 Mudh = 1 Purard, ha. 100 Purard, ha = 1 Unt. 100 Unt = 1 Maha-unt. 100 Maha-unt = 1 Shisht. 100 Shisht = 1 Sing,har. 100 Sing,har = 1 Muha-sing,har. 100 Muhasing, har = 1 Adunt Sing, har, which in numerals amounts to it is evident that this advance should have been made by tens, and not by hundreds; by which the numerals would be reduced to 24 places-100.000.000.000.000.000.000.000. luxury of names for numbers is without example in any other language, ancient or modern, and implies a familiarity with their classification according to the decimal scale which could only arise from some very perfect system of numeration; at a period, moreover, when the most scientific people of the Western world were incapable by any refinement of arithmetical notation of expressing numbers beyond one hundred millions .-See " Enc. Metrop." Arithmetic (12), and " Vishun Purana," p. 631.

CROREE, ७७७७ बडोडी carorí

When Akber introduced his Revenue Reforms, he appointed a Collector for every Crore of Dams, (i. e. 2,50,000 Rs.) whom he designated by the title of Amil, or Amilguzar, and to that Functionary the instructions are directed in the Ayeen-i-Akberee; the designation of Croree being of subsequent introduction. This sum, which was placed under his management, agrees with the amount at present established under the Resolutions of Government, dated 30th October, 1837, as that which should form the charge of a Tehseeldar.

A Croree however, on his first appointment had somewhat more power than is invested in our Tehseeldars. He received 8 per cent on the amount of his collections, besides perquisites; he was directed to see that lands were not suffered to fall out of cultivation; to scrutinize the rent-free grants; to report upon the condition of the Jageerdars, and of the subjects generally in his neighbourhood; to forward an account of all remarkable occurrences; and to perform the duties of Kotwal; if none were appointed within his jurisdiction; and whenever, on account of drought or other calamity, he thought it advisable to depute any one for local enquiries, he could avail himself of the services of the Ameen of the Soobah. This system lasted till the time of Shah Jehan, when his Minister, Islam Khan, deputed a separate Ameen to every Pergunah for the purpose of fixing the Juna, and the Croree was left in charge of the Collections, to which the duties of Foujdar were added, with an allowance of 10 per cent on the collections. But it was found that the powers of Foujdar and Croree were too great to be united in one person, and to check the abuses which began to be prevalent, Rac Rayan Jeswunt Ram, the Peshkar of Islam Khan, suspended for a time the power of the Crorees, and appointed subordinate Collectors for each Village, who were ordered to take exact account of the Collections of the Crorees, and the purposes to which they had been applied, to check all the fraudulent exactions of which they and their dependants had been guilty, and to resume all the extra cesses which they had illegally demanded from the people.

When that excellent Minister Sadòòllah Khan succeeded Islam Khan, he combined the duties of Amcen and Foujdar in one person, and appointed him Superintendent of a Chukla of several Pergunahs;—(See Chukla)—and placing the Croree entirely under his orders, established 5 per cent on the Collections as the amount of the Croree's allowance, and of this, one per cent was subsequently deducted. The business of assessment and settlement was left entirely to the Amcen—with that the Croree had no concern, but it was his business to encourage agriculture, to make advances, station watchmen over the ripening crops, and report when any indulgence and leniency appeared expedient.

This system lasted during the time of Aurungzebe, and till the dissolution of the Empire.

The following extract, taken from the Patent of the Ameen-Foujdar, written at the beginning of last Century, (the Title proves that the Document is subsequent to Aurunzebe's reign)—will shew how much the power of the Croree had declined since his original appointment.

ر زریکه از سنه چهل ر در عهد حضرت خدد مکان نزد رمایا باتی باشد بکررری قدفی نماید که سریصد پنجررپیه برجمع حال که به تشخیص درآید در هر نصل تا رصول آن به تحصیل درآررده ر انچه بصیغهٔ تقاری درسالگذشته برمایا تنخراه شده باشد آنوا باباتی سالمذبور در ارل توزیع سال حال بگیرد که در صورت اهمال بازخراست ازر خراهد شد ر احتیاط بکار برد که کردری جرات باخذ ملبه ر وجرد مهنوعه بارگاه رالا نکند

* * * * * * * * * * * *

و برطبق قاعدةً معين از رجة حق التصيل كررري يكررپية عرض برآمد مرقرف داشته داخل در جمع نمايد كه ثاني الحال در برآمد كررري مجرا خراهد شد و مابقيل وا بموجب سند حضور منجمله زر بقايا و تقاري كه برصول رسد بتصديق خود بكررري تنخواه ميداده باشد و بر تقديريكة زر مسطور به تنخواه حق التحصيل وفا نكند قدر زايد وا از تحصيل سالحال تن نمايد

Cucinioura, ४७९६ कहोरा cachhaura

A small clan of Rajpoots, of which there are a few in Goruckpoor.

Cucunwana, ठेटी १९३० बहुवाहा cachhwáha

Properly Cushwaha, being descended from Cush, or Kusha, the eldest son of Rama. This tribe of Rajpoots is now predominant in the Territory of Amber, or Jyepoor, from which they expelled the Meenas and Birgoojurs. They also give name to Cuchhwahagurh, a tract between the Scinde and Puhouj Rivers, ceded by Gwalior in January 1844, for the payment of the new British Contingent. There are a few Cuchhwahas in Moozusternugur, Beluh and Phuppoond in Etawa; Suhar and Areeng in Muttra; Mahool in Azimgurh; Sukutpoor in Furruckabad; and Unglee in Jounpoor. They assert that they once held 360 villages in the neighbourhood of Moozuffernugur. This may have been the case, for amongst those who went to aid the Chouhan Prince Beesul Deo, in his invasion of Guzerat, we find the Cuchhwahas of Anterbed enumerated; and as they are not found in any numbers elsewhere in the Doab, except in Etawa, those of Moozuffernugur are perhaps indicated; but they must have been in much greater strength than they are now, whether we consider them as occupants of Moozuffernugur or Etawa, to have been honored with any notice in such a gathering of Rajpoots. (See ANTERBED.) The mention of the Cuchhwahas of Anterbed in the middle of the 11th Century is interesting, as showing that those of Amber had not yet risen into notice; and that those of Nurwur, who are recorded by Chund as proceeding to the defence of Chittore in the beginning of the 9th Century, must have been on the decline.

Cuchhwar, الجهوار cachhwar

See Coormer, of which tribe they are a sub-division.

Cuchhwara, ४) १९३६ कहवारा cachhwara

Any portion of ground cultivated by Cachhees. The Province of Cutch derives its name from the same source. (See Vishnu Purana, p. 190.) In the Upper Provinces the term Cuchhwara, or, more, usually, Kuchar, is applied to alluvial formations under the banks of a river, and the term has been said to be derived from Kuch, a corner; on account of Kuchars forming chiefly in the re-entrant angles of a River's bank: but this does not seem so probable as the derivation above given, as the land is well adapted for garden produce, and therefore culivated, or fit to be cultivated, by Cachhees. Or the word may come from Kuchha, new, fresh.

Cuchwansee, إنسي कचवान्ती cachwansi

The twentieth part of a Tiswansee of which twenty go to a Biswansee. The twentieth part of a Cuchwansee is an Oonwansee. The word Cuchwansee is rarely used in account books; the more usual denomination is Pitwansee. But it must be confessed that great difference of opinion prevails respecting these fractions. It is even sometimes stated that a Cuchwansee is the twentieth part of a Biswansee, but as these denominations were even under Native Governments rarely used in practice, and are now less used than ever, it is a matter of little consequence what precise value is attached to them.

Culum, टंग कलम kalam

A reed, a pen, a stalk, a cutting. In these senses we have the word in many languages with little alteration, except in the final syllable. Sanscrit करा, Arabic pi Greek Calamos, English Quill, Latin Calamus, and hence Culmus, and Culmen, a thatched roof. German Halm, and hence English Haulm, Russia Soloma, French Chaume. It is also found in the Teutonic languages, in derivatives from the Latin. As in the English word calamity, which according to the concurrent opinion of all the Latin Etymologists, signified originally a storm of hail or rain, which breaks the stalks of corn. "Calamitas proprie significat imminutionem clademque calamorum segetis, quæ grandine vel impetuoso aliquo turbine aut aliâ quâpiam de causâ fit." Servius ad Virg: Georg: I. 151.

Cumla, Los कमला camla

A Caterpillar, so called from its woolly coat. See below.

Cumul, کیل कमल camal

A Blanket, a coarse woollen garment worn universally by the peasantry of the Upper Provinces; from the Sanscrit Cumbul নাম্বার্থা There may be some connection between this word and the Grecian Chlamus, and the Latin Chlamys. It is barely possible also it may not be unconnected with the Arabic Cumees نصيص, from which we have the Italian Camicia, the Portuguese Camisa, and the French Chemise. The Chlamys was generally, like the Cumul, made of wool, and in shape it was much the same, being half the breadth of its length.

A similar connection may perhaps exist between the Persian and Hindee Saya, the Latin Sagum, and the modern Spanish

These names, to be sure, were not always applied to the same articles of dress; some being male, and others female; but this is not sufficient to invalidate the probability of some relation, for we have it prominently brought to our notice every day in India, that Cunees is a male vestment, while in Western Europe Chemise is appropriated exclusively to the Ladies; and yet that these two words at least were originally one and the same, is beyond all question.

The best Cumuls in these Provinces are made in Ulwur and in the neighbourhood of Meerapoor in Meerut. The Sansla Cumul of the latter place sometimes sells as high as twenty five Rupees. It is made of the wool of lambkins, shorn about three days after their birth. The Sansla is from six to eight yards long and about two broad. The ordinary Cumul sells for from twelve annas up to two Rupees.

Curao,

The name given among Jats, Goojurs, Aheers, and other inferior tribes in the Western part of these Provinces to concubinage generally; but more especially to marriages of widows with the brother of a deceased husband. The practice (which is also known to the Eastward by the name of Oorhurce; in the Deccan of But, hec; and, in other Provinces, by the name of Dhurcecha;) is common among these classes, but is not very openly confessed even among them, as some degree of discredit is supposed to attach to it. It is only younger brothers who form these connections, elder brothers being prohibited from marrying their younger brothers' widows; but among the Dehli Jats even this is not prohibited. The practice has been common among several nations of the East. The custom of the Jews in this respect is familiar to us, and in Egypt it was admitted for a childless widow to co-habit with a brother of the deceased husband. Recherches Phil. sur les Egyptiens et les Chinois.)

When the laws of Menu were enacted, Curao appears not to have been confined to the lower classes; but as is not unusual with the Institutes, there is much contradiction between the enactments relating to it. From a consideration of all the passages on the subject, it appears that failure of issue was the point on which the legality turned.

"On failure of issue by the husband, the desired cffspring may be procreated by his brother, or by some other Sapinda, on the wife who has been duly authorized."—(Ch. IX., v. 59).

The Commentator confines this licence to the servile class, and he is borne out by the passages immediately succeeding (60, 64); but the following Section appears to recognize generally the lawfulness of such marriages.

"He who was begotten according to law on the wife of a man deceased, or impotent, or disordered, after due authority given to her, is called the lawful son of the wife."—(Ch. IX., v. 176.)

All the modern Schools of Hindoo Law prohibit the practice entirely; * and the later Commentators and abridgers of the Mahábhárata show the utmost anxiety to slur over or explain away a most conspicuous case of Curao, or worse than Curao, recorded in that Sacred Poem. From the fact of Draupadee marrying the five Pandoo brothers, we learn that Polyandry must have prevailed amongst the heroes of that period: and if Polyandry, the more venial offence of Curao was, no doubt, not uncommon: indeed, the compiler of the Mahábhárata, Vyasa, was himself appointed to raise up offspring to his deceased Brother! Most of our English Historians of India* take us to the Punjab for the scene of this incestuous marriage of the Pandoos, and invite us to search for a Kumpilanugur in that country, where it is not improbable that a remnant of Scythic manners might be found. But we surely need not go beyond our own Kumpil on the Ganges. It seems strange that it should have been overlooked, that when the five Brothers in the Mahábhárata proceed to all parts of Hindoost, han in search of allies, the first place visited by Raja Bheem, going East from Indrapest, ha (Dehli) was Kumpil, the capital of Raja Drupada. (Sahbá Parva, Vol. I. p. 345 Cal: Ed.) Kumpil is certainly of sufficient antiquity for mention in the Mahábhárata. It is a place moreover of sacred resort amongst the Jains, where they annually bury an image of one of their Tirt, hankaras, and has been immemorially established among them as a holy city. The origin of the mistake appears to be that Kumpila is in Panchala, which has been considered to be the Punjab; whereas it is the name of an old country on the banks of the Ganges, including Furruckabad and Southern Rohilcund.

* It has nevertheless been admitted by the Sudder Dewany Adawlut as the lex loci of Orissa. "Reports," Vol. 11., p. 175, the "Digest," Vol. 111., p. 276, and "MacNaghten's Hindu Law," Vol. I., p. 102.

This practice must have prevailed even before the time of the Pandoos, for Yudhisht, hira replies to the expostulations of King Drupada, "We pretend not to determine what is proper: we follow the path successively trodden by those who have gone before." There is perhaps no circumstance which so strongly shews the Northern descent of the deified Heroes, as this marriage. Herodotus tells us that the practice prevailed among the Nomadic Scythians, as it does at present among the Bhotias. The practice is adopted also by the Nairs of Malabar, between whom and the people of the Himalaya Wilson traces • Even Marshman has fallen into this error, at p. 26 of his excellent "History of India for Schools," under which unpretending title, he has written by far the most clear and intelligible account which we possess of the Ante-Mahomedan period, the obscure vestiges of a connection. (See "Selections from the Mahábhárata," pp. 8 and 66.)

Amongst Jats, Goojurs, and Aheers, children born in Curao are considered legitimate, and are entitled to inheritance accordingly. Children begotten by the woman previous to Curao, except in the case of fraternal Curao, are known by the name of Kudhelura कडिलडा, and do not inherit the property of the father-in-law.

Curea, ँ५३७ कारिया karia

A village; from the Arabic is assembling together, con-The word is not frequently used now, but we have it preserved in Curcat Mittoo, Curcat Seek, hur, Curcat Dost, and Cureat Mendhoo, the names of Purgunahs in the Province of Benares. The root of the word may be traced in several lan-Thus we have Celtic, Caer, a town, as in Caermarthen; guages. Greek A-geiro, to collect together, from the root Ger; Latin Grego, the same, with its many European derivatives as congreg-ate, ag-greg-ate, greg-arious, and others; Persian Giroh, a crowd. We have likewise in the Hebrew, Corath, a city; the identical word which we find in the Carthaginian language also to mean "a city," in the curious passage given in the Penulus of Plautus, and which is itself used in the first syllable of of the name of Carthage, as well as of Carchemish on the Euphrates, the city of the sun-Curea shumsh. The word is also found in Mel-carth, the name of the tutelary deity of Carthage, and its parent city, Tyre—(Münter, p. 36.) In Palestine, the word was as commonly used to represent a town or village, as Caer was, and is, used in Wales. Thus Cureatharba "the four towns," Cureath-iarim "wood-town," was used precisely as we use Cureat Mittoo, &c. in the examples given above.

* It is curious that an almost equal universality marks the spread of another word of similar application. Bodyj is a Bastion, a Fort, in Arabic, Persian, and Oordoo. Bódyooj, the plural, is applied to the signs of the Zodiac, in order, as Masudi says, to mark the position of the stars with reference to these fixed objects. Gothic Bairgan, and Saxon, Beorgan, to fortify; Celtic Brig; this however is doubtful, as it frequently seems to apply to towns near bridges. Thracian Bria, a city, (Strabo, VII.) German Bürg, a city; and English Speculation on the subject cannot be farther extended here, and therefore the connection between all these words cannot be fully developed;* but compare "Parkhurst's Hebrew Lexicon," p. 623, "Conybeare's Lectures on Theology," note, page 285. "Sprenger's El-Masudi," p. 94. "Theirsch's Greek Grammar," p. 484. "Bosworth's Anglo-Saxon Dictionary," voce Caster, and "Camden's Britannia," Vol. I. 163.

Cureel, र्ट्रा क्रील caril

Capparis Aphylla. The Caper bush. It grows to the height of from ten to fifteen feet, and its evergreen branches, or twigs, which are leafless, produce a red flower from which proceeds the well-known fruit called Tent, which is eaten as a pickle by the poorer classes.

Borough, Burgh, and Bury, so frequently the affix of the name of towns, "All places that in old time had the name of Bourroughs, were places one way or other fenced or fortified." ("Restitution of decayed Intelligence," Ch. vii.)

The Greek Purg-os is evidently the same word, signifying a Tower, and hence applied also to a Dice Box—Mitteret in pyrgum talos. (Hor: Sat: II., 7. 17.) It enters commonly into the name of fortified towns. One in Mysia; (Anabasis VII. 8. 8.) In Thrace; (Herod: VII. 112.) Perge in Pamphylia, now Karahissar, Black Casele; (Strabo XIV. 4.) Homer also calls the Citadel of Ilium, Perg-amos, whence Apollo looks down on the concalls the words. (II: IV. 508.) Perhaps the Sanserit Pur, also enters into tending hosts. (II: IV. 508.) Perhaps the Sanserit Pur, also enters into tall these words, which Wilson defines to be "a place containing large buildings surrounded by a ditch, and extending not less than one Coss in length."

* As I have in some other words throughout this Supplement had occasion to trace similar resemblances, I may take this opprotunity of declaring that such instances have not been adduced from motives of idle display and ostentation of learning-(learning indeed it is not, for it merely consists in the simple art of turning over Dictionaries,) but from an impression of the deep importance of the study of comparative philology, both as a means of facilitating the acquisition of languages, and as tending to the confirmation of the great truth, that mankind were originally one. I have not in many instances, indulged in speculations of this nature, but whenever, as in the word Carea, any connection could be traced between words of what are called, somewhat improperly, the Semitic and Japhetic stems, I have thought myself justified in prominently noting them; for which indulgence may be craved, as endeavours have been made to avoid a repetition of those contained in the ordinary tables of affiliation, and which are now sufficiently well known and established. Indulgence is also solicited for the many crude speculations which must needs occur in a work which ventures freely upon the alluring, but delusive, path of etymology. Si quis de Vocum originibus quædam commode dixerit, potius boni consulendum, quam si aliquid nequiverit, reprehendendum.-Varro de Lingua Latina.

The Cureel grows chiefly in the North West, and its being found in great quantities in the neighbourhood of Birj has given rise to the following trite couplet, in which the taste of Rug, honat, h is impugned for not giving the best article to the place of his own mortal abode.

कहा कहें रघुनाय की गई सतला नांह कावुल में मावा करी टेंट विजेकी मांह

Kuha kuhen Rug, honath kee gyee sutulo nanh, Cabul men mewa kuree, Tent Birj kee manh.

The sportiveness of Rug, honat, h has not yet departed. He has given fruits to Cabul and Tent to Birj.

When the fruit is large, it is called Tenta, when small Tentee.

Cusenura, ीर्रा व्यमरा casbhará

Is the designation of the class which works in Bell-metal; from said Kansa Bell-metal, and by: Bhurna to fill. They are also employed in fusing precious metals, and making ornaments which require to be formed in moulds. They comprise one of the sub-divisions of Sonars or Goldsmiths, of which the others are Mut,hòòrea Myr, K,huttrea, Kumet,hika Lahourea, Poorbea, Canoujca, Mahour, Muhamunea, Agurea, Birpoorea, Chhyneewan and Mungorea. Of these the Mut,hòòrea ranks the highest. The Cushhura is below them all.

It is not generally known that amongst these tribes there is a secret language which is adopted for the purpose of concealing their fraudulent acquisition of property. Many, even of those deemed most respectable, are accessaries to thefts and robberies; for nearly all the precious metals, obtained by the craft and dishonesty of others, fall ultimately into their hands, for the purpose of being melted down and formed into some other shape.

As their Slang Vocabulary is very difficult to obtain, and its existence even is commonly denied by the parties who use it, a few words are subjoined in a note,*—but it is of much larger extent than this limited extract might lead one to suppose.

245

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

* SLANG VOCABULARY OF INDIAN METALLURGISTS.

Damisahu,	Speak.	Manu,	One.
Neet he hohu,	Be quiet.	Sowhan,	Two.
Mat.h,	A house.	Ekwace,	Three.
Th,ag,hatu,	Sit down.	Ahirin,	Four.
Cheeta lawahu, {	Fix a little wax at the	Palo,	Five.
Cheeta tawana,	bottom of the scale.	Ponchhuree.	Six.
Olimana iin la	Do not make crooked	Punt,	Seven,
Chimaree jin la-	the pin of the ba-		Eight.
wahu,	lance.	Korag,	Nine.
Lao karau,	Ser.	Agoor,	Ter.
Pat,hau,	Beat.	Sont.	Twenty.
Sagawahu,	Return it.	Bheedu,	in Hundred.
,	l'o do a thing so that		Sah (a respect-
Jhas karahu,	some benefit may	Tik,hariha,	able person.)
Thur har and,	accrue from it.	Kotu,	A thief.
Poot.h toongeo,	Weigh it correctly.		One Beera of
Bag, hat toon-	Weigh it so as it may	Hariyara,	Pàn,
	be less.	Bhasuka,
geo,	Weigh it so as it may		Tobacco.
Bearas toon-		Lodhikaru,	Goor.
geo,	be more.	Karsondhee,	A Sword.
Kit kira jin		Karsingee,	A Buffaloe.
karahu,	weight.	Kar singee,	Milk, and But-
Brolace,	An Ushurfee,	Bakrasu,	termilk.
Gandhanu,	Gold.	Sondkaha,	Ghee.
Kooloo,	Brass.	Nanwikaha,	Oil.
Bhasooa,	Justa.		Bread.
Kyanu,	Ranga.	Tapooee,	Eat.
Gariyara,	Lead.	Nik,harahu,	Fire.
Karasooa,	Iron.	Loree,	Wood.
Parikaha,	A Rupee.	Laree,	Meat.
Bajna,	A Rupee.	Bersiya,	A Goat.
Talre,	Eight Annas.	Memna,	Builocks.
Badilla,	Four Annas.	Bakahoonwa	Paper.
Chreta,	Two Pice.	Gowk,ha,	A Bed.
Sariya,	One Pice.	Kiaree,	Do not put it
Pouchhariha,	Half a Pice.	Loree jin oota-	in the fire.
Sowhan,	Quarter Pice.	reo,	Sleep.
Soobaree,	A Dumree.	Loorhow,	Sing.
Hoorookee,	A Cowrie.	Biarho,	Water.
Tora,	One Tolah.	Najooa,
Ma'a,	One Masha.	Hariyan,	A Tumbolee.
G, hooree,	A G.hoonchee.	Lodhikaha,	A Hulwaee.
	Camphire.	G.hoorkan,	A Pasee.
Indra,	Mouth.	Kajaree ke	A Singer.
Bhoos,	Belly.	teona,
Nadik,	Cloth.	Karasoobar,	A Blacksmith.
Sat,ha,	Legs.	Milmanahhata	JA Bares (alink
Gowna,	-	Niknarchhata,	boy.)
Hut hna,	Hands.	Totookar,	A Leper.
Lan hee,	Fish.	Lajihanu,	A brass pot.
Tiratiya,	Meat.		[ A Kodmhar
T ti ti ti giri	[ Nose; also the no	Masbeta,	(Potter.)

CUTEEAN,

In the Printed Glossary, should be K, huteonee, R, hutounee, or K, hatabundee, words signifying the posting of several items together, after abstracting them from the Khusra; from Gloss K, hata an account book. The meaning is correctly entered in the Glossary.

Nat,h,	A Village.	Dobhikaru,	A Tailor.
Soong, hna,	A Dog.	Dhatoorahu,	Go.
Najoora,	A large Well.	T, hawana,	An old man.
Najoharee,	A small Well.	T,hyat,ha,	Father.
K,hajoora,	Wheat.	T,hent,hee,	Mother.
Sekooree,	Paddy.	Badhooka,	Brother.
Larihaddra,	Arhur.	Choonwa,	Son.
Phalehra,	Gram.	Koottee,	Wife.
Bhasce,	Mud or Earth.	Kansee,	Bad.
Raresika,	Salt.	Katamb,	Labourers.
K.hoosan, .	A Brahmin.	Sedhahu,	To dress.
Liharu,	A Raipoot.	7.	( Dhar, ) Large
Makar,	A Villager.	Kasaree,	Earings.
Kong,	A Mussulman.	C 11	Silver Necklace
Selu,	A Buniya,	Gark,ha,	(Huslee.)
Phitkara,	A Washerman.	77 . 1 2	Bangles & arm
Maska,	A Kayet h.	Hat,hna,	ornaments.
Chooskar,	A Kulwar.	Gawanec,	Feet ornaments.
Tachar,	A Lodh.		He knows the
Lariteona,	A Carpenter.	Byjanat hy,	{ language of the Memanaha,	A Shepherd.		Goldsmiths.
Baraph,	A Brahmin.	m	∫ A Goldsmith's
Jholahra,	A Bhoonjwa.	Tarooa,	l bag.
Piskaru,	A Bhat.		[ Belonging to
Rabhaja,	A Weaver.	Tachu,	the legs (such Pariparu,	A Barber.		as shoes, &c.)
Sahbar,	An assembly.	Oochhmita,	An Elephant.
Oolgar,	Disgrace.	Beroce,	A Woman.
Teonee,	Hire.	Lowkarat hy,	He is seeing.
Toogna,	Scales (for weighing.)	Ak, hilat hy,	He is joking.
Rasoora,	A Horse.	Kodee,	Theft.

D

DAB,

्।उ डाब

dáb

The name of a grass, better known by the name of Koos (Poa cynosuroides. Kæn:) It is generally apor Ròdsha. plied only to the first shoots of the Koos grass, and is called Dubsa in Rohilcund. The extreme acuteness of its points is proverbial amongst Hindoos. The intellects of a clever man are said to be as sharp as the point of a Dab, or Koos, leaf. (Sir W. Jones' Works, Vol. V. p. 79.) Dab is not in much request as fodder for cattle, but, when soaked, it makes very good twine, and is occasionally used in thatching houses. These are however profane uses: for the grass is especially holy, and is in great demand in almost all the votive offerings and religious ceremonies of the Hindoos. It is considered very desirable that a man should die upon a bed of Dab; and it is consequently the duty of attendant relations to spread the grass on the floor, and after covering it with a cloth, to lay the dying man upon it, in order that he may emit his last breath in that hallowed position.

DABEE,

ुः। उ दावी

dábí

See DUBEA.

DABUK,

نابی डावक

dábak

Fresh Well water.—Dubka is used in the same sense.

DABUR,

भां डाबर

dábar

Low ground where water settles; a small tank; a vessel for washing in.

Daen, ट्रांट dáen

Daen, or Daona, is the tying of a number of bullocks together for the purpose of treading out the grain from the ear. As in this action they are invariably driven from the right to left, these words may perhaps have some connection with Dahina, the right hand.

Dain, अंशे दाएन dáin

The eight Dains in the Doon are hill estates, each containing a certain number of hamlets, of which the fields and the lands of one adjoin to, and mix with, the fields of another. The Mokuddums of these Dains are probably the ancient Zumeendars of the Doon.

Dakhila, ठांद्री dákhila

A receipt; from the Arabic دخل dukhl, arriving, entering. In the Printed Glossary it is called Dachela, as well as Dakhila.

DAKHILNAMA, دخاناص दाख़िलनामा dákhilnáma A warrant of possession; also derived from دخل dukhl.

DAKURA, १५९७ डाकरा dákara

Is the name of the best, or second best, quality of soil in the Upper Doab and Dehli. It is sometimes pronounced Dhakur and Dankra.

The soil called Rouslee in many places ranks above Dakura.

DAL, りょ दाल dál

"A pulse, Phaseolus radiatus, Linn: Phaseolus aureus, Roxb: green gram, or rayed kidney bean."—" Qanoon-i-Islam."

In the North Western Provinces, it is applied only to the split pea of Moong, Urhur, Oord and a few other pulses; from Dulna ws to grind coarsely; and there appears reason to apprehend error in the passage quoted from the "Qanoon-i-Islam." The Printed Glossary also says of Dol that it is a sort of pea.—See Dulea.

DAL, ال ৱাল dál

A bough. In Dehli and the Upper Doab it is applied to the basket used for the purpose of raising water by artificial means from a Canal:-from dalna WIS to throw, to fling. It is made sometimes of leather, but generally of Hoonj, or of Jhao. Dal irrigation is used where the course of the Canal is much below the general level of the country, and is, in consequence of the labour attending it, more expensive than irrigation by Tor, which consists in merely breaking down the field ridge, and allowing the water to pass through it.

०१० दाम dam DAM,

The Dam in the Ayeen-i-Alberee, and consequently in most Revenue accounts, is considered to be the 40th part of a rupee; but to the common people it is known as the 50th part of a Tuka: 25 therefore go to a Pysa, and 12½ to an Adhela.—See DUMREE and CHHUDAM.

४५% दामचा dámcha DAMCHA,

The Platform on which a person is posted to protect crops.— Dehli. Jounda and Tand are also used in this sense in Dehli; and the latter in Rohilcund also. In the Doab, Muttoola, (from Muttee earth,) and Menra and Myra,* (from its position on the border of the field;) and in Saugor, Murwa, for the same reason. Muchan and Macha are in common use elsewhere, and even within the limits of the local words abovementioned.

dámí wásilát DAMEE, WASILAT, سالماعيمان दामी वाषिलात

Gross Assets of a village; from the Dam of account mentioned above, and the Arabic root , joining, arriving.

• Menr, Mend, مينده significs a limit, and Menrha, Mendha, صينده signifies a ram; and hence the Indian Pan, Daksha, who is represented with a ram's, or more properly with a goat's head, is called Mendh Iswara. Mendha is derived from the Sanscrit, and has a surprisingly close resemblance to the famous Exyptian Mendes, which was worshipped with rites more abominable than have ever been practiced in any nation of the world—Scil: hoi tragoi entautha gunaixi mignuntai. (Strabo, XVII.; and Herodotus, II. 42.) Mendes was worshipped as an image of the same power which the Greeks personified with the image of Priapus, (Egyptian Mythology, p. 312;) and the statue of Priapus, we know, was the same as the scarecrow Terminus. It is therefore a curious coincidence, to say nothing more, that the same kind of connection should exist between the representative of the Indian Pan (Meurha) and the word (Menr) used as equivalent to Terminus. The word, though written Menr, is usually pronounced Mer, without the

Dammar, १००१ डामर dámar

Resin—more especially, in commerce, the resin of the Saul tree. (Shorea robusta.)

Danabundee, ्रानाबन्दी dánabandí

Cursory Survey, or partial measurement, or weighment, to ascertain the produce of each field; from dana sis grain, and bundun vice to fix, to bind.—See Kunkoot. The usual method of Danabundee, under the Native Governments, was to divide the crop into three or four kinds, and then for the Government Officer to select from each kind a biswa of the best looking crop, and for the Cultivator to select a biswa of the worst looking crop. The produce of the two was carefully cut and weighed, and the average produce estimated accordingly. This would go on as long as there was any variety of crop, or quality of produce, which could occasion dispute.

زراعت آنجا چهار قسم سازه اول درم سوم چهارم بعد ازان بموجه رعایا از یک قسم یک بسوه بهتر خود بگیره و رعایا از همان قسم یک بسوه که زبون دانند خود بگیرند *

" Kitab-i-Qanoon."

Danadar, जीउडांड दानादार dánadár

Apportionment of Juma, or of any other contribution, according to the actual produce.—Benares.

nasal n, and in this shape seems to offer some interesting relations to words in other languages having the same meaning. Thus, Greek meiro, meros; Persian ; and ; a houndary or border of a country; hence , or keeper of the border, which according to Sir W. Ouseley (Travels, III. 238) is given in the Talmud as Marzbeni, translated by Reland "præfectum regioni in finibus imperii sitæ." Hence, also, the word Marches, Marge, Margo and Mark which run through all the Teutonic languages; and Markesios, Marchio, Markgrave and Marquess, in the sense of Præses limitaneus. (Heraldic Anomalies I. 220.) In our own language we still preserve the word, and its identical meaning. So, Bacon says.

The mislayer of a mere-stone is to blame.

Essay on Judicature.
and in the "Journal of the Royal Agricultural Society," Vol. III. 1842,
"The necessity of drainage, where wanted, was pointed out; the advantage of straight mearings."

Dand, تانق dánd

High ground; opposed to Dabur. Sterile Bhoor land. Elevated land of Domut soil. Also, a fine; a land-mark; a stick. The word is spelt with either an initial  $\mathbf{g}$  or  $\mathbf{c}$ .

Dang, دانگ दांग dàng

A hill, or precipice; the summit of a mountain, as Lal-dang. In Dehli, and generally in Upper India, the word is used to signify the high bank of a river. It is provincially corrupted into Dhang and Dhayung.

Dangee, دانگی दांगी dángí

Is the name given to Boondelas in the Saugor Territory, and parts of Bundlecund.—See BOONDELA.

Dangur, ट्रांगर dángar

Superannuated horned cattle. It is applied also as a term of abuse to a fool. But Dangur, in Dehli, is not confined to old cattle; for it is there applied, generally, to horned cattle, exclusive of Buffaloes.

DANPUTTUR, टानपच dánpattar A deed of gift, by which land is conveyed to Brahmins.

DANPUTTURDAR, دای پتردار दानपनदार dánpattardár Grantee of Brahmin Caste, to whom lands have been assigned for religious purposes.

Dantee, دانتي दांती dántí

A sickle; from Dant, a tooth; or perhaps a corruption of Durantee, q. v.

Dant,H, בֿונגאט פֿוֹפ dánt'h

Refuse of harvest floors, especially applied to Khureef products; and so is synonymous with JHORA, q. v. It is also called Dutòòa, and Dant, hla.—See DUNT, HLA.

Dant tinka, प्रांधां दांनातनका dánt tinká

The taking a straw, or piece of grass, in the mouth, to deprecate anger, or to express complete submission. The action is generally accompanied by standing on one leg, which puts the supplicant in a ludicrous position. The custom shews the reverence of the Hindoos for the Cow, the action implying "I am your Cow, and therefore entitled to your protection." The custom is very old, and is alluded to in the inscription on the Lat of Feroze-Shah at Dehli. "Tears are evident in the eyes of the enemy's consort; blades of grass are perceived between thy adversaries teeth." (As: Researches, Vol. VII., p. 180.) The image also is not rejected by the Poets. Mahommed Aman Nisar says:

This curious action of holding a straw in the mouth is with a different object observed in Cumberland, and some other counties of England, in which "hirings" for farmers' servants are held at Whitsuntide and Martinmass. Those who come to the market-place, with the view of being hired as labourers, stand in a body, and in order to distinguish themselves, hold a bit of straw or green sprig in their mouths.

Danwan, دانوان दांवान dánwán

Burning stubble, or a conflagration in a forest. This word is provincially corrupted into dumar and do; and is derived from the Sanscrit द्व or दाव fire, or a wood; or with both meanings combined, a forest conflagration.*—See "Wilson's Sanscrit Dictionary," pp. 402 and 406, and "Yates Nalodaya," p. 353.

DANWUREE, دانوري दांवरी dánwarí See Dowree.

*द्व m. 1. calor, flagrantia, præcipue conflagratio silvæ ardentis. 2. silva. (Utraque significatio vix quadrat; derivatur a दु r. 1. ire, r. 5. vexari.)
Lassen, Anthol: Sanscrit: p. 234.

DAO, Jo दाव dáo

A hatchet with a hooked point.

DARIDR K, HEDNA,

dáridr k'hedná

राहिद्र खेदना

Literally, to drive out poverty; a custom observed on the morning of the Dewalee, of taking a sieve, or winnowing basket, and beating it in every corner of the house, exclaiming at the same time.

द्खुर पैटा दारदर निकली

Ishwur pyt,ho Daridr niklo, that is, God be present, and poverty depart; or some equivalent prayer. The basket is then carried outside the village, generally towards the East or North-East, and being there thrown away, is supposed, like the scape-goat with respect to the sins of the Israelites, to bear with it the poverty and distress of the people. In some places this ceremony is called Seròda, and, instead of beating a sieve, the people brush the house, and carry out the dirt in a basket.

The night preceding this observance is passed in watchfulness, and is hence called Cojagura; as Lacshmi descended on this night, and promised wealth to those who were awake. It is enjoined that men should play on this night some game of chance with their wives, which requisition is in practice construed to mean a general indulgence in gambling.

Daroo,	१०१० दाक	dárú
Spirituous liquor.
DASA,	داسان दासा	dása
A reaping hook.	१ ९०० दावा	dáwá
DAWA,	رعوى दावी	dáwí
DAWEE,	٠٠٠٠ ووي

A demand; a claim; a plaint.

Dawun, واوي दावन dáwan

The process of threshing by means of bullocks, in the mode adopted by almost all Eastern nations.

And round and round with never wearied pain,

The trampling steer breaks out the unnumbered grain.

See DAEN.

Deeara. טולס. दियाडा díárá

Decara, or Decwara, signifies Alluvion. An island formed in the bed of a river.—Eastern Oudh and Benares.

Deechhit, क्रिक्त díchhit

(See Canoujea Brahmin.) There are Rajpoots also of this name in Ghazeepoor, Azimgurh, and Benares.

Deen, હહાડ ਫੀह díh

Used in the Benares Province and the Lower Doab to signify the site of a deserted Village. The Persian Deh being used for an inhabited one.

Deeha, ਪ੍ਰਿਪ਼ਹ ਫੀहा díhá

A small mound.

Deek, Hit, دیکهت दीखित dík'hit See Dik, Hit.

Deemrout, छुन्दे दीमरीट dimraut

One of the 12 Pals of Mewatees.—See Pal, Pulakura and Mewatee.

Deepdan, आ्रिटान dípdán

Land assigned to Brahmins on the banks of rivers, to deprecate river encroachment.—E. Oudh and Benares. The word is derived from Deep an island, and Dan a gift.

The same word, but derived from deepa, a lamp, is applied to a ceremony observed for ten days after the decease of a relative. It consists in suspending from a Peepul, or some other tree, a lamp, for the purpose of lighting the departed spirit on the dark road to Jumpooree (Yamapuri.) This place is declared in the sacred books to be the general rendezvous of the departed from all parts of the world, from which they proceed in a body with a proper guard, composed of the servants of Yama (Pluto) to Dharmapuri.—As. Res. Vol. X. p. 145.

DEEWAR, كيوار दीवार díwár

Perhaps, more correctly Deehwar, or Dehwar, is the god under whose special care a village is placed: the Genius loci, for whom a portion of grain is always set apart at each harvest.—

Benares.

The corresponding term in the North West is T,hanaputee (the lord of the place.) In Bundlecund, Gram Deota. In Saugor he is styled Miroyea [HE]UI from the fact of his being the guardian of boundaries; (See note to Damcha.) The Deewar is very commonly, and even where these local names prevail styled Bhoomia; from Bhoom, land. The occupation of the Deewars is very much like that of the Lares Rurales, qui compita servant, Et vigilant nostrâ semper in urbe Lares.

The Deewars have various names, such as Kutesuree, Burnaichu, Hunwut, Bhoom Sen, Chanwur, Casheenat,h, Munsu Ram, Hurdour, Rutnoo, Huree Ram, Jhark,hund Eesder, Kall Sen, Bisharee: oft times they are the spirits* of good men, Brahmins, or village Heroes, who manage when they become objects of worship, to be generally considered very malicious devils; and oft times they are nothing but mere epithets of the Dii Majores. In some places their images are of male, in others of female, figures. In many places the villagers, for fear of misrepresenting their Gram Deota, erect a stone without form or feature; like the si Deo si Deæ of the Romans, which ambiguous expression was addressed to their tutelary gods, to obviate all chance of mistake.*

• An instance is mentioned by Lieutenant Colonel Sleeman in his "Rambles and Recollections" of a Village settlement having been made with the Ghost of a former, instead of with the living, Incumbent.

The worship of these village gods is fixed to no stated day. In some places, it occurs on the 14th of every month; in others, on the full moon of Cheyt; at others, on the full moon of Katik, and so on.

It has been supposed by Doctor Stevenson of Bombay, that these Deewars, or Grama Deotas, are the remnants of the Ante-Brahminical Religion; but the supposition cannot be received as correct regarding our Provinces; though it may be conceded with respect to the Gods of the South of India that there are many circumstances of their worship which are not of Hindoo origin. (See "Bombay Literary Transactions;" "Journal R. A. S." No. IX. and X., "Buchanan's Eastern India," Vol. II. pp. 138, 352, 478; and "Wilson's Hindu Theatre," Vol. I. p. 21, and Vol. II. p. 64.)

Dehoola, ১০০০ বিছুলা dihúla

See DHAN.

Dehneemee, טאיגאא दहनीमी dahnímí

Five per cent.—Dehli. The literal meaning is, half of ten.

Dehree, ड्राइट डेहरी dehrí

A marshy Soil.—See Duhr.

Densunnee, ১৯৯১ বৃह্বনী dahsaní

Belonging to ten years. A book comprising the collections, accounts, registers, &c. of ten years.

The book generally known as the Dehsunnee Kitab was compiled in the year 1210 F. S. with the aid of the Canoongoes, • Propterea veteres Romani, cum in omnibus aliis vitæ officiis, tum in constituendis religionibus atque in diis immortalibus animadvertendis castissimi cautissimique ubi terram movisse senserant, nuntiatumve erat, ferias ejus rei causa edicto imperabant; sed dei nomen, ita ati solet, cui servari ferias oporteret, statuere et edicere quiescebant; ne, alium pro alio nominando, falsa religione populum alligarent. Eas ferias si quis polluisset, piaculoque ob hanc rem opus esset, hostiam SI. DEO. SI. DEE. immolabat, idque ita ex decreto pontificum observatum esse M. Varro dicit: quoniam et qua vi, et per quem deorum dearumve terra tremeret incertum esset. Auli Gellii Noct. Attic. Lib. II., Cap. XXVIII.

Mootuvullees, and Cazees, assembled at Bareilly for the purpose of shewing the quantity of land in occupation of the Mafeedars. In it the name of the occupant was sometimes recorded, sometimes that of his son, and sometimes, when neither could be ascertained, the name of the original grantee.

"The Dehsunnee Kitab" was compiled with a view of meeting the changes of property attendant on two revolutions; the usurpation of the Rohilla Patans, and the conquest by the Nawab Vizier. Two columns of this Register exhibit under the description of Malik Qudeem and Malik Hal, the ancient proprietor known to the Canoongoe records and the more recent occupant."

Bengal Revenue Sel: Vol. I. p. 319.

Dehund, ८७३० दिहन्द dehand

A Persian word, signifying one that is willing to pay, or give; a good payer.

Dehyek, এএ১ বিস্ত্যক dahyek

An allowance of 10 per cent. which used to be given to the Amil as his profit, and for the charges of Mofussil management. See Sec. 6, Reg. II. A. D. 1795. In the Printed Glossary it is called Dahyck.

Land ploughed, and ready for Rubbee crops.—Bundelcund. Land prepared for cotton after having been cropped with Gram, —Saugor.

Deola, ১১ এত টুবলা deula

Mounds. High ground.—Eastern Oudh.

Deorha, তেই ট্রন্ডা deorhá

One and a half; used to express interest in kind on grain, at the rate of 50 per cent.

KK

Deot, Han, ديوتهاي देवडान deot'hán

See Dit, Hwun.

Des. ريسي देख dés

Titerally country; a term applied in Rohilcund to cleared villages on the borders of the Turaee. In the Deccan it is used much in the same way to signify a champaign country. See Journal R. A. S., Vol. II. p, 212, and the printed Glossary, under Des and Desh.

It will be seen by referring to the Map of Dustoons, that a large tract has been excluded from Sircars Sumbhul and Budaon which might be supposed to have belonged to them. The fact is, that the Districts on the Northern boundary either belonged to Kumaon, or were altogether unknown. Even those which are entered in the ancient Registers as being in Sircar Kumaon, have no recorded area; Such as Gudurpoor; Suhujgeer now Juspoor; Dowazda Kote, now Kota; Chinkee, now Bilheree and Subna; Bhòòksar, now Kilpooree and Ròòdurpoor. great portion of this tract was included in the Chourasee Mal, of which the boundaries are given in the article Chourasee. It was known also as the Nouluk, hee Mal; but what portion of the present Des was included in, or excluded from, it, is very doubtful. The idea of this Tract ever yielding, as its name implies, nine lacs of rupees, is surprising to us who view it in its present state; and the name of Nouluk, hee Mal notwithstanding its avowed prosperity from the time of Akber to Aurung zebe, particularly in the reigns of Tremul Chund and Baz Buhadòòr, may with some reason be deemed an exaggeration.

That these wild regions yielded, not long before our accession, more Revenue than they do at present, is easily accounted for by the intestine troubles of Kumaon on the North, and of Rohilcund on the South, which induced a large refugee population to resort to them for security; and that they have somewhat deteriorated of late years may be accounted for by our early assesments having been too high, which has necessitated present deductions; and by a withdrawal of some portion of its population, which has been induced by the quiet and security which prevail in more favored spots in the neighbourhood. Notwithstanding, however, their apparent deterioration, there can be little doubt that the Des is gradually encroaching upon the Turaee, and that there is prospect of further improvement by a judicious application of the abundant means of irrigation which nature has placed at our disposal.

We may be pretty certain that, even in the most palmy days of the Nouluk, hee Mal, the Des had not advanced into the Turace so far as it now has, and that it was chiefly the Northern portion of the Turace which was so prosperous under the rule of the Kumaon Rajas.

The fact of the Mahomedans not being able to extend their dominions to the foot of the Hills proves that the portion beyond the Des must have been nearly, if not quite, as inhospitable and insalubrious as it is now; for we cannot but conceive, that nothing would have protected it against aggression but a thick belt of jungle on its Southern border, which would have invested that Tract with more terrors than thousands of That there was no indisposition to acquire territory in that direction we know from two invasions of the time of Akber, though he professed to have given a Sunud to the Kumaon Raja, Roodur Chund; * and that there was no strength in the Kumaonees to oppose them, if the Mahomedans had determined on it, we know from their appeals to Roostum Khan for assistance against the Kut, heryas; from the easy occupation which was effected for a short time by the Imperial General, Uzmut Odllah Khan; from the purchased retreat of the Robillas after their first invasion; and from the feeble resistance offered at a later period to the Goork, has. indeed, from the establishment of the Mahometan Empire down to the present time, we cannot contemplate any period when the Des, or the cleared plain, was cultivated so far to the North as it now is. What the Turaee may have been in olden time it is not possible to say; but there are many symptoms of the Tract having enjoyed a prosperous state long antecedent to the times of the Chund Dynasty, when there was probably no Turace, but what was marked by rich cultivation and populous abodes of man.

Ròòdur Chund was the son of Kulyan Chund, who established Almorah as the capital. Ròòdurpoor was founded by Ròòdur Chund.

The occasional remains of ancient buildings and aqueducts assure us that it enjoyed an early period of prosperity, and the allusions in the Drama of Sacuntala to the Scenery in the neighbourhood of the Malin, which falls into the Ganges near Bijnore, could scarcely have been applicable, had the features of the country not been greatly changed since the time that Calidasa wrote. We cannot be far wrong in supposing that it followed the fate and fortunes of the Goruckpoor jungle, which, from the Chinese Travels lately published, we know to have been the site of flourishing towns before the fourth century, and to have presented signs of growing deterioration in the seventh, when the Buddhist religion was approaching the period of its extermination in India. From this time to the occupation of the Mahomedans, the History of India is a complete blank, and scarcely can we extract a single fact from the voluminous Puranas, which, notwithstanding Colonel Vans Kennedy's emphatic denial, are now pretty well acknowledged to have been compiled at this comparatively late period.

In the Mahomedan Histories the gloom is but little dispelled; but whenever we have allusions to these districts, we find every cause to suppose that the country was at least as wild as it is now. All beyond Amroha, Luk,hnor and Aonla is spoken of as a desert, which the Imperial troops fear to penetrate.

The most northerly position ever mentioned is that of Kabur, when it is marked as the boundary of cultivation at the close of the thirteenth century, in allusion to some Revenue Reforms introduced by Jalal-ood-deen, the first of the Khiljy dynasty. But, beyond this, there is not any where to be found the remotest allusion to crossing even the Ramgunga, except when Feroz Shah is represented to have come for several successive years to Sumbhul, to carry his inroads into the country of the Kut,heryas; and, in another instance, when we hear of an Imperial Commander having pursued the Kut,heryas from Budaon to the Hills, but not till they had endeavoured to secure their safety in the Jungles of Aonla, which are said by

Abd-ool-Kadir Budaonce to extend round that place no less than twenty-four Coss.* The exaggeration is evidently great, but if the statement is even partially true with respect to Aonla, we may be sure that the country under the Hills was not in much better condition.

We then come to the period alluded to at the beginning of this article, when, during a few years of the Moghul dynasty, the prosperity of the Tract in some measure revived; but it was not long before it again declined, for even in the time of Mahommed Shah, we find the neighbourhood of Casheepoor thus described by Sheikh Yar Mahommed, an acute observer, who wrote an amusing account; of his Embassy of condolence to the Kumaon Raja, Devec Chund, in A. H. 1130.

هر آینهٔ از صعوبت راه ر رنب صعود ونزول گهاتی و شعب جبل و دامنگریهای خا زار و کوه و بیابان چگودم این همه شورش ومستی و جوش و خووش آفاز مشغرلی که شاهصاحب بملاحظه آن سیر کوهستانوا تجویز فرموده بودند فور نشست لیکن ذرق شوق بار و باد پیرست در عرصه چهار روز الموره کمایون مازل گاه شد *

Not long after this, we find the Jesuit Tieffenthaler thus describing the commencement of the route from Roddurpoor to Almorah,—" On traverse d'abord un desert long de 20 milles, dans le quel on trouve des arbres extremement hauts:" &c. &c.

So that, after all, these districts do not present a very unfavourable contrast with their condition under the preceding administration. Enough, at any rate, has been adduced to shew, that there was no occasion to place the Des boundary of Budaon and Sumbhul in a more advanced position than has been represented in the map.

* و در سن احدي و عشوين و ثما نمايته خضوخان بر سر كتهر آمد و هرسگه ديو مذكور تمام نتهر را خراب كردانيده در جنگل انوله كه تا بست و چهار كرده محافظ آنست در آمد جنگها كرده آخر منهزم شده بكره كمايون وفت و تاچالملک از آب ريت گذشته تا كره تعاقب او نمود و ازانجا ببدارن آمد

† This appears in a collection of letters entitled "Insha-i-Culunder" which has been printed in Quarto in Calcutta, under the title of "Dustoor-ool-Insha." There are some interesting allusions in this work to the early progress of the British in India.

Deswal, كيسوال देखवाल deswal

A tribe of Tugas who hold about twelve Villages in Baghput.

Dhada, তিতিও ঘারা dhádá

Water falling from above; a waterfall.—Rohitcund. The word is perhaps a corruption of Dhara, a flowing stream.

In Saugor, Bhudbhuda is used in this sense; but its general application is somewhat different.—See Bhudbhudana.

Dhahima, ওঁতাতিও ঘাইনা dháhima

A tribe of Rajpoots recorded amongst the 36 Royal Races. They were the lords of Biana, and bore a high name for deeds of chivalry. Colonel Tod considers the tribe to be extinct, ("Annals of Rajasthan," Vol. I. p. 119,) but they have three or four villages in Baghput. There are also Dhahima Aheers and Dhahima Jats in the same neighbourhood.

Dhak, তিএট ভান্ধ dhák Dhaka, ১০০ট ভান্ধা dháka Dhak,ha, থেটেট খান্তা dhák'ha

Names of a tree, (Butea frondosa.) The bark furnishes an important exudation called the Pulas gond, or Bengal Kino; and a strong kind of rope is also made from the root, called Bukel. It has also many other uses. Its wood is valued for coating wells, and it is also much sought after for the purpose of making a hom, or sacrificial fire. The flowers are in clusters and bright red. When pounded, they produce an excellent yellow dye, which is frequently, amongst other purposes, applied to form the Holce powder. The Talcef-i-Shureef says, that "when the white flowers are found, and any one shall eat the seeds, his heart will be cleansed, his understanding increased, and he shall be endowed with supernatural knowledge." The common Dhak which is found all over the uncultivated plains of Northern India is a stunted tree, and never attains the height that it does in, and under, the Hills.—See Chheeool and Puras.

DHAKURA, তুর্তিও ঘান্সর্। dhákara

A tribe of Rajpoots who hold a few villages in K,hundoulee in the Agra District, Juleysur in Muttra, and Dehli Juk,hun in Etawa; and are scattered over other parts of the Central Doab and Rohilcund. We learn from the letters of Eezud Bukhsh that this tribe gave the Imperial Officers in the neighbourhood of Agra much trouble at the beginning of last Century. The following Extract is otherwise interesting, as showing the defenceless and dilapidated condition of Agra even at that early period.

فكيف درين ايام كه بسبب توجه رايات عاليات شورش عام گشته مگر العال واقعه نگاران قلم در زير خاك اند و سببش اينست كه اكبراباد شهرپناه ندارد و اكثر عماراتش ريخته و كمينگاه دزدان شده و اطرافش مفسدان و متمودان سادنند بالفعل يكي از آنها ايراني دهاكره است زميندار موضع بالم پرر متعلقه پرگنه جنوار جاگير وكلاے سركار عالي متعالي كه هفت كرده از شهر ميباشد و چرن از فوجداران آن فواهي و عاملان سركار دولتمدار هراسي در دل ندارد از اتاره تا مستقرالخلافت سر گرم دزدي وقطاع الطريق است و اكثر بندگان از پاس ادب بارجود رسيدن يي داكه وغيره اغماض كرده اند و چندي بند هم تفافل كرده بود چرن ديد كه بے تلع و قمعش امنيت شهر و رالاصورت نمي بندد و بند روي بند و ب

DHALA, প্রতিও धाला dhála

Collections levied from Asamees to cover village expences, generally at the rate of one anna to every rupee, or a seer of grain to every maund of actual produce.—Rohilcund.

In the Central and Lower Doab and Saugor it is generally used in combination with Juma, as Juma Dhala, and is synonymous with DHAR-BACH q. v.—Dhala literally means a stream, a current, and the word may be considered to be applied as above, on account of the even rate at which the contribution is levied. There is no great certainty in this derivation, because in many parts of Central Doab it is pronounced without the aspirate, Dala; and hence may be derived from the Sanscrit द्रा, to divide or tear asunder: whence Dal and Dulea, split pulse. If this is the correct origin, it affords a strange coincidence with the landed tenure called Dal, both by our Gaelic and Saxon Ancestors.—Dal* is a farm, or division of land, occupied by one tenant; from a word which is found in all the Northern languages, signifying to divide, and therefore in evident connection with the Sanscrit दल. Thus, anglo-Saxon dæl, whence our English deal, as to deal, cards; dale, a feature in a country which divides it into different sections; and dole, a portion of food dealed, or doled. out; the Gothic dail; the German teil, and theil, the origin of the barbarous Latin taliare: whence, though the Italian tagliare, and the French tailler, we have our * A familiar instance of the use of Dal, as a division of land, occurs in the Dal-moors of Somersetshire, which till the year 1811, when they were enclosed and allotted, were annually divided on a principle which was in strict consonance with the Juma dhala, or dala, of our Upper Provinces.

&quot;In the parishes of Congresbury and Puxton, are two large pieces of common land, called East and West Dolemoors, (from the Saxon dal, which signifies share or portion) which are divided into single acres, each bearing a peculiar and different mark cut in the turf; such as a horn, four oxen and a mare, two oxen and a mare, a poleaxe, cross. dung fork, oven, duck'snest, hand-reel, and hare's-tail. On the Saturday before old Midsummer, several proprietors of estates in the parishes of Congresbury, Puxton and Week St. Lawrence, or their tenants, assemble on the commons. A number of apples are previously prepared, marked in the same manner with the before mentioned acres, which are distributed by a young lad to each of the commoners from a bag or hat. At the close of the distribution each person repairs to his allotment, as his apple directs him, and takes possession for the ensuing year. An adjournment then takes place to the house of the overseer of Dolemoors, (an officer annually elected from the tenants,) where four acres, reserved for the purpose of paying expences, are let by inch of candle.

Collinson's Somersetshire, Vol. III. p. 586.

In Hone's Every-Day Book, Vol. II., pp. 917-922, a full account is given of this singular custom, and amongst the details we cannot but recognize several practices which bear a very Indian aspect, such as ascertaining the correct length of the measuring chain by marks cut on a religious edifice, the using a chain for these lands shorter than the usual standard, and the leaving of Shamilat lands, under the name of "out-let," or "out-drift," for the payment of expences.

English tailor, a cutter or divider of cloth, and the law-terms tail, and tallage, metaphorically used for a part of a man's substance, carved out of the whole, and paid by way of tribute.

DHALBHOL, לאוליאָפּל ਫालभाल dhálbhol Complete transfer by sale.—Kumaon.

Dhamian, טלאיבוט ঘাদিযান dhámián See Bishnovee.

DHAMUN, তুলিত धामन dháman

A grass, of a good quality, which is found in the Bhuttce Territory.

Dhan, এতিও धान dhán

The Rice plant. Very many kinds are grown in these provinces. Those best known in the North-West and Rohilcund, are Basmuttee, Hunsraj, Racembonea (called also Bundlee and Tilokchundun), Kumoura, Moteechoor, Peela, Soonkhur, Jubdee, Soongkhurcha, Sohagmuttee. These are all of superior quality. The inferior are Anjuna, Chukòòa, Badamee, Dulgunjna, Unundee, Kuldhunna, Seodhee, Sat,hee, and Seoda.

In Saugor, the most common kinds are Maltee, Secamjeeroo, Nõõnga, Layuchee, Dilbugsa, Anterbed, Tilsein, Butroo, Seink, hir, Deodhan, Khõõraban, and Jhunasar.

In the Central part of these Provinces, we find the names chiefly of Deokula, Doodhee, Sat, hee, Bakee, Raeemodnea, Butasee, Nourungee, Doonkhurcha, Loombha, Moteechoor, Kala, Hunsraj and Basmuttee.

Those cultivated to the Eastward and in Benares, are, for the most part, Bugurce, Dehoola, Doodha, Mòdimòdree, Selha, Nunhya, Raneekujur, Reengun, Nyndos, Basmuttee, Jirea, Kaleejeer, Nynsook,h, K,huttur, Biringphool, Bungulea, Bungkee, Soombha, Selhee, Moteesirree, Rat, Rachhog, Moteejhool, Nourungee, Khurtur, Sumdondur-phen, Hunsraj. Of these the best kinds are Nyndos, Basmuttee, Hunsraj, Nynsook,h, and Biringphool. Basmuttee, and Hunsraj appear to be the only kinds which are known generally by the same name. The varieties are still greater in Behar and Bengal.

It appears from Abool Fuzl that the most noted varieties of his time were the Sook, h Doss of Bharaich, the Dojcerah of Gwalior, and K, hunjun of Rajowry.

1)HANA, তেতীঠে চানা dhána

The Gond portion of a village, which is always separate from the rest. Also applied generally as Muzra, Nugla, or Poorwa in the North-West.—Saugor.

Dhandok, আনুস dhánuk

This tribe is employed as archers, fowlers, and house guards, and is engaged in several menial occupations both of the house and field, wherever they reside. The females are especially in request as midwives.

Dhandoks are descended, according to the Padma Purana, from a Chumar and a female Chandal. From Dhandoks have proceeded the Aheryas, (from aheer, game,) who are also occupied as fowlers. Aheryas are said not to consume dead carcases, as the Dhandoks do. Of Dhandoks there are reported to be seven sub-divisions—Loungbusta, Mut,hdorea, Kut,hurea, Jyswar, Magahi, Dojwar, and Chhilatya. These do not intermarry, or even eat or smoke together. They mix indeed so little with one another, that an individual Dhandok is seldom able to mention more than two, or at most three, of these names as belonging to his fraternity.

There are several Dhanòòks in Dehli, and they are scattered over the North Western Provinces; but Behar is the country in which they most abound.

DHANWYEA, טאונף ט धानवद्या dhánwaiyá
A thrasher, or seller, of rice.—See Burwar.

Dhap, טפּוֹטֶ צוֹים dháp

One-fourth of a Coss.—See Dhupea. Also applied to a G,hat, or passage. A large expanse of low ground.

DHAR, JES SIE dhár

A heap of corn.—Benares. It is called more correctly Dher in the North West.

267

DHAR, JIDS ER dhár

A hollow tree inserted in the mouth of wells in the Turaee, to keep them from falling in.—Robilcund.

Dhar or Dhara, is also used in the sense given under Dhala and Dharbachh: it is frequently pronounced Dharòòa.— These words may either be cerived from Dhala, as above mentioned, or from Dharna byes, to place down, to impose. The word is entered in the Printed Glossary under Dara.

Dнаквасин, دهارناچه धारवाक dhárbáchh

Dharbachh means any even or general distribution; but the term is chiefly in use in the Central portion of these Provinces to denote an imperfect Putteedarce Tenure, in which part of the Village lands is held in common, and part in severalty; the profits of the land held in common being first appropriated to the payment of the Government Revenue and Village expenses; and the balance, whether under or above, being distributed among the proprietary body according to the extent of their respective holdings.

Dharbachh, in short is synonymous with the meaning most generally given to Bachh in the Western Provinces, and Beeg, hadam in the Eastern: under which latter term the tenure has been properly described in the Printed Glossary.—See DHALA and DHAR.

DHAR-DHOORA, ४, عاركا धारधूरा dhárdhúra

The boundary formed by a stream. The changes in the course of streams form a frequent subject of disputes, which are settled on this principle, especially in Robitcund, by determining where the deep stream flows; from Dhar, or Dhala, a stream, and Dhoora, a boundary.

The principle is very good where land is gained by gradual accretion, but is open to objection where the lost lands are capable of identification, and is opposed not only to the sensible maxim, Quod vis flumines de tuo prædio detraxerit et vicino prædio attulerit, paiam tuum remanet,—but to Regulation XI of 1825, which was based on the decisions of the Sudder Dewanny Adawlut, and the replies of the Law Officers, and which regulates the principle to be observed in such disputed cases, wherein a law of immemorial usage does not prevail. The consequence is, that even where the Dhardoora law is acknowledged, the decisions in these extreme cases are not found to be uniform.—See Code Napoleon, p. 154. Note to p. 251, Vol. III. of Harington's Analysis; and p. 146 of Notices of Suits, by Moulavi Mahomed Bakur.—See also on the subject of Tyberiads (i. e. Maps drawn up to shew the extent of river encroachment,) the 4th Book of the Bigarrures du Signeur Des Accords, p. 7—a curious old work, to which Swift has, without acknowledgment, been indebted for many of his best jokes.

DHARDHURNA, UDO धार्धरना dhárdharna See Dhureeana.

Dне, аउ д dhe

See JAT.

Dнее, СФ 3 dhee

A high bank of a river .- Saugor.

DHEEHA, टेब्स् टीहा dhiha

Rising ground; mounds. Decha is similarly used.

DHEEMUR, کھیمر धीमर dhímar

A caste of Hindoos, chiefly employed in fishing. They are, properly speaking, a branch of the Bearer, or Kuhar, caste; though they are sometimes said to be offshoots of Mullahs, or Boatmen.

DHEENK, HUR, अद्रांद्रिक दींखर dhínk'har

Is the name applied to the bundle of thorns tied together, and drawn by bullocks over corn, for the purpose of beating out the grain. It is also used as a harrow for eradicating grass and weeds from ploughed land.—Dehli and Upper Doab.—See Pholsee, and Tuttee.

DHELA, মুদ্রুত हুলা dhelá

A clod of earth.

Dhen, ভূতিত धेन dhen

A Milch Cow.

DHENKA, ধর্মেট্র টকা dhenka

Dhenkee, टिब्रांडेड हिंसी dhenkí

An instrument for pounding Rice, Tobacco, &c. It is worked like the Dhenklee, and is similarly derived.

Dhenklee, তুর্মামী dhenklí

A machine for raising Water, consisting of a horizontal lever with a weight at one end, and a bucket at the other. The name is provincially corrupted into Dhooklee, Dhiklee, and in Goruckpoor into Dheokul. The word appears to be derived from Dhulkana UCLES to roll, to overturn. The posts which act as the Fulcra are called T, hoonya; the rope, Burt; and the bucket Kurwala.

Dhenree, उंग्रेंडी dhenrí

Has the same meaning as Dhondh.—See DHONDH.

Dheree, इंग्रेंड हेरी dherí

A heap.

In the Upper Doab, it is used to signify a sharer, principally in landed property.

DHERH, 85. Све dherh

Name of a Caste found in these Provinces, chiefly in the Saugor Territory. The name is also applied to Bhungees and Chumars. They eat dead animals, clean the skins. and sell them to Chumars. In the Nagpoor Territory, they have acquired some consideration from their employment as Dulals.

In the Deccan they are said to be the same as the Mahrs of the Mahrattas, (Journ:  $R:A:S:\dot{p}.$  224.)—See also the Printed Glossary under Dheda and Dheyr.

In the Western Provinces, though they are now not often found in any numbers, they appear to have left the remembrance of their name, for it is common term of abuse to call a man a Bura Dherh, or a low-caste fellow.

In Rajpootana, Dherhs will not eat hogs, either tame or wild: the latter they hold in great abomination, notwithstanding their Rajpoot Masters look upon them as a luxury.

DHINGA, খিন্স ঘিনা dhinga

Dhirhor, ठिक्ट डिंहोर dhirhor

A tribe of inferior Aheers in Benares and Goruckpoor. They are reckoned in the Tushreeh-ul-Akmam amongst the Doab Aheers.

Dhobee, کھوبی धोबी dhobí

A Washerman. This is considered one of the lowest Castes of Hindoos. Of Dhobees, as of several other of the inferior tribes, there are generally reckoned to be seven sub-divisions. Canoujca, Mug,hya, Puguhya, Belwar, Bat,hum, Siree Bat,hum, and Bhurka. The Canoujea are to be found chiefly from Canouj to the borders of Behar, and extend into Goruckpore. The Mug,hya and Belwar throughout Behar. The Puguhya in Rohilcund and Furruckabad. The Bat,hum, and Siree Bat,hum in Beiswara; and the Bhurka from Mynpooree and Etawah to the far West. About three-fourths of this latter clan have been converted to the Mahomedan faith. None of these tribes eat, or drink, or marry together. They are as much strangers to each other, as the members of any other caste.

The seven sub-divisions are not retained under the same names in other Provinces. In Behar, for instance, we meet with Ajodhyas and Gosars, which are not in the above list.

DHOKA, ४५७०७ धोका dhoka

See DUBEA.

DHOKA, ১০০ টালা dhoka

Small stones of an inferior quality, extracted from the Chunar quarries. In Regulation XXII. 1795, the names of several other stones are mentioned, such as Chowka, Huorsa, Solee, Janta, for grinding; and for building Dapa, Chupeta, Aubhote, Boojoutee, Putera, Puttea, K, hoont, h, K, humha.

Dнок,нл, ধি তত ঘাজা dhok'há

A scarecrow; from a word signifying deception. In Rohilcund, the term Oojka is sometimes used; in the Central Doab, Ojhuk and Ojpo; from Oojukna, to start, to be alarmed; and for the same reason, a scarecrow is called Duranur in Dehli. Oojukna does not appear to be in Shakspear's Dictionary. It may be a corruption of Oochukna is to rise, or Bijhukna is to be alarmed.—See Bijhaah and Dhooha.

Dhoncha, इं, केंउ धेंचा dhonchá

Four and a half. The word is found in Arithmetical Tables of the Multiplication of Fractions, which are in constant use with our Surveying Ameens, when reducing their linear measurements to Beeg, has. The words used by them in Fractional Multiplication are.

Deorha,	डेवढा	डि. टे.स्ट्र ब	11/2
Dhuma,	धमा	دهما	21/2
Honta,	हांटा	هونتا	31/2
Dhoncha,	धांचा	دهو <sup>ن</sup> چا	4}
Poncha,	पांचा	پو <sup>ن</sup> چا	51/2
K,honcha,	खेांचा	كهونچا	61
Sutoncha,	मतोंचा	ستر <sup>ن</sup> چا	71

The size of the fields rarely requires Ameens to go beyond this.

DHONDA, اکنونتی धांडा dhondá DHONDEE, کھونتی धांडी dhondí

A grass which grows in rice fields, and sometimes chokes the plant. It produces an ear, and the seed is frequently used by Cultivators for making bread. In some places, as in the Barreilly District, it is called But; and in Eastern Oudh, Dhownee. It appears to derive its name from Dhan, rice; if we may be allowed to judge from the following familiar couplet, in which both words occur.

वाए ये धान होगैय! धेांडा

क्या खाएगा लें।डा

Boe t,he dhan, ho gya dhonda, Kya k,haega lounda.

"Dhonda has sprung up where dhan has been sown. What will the children get to eat?"

DHONDH, نتع نته dhondh

A capsule, or seed vessel; especially of the poppy, cotton, and gram.—See also Dhoonner.

Dнообе, وهوي धूई dhúí

Soaked Pulse.

Dиоон, УФБ हुह dhúh

Elevated ground in the midst of ravines.—Oudh and C. Doab. It is perhaps the same word as Dhòòs; though written with a different D.

Dноона, هو قامون و dhúhá

A scare-crow. Dhooha, or more correctly Dhooa हुन्या also signifies a clod or mound of earth, raised as a boundary mark. These mounds are about four feet high, and fixed round the limits of each Township, at the distance of about two hundred yards from one another. In the Scriptores Rei Agraria.

there are some Plates appended to the treatise of Hyginus de Limitibus constituendis, in which it is strange that the ordinary conical shape of our N. W. Boundary mark does not once occur; but the "Sepultura militaris in finem" bears some resemblance to the Masonry Pillars raised round British-Indian Cantonments. This deficiency is still more remarkable, when we consider that the Goal of the Roman Circus must have borne a close resemblance to our rude forms, - "Metas imitata cupressus," says Ovid, (Metam: X. 106); and again Tacitus, (Hist; II. 4) speaking of the Paphian Venus, says "Simulacrum dew non effigie humana; continuus orbis latiore initio tenuem in ambitum, metæ modo exsurgens, et ratio in obscuro:" which latter declaration, considering the nature of the worship of that Deity, is somewhat extraordinary. As the Dhooha is merely made of earth, it requires constant renewal and repair. From the Extract given from Arcadius Augustus (Script. R. A., p. 259), it would appear that the Boundary marks of some of the Eastern Provinces were of coloured marbles, and raised at a distance of four feet from one another. In India we might spare the marble but we ought at least to have the brick .-See Damcha, Doula, Hudbundee, and Odabundee.

Dhoondee, ونتي টুরী dhúndí

The pod of Gram, (cicer arietinum).—Benares. The correct word is Dhendee, or Dhenree, q. v. It is also in Benares and many other places called T,hont,hee. It is known by the local name of G,hittree in Rohilcund, Tat in Dehli, Dhowree in Bundlecund, and Dhoondh, and G,hentee in some places. When it is somewhat unripe, it is called Putpur, Chutka, G,hegura, and Sutpur, in different parts of these Provinces. See Dhondh, and G,hegura.

Dhòòndhotee, فهندهوځي धुंधोटी dhundhotí

Is the name given to a tract of country in the Goorgaon District, in possession of the descendants of Choudhree Hursroo, one of the twenty-one sons of Raja Sungut.—See Chouhan.

The Alunote Chouhans are found in Beeg, hoto, Dhoondholee. Chandain, and Rat,h. All these names are of mere local ap-In the Public Registers they are not known, nor are they known much beyond the boundaries of the tracts them-Beeg, hoto includes the whole of Rewaree, and much more, both to the West and East. Chandain is generally reckoned to be a part of Beeg, hoto, but has been considered for It includes the greater part of Tavosome time past separate. roo, and derives its name from the twelve Villages of Chand Chouhans, who are descendents of Suhes Mul, another son Rat,h is the largest of these districts, and is of Raja Sungut. for the most part included in Ulwur. The principal places within this tract are Mundawur, the chief of which has the title of Rao, Neemrana, the chief of which has the title of Raja, Biroda, the chief of which has the title of Rana, Lahnotce, Beejwar, Kote-Pootlee, Hursoorun, and Narnoul.

Dноок, בשפנ gt dhúr

The twentieth part of a Biswa. The word is little used in the Upper Provinces, except in Benares.

Also, the name of a coarse grass.

Dhòòra, שמנא dhura

A Boundary. The word is used chiefly in the Doab and Rohilcund, and is sometimes pronounced Dhòòra.—See Dhardhoora.

DHOORKUT, قوركت dhúrkat

An advance of rent paid by Asamces to Zemindars in the month of Jet,h and Asarh.—Benares and Eastern Oudh.

The expression is derived perhaps from Dhoola dena, to take in, to wheedle, and Katna to cut: or it may be from Dhool lugna to suffer loss, from Dhool a thump, a slap.

Dhòòs, ਪੁਰ dhus

A sloping elevation of ground; and hence applied to the glacis of a fort. Sterile sandy eminences. It is also the name of a soil in some parts of the Lower Doah and Benares.— See DHOOH.

DHORA, ४७०० होरा dhora

Dhora, or Dhola, is the name of an insect very destructive to stored Chuna.

It is also applied to the mound of earth raised by the side of a ditch.

Dhoul, دهول धोल dhaul
Dhour, کا کاور धेार dhaur

A kind of Sugar Cane. - Rohilcund, Upper Doab and Dehli.

Dhouree, کھوری धोरी dhaurí

A corruption of Adhource (from adha half); a bull's hide cut into two pieces.—Dehli.

Dhudda, তিত্ত ভরা dhadda

Dhuddee, তেত্ত ভারী dhaddí

A term applied to low ground.—Rohilcund.

Dhuja, এক্র ঘলা dhajá

A standard, a slip of cloth. Dhuja, or rather Dhoja, which is more in accordance with the Sanscrit East, is also the name given to the pole, with a strip of cloth attached, which is erected in fulfilment of a vow near some place of worship, by a person who has succeeded in any important object. It is also the name given to the standard tied to a tree, or raised in some elevated position, on the Punun Purecch, ha the last day of the month Asarh. From the direction of the wind at sunset on that day, the people draw their auguries of the coming season. On this occasion the Bunyas, or grain-dealers, are observed to be more anxious consulters than the Agriculturists, and their anxiety gives rise to the saying of Bunya ka pance. This is the response, if the pendant shews a westerly wind, and indicates the probability of a dry season If a little more favorable, it is Kôômhar ka pance, or suitable to Potters, as they also delight in dry weather. If from the North, moderate rains may be expected, and the answer is Malee ka pance, or suitable to gardeners. If from the East, copious rains are to be looked for, and the season is said to enjoy Dhobee ka pance, or a deluge sufficient to satisfy a Washerman. These sayings, though not general, have currency in many parts of the country, especially in Brij.

Dhundhoee, والمنتقوى dhandhoi

The scum of the Sugar Cane juice, of which half goes to the Jhokya, and half to the Jheemur.—Dehli. It is called also Mullee. The corresponding word in Rohilcund, Benarcs, and Bundlecund is Mylea; in the Doab, Putoce and Ludo.

Dhunea, এটাত ঘলিয়া dhaniá

Coriander Seed. (Coriandrum sativum. Linn:)

Dhungul, كَلَكُلُ ਬੰਗ dhangal One of the 12 Pals of Mewatces.—See Pal. Pulakura, Mewatee.

Dhunkur, प्रांके धंकर dhankar

A stiff soil producing Rice (Dhan), which can only be ploughed and sown in the event of sufficient rain falling.

Also, a field which has been cropped with Rice during the previous season.

Dhunt, HEA, प्रिंडिंग dhant'hiá

This also signifies a field on which Rice has been cut.—
Rohilcund.

Dhupėa, کھپیا dhapiá

A short coss, from Sanscrit ঘাত্ৰ going or running; from which also is derived Dhap, a fourth of a coss, or that distance which a man is supposed to be able to run without stopping to take breath.

DHURAWUT, ज्रिक्ट धरावट dharawat

Land ascertained and apportioned by estimate; not measured. Benares.—See Regulation LI. 1795.

Dhuree, তুটিত ঘরী dharí

A measure of five seers.

DHUREEANA, धीर्याना dhariyana

To separate the good from bad grain;—to winnow. The word is used throughout the North Western Provinces, but the process is usually called Dhardhurna in Dehli, Sooretna in Rohitcund, and Oosana in Bundlecund; but this latter as well as Bursana, is also general in the North Western Provinces.

DHURINGA, کا धीरंग dharingá
A kind of Rice.—Rohilcund.

DHURMATUR, בשל अमातर dharmatar A charitable grant: from Dhurm justice, religious obligation.

Dhurmgour, ארק ארני dharmgaur See Gour Brahmin.

DHUROHUR, کاروی धरीहर dharohar Deposit; from Dhurna, to place.

DHUROUKEE, کهروکی धरीकी dharaukí

To ascertain by guess, in case of a dispute, as to the quantity of land in actual cultivation, on which to estimate the Juma.

—Eastern Oudh.

DHURTA, טשניט צהו dhartá

Discount and Commission. Applied to increase of demand upon land; also to an item entered according to usage by Bankers in excess of Cash advanced; being generally about three per cent.—Saugor.

Dhurtee, अंग्रेड धरती dhartí

Land; the earth; from the Sanscrit Eq. dhura. We have the same word in the Welsh dhairar, Latin terra, Greek era and German erde; but the two last may perhaps be more closely connected with the Sanscrit Eq. ira, which again is probably met with in the Hebrew erets, and Arabic

Dhuruk,ha, ধ্রিট্টাত ঘরজা dharakhá Dhurulla, ১৯০ ঘরজা dharallá

A scare-crow.—See Вілидан, Dнок,пл, and Dноопа.

DHURWAEE, که وائي धडवाई dharwáí

The Putwaree who weighs grain.—Dehli. The word is derived from Dhuree, a measure or weight of five seers, which is generally considered his perquisite at the harvest.

Dhusan, ভালি dhasan
Dhusun, ভালি বিদ্যাল dhasan
Dhusao, ভালা বিদ্যাল dhasao
Dhusum, ভালা dhasao

A swamp, a quagmire: from Dhusna to sink into, to enter.

Dig, এ दिंग dig

Dig, or Dik, is one of the regions of the earth, of which there are reckoned to be ten. They are frequently called by the names of their supposed regents; as Eesan for North-East, Neyrit for South-West, Agni for South-East, Bayu for North-West, &c., &c. These regions are more usually considered to be eight: but there are in reality ten, by adding Ananta and Brahma, the regents of the nadir and zenith. "Decem mundi partes pro omnes mundi partes, quarum octo quæ sunt hyperbolice decem dicuntur." Lassen, "Anthologia Sanscritica," P. 234. See also Richardson's Selections from the "Mahabharat," P. 91; Lassen's "Gita Govinda," P, 84, and Bopp's "Nalus," P. 198.

Dig,Hee, ८६७० दिघी dig'hí

A large oblong tank; corrupted by the English into Diggy.

Digwar, उर्हमवार digwar

A Watchman: literally, a protector of the different quarters, or points, of the compass. See above, under Dig; and Deegwan and Degwar in the Printed Glossary.

Dık,нıт, ভাষ্টেও दिखित dik'hit

A tribe of Rajpoots inhabiting the Pergunahs of Kootea, Futtehpoor, Ekdulla, Mòòtour and Ghazeepoor in the Futtehpoor District. They have also sixty or seventy villages to the North of Beiswara in the Oude Territory, in a tract called after them Dik, htan, and several in Bundelcund and Benares. The Dik, hits of Puchotur in Ghazeepore are called Puchtorea. They give their daughters in marriage to Sombunsee, Rug, hbunsee, Guhurwar and Beis, and take from Seyngur, Donwar, and Kousik.

The correct denomination of this clan is Deck,hit, but Dik,hit accords better with the ordinary pronunciation.

Dir, しょ दिल dil

A small eminence; the site of an old village.—Benarcs. Called in the North West, Dheeha, Poot, ha, Teela, T, heh and T, hera, (which see).

DISHTBUNDHUK, dishtbandhak

८००००० दिष्टबनधऋ

The pledge of real property, being that which the debtor can keep in view, such as land, houses; &c. from disht sight and bundhuk pledge. Hypothecation. It is not much used in the North West, except in Benarcs.—See BHOODUNDHUK.

Dit, Hwun, ভুগুট বিভৰন dit'hwan

The Ekadushee, or 11th, of the bright half of the month Katik; which day is also known by the name of Bodini. On this day a ceremony is observed in celebration of Vishnu's return from his slumber of four months, during which he is represented to have been with Raja Bul in Patal, or the infernal regions.

May Vishmi's shrinking glance
Yield peace and joy—as waking from his trance
His opening eyes are dazzled by the rays
From lamps divine that blaze:
Those eyes that with long slumber red
Ambrosial tear-drops shed,
As pillowed on his snake-couch mid the deep
He breaks reluctant from his fated sleep.

Mudra Rakshasha.

No marriages and but few festive ceremonies have taken place in the meantime, and the Dit,hwun is the signal for their commencement. Houses are cleaned, and smeared afresh with cow-dung, and the fruit of the Sing,hara and Ber, and Chuna-ka-sag, and other dainties of the season may be lawfully enjoyed.

But amongst Agriculturists it is more especially celebrated for its connexion with the cutting of the Sugar Cane. All Hindoos of correct habits will carefully abstain till this day from touching the crop; but on the Dit,hwun, a little is taken from the corner of the field, brought home, and spread out for the reception of the Saligram, which, in due form, is lifted up several times; an action significant of Vishnu's rising from his slumber.* He is waked, according to the Mutsya Puran, by this incantation. "The clouds are dispersed, the full moon will appear in perfect brightness, and I come in hope of acquiring purity to offer the fresh flowers of the season: awake from thy slumber, awake, O Lord of all worlds."

* This fable bears a curious resemblance to one of the most remarkable fictions in the Egyptian and Syrian Mythologies, viz. the annual disappearance and resurrection of Horus, or the Solar Osiris, and the lamentations for Adonis and the joy at his restoration. These as well as the Deot, han of India, bear evident reference to the Sun's annual motion. See Macrob: Saturn: Lib. I. Cap. 21, and the authorities quoted in the Fêtes de la Nature, Vol. I., p. 125.

When this worship is duly performed, and the officiating Brahmin declares the fortunate moment for beginning operations, the cutting is commenced. The whole village is a scene of hilarity; and dancing and singing are the order of the day—

Et Cererem clamore vocent in tecta; neque ante Falcem maturis quisquam supponat aristis, Quam Cereri tortà redimitus tempora quercu Det motus incompositos, et carmina dicat.

Georg. I. 350.

Dithmun is variously called Dutound, Dyten,* Dushtoon, Dutaon according to the degree of ignorance in the speaker. The proper name of the ceremony is Deot,han, or "the standing up of the God." In Shakespear's and Smyth's Dictionaries this is said to occur on the second day of the moon of Katik Shuklpaksh; but that festival is usually called Bhyadooj, Jumdootya, or in Sanserit Bhratri dnitya, on which day sisters feed and pay some kind of ceremonial worship to their brothers.

What the ceremony of Dit, hmun is to the Sugar Cane, that of Armun is to the Shamak, h and Barley grain.—See Armun and Jooree.

Dobiswee, তুংলণ্ড ইারিদ্রবী dobiswí

An allowance, reduction, or cess of two Biswas out of twenty; or ten per cent. The right of the Zumeendar in land, as Malikana is in money. Dobiswee is frequently given by Mafeedars to Zemindars, particularly when they are not confident of the validity of their tenure.

Docha, ४३०० दोचा docha

Docha or dohcha, is the second reservoir to which water is raised by the Beree and Dourse for the purposes of irriga-

It is strange that in England Dyten used to mean a Harvest-Home Song. Bishop Kennetn, in the Glossary to his Parochial Antiquities, says Homines de Hedyngton ad curiam Domini singulis annis inter festum S. Michaelis et festum S. Martini venient cum toto et pleno Dyteno, sicut hactenus consueverunt. This, he adds, is singing Harvest-Home.—"Pop: Antiquities," Vol. 11. p. 18.

tion. The third is called Tehcha, and the fourth Chouncha. These words are used chiefly to the Westward. To the East other terms prevail.—See Dourse.

Dofuslee, وفصلي दोफ्सली dofaslí

Lands producing two crops a year. It is also known as Dohur, Dosaee, Dosahee, and Joot, helee.

Dogur, ८१७ दोगर dogar

A tribe scattered over various tracts of the North-West of There are a few in Hansi, Sonam, and Feroze-Hindoostan. poor, which latter place, together with a considerable tract along the bank of the Sutlej, they held for a long time during the last century in almost undisputed sovereignty. Their occupation is divided between pasture and plunder. They are Mahometans, and state that they were originally Chouhans; but the Caim Khanee, and other converted Chouhans of those parts will not acknowledge the fraternity, asserting that Dogurs were nothing but Jats and Goojurs. This appears to be the case, notwithstanding all their emphatic negations. Dogurs are held in no consideration by their neighbours, but in former times they were much dreaded on account of their predatory habits, which a civilized neighbourhood and a strong Government compel them now unwillingly to relinquish.

Their personal appearance is in their favor. They are a tall and muscular race, and are generally remarkable for having large aquiline noses.

Dohao, ८००० देाहाव doháo

The Zemeendar's perquisite of milk from Ryuts' Cows.

Dohlee, ८००० देवहनी dohlí

Service land; applied in the Dehli Territory, as Bounda in the Doab.—See Bhoonduree. But in many places within that Territory, it is only that land which is given to Brahmins, Dohlee, or Dohree, is also applied there to the perquisite of Fukeers at harvest time.

Dondor, १००० देहिं dohur

A sandy sub-soil. -Central Doab.

Dohra, ४,०,० दोहरा dohra

See Colhoo,

Dohur, ८०० देाहर dohar

The old bed of a river.—Eastern Ouds. Johur is elsewhere used in the same sense.

Dohur is likewise applied to land which bears two crops in a year.—Central Doab.

Dojeera, ४ دوجيره दाजीरा dojíra

A kind of Rice-See DHAN.

Dok, Hee, ८६३० देखी dok'hi

A raised mound indicating the junction of two boundaries.—

Dehli.

Dol., قرل ভীল dol

Applied locally to signify the richest black soil.—Baitool.

Dol is generally used to denote a bucket for drawing water.

The Sanscrit Dol दान means swinging, a swinging cot, a doolee; and thus our Hindee word may be derived from it, because buckets in a well follow each other on the same rope in succession, and revolve in a swing. In Arabic likewise Jo or Jo (Hebrew Door), the root of the word Doulut, wealth, is defined by Golius to be, "Conversa fuit, pecul: per vices et periodos, fortuna," and it is also applied to the revolution of well-buckets. Hence Jo is the name of the sign Aquarius.

دلو ابکشي را گرينه ر برج دلو را نيز گفته انه که برج يازههم از درازده بررج فلکي باشه

See "Boorhan-i-Kata," and Trans: R. A. S., Vol. II. p. 388.

Thus it is that Doulut, though now almost exclusively applied to prosperity and wealth, originally meant the vicissitudes to which wealth is subject. "Circuitus. Periodus. Conversio temporis ac fortunæ, pecul. in felicitate."

In Persian also, Dol Dolab, and Dolaba mean a revolving wheel of buckets for drawing water, such as is usually called a Persian Wheel, and such as is used in the Dredging Machine stationed near Woolwich; and hence in Oordoo, Dol is written either with the Persian or Hindee D.

The Latin Dolium, a cask would seem to have its etymon in this word.

A well having two Laos, or well-buckets and ropes. Dopuera is also used in this sense.

A small bucket.—See above under Dol.

Said, in the Printed Glossary, to be a race of Out-castes: Slaves in Cuttack and Kumaon. Their history is worth enquiring into, as they seem to be one of the aboriginal tribes of India. Tradition fixes their residence to the North of the Gogra, touching the Bhurs on the East, in the vicinity of the Rohini. Several old forts testify to their former importance, and still retain the names of their founders, as for instance Domdiha and Domungurh. Ramgurh and Suhunkote on the Rohini are also Dom forts. Buchanan considers that the Doms are the same as the Dom Kutar (Domtikar). ("Eastern India," Vol. II., p. 453.) He also conceives that the Doms expelled the T,haroos, and were afterwards expelled by the Bhurs: but this order of precedence cannot be admitted.—See T,haroo.

There are several Doms, or Domras scattered over the Western Districts of these Provinces, and in Bundlecund and Saugor, who are engaged in the menial occupations of making ropes, fans, mats, and such like articles. In Oudh the term Dom is applied to sweepers as Bhungee and Choohra are elsewhere.

Dom is also the name of a tribe of Mussulmans, descended from Bhats. They are perhaps more generally known by the name of Meerasee and Puk, hawujee. The name of Meerasee is abbreviated into Meer: and thus the Meers of the Kala Nuddee, after whom Meerapoor is called, having assumed this distinguished title, are frequently able to conceal the truth of their being really descended from the Meerasee Soorkh.

Domtikar, उद्भार होमंडिकार domtikar One of the sub-divisions of Surwurea Brahmins, q. v.

Domut, ज्या देशमर domat

A mixture of two Muttees or soils, clay and sand, Muttyar and Bhoor. Like Dorus, in some places it is considered the first quality, in others, the second quality, of soil. In Agra, Furruckabad, and parts of Bareilly, it is considered the best, but it is more usual, as in Budaon, to rate it as second quality.

Don, كون قi don A fractional division of an estate.—Ghurwal.

Dongee, ट्रंथेंगी dongí

A small boat;—from which our Dingy is derived.

Donwar, उंडे डानवार donwar

We find Zemeendars of this mixed Rajpoot-Brahmin tribe in the Pergunah of Sidhòda Johna in Goruckpoor; in the Pergunahs of Havelee, Kurenda, and Sydpoor Bhitree, of Ghazeepoor; and in Careat-Mitteo, Mahomedabad-Gohna, Secunderpoor, Bhudaon, and Mownat,h-Bhunjun of Azimzurh. They call themselves T,hakoors, but they are generally considered Bhoonhars, or Military Brahmins. Even those who claim Brahminical descent marry into Rajpoot families, so it becomes doubtful in what class they ought to be included. They were strong enough at one time to establish a principality on the Kosi in Western Tirhoot, and there are several monuments still existing in that neighbourhood which attest the power of the Donwar Raja, Kurna Deo. The word appears to be pronounced indifferently, Donwar, Dunwar, and Dòdnwar.

Doob, ट्व dúb

Name of a grass: (Agrostis linearis, Kæn. Cynodon Dactylon, Royle). "Its flowers in the perfect state are among the loveliest objects in the vegetable world, and appear through a lens like minute rubies and emeralds in constaut motion from the least breadth of air. It is the sweetest and most nutritious pasture for cattle, and its usefulness added to its beauty induced the Hindus in the earliest ages to believe it was the mansion of a benevolent nymph."—(Sir W. Jones' Works, Vol. V., p. 78).

There are generally considered to be three kinds of Doob. The best, which throws out the creeper-like stem, is called Pounda. This is essentially the same as the fiorin grass of English Farmers. The second, which is smaller, grows on hard ground, and is called K,hootya. The third is called the white Doob from its peculiar colour, and is used by native practitioners as a medicine in fevers. This is called by Wilson ("Sanscrit Dict.," p. 279) Gundalee. In Dehli it is frequently called Dhouree. In Saugor the K,hootya is known under the name of Chhuttoo. Where the division into three kinds is not known, the recognized varieties are Ghòòr-doob and Bun-doobca: the first being derived from G,hora a horse, as it is excellent pasture grass: the second from Bun a forest, or jungle, as it is a coarser kind.

The nutritive qualities of Doob have caused it to be a great favorite with the natives of India, and frequent allusions are made to it by the Poets. Its tenacity whenever it once fixes its roots has caused it to be used in a common simile when the attachment of Zemeendars to their native soil is spoken of.

Nanuk Shah also, in exhorting himself to humility, uses the following simile respecting the modest charms of this herb.

नानक नन्हा हा रहा जैसी नन्ही दूव चौर घास जल जाएंगा दूब ख़ुब की ख़ब

Nanuk nunha ho ruho jysee nunhee Doob,
Our g,has jul-jaenge, Doob khoob kee khoob.

Doobaee, उंधुञ डूबाई dúbáí

A term sometimes applied to a bribe, given whether the donor gain or lose his cause; in distinction to Turaee, in which the bribe is returned if the suit is lost. The words are used in the Doab and Rohilcund, and their existence indicates a degree of refinement in the art of bribery which, perhaps no other language can parallel. The origin of the terms is, in the one case, doobna w.5 to sink, to be immerged; and, in the other, turna v, to pass over safely, to be ferried.

Dòòве, دبی दुबे dube

8ce Canoujea Brahmin. Shakespear spells it دربي

Dòòbsee, قبسى दुबसी dubsí

Inundated land, or land liable to be flooded; from Doobna ti, 5 to sink, to be immerged.

Dòòbsee, अंग्रे दुवसी dubsí

The Per-centage allowed to Government farmers on the Revenue paid to Government; formerly 10 per cent, i. e. 2 biswas' produce out of 20—Saugor.—See Dobiswee.

Doodha, Laoo द्या dúdhá

A species of Rice.—See DHAN.

Dòòdka, एउँउ डुडका dudká

Is the name of one of the many diseases to which the rice plant is subject. There are various others, as Bugòòlee, Kutree, Pòòrwaee, Kunsee, &c. &c. &c.

Dòògdha, LDOSO दुगधा dugdha

A tribe of inferior Brahmins on the borders of Futtehpoor and Allahabad. They date their origin from the time of Jye Chund, who figures in so many fabulous legends of those parts. A certain Pande Brahmin, by name Burroo, set up his abode as a recluse in Pursuk, hee, between Shahzadpoor and the Ganges, and withdrew himself entirely from worldly concerns. credit as a holy man was so great, that Jye Chund became anxious to see him, and promised to reward any person who would bring him into the presence. After several unsuccessful attempts by all the Chief Officers of his Court, a woman of the Rajpoot tribe, and of great personal charms, ventured on the difficult undertaking. Her wiles and blandishments could not be withstood, and before long the holy Hermit confessed himself father of several children; and as the lady succeeded in the object of introducing him to an audience with Jye Chund, a grant of several villages was bestowed upon her. On the death of the Hermit she is said to have married a Kazee, but it is not probable that such a connection took place at the early period of the Mahometan conquest. However, she divided the inheritance, it is asserted, amongst her children. Those by the Pande, who were Doogdha Brahmins, (i.e. of mixed blood) received 48 villages, of the greater part of which they are in possession to this day. The Moosulman descendants also retain some of the villages said to have been granted at the same time.

The Doogdhas are reckoned in no repute as Brahmins; indeed, they are properly Bhoonhars and are very indifferent about the rank of the families with which they intermarry, not unfrequently receiving the daughters of Rajpoots as wives.

A sling-basket of large size, round and deep, used for the purposes of irrigation.—See Beree, Bora, Dourse.

Alluvial formations. A mark of village boundaries.—See DHOOHA.

Is the name of the leather case in which Tea is imported from Tibet into Gurhwal and Kumaon. It contains about three seers, and bears a price of six or seven rupees. About one hundred Doomas are imported annually into Kumaon, which is consumed chiefly by the Booteas of the passes, and seventy Doomas into Gurhwal, of which a portion finds its way to Hurdwar and Nujcebabad.

Doon, et a dùn

A valley. The word does not appear in Shakespear's Dictionary, but it is locally applied in the Sewalik'h Hills, under the Himalaya, in this signification: as Patlee Doon, Dehra Doon. The word may perhaps be formed by elision from the Sanscrit Dronee द्वाची "the union of two mountains, the valley, or chasm between them," (Sanscrit Dict. p. 431); and hence, Dronakas "the people of vallies; (Vishnu Purana, p. 196). However this may be, we appear to have the word in the Celtic and Indo-European languages, as well as in the Arabic. It is strange that in all these families of languages words not very dissimilar, and in two instances identical, signify both depth and elevation. Thus, of the Arabic o, Doon, Meninski, following Golius, observes-" Quod inferius est, contemptibilis, vilis, sequior, ignobilis, abjectus; et contra, nobilis, eximius." (See also Foster's " Geography of Arabia, Vol. II., pp. 6 and 414). Thus, also, in English we preserve to the present day both the adverb, "down," to imply descent. and "down," the noun, to imply a sloping hill, an elevated plain, or hillock of sand on the Sea shore. The noun appears to be derived from Dun, which according to the Venerable Bede, signified a hillfortress in the ancient British language, and according to a passage quoted from Clitophon by Dr. Prichard, it had the same meaning in the ancient Gaulish, Dounon kalousi ton exechonta. (Prichard's Researches into the Physical History of Mankind, Vol. III., p. 126). Thus, Mari-dunum, Dun-raven, Dun-gannon, Dun-kirk. In the Toorkee, also, it appears to bear the same meaning. (Jour. R. A. S. Vol. VII., p. 300.)

We may seek for the origin of the adverb "down," which

Horne Tooke in the "Diversions of Purley" derives both meanings from the same word; on which Richardson observes, that he ought to explain how words used in two such different senses can possibly acknowledge the same implies descent, either in the Saxon Dene, which has precisely the same meaning as the Indian Doon, a valley, a glen,—and hence Tenter-den, and several other names which indicate situations in vallies: or we may seek for it in the Celtic Dyvyn which bears the same meaning, and in which we have the etymon of Devon, of Dumnonia, in the South-West of England, and of the Damnii of Scotland. The Cornish Britons named the country "Dunan;" the Saxons "Devnascyre;" "the shire of vallies." So that the Englishmen who have chosen the beautiful valley of Dehra Doon for their home, may find comfort in reflecting how nearly the name is allied to the county which contains some of the loveliest spots which deck their native land.

Doonda, دونتا dúnda

A Bullock with only one horn. The word is in general use; but in parts of Dehli it is applied to a Bullock with two horns, and Toonda to a Bullock which has only one.

Dòòndka, الندى दुन्दका dundká See Colnoo.

Doonga, آونگا dúngá

Deep. An excavation, such as that of a trough; a canoe.

Dòònganee, ट्रंगानी dungání A small fractional division of an Estate.—Kumaon.

Dòòrk, HEE, درکهی दुर्खी durk'hí

An insect whose ravages are very destructive to Indigo, when the plant is young.

Dòòrugbunsee, درگابنسي दुर्गवन्सी duragbansi

Name of a clan of Rajpoots who hold villages in Gurwara, source. This, however, is no very strong objection, for many words, as in the Arabic Doon, acknowledge the same source, while they have a double meaning; and thus, Dike, in English, is either the raised mounds by the side of an excavation, or the cavity itself; and so with several other words. Richardson excribes a different origin to the adverb Down from that given in the text, but though he follows Tooke and Camden, his derivation appears somewhat forced.

G,hisòda, and Raree in the district of Jounpoor, and Mahddl in Azimgurh. The Raja of Gurwara is a Dddrugbuns. They are descended from Deek,hits, and came to the neighbourhood of Jounpoor from Simounce in Bundelcund, about fourteen generations ago. Their relative position in the rank of Rajpoots is shown by their giving daughters in marriage to Chumurgour, Bandhulgotee, Tilokchundee Beis, Sombunsee, Soorujbunsee, Surneyt, Bug,hel, and the Guhurwar of Kuntit. Their sons marry into the families of Chundel, Powar, Goutum, Rug,hddbunsee, Oojen, and the inferior grades of Beis.

Don, 5,5 होड dor

A tribe of Rajpoots, said by Tod to be extinct. Before the immigration of the Birgoojurs, they were the chief proprietors of Alligurh; and a remnant of them now exists in Dubhaee, Atrowlee, Coel, Shikarpoor and Burun. They are now nearly all Mahomedans. The whole of Koondurk, hee and Scondaration Moradabad were also held by the Dors, where they have now been almost entirely supplanted by the Powars. They hold also several villages in Scondha in the District of Banda, as well as in the Saugor territory, so that they are far from being extinct, though most of them have abandoned the faith of their forefathers. They are included among the 36 Royal Races of Rajpoots, and Pirt, hee Raj has honored them by raising a tablet in commemoration of a victory gained over them.—
(See Trans. R. A. S., Vol. I., p, 133.)

Don. )90 देख dor

Land ploughed twice. When ploughed three times, it is called Tcoor; when four, Chuwur.—Central and Lower Doab.

—See Dosuree and Jael.

Doree, ८००० डेारी dorí

A chain, or line, with which lands are measured.—See Douree.

† The old name of Seondara was Deora, so called after this clan.

* These names are applied specifically, as well as generally, as will be shewn in their respective articles.

Dorus, ८००० देश्स doras

Used in the Eastern Districts, as Domut in the North-West, to signify a mixture of two soils, Muttyar and Bulòòa, clay and sand; and, like Domut, is in some places, as in Azimgurh, considered the best quality; in others, as in Goruckpoor, the second quality of soil, except in Tilpoor and the Forest Pergunahs, in which the Muttyar is considered too adhesive.

Dosahee, ८०००० देशिही dosah

Dosahee, or Dosaee, signifies lands yielding two crops a year.
—See Dofuslee.

Doss, الله दाव dás

This name, which literally means slave, is borne chiefly by men of the Bunya caste, by Byragec Fukcers, and occasionally by Kayet, hs and Brahmins. It is usually coupled with the name of some deity, as Shib Doss, Narayen Doss, &c. &c. to imply subjection to some special tutelary God. It is a mistake to suppose that is the name of a particular family, as was asserted by a celebrated statesman, who when inveighing against the treatment of some Doss of Lucknow, stated him to be a member of "the Doss family, one of the most distinguished in India."

In the time of Akber, we find it was not uncommon for Rajpoots also to bear the name of Doss. Thus, we read of Raja Bhugwan Doss, the Cuchhwaha, who was the father-in-law of Jehangeer, and grandfather of Sooltan Khòòsroo, and who is stigmatized as the first who sullied Rajpoot blood by a connexion with the Imperial family of Dehli. The name is now seldom given to Rajpoots, except to illegitimate children.

Dosuree, ८००० देास्री dosarí

The ploughing of land twice. The land itself when ploughed twice. When ploughed three times, it is called Tesuree; when four, Chousuree.—Dehli.—See Dor and Jael.

Dour, قول डेंब daul

Estimate of assets for the purpose of assessment. Doulnama was the name given to the extract from this estimate, which was made over as a Potta to the party who was to pay the Revenue.

ةرلنامة كه آنرا يتم كريند برعايا بدهم ر قبرليت از رعايا بكيره "Extract from the "Kitab-i-Qanoon."

Doula, पृउ डीला daula

A boundary. In many English games, as in Barley-break, and occasionally in Football, the limits are the Doules; and stones, which are used in boundaries to divide land from land, are termed Dowle, or Dole stones. Thus, in the Homily for Rogation week, "accursed be he who removeth his neighbours doles, or marks." These words are always derived by Lexicographers from the A. Saxon dael to divide, a word which has been already noticed under Dhala; but Dowle, Dool, or Dole are so distinctly and almost uniformly used in the sense of boundary only, that there seems no reason why there should not be some independent connection between them and the Indian Doula.

Doungra, ४, दें।गडा daungra

A heavy shower. The author of the "Araish-i-Muḥfil," in his Preliminary Chapter on the praises of Hindoostan, speaks of the Asarh ke Doungre فرنگتي Samun kee Jhuryan مرنگتي and Bhadon ke Durere

Dour, 300 देंस् daur

The slings attached to a basket for irrigation. The more usual terms are Jòdta and Jotee.

Dourana, किन्न दीडाहा dauraha

A village Messenger.—See BULAHUR.

Douree. ७०० दीरी dauri

The rope which binds the bullocks together when threshing.

This is the general name, but there are many others in local use, as Gundawur, Damree, Gurawur, Danwurce, Puk,hur, and Jor. The stake to which the bullocks are tied is called Mend, (limit); and hence Mendhya, the inner bullock. The outer or off bullock is called Put in Benares, Pug,hurea in Rohilcund, and Pankururee in Dehli. Dource, which is spelt both with the Hindee and Persian Dal, appears to be derived from Dor, a string, a rope; whence Dorca, lace. In the Gypsy language, Dorce, which means a ribband, is perhaps the same word.*

Dource is also used to the Eastward in the same sense as Puro-HA, Beree, Chihapa, Boka, Doogla, or Lehuree, to signify a sling basket used in irrigation, and is generally made of split Bamboo. It means also the act of throwing the basket, as Dource luga, "irrigation by Dource has commenced."

The lowest reservoir from which the water is raised, is variously styled Nyanec, Gonra, Nandhoo or Nudhao. It is raised from that to the Puchoo, and from that again to the Thouka. The raised bank between the Nandhoo and Puchoo is called Odee; and the place where the throwers stand on each side of the Nandhoo is called Puchha.—See Odi, Oolaha, Reek, H.

DRAGOMAN,

An interpreter, as in the Glossary, but not used in India. This familiar word is a corruption of the Arabic, Turjuman ترجمان a translator.

In old English Travels he is called a drugger-man, as well as a truchman or trudgeman, which is much closer to the original.

From the Hindee dubna, to be pressed; a term applied to Dorya, a Dog keeper, is also similarly derived, because he is presumed to lead dogs with a string. Dorce dalna also is to prolong the stitch of a quilt, or dress; and hence is applied, metaphorically, to the lengthened note of the Chittee.

The Chittee is the female of the Amaduvade, or Avaduvat (Fringilla Amandava,) i. e. the Fringilla of Ahmedabad in the Deccan, for so the word has been corrupted by the Naturalists.

about ten handfuls (Moott,ha) of Khureef produce. Lehna is the word used in the same sense with respect to Rubbee produce. About four Mòòtt,ha make a Lehna; about four Lehna, a Dubea; about five Dubea, a Bojh; and about a hundred Bojh make a Puhec. Five Dubea of Khureef produce amount to a Dhoka, and about ten Dhoka make a Bojh, or load, and an aggregation of several Bojh make a Kòòndur. The application of all these words varies very much in different Districts, and even in different Pergunahs. The text represents the words used chiefly in the Eastern portion of these Provinces. See Koondoork,ha K,hurnee, Puhta, Santree, Seinka, Lehna, Puhee and Puhta.

Dubehree, ७५५७ दवेहरी dabehrí

Is the name given to a light kind of plough in the Western parts of Oudh and Rohilcund. In Eastern Oudh it assumes a masculine form, Dubehra, and is there applied to a large ploughshare.

Dubra, ठार्ड डबरा dabra

A marsh, a puddle, a small pond.

A small field, applied synonymously with Tupra.—Upper Doab.

Dubree, अंड डबरी dabrí

Division of profit amongst the village community according to their respective shares.—Upper Doab.

Ducн, हुउ दच dach

Homestead .- Eastern Oudh.

Dudree, ८००० ददरी dadrí

Unripe corn, chiefly barley, which is cut from time to time, and brought home to be eaten, instead of being taken to the threshing ground. The word is in general use, but Alo, Arwun, Awasce, Kuwul and Kuwuree, are also terms in local use.

Dufturee, अंद्रितरी daftarí

A man employed in preparing and taking care of articles of Stationery, and in ruling or binding sheets of Paper for official purposes.

Dugur, उँ डगर dagar

A path. The word is derived from Dug, a pace, a step;—now rarely used, but we find it in the familiar couplet describing the fertility of Malna, which is given in the article Gumbheer.

Duhendee, ुउंग्रंडे दहेंडी dahendí

A vessel for holding duhee, or sour milk. Dohnce is the name of the vessel which holds doodh, or fresh milk.

Dunia, ब्राह्म ५०० दहिया dahiá

A field. Land near a village.—Benares and Saugor. Also a tribe of Jats met with in the Pergunahs of Rohtuk, K, hurk, houda, Mandout, hee, Panceput and Sooneeput-Bangur. The name perhaps is more generally spelt with a Hindee D.

Duhlan, अधिक दहलान dahlan

A tribe of Tugas on the banks of the Hindun in the Upper Doab.

Duhmurda, उब्बर्धा dahmardá

A cart smaller than a Garce and Chhukra, and larger than a Rehloo.—Rohilcund. The name is derived from its capacity to carry ten men. It is also called a Doburda or Dobulda, the origin of which is different, being derived form a word signifying two bullocks.

Duhotura, ८०० दहोतरा dahotara

Tithes. An allowance, or tax, of ten per cent; from duh, ten.
—See Dehyek.

Duhr, १९०८ दत्र dahr

Duhree, ८०० दहरी dahrí

Stiff clay soil, (in low ground). It is usually applied to a marsh or any inundated land in Dehli.

Dunul, ८०० दहल dahal

Sometimes used as Duldul, for a quicksand or quagmire, from duhulna to tremble, to shake. In an Extract from a History written in Jehangeer's time, and ascribed to Ferishta,—(the author seems wrongly quoted)—it is stated that the name of the Imperial city of Dehli is derived from this word—the ground on which it was built, being so loose and infirm, (duhul) that tent-pins could not be fixed in it.

و دهلي از شهرهاي قديم و جديد است و در شهور من سبع و ثلثمايته ارديت واجيرت از طايفه توران در هندرستان قلعه اندريت بنا كوده چون خاك او بسيار نوم بود مين بدشواري درانجا استوار ميگرديد آن شهر وا دهلي موسوم كود

The same origin is ascribed to the word in the Noozhutu-l-Kròloob.

Histories usually ascribe a different origin to the name, saying that the city was founded by Raja Deloo. Common tradition differs from these accounts. It is universally believed that the name is derived from the sacrilegious attempt of the Tomur (Tooar) to see whether the iron pillar had really, as was supposed, penetrated the head of Suhesnag.

किल्ली ते। ढिल्ली भई तूमर भया मत हीन पहिले दीहली तूमर पीक्टे चै।हानु और पीक्टे मागल पठानु

Dillee to dhillee bhy, Tomur bhyo mut heen; Puhle Dehli Tomur, peechhe Chouhanu, Our peechhe Moghul, Put,hanu.

"The pillar was removed, by the folly of the Tomur, and their dynasty was followed by the Chouhans, the Moguls, and Put, hans." Colonel Tod says the name of Dehli was not given to the imperial city before the eighth Century.—Trans. R. A. S., Vol. III., p. 150.—See also Quart. Or. Mag., No. XVI., p. 133.

Duhur, کی उहर dahar

Applied in Benares, Oudh, Lower Doab, and Bundelcund to a road; elsewhere, Dugur or Dugra is used.—See Dugur.

Dukout, ७३७ उद्योत dakaut

A tribe of mendicants of Brahmin descent. They are considered to be proficients in astrology. The Bhudureas are a branch of the same tribe. Both are considered troublesome vagabonds.

Wild rice.

Dulal, ८४७ दलाल dalál

A tribe of Jats, who hold some villages in the Pergunah of Mandout, hee, Zillah Rohtuk.

Duldul, という दलदल daldal

A quagmire.

Dulea, प्रिंउ दिल्या daliyá

Any sort of split pulse, ground finer than Dal,—in which the seed is understood to be split only into two pieces.

The word is derived from the Sanscrit द्ल dividing, splitting.

Duleajhar, دیباجهار sिलयाम्नार duliyájhár

The conclusion of the sowing season; literally, the brushing out of the sowing basket. It is called by various other names as Còònr-mòòndna, Huriur, By-bhuree, and Còònr-Bojee. Amongst the agricultural population of the Upper Provinces, as in most other parts of the world, it is a season of joy and relaxation.

Villice, da requiem terræ, semente peracta,
Da requiem, terram qui coluere viris.
Pagus agat festum; pagum lustrate, coloni, fêt date paganis annua liba focis.

Ov. Fasti, I. 667—670.

Duleema, ८०५५० दलीमा dalíma

A clan of Tugas in Sirsa, a Pergunah of Moradabad.—See Gour Tuga.

Dulgunjuna, प्रंडंडिंड द्ल्गनजना dalganjaná A kind of rice.—See Dнам.

DULHARA, । दलहारा dalhará
A grain seller; from dal, split pulse.

Dumka, ८०० दमका damká

A Hillock .- Eastern Oudh.

Dum mudar, المعدار dam madár

The ceremony of performing the Dhummul, or Dum Mudar, is very popular with the agricultural and lower classes in Upper Hindoostan. It consists in jumping into a fire, and treading it out, with the exclamation of "Dum Mudar! Dum Mudar!" that is, "by the breath of Mudar, by the breath of Mudar." It is devoutly believed that not a hair of these devotees gets singed, and that those who have practised the ceremony are secure against the venom of snakes and scorpions.

Budee-òòd-deen Shah Mudar, in honor of whom this ceremony annually takes place, was, according to the Mirat-i-Mudarea, a converted Jew. He is said to have been born at Aleppo in 1050 a. d., and to have come to India in the reign of Sultan Ibraheem Shurkee; and having taken up his abode between Cawnpore and Furruckabad, and expelled therefrom an evil genius, called Mukun Deo, who infested the place, he gave the name of Mukunpoor to his residence, and was buried there in 1433 A. D. at the good old age of nearly four hundred years! The tomb, which is a handsome structure, was raised over him by Sultan Ibraheem. He is believed still to be alive, and hence is frequently styled Zinda Shah Mudar. The prophet Mahomet gave him the power of hubs-i-dum, or retention of breath, and hence arose his longevity, as the number of his respirations was diminished at pleasure.

There is a large concourse of people at his tomb during the first seventeen days of Jumadee ool-Uwwul; and the fair, or festival, is known by the names of Chhuree, Mednee, Churaghan, and Buddhee. The two ceremonies of Dhummal k,helna and Gaee lootana, which take place on the seventeenth of the month, are fully described in the Qanoon-i-Islam. Mrs. Meer Husun Ali tells us that women can never with safety to themselves enter the Mausoleum containing the saint's ashes, for they are immediately seized with violent pains, as if their whole body was immersed in flames of fire.

There is a class of Fukeers called Mudarea, after his name. They generally wear black clothes and are much addicted to the use of intoxicating drugs.—See Mudarea.

Dumree, ८००० दमडी damrí

In the Dehli Territory, the term is applied to the sub-divisions of a village. Thus, in Gopalpoor of Rohtuk, there are 150 Dumrees, each Dumree being equivalent to 25 kuchcha beeg, has. But Dumree is commonly known as a nominal Coin, equal to  $3_s^1$  or  $3_4^1$  Dams; or between 2 and 3 Gundas—so that a Dumree varies from 8 to 12 Cowrees, according to the good will and pleasure of unscrupulous Bunyas.

It may be useful to subjoin from the "Dewan Pusund" a table showing the value of Dumrees and Dam;

1	Dumree,	 	 31/4	dams.
2	Dumrees,	 	 61/4	dams,	1	chhudam.
3	Dumrees,	 	 91/4	dams.
				dams,	1	adhela.
	Dumrees

6 Dumrees, 183 dam	os, 4 puesa.
--------------------	--------------

7 Dumrees, ... ... 22 dams.

8 Dumrees, ... ... 25 dams, ..... 1 puesa.

9 Dumrees, ... ... 28 dams.

10 Dumrees, ... ...  $31\frac{1}{4}$  dams,....  $1\frac{1}{4}$  puesa.

11 Dumrees, ... ... 34\frac{1}{4} dams.

12 Dumrees, ... ... 37\(\frac{1}{4}\) dams,..... 1\(\frac{1}{2}\) puesa.

13 Dumrees, ... ... 40 dams.

14 Dumrees, ... ... 44 dams, ..... 13 puesa.

15 Dumrees, ... ... 47 dams.

16 Dumrees, ... ... 50 dams,..... 1 tuka.

The table is given with some slight variations in the "Zòòbdutu-l-Quwaneen," but in neither are the smaller fractional amounts given with correctness.—See Синидам, Gunda.

Dumuee, ट्रेंग्ड दमई damaí

Amount of assessment. The word is derived from the Dam of account, which was formerly used in Revenue accounts.—

Central Doab.

Dumwust, ट्रमवस्त damwast

An inferior tribe of Rajpoots in Tuppa Godzara, Zillah Benares.

Dunda, القات ਫनडा dandá

A collector of market dues, in which sense Dundea also is used. The beam of a pair of scales; the step of a ladder; a staff.

Dundazunee, كنتازنى डनडाजनी dandázaní

A mode of torture said in Mr. W. W. Bird's Report, dated 25th May, 1827, to have been practised by the subordinate Officers in the private domains of the Raja of Benares. It consists in fastening a man's arms behind his back with a cord, which is twisted round by means of a stick, so as to increase the tension until the pain inflicted by it becomes intolerable. The other modes were Awingillee, and Soondree Zunee.

Awingillee is compelling a man to stand astride with each foot on an inverted earthen vessel, placed so far apart as to endanger his dropping between them; while a Chuprassee stands by to flog him, unless he exerts himself as much as possible to keep erect.

Soondree Zunee is striking with a double flapper made of thick leather; although the particular instrument made use of at the Raja's Cutcherry was the leathern case of a Gudka, or single stick, stuffed with bran. It was used instead of a slipper to coerce the better sort of defaulters, as being less disgraceful.

Dundee, তেত্ত ভ্ৰভী dandí

A handle; a weighman; the beam of a pair of scales.

Dundwara, کندواری उंडवारा dandwara

A South wind. Khan Arzoo says it is sometimes, but improperly, considered to come from the opposite quarter—and that the real name of the North wind is Burbun.

Dungust, ट्रंगसत dangast

A clan of Rajpoots in Pergunahs Shadeeabad and Puchotur of Ghazeepoor.

Dungwara, ४,١٥٥ डंगवारा dangwara

Reciprocal assistance in tillage.—Dehli.—See Angwara, Huree and Jeeta.

Duntaolee, अंग्री दन्तावली dantáolí

A harrow, or rake; from Dant a tooth.

Dunt, HLA, प्रदेशना dant'hlá

The bare stalks of Bajra, Jowar and Indian Corn: apparently from Dant, a tooth; but it must be confessed the word is usually spelt with a Hindee Dal and Dant, null is so spelt on the high authority of Professor Shakespear, which, if correct, would militate against this etymology. They are also called K, hoont, hee, K, hoontla, Doond, Dunt, hul, T, hoont, K, hootel, and K, hobure. These names are in use in different places. In some, they represent the crop with the heads of corn cut off the stalks; in others they represent the roots which remain in the ground after the crop has been cut.—See Dutoee and Dant, H.

Dunt, Hul, کنتهل दंयल dant'hal

This word bears the same meaning; and is also applied to the roots of Chuna, remaining in the ground after the crop is cut.

Dur, ) दर dar

A rate; whence Durbundee, used to express the rate of rent of each field in the Township.—See Durbundee.

Duramud, ट्रॉजट darámad

A term in keeping the Itlaq; an account of fees paid for serving processes; the return of a process: from the Persian to come in.

Durantee, ८१ दरांती darántí

A sickle.—See DANTEE.

Durbundee, उपांज दरवंदी darbandí

A statement of the different rates of a village; also, assessing the price or value of crops or produce.

Dureys, ट्रांच dares

A road-margin; any line very straight. It appears to be derived from the drill-word "Dress," which has been introduced by our retired Sepoys into their native villages.

Durk, HAL, ८६८ दरखाल dark'hál A cattle enclosure.—Benares.

Durur, رر darar

A water-fall, or impetuous flood; corrupted apparently from durera 15250 hard rain.

Duryabòòrd, کریابری दिखानुदे dariyáburd Duryashikust, dariyáshikast

ध्यासिकस्त درياشكست

Lands cut away by encroachments of a river; from durya a river, and bòòrdun, to bear away, and shikustun to break.

Duryaburamud, dariyábarámad

مرابابر दिखाबरामद

Alluvion. Lands reclaimed from a river; from durya, a river, and duramudun, to accrue, to come up.

Duryaburar, دریابرار दियावरार dariyabarar See Duryaburamud.

Dusotura, ८०० दसीना dasotara

Ten per cent : from dus دس ten.

Dustee, دستي दस्ती dastí

A present given to native officials at the Duschra; from the Persian a hand.

Dustoor, उण्डें दस्त्र dastúr

As this word, which is perhaps a mere abbreviation of Dustoor-òòl-Umul, has been fully explained under Circar, this article will be devoted to a detailed consideration of the Map of Dustoors, and of the territorial changes which have occurred since Akber's time.

SOOBAH AGRA.

SIRCAR AGRA.

1 Huwelee Agre	a. ا المرابيور 17 Dholpoor.
8, lil 2 Etawa.	راپري 18 Rapree.
عراد عام 3 Od.	אס אין 19 Rujohur.
4 Odhee.	20 Sonkur سرت
اول 5 01.	.Sonk,hree سرنکهري
ه المجرارة 6 Bujwara.	21 Futtchpoor فتحرير
aili: 7 Biana.	ي که ترمر 22 K,hutomur
عاري 8 Baree.	ישאיש 23 Muhabun.
9 Bhosawur.	lycis 24 Mut,hoòra
10 Bunawur.	25 Muholec.
11 Toda Bheem.	ك منكوتله 26 Mungotila
بهسکر 12 Bhuskur.	27 Mundawu
جليسر 13 Juleysur.	י 28 Wuzeerpoo
ابار جنوار عنوار بابار عنوار	وع هندرن 29 Hindoun.
غوستَّې 15 Chowsut,h.	عتكانت 30 Hutkant.
افره مانوه مانوه خانوه مانوه	هیلک 31 Heeluk.

This Sircar is said to contain 33 Mehals, but none of the copies of the Ayeen-i-Akberee give the names of more than 31. The discrepancy is cleared up by referring to the Dustoor Statement, where we find the Bulda and Huwelee Agra, and the Bulda and Huwelee Biana, given each as two Mehals.

There are four Dustoors in this Sircar, viz. Hunelee Agra, Etawa, Biana, and Mundawur, of which the only perfect one which we retain is Etawa.

It will be observed that there are in this list several names of which we have now no knowledge, and Agra is consequently a very difficult Sircar to restore. The changes which have affected Agra more than other Sircars are attributable to the different dynasties to which this portion of the country has been subjected. Jats, Imperialists, and Mahrattas, have at different times imposed names of their own creation on their acquisitions, and have served thus to confuse the records of Akber's reign.

After excluding the Pergunahs which belong to the foreign Territories of Bhurtpoor, Jycpoor, and Dholpoor, we have in our own dominions the following of which the name no longer exists—Numbers 1, 5, 14, 16, 18, 25, 26, and 30.

1.—Huwelec Agra was divided by the Jats into several Chuklas, the distribution of which will be explained hereafter. Many of them appear as separate Pergunahs in the records of our first Settlements.

5.—Ol is a large village in the Pergunah of Furrah, held rent-free with others in the neighbourhood, in virtue of a Sunud given by Maharaja Dowlut Rae Scindia to Moonshee Chyt Singh. This tenure is sometimes known as Pergunah Beree. Ol no longer gives name to a Pergunah, Furrah having succeeded to its importance; as Soorujnul removed the Tehseeldaree Cutcherry to it, after he had plundered Ol, on account of the opposition he experienced from the Zumeendar of that place. A portion of the Pergunah of Ol is included in the Bhurtpoor Territory.

14.—Junwar. All the copies concur in writing the word thus, but there can be no question that it is properly Chundwar. It has been succeeded as a Pergunah by Ferozabad. Chundwar was built among the ravines of the Jumna by Chunder Sen, a Chouhan, whose Fort is still to be seen on the banks of the river, and is early conspicuous in Mussulman Annals. The "Tajòò-l-Maasir" tells us that it was near this place that Jye Chund encountered his fatal defeat. Shortly after the invasion of Timoor, we find the Chundwar Rajpoots in occupation of Juleysur, from which they were not expelled again till A. D. 1413. The precise date of the decline of Chundwar cannot be ascertained. The legends of the neighbourhood are completely contradicted by authentic history.

16.—Khanwa. The greater part of Khanwa is in Sirhindec, but the town of Khanwa is in the Bhurtpoor Territory. As the Jat Amil resided at Sirhindec, the name of that town was imposed on the Pergunah.

18.—Rapree has been superseded as a Pergunah by Shekohabad. Its position on the Jumna being more calculated for defence than for controlling collections. In all the copies of the Ayeen-i-Akberce, Raprec is recorded as in the Dustoor of Biana; but as this is impossible, on account of the intervention of Chundwar and Hutkant, we must presume it is a mistake; more particularly as a Doomrec is inserted in the Etawa Dustoor, which should of course be Rapree. In the early Mahometan History of India, Rapree obtains frequent notice, and appears usually to have been united with Chundwar under one Government. The ruins of Rapree opposite to Butecsur still remain to testify its former importance, but they are more of a Mahometan than a Hindoo character.

307

25.—Muholee is now included in the Pergunah of Muttra; and the village of Muholee is still extant about four miles to the South of that city.

26.—Mungotila is still the site of a T,hana in the Southern angle of Areeng. The Talookas of Sonk and Sonsa were included in it.

30.—Hutkant is on the left bank of Chumbul, and has been noticed in the article Bhudduria. On account of its inconvenient situation, the Jats removed the Tehseeldaree Cutcherry to Bah.

The Pergunahs now included within the boundaries of Sircar Agra, and of which no mention occurs in the Ayeen-i-Akberce, form an unusually long list.

المحدآباد 1 Sadabad. المحدآباد 2 Futtehabad. المحدث 2 Futtehabad. المحدث 4 Huzoor المحدث تصيل 1 Seekree. المحدث 5 K,hundoulec. من 6 Furrah. المحدث 7 Seekree. المحدث 8 Janibrast. المحدث 10 Shekohabad المحدث 11 Gihror.

الم كوهل 12 Kurhul. المباء 13 Becbamow. المباء 13 Becbamow. المباء 15 Ferozabad. المباء 16 Modstufabud. المبنك 16 Areeng (part). المبنك 18 Soneyee. المباء 19 Raya. المباء 20 Hat,hrus متسان 11 Maat. عاد 22 Sirhindee.

23 Sulipoo.

Sadabad.—In the time of Sadòòllah Khan, Wuzeer, who has acquired notoriety for his proceedings in Afghanistan, and the general ability of his administration during the reign of Shahjehan, this Pergunah was formed from about 200 villages of Juleysur and 80 from Muhabun, with a few from K,houndoulee; and a town was built in the centre of them, which he called after his own name, Sadabad.

Futtehabad, known also by the name of Zufurnugur, was included in the Huwelce of Agra, and formed part of the Tuppa of Shumsabad. The town and Sarace of Futtehabad were founded by Aurungzebe in 1067 Hijree, in commemoration of the victory obtained by him over his brother, Dara Shekoh.

Iradutnugur is formed from part of Shumsabad, and from Sunya, one of the Tuppas of Huwelee Agra. The towns of Sunya and Shumsabad are both within the Pergunah.

Huzoor Tehseel is formed from part of Gaog, hat and of Kakaroul, or Pultoura, and from Merhakur, Tuppas of Huwelee Agra.

Khoundoulee was one of the Chuklas, or Tuppas, of Huwelee Agra. It is frequently entered in the old records as little Cabul, or Tuppa Cabul Khoord. More than half of the present Pergunah of Khoundoulee has been taken from Chundwar.

Furrah is formed from Ol and part of Gao, ghat a Tuppa of Huwelee Agra. Achieva one of the many Pergunahs intermediately formed from Huwelee Agra by the Jats, is included in Furrah.

Seekree, or Futtehpoor Seekree, contains the Pergunah of Futtehpoor, and parts of Kuraolee and Karahra, Tuppas of Huwelee Agra. It is a mistake to suppose that Seekree was a mere village before Akber built his palace there. We find mention of Governors of that place long before his time. Thus, in the "Tuwareekh-i-Mòòbaruk Shahee" we find Mulik Kheirood-deen Tohfa recorded as Governor of Seekree even as early as the time of Syud Mòòbaruk; and we find it also mentioned in that voluminous compilation, the "Akbernama," that shortly before the battle of Khanva, which established the empire of the Moghuls, Baber, having obtained in the neighbourhood of Seekree some important advantages over Rana Sunka, directed that the name should be changed from Seekree to Shookuree, or "place of thanks." It is strange that the addition of Futtehpoor should have been imposed upon it by his son on similar grounds.

Janibrast. This Pergunah, so called from being on the right bank of the Jumna, and known also as Burreypoora, comprises other inferior Puttees, and Talookas. Kumeyt Puttee, opposite the town of Etawa, and Chukurnugur were included in Indawa and Bakeepoor, Tuppas of the Huwelee of Etawa. The Talooka of Sundous, known also as Purhara, will be treated of under Eerij.

Luknan remained attached to Etawa up to the time of Govind Pundit. It was separated when this tract of country came into the hands of the Nuwab Wuzeer. The Huwelee of Etawah comprises seven Tuppas.—1 Khas Huwelee, 2 Sutoura, 3 Indawa, 4 Bakeepoor, 5 Dehli, 6 Jak,han, and 7 Kurhul. Luknan is composed of portions of the two Tuppas of Indawa and Bakeepoor. Sutoura, as well as Huwelee Khas, are included in the present Pergunah of Etawah.

Shekohabad is composed of Rapree and parts of Tuppas Dehli and Jak,hun in Etawah. Shekohabad was not founded till the time of Dara Shekoh, the eldest brother of Aurungzebe.

Gibror, now a Pergunah of Mynpooree, was included in Rapree.

Kurhul, also a Pergunah of Mynpooree, was one of the seven Tuppas of Huwelce Etawah.

Beebamow is composed of parts of the Tuppas of Dehli and Jak, han in Huwelee Etawah. Beebamow, (Beebameyoo) where the Tehseeldar's Cutcherry is fixed, is a small village situated on the Sursoo Nuddee in the Pergunah of Jak, hun. Dehli (Deolee) lies between the Sursoo and the Seyngur Nuddees. Jak, hun is now uninhabited, but the ruins of the K, hera are on the Jumna. I should have been disposed to give the whole of Jak, hun to Rapree, in which it certainly was included before the time of Akber, for we find it expressly said to be a Pergunah of Rapree at p. 336 of "Baber's Memoirs," but the local Records distinctly state that Jak, hun has been from time immemorial considered a Tuppa of Huwelee Etawah.

Bah Punahut was originally Hutkant. Bah and Punahut, were rated as two separate Pergunahs during the early period of our administration.

Ferozabad succeeded to Rapree, being in a more convenient position to control the collections. It was built in the reign of Shah Jehan by a nobleman called Feroz Khan, on the lands of the five Mouzahs, Pempoor, Rusoolpoor, Dutowlee, Modhummedpoor, and Sook, hmulpoor; and the Jats subsequently raised a Fort here to the South of the town,—one of the bastions of which has now been converted into a Trigonometrical Survey Tower.

Modstufabad, sometimes called the second division of She-kohabad, forms part of Rapree.

Arceng (part). About one third of the present Pergunah of Arceng was originally included in Mungotila. The remainder has been noticed under Sircar Suhar.

Soneyee was originally a portion of Muhabun,—or Muhawun, as it is generally written by the Mussulmans.

Raya. The same remark applies. Both these Talookas were subsequently included in the Mòòrsan Talooka.

Hat, hrus and Modrsan were detached from Juleysur, chiefly. They were till lately considered as two separate Pergunahs.

Maat formed part of Mahabun.

Sirhindee has been formed from portions of Khanwa and Huwelee Agra.

Suhpoo formed part of Juleysur. It has lately been increased by annexations from Sudabad.

SIRCAR CANOUJ.

بهويگانو	1 Bhocegaon.	ا پتي 8 Puttee
	2 Bhojpoor.	نکهت Nuk,hut.
	3 Talgraon.	9 Burna.
	4 Bit, hoor.	يهپهرند 10 Phuphoond.
	5 Bilhour.	11 Sulicet.
	6 Putialee.	12 Sonj. سونج
	7 Puttec	13 Sheolee.
	Ulcepoor.	14 Sukutpoor.

المكرانو 15 Sukraon. مكرانو 16 Suhar. المار 16 Suhar. المركبية 17 Sowruk,h. المكدر المار 18 Secunderpoor المكدر المار 19 Beerwur. الماريور 20 Secunderpoor الربيي الماريور 21 Shumsabad.

22 كېبرامو 23 كېبرامو 23 Deoha.
ال 24 Canouj-ba كال 24 Canouj-ba السرواوو.
ال 25 Kumpil. كالرلي 26 Kuraolee.
ال 27 Mulkonsa. كانامۇ 28 Nanamow.

30 Suhawur.

Sircar Canouj contains 30 Mehals, and is divided into the three Dustoors of Canouj, Bhoecgaon, and Sukcet.

The Pergunahs, of which there is now no longer any mention are—Numbers 8, 18, 20, 23, 27, 28 and 29.

8.—Puttee Nuk,hut is now included in the North of Pergunah Oorya, and was considered a separate Pergunah, till the commencement of our administration. The chief town was Baburpoor, near Surace Aject Mul.

18.—Secunderpoor Oodho is now included in Chhubramon, and is mentioned as a separate Pergunah in the reports of the three first Settlements. The town of Secunderpoor still exists.

20.—Secunderpoor Atrejee which one copy says was called also Mulikpoor Secunderpoor, was subsequently known by the name of Kursanuh, and is now included in Suhawar. The remains of Atrejee still exist in Purgunah Marchra on the right bank of the Kalee Nuddee; and Secunderpoor on the opposite bank is now known as Secundrabad. It is reported in the neighbourhood, that in consequence of some quarrel between the Zumeendars, a Government Officer was sent from Dehli to institute enquiries into the cause, and the result of his mission was that 60 villages of Solunk, hee Rajpoots were detached from Suhawur, and made into a separate Pergunah by the name of Secunderpoor Atrejee.

23.—Deoha is included in Bilhour, and was mentioned in the early Settlements as a separate Pergunah, under the name of Deoha. The town of Deoha still exists near Bilhour.

27.—Mulkonsa is the old name of Rusoolabad. The names are still frequently united as Rusoolabad Mulkonsa.

28.—Nanamow is on the Ganges, and was the head town of a Pergunah, till it was included in Bilhour by Almas Ali Khan.

29.—Bara is now included in Akberpoor.

The new Pergunahs within the old Sircar of Canouj are,

	1 Tiròòa.	10 Moohummed-
	2 T,huttea.	اباد abad.
رسولآباد	3 Rusoolabad.	ו تپه پهارا Tuppa Puhara.
	4 Sheorajpoor.	12 Huzoor مضرور
ارريا	5 Oorya (Part).	تعصيل Tehseel.
بيله	6 Beluh.	13 Kaemgunge.
اكبرپور	7 Akberpoor.	שوذبار 14 Sonhar.
كشني	8 Kishnee	اباد مهر آباد مهر آباد مهر آباد
	Nubeegunge.	بان گاری 16 Bangaon.
پيپرگارن	9 Peepurgaon.	اسلام كنج ا 17 Islamgunge.

18 Azimnugur. اعظمنگر

Tiròòa and T,huttea. These were not rated as separate Pergunahs till the commencement of our administration, and have now been thrown again into a single Pergunah. They were formly within the Pergunah of Talgram, or Talgraon, (the village of lakes).

Rusoolabad has been explained under Malkonsa.

Sheorajpoor was formerly within the area of Bit, hoor.

Oorya (part), has been explained under Puttee Nukhut.

Beluh was originally merely a village of Suhar, and was for a long time the seat of a Sub-Collectorship.

Akberpoor gave name to a Pergunah, when it was made the chief Town of Sircar Shahpoor; and now frequently goes by the name of Akberpoor Shahpoor, in consequence. See further under Shahpoor, Sircar Calpee.

Kishnee Nubeegunge was formerly in Bhoocegaon. As, on the British accession, it was held by Choudhree Oody Chund under a different tenure from the rest of Bhooecgaon, it was constituted a Pergunah, and has so remained.

Peepurgaon. The villages included within Peepurgaon were given in Jageer by Mahomed Khan Bungush to his wife, and detached for that purpose from Shumsabaa. On her death they continued under separate management, and so remained till the British accession, when they were permanently formed into the separate Pergunah of Peepurgaon.

Mõõhummedabad, usually pronounced Mohumdabad, was also a Zillah of Shumsabad.

Tuppa Puhara, within which the City of Furróókhabad (Furruckabad) and Station of Futtehgurh are situated, was originally a portion of Bhojpoor, from which it was detached by Mahomed Khan Bungush, and its revenue assigned for the expenses of his Zenana.

The Iluzoor Tehseel is a large tract, detached in the year 1217 Fuslee, for the convenience of collection, from Shumsabad, and united with Peepurgaon, Mummedabad, Bhojpoor, and Tuppa Puhara under the charge of a separate Tehseeldar.

Kaemgunge. Part of Kumpil and part of Shumsabad were taken to make this Pergunah. Certain villages of these two Purgunahs were held in farm by Jehan Khan, and other Put, hans of Mow and Kaemgunge, (called after Kaem Jung, the son of Mahomed Khan Bungush); and as these villages had thus for a long time been held separate from the other two Pergunahs, they were formed into the Purgunah of Kaemgunge, when the British administration commenced.

Sonhar formed at one time a portion of Burna. It is said in the annals of the Rat, hores, that on Jey Chund's defeat by Mahomed Ghoree, the remnant of his family, which chose not to seek their fortunes in Rajpootana, took up their abode in Burna, and after residing there for several generations, gave the present Pergunah of Burna in Shunkulup to Brahmins, and making Sonhar their residence, it became in course of time a separate Pergunah.

Mehrabad was formerly included in the large Pergunah of Shumsabad. Its name is said to be derived from Mehr-purwur, the wife of Shums-óód-Deen, King of Dehli.

Bangaon was a Zillah of Mchrabad, and therefore originally in Shumsabad.

Islamgunge was also formerly a Zillah of Mehrabad.

Azimnugur was constituted a Pergunah at the commencement of the British administration. It was formerly a Tuppa of Shumsabad, and was for some time the residence of the Amil of that Pergunah.

SIRCAR CALPEE.

1 00 ارزئي	oryee.	سوگن پرر	8 Soogunpoor.
2 Bi بلاسپرر	laspoor.	شاهپرر	9 Shahpoor.
3 Bi بهدهیک	hudhek.	کالپي	10 Calpee.
م 4 ميراپرر 4 De	erapoor.	كنار	11 Kunar.
5 D ديوکلي	eokulee.	كهنڌرت	12 K,hundout.
6 R راتهه	at,h.		13 Khurela.
7 Re راي پرر	aepoor.	محمدأباه	14 Modhummedabad.

15 Humeerpoor.

The Sircar of Calpee contains 16 Mehals, the Huwelee and Bulda of Calpee being divided in the Dustoor Table into two Mehals. These constitute only one Dustoor. It is strange that the area is omitted from No. 7 to 12, but as there is no doubt about their present position, the omission is of no consequence. It will be observed that in the list above given, there are but few which are recognized in the present day in our own provinces; the missing ones being Numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 11, 12, 13 and 14.

1.—Ooryee is in Jaloun, and the site of a British cantonment.

2.—Bilaspoor still exists on the banks of the Jumna, about six miles South from Secundra. The Pergunah of Bilaspoor is now generally known as Secundra, or Bilaspoor Secundra.

3.—Bhudhek now forms a portion of the Pergunah of Calpee, and is included in part of the long strip of land which runs between Jaloun and the Jumna. The word is difficult to read in all the copies I have consulted. It assumes the various forms of Budhulsa, Budhussbud, Bubbun, Budangola, and Budhutusta.

4.—Derapoor forms part of Dera Mungulpoor in Campoor.

- 5.—Deokulee is now contained within Oorya. The old town is about two miles South from Oorya, on the bank of the Jumna.
- 7.—Racpoor is on the right bank of the Jumna, and extensive ruins proclaim its former importance. Only a small portion is included in the Humeerpoor District, the rest is in Jaloun.
- 8.—Soogunpoor is now in Oorya, between Deokulee and Puttee Nuk, hut. Soogunputtee still exists in the centre of Oorya.
- 9.—Shahpoor is now a deserted village in Bhogneepoor. on the bank of the river Jumna, a short distance South-West from Bhogneepoor. It was formerly the residence of the Amil, till the Nuwab of Oudh removed it to Akberpoor. In the Registers of the later Empire, as in the " Hukeekut-i-Juma of Hurdee Ram Kayet,h," we find Shahpoor giving name to a separate Sircar, which comprised 25 Mehals, among which were the Pergunals of Puttee Nuk, hut, Soogunpoor, Bilaspoor, Derapoor, and Mungulpoor. The Sircar was frequently held in Jageer by a prince of the Royal family. When Shahpoor was much injured by the encroachments of the Jumna, the chief Station was removed to Hajeepoor on the Seyngur, and in the course of time, in consequence of alarms inspired by the malice of a sprite called Bhoora Deo, it was removed to Akberpoor. Hence it has retained the name of Akberpoor Shahpoor; but at the commencement of our administration, Bhognecpoor was separated from Akberpoor, and formed into a separate Pergunah.

11.—Kunar is a large Pergunah of Jaloun. The old Town of Kunar, being now in ruins, is called Kunar K,hera. As Jugmohunpoor, is built near the site, the chief of the Seyngur Rajpoots is frequently known as the Raja of Kunar K,hera.

12.—K,hundout is included in Julalpoor in the Humeerpoor District. The village is on the South bank of the Betwa, about two miles West of Julalpoor.

13.—R,hurela is also in Julalpoor, and the town is at the Southern extremity of that Pergunah.

14.—Moohummedabad is a Pergunah of the Jaloun District, skirting the Northern bank of the Betwa.

The Pergunahs of which we have no trace in the " Ayeen-i-Akberce" are, Bhogneepoor was formerly contained within Shahpoor. It was constituted a Pergunah at the commencement of our administration, and now includes within its area another new Pergunah, called Moosanugur.

Mungulpoor was formerly a village called Nera in Pergunah Bilaspoor. It was bestowed along with fifty-two villages upon Mungul Khan, by Mahomed Ahmed Khan, the Jageerdar of Sircar Shahpoor. Mungul Khan changed the name of Nera to Mungulpoor, and thenceforward the fifty-two villages constituted a separate Pergunah. In the year 1216 Fuslee, it was united with Derapoor into one Pergunah, now known as Dera Mungulpoor.

Oorya. About two-thirds of Oorya are in this Sircar, containing the two Pergunahs of Soogunpoor and Deokulee. The remainder of Oorya formed Puttee Nuk, hut in Sircar Canouj. The three were united into the Pergunah of Oorya in 1216 Fuslee.

Secundra was formerly Bilaspoor.

Julalpoor sometimes called Julalpoor K, hurela, contains two old Pergunahs,—K, hundout on the North, and K, hurela on the South. The town of Julalpoor which is called after Julal Shah, a Fakeer, who lies buried there, is built within the lands of K, hundout.

K,hurka was formed from parts of Moohommedabad, Oorace, K,hundout, and Rat,h.

Punwaree was a portion of Rat,h, which has an area of no less than 580,000 Beeg,has. But no certain information respecting this Pergunah can be gleaned, except that it was originally called Purharpoor; still, this gives us no clue to its position, unless we assume it to be the Purihar in Sircar Eerij. But the probabilities are in favor of its having been a part of Rat,h.

SIRCAR COL.

أترولي	1 Atrowlee.	خورجه	11 Khoorja.
اكبرأباد	2 Akberabad.	دبهائي	12 Dubhaee.
اهار	3 Ahar.	سكندرا راو	13 Secundra Rao
پهاسو	4 Puhasoo.	ש פננט	14 Soron.
بلوام	5 Bilram.	سيدهوپور	15 Sydhoopoor.
پچلانا	6 Puchlana.	شكارپرر	16 Shikarpoor.
تيل	7 Tuppul.	كول	17 Col.
تهانهفريدا	8 T,hana Furceda.	گنگيري	18 Gungerec.
جلالي	9 Julalce.	مارهره	19 Marehra.
چندوس	10 Chundous.	ملکپور	20 Mulikpoor.
		21 Noh.

This Sircar contains 21 Mehals, divided among the four Dustoors of Col, Marehra, Akberabad, and T,hana Fureeda.

There are but few lost names in the above list, viz. Numbers 6, 15, 18 and 20; and three even of these have only very lately been absorbed into other Pergunahs.

6 .- Puchlana forms the Eastern portion of Atrowlee.

7.—Sydhoopoor. There has been great difficulty in restoring this Mehal, but it appears to be no other than Sirhpoora. In some copies indeed it is written Sirhpoora.

The chief objections to consider Sydhoopoor as Sirhpoora, arise from its being separated from the rest of the Dustoor of Marchra by Secunderpoor Atrejec and part of Sukeet; and from its being combined with Puchlana, the most distant Pergunah of the Dustoor, as to Mehals: but on closer examination it is found that only by taking a portion of Sukeet into Marchra and Sirhpoor, can the true area of all the neighbouring Pergunahs be restored according to the "Ayeen-i-Akberce; and when this is done, the old status is represented with surprising correctness. The second objection vanishes when we find other distant Pergunahs, about which we can entertain no doubt, grouped as two Mehals; as in the instance of Tilbegumpoor and Jelalpoor, Sircar Dehli, and Seohara and J, haloo, Sircar Sumbhul. Under these circumstances, coupled with the consideration that Sydhoopoor has Solunk, hee Zemindars, we may safely assume Sirhpoora to be in the Dustoor of Marchra.

There was another cause of hesitation. In the Sircar of Canoui, Beerwar occupies the alphabetical place of, and is written like, Surwar; and had there not been other instances in that Sircar of the alphabetical arrangement being disregarded, we might have supposed that Sirhpoora was meant.

18.—Gungeree forms the South-Eastern portion of Atrowlee. Gungeree and Puchlana have been absorbed since the last Settlement.

20.—Mulikpoor has now been converted into Anoopshuhur. The village of Mulikpoor is about five miles South-West from Anoopshuhur. In the first few Settlements it is spoken of as a Pergunah, generally in conjunction with Ahar.

The new Pergunahs are also few.

K,hyr, Husungurh, and Goryce have been detached from Col. Anoopshuhur. The Town and Fort of Anoopshuhur, after which this Pergunah is called, were built by Anoop Sing,h, who was honored with the title of Raja Anee Race Sing,h, Ahmud Khanee, by Jehangeer, and invested by him with a Jageer of 84 villages on each side of the Ganges, tenanted by Birgoojurs of his own tribe. Raja Anee built Jehangeerabad also, and called it after the name of his royal patron, as well as Ahmudgurh in Peetumpoor, in honor of his dignity of Ahmud Khanee. The present incumbent has succeeded to the title but not to the extensive possessions of his ancestors; for Raja Shere Sing,h, who was the incumbent at the time of the cession, sold nearly the entire Estate, except the Talookas of Jehangeerabad and Ahmudgurh, which were then possessed by another branch of the family. Anoopshuhur was formed from the area of Mulikpoor, but it is only of late years that the entire area of Mulikpoor has been absorbed into Anoopshuhur, for in the first Settlements of Aligurh and Moradabad we find them recorded as separate Pergunahs.

SIRCAR TIJARA.

انڌرر	1 Indore.	ساكرس	10 Sakrus.
	2 Oojeena.	ساتهاداري	11 Sat, hadaree.
ارمرى ارمرا	3 Oomree Oomra.		12 Ferozpoor.
بيگوان پور	4 Begwanpoor.		13 Futtehpoor
بيسرو	5 Beesroo.		Moongurta.
بهسوهوا	6 Bhusohra.		14 Kotila.
	7 Tijara.		15 G,hasera.
	9 Chumrawut.		16 K,huwa Kat,hana.
	2 Khanpoor.	نگينان	17 Nugeenan.

This Sircar consists of only one Dustoor. It contains 18 Mehals; but the name of one between Tijara and Chumrawut remains blank in all the copies which have been consulted. By referring however to the Dustoor Table, it appears that the name of the omitted Mehal is Poor, which, as it is not within our Territory, requires no further notice.

Of the old Tijara Pergunahs within the district of Goorgaon there are eight which no longer exist, viz., Numbers 1, 2, 4, 5, 10, 14, 15, and 17.

1.—Indore is a Pergunah of which the chief Town still exists on the Western brow of the Mewat Hills, near the source of the Indoree Nuddee, one of the streams which fall into the Sabee. It lies between Noh and Kotila. The area is represented as containing 1,30,450 Beeg,has, of which, the British portion is included in Pergunah Noh, the remainder in the Tijara country.

2 and 4.—Oojeena and Begwanpoor are included within Huteen.

5.—Beesroo is included in Poonahana.

10 and 17.—Sakrus and Nugeena(Nugeenan) are included in Ferozpoor; but were considered separate Pergunahs till the lapse of the Ferozpoor Jageer to Government.

14.—Kotila contained 71,265 Beeg,has, of which the greater part has gone to form the Pergunah of Noh, and the remainder to form the Pergunah of Huteen. Kotila still exists, 8 miles South from Noh, but searcely ranks above an ordinary village. It was formerly a place of very considerable importance, and was one of the chief strong-holds of the turbulent Mewatees. We learn from the "Tuwareekh-i-Mòòbarukshahee" that it was taken and destroyed by the Syud King, Khizr, in A. D. 1421.

15.—G,hasera has been thrown into Noh. It is still a respectable Town, encircled by a strong wall with Bastions.

The present Pergunahs included within this area, and not mentioned in the "Ayeen-i-Ahberce," are,

Noh was formerly a Mouza within the area of Pergunah Indore. In A. D. 1762, the Jat chief, Soorujmul, after killing Rao Buhadòòr Sing,h, who had previously seized upon the Pergunahs of Indore and Kotila, and after plundering the town of G,hasera, established his own Amil in Noh, and placed under his charge the collections of Indore, G,hasera and Kotila; since which time it has remained a separate Pergunah.

Huteen, which lapsed to the British Government in 1231 Fuslee, on the death of Fyzdollah Beg Khan, was originally named after a Mouza of Begwanpoor, and now includes within its area Oojeena and Begwanpoor, and parts of Sonah and Kotila. In the time of Mahomed Shah, Rao Budun Sing,h, the father of Soorujmul, held a lease of this Mehal from the Jugeerdars in possession. His son, taking advantage of the weakness and decline of the Mahomedan Government, refused to fulfil the conditions his father entered into, and maintained by force of arms possession on his own account: and building a mud Fort in Huteen, included his acquisitions within a new Pergunah of that name, which has been retained to this time.

Poonahana, which was formerly included in Nunch Shumsood-deen's Jageer, was originally a small Mouza in Pergunah Beesroo. In A. D. 1717, Soorufnul built a mud Fort in Poonahana, and established it as the Head Quarters of a new Pergunah, formed out of Beesroo and parts of Chumrawut and Puharce.

SIRCAR EERIJ.

The only Pergunahs of Eerij in our Territory (excluding Jaloun, which, having lately lapsed to us, I have not considered,) are Koonch retains its name in the District of Humeerpoor, and is isolated by Pergunahs of the Jaloun Territory.

Purihar, so called from the tribe of Rajpoots who are its Zumeendars, includes in a portion of its area the Talooka of Sundous, now contained in the Pergunah of Janibrast in Etawah. Its position in the midst of the ravines of the Kooarce and Chumbul has always fostered the turbulence of the Zumeendars, and in the early period of our administration a military party sent out to control them was severely handled, and the Officer in command lost his life.

SIRCAR SUHAR.

This Sircar, which is sometimes called Puharee, contains seven Mehals, forming one Dustoor: but in some copies, Noonhera is recorded as a separate Dustoor. Only two of these Pergunahs are in our Territory—numbers 3 and 7;—but the dimensions of the former are much curtailed, on account of the formation of other Pergunahs from part of its large area. We find it stated in the history drawn up by Surcop Chund, for the use of Sir J. Shore, that Shahjehan, in the 20th Year of the Juloos, gave Kama, Puharee, and the other Pergunahs of this Sircar to Keerut Sing,h, the father of Raja Jye Sing,h, as the Imperial authorities were not strong enough to control the turbulence of the Mematees; but I do not find it mentioned among the transactions of that year in the Shahjehannama.

The new Pergunahs within this area are,

ا Sheregurh. کوسې 2 Kosee. کوسې

ارینگ Areeng (part).

These three Pergunahs were formerly included in Suhar. The two first were separated by the Jats, but for a long time retained the single name of Kosee, and the latter, at the commencement of our administration; since which time the three have continued separate Pergunahs. Areeng includes also the Pergunahs of Goverdhun, and Sonsa; and Kosee includes that of Shahpoor; but as they were intermediately formed, and no mention is made of them in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee," they require no notice.

In the "Hukeekut-i-Juma" of Hurdee Ram Kayet,h, which was written about the time of the decline of the Empire, (the precise year is not mentioned) there is no such Sircar as that of Suhar, and we find it succeeded by Islampoor (called by Aurungzebe, Islamabad) Muttra (Mut,hòòra), containing 12 Mehals. There is also the new Sircar of Biana Hindoun formed, according to the same work, containing 29 Mehals, while the Sircar of Agra is reduced to the mere Huwelee round the city.

SOOBAH ALLAHABAS.

SIRCAR ALLAHABAS.

الماباس با	1 Allahabas ba		6 Secunderpoor.
حويلي	Huwelce.	كنتت	7 Kuntit.
بهدري	2 Bhudoee.	كيواي	8 Kewaec.
جلال أباه	3 Julalabad.	كهيرائده	9 K,hyragurh.
سوراذو	4 Soraon.	apo	10 Muh.
ساگرور	5 Singrour.	هادي آباس	11 Hadeeabas.

This Sircar is said to contain only 11 Mehals, though Julalabad is reckoned as 4. They are divided among the three Dustoors of Allahabas (Ilhabas), Bhudovc, and Julalabad.

The Pergunahs now no longer extant are Numbers 1, 3, 5, and 11.

1.—Allahabas. The name of the Fort and Pergunah were subsequently, according to the "Char Gòòlshun" and several other authorities, changed by Shah Jehan to Allahabad, as the termination of bas was presumed to savour too much of Hindooism. The Pergunah is now known by the name of Chaile, which is itself a place of some antiquity, as it is mentioned in the "Lutaef-i-Ashrufce"—See Hurbong ka Raj.

3.—Julalabad, or Julalabas, is the name of Arail, which was imposed on it by Akber, in commemoration of his own title of Julal-òòd-Decn.—See note to Hurbong ka Raj.

During the time of the Numab Wuzcer's Government, Arail was included in Sircar Turhar,* and is so mentioned in the Schedule of Revenues given in the "Appendix to the 5th Report." It is strange that we find this Pergunah, which forms a separate Dustoor, intervening between the Pergunahs which form the Dustoor of Huwelee Allahabas. The position of Bara would point it out as a component part of Julalabad, but, for the considerations given in the article G, HORA, I have recorded it in that Sircar. There is no measurement to guide us in this case, but the Revenue yielded is so small—being 7,37,220 Dams, with the small contingent of only 10 Sumars and 400 Infantry,—that it does not admit of the addition of Bara.

• Sircar Turhar appears to have occasionally varied its bounds. It seems at one time to have included part of Chunar. In the "Uhwal-i-Soobajat," mentioned in the article Bòòdhgunga, Sircar Turhar is said to contain 9 Mehals, amongst which are to be recognised Julalabas and Choukundee.

5.—Singrour is the old name of Numabgunge. Singrour is a very ancient place, and is spoken of in the Ramayana, as Sringavera. The town of Singrour is still extant on the left bank of the Ganges, a few miles above Allahabad.

11.—Iladecabas was the name of the Pergunah now called Jhoosee.—See Hurbong ka Raj.

The new Pergunahs are,

Arail.—See Julalabad.

Nunabgunge. The Pergunah of Singrour received its new name of Nunabgunge from Nunab Munsoor Ali Khan, who built a Gunge and town near Singrour, which he established as the chief Station of the Pergunah.

Jhoosee .- See Hadecabas.

Chaile is the old name of Allahabas ba Huwelee. The town of Chaile is situated in the centre of the Pergunah.

Tuppa Kone is a portion of Bhudoee, from which it was detached when Sukut Sing,h married the Mounus Raja's daughter, to whom it was given in Dowry, and thenceforward became a Tuppa of Kuntit, to which it did not belong when the "Ayeeni-Akberee" was written.

Tuppa Chourasce is a portion of Kuntit.

Tuppa Oaproudh, so called from being situated for the most part on high ground, is also a portion of Kuntit. Probably but a very small portion of this Tuppa was known in Akber's time, but we have no measurement to guide us.

Sukteesgurh. This too was in Kuntit, and was also perhaps mostly unknown. The country was previously called Colana, in consequence of the residence of the Coles in this neighbourhood; and it was not till Raja Sukut Sing,h of Kuntit destroyed their strong-hold, and built Sukteesgurh on its site, that the Tuppa obtained its new name.

The Talooka of Mirzapoor Chowharce, which is in the Allahabad District, was formerly in the Pergunah of Julalpoor Bilk, hur in Sircar Manikpoor, the rest of which Sircar is in Oudh. It has been included in Allahabad since the time of Raja Mudaree Lal, Amil.

SIRCAR KURRA.

إينيهي	1 Enchliee.	ارتلغ 8 Kotila.
	2 Ut,hurbun.	و کرنوا عرف و Koonra کرنوا
ایاه ساه	3 Aya Sah.	Kurson.
حويليكوا	4 Hawelee Kurra.	10 Futtehpoor فتعيرور
	5 Rarce.	IJ Huswa.
	6 Bulda Kurra.	ال هتكانو 11 Hutgaon.
	7 Kuraree.	ا مسوا 12 Huswa.

This Sircar has 12 Mehals comprised in one Dustoor. The Numbers which are obsolete, are 1, 4, 5, 6 and 9.

1.—Enclhee. This Pergunah is now represented by Ghazecepoor. The modern histories of India convey to us this information by calling the famous rebel Bhugwunt, K,heechur, a Zumeendar of Pergunah Enchhee. (See further under Ghazeepoor). The village of Enchhee is still extant on the bank of of the Jumna. The old Fort, which is the theme of popular story, is not to be seen, but the people of the neighbourhood delight in telling a marvellous tale how Raja Palbhun Deo was slain in it, with all his family, by a demon called Brimha Dano; from which time it has been deserted; but the site is visited during the Duschra, when the superstitious villagers come from afar to make their annual offering at the shrine of the demon.

4. and 6.—Huwelee Kurra and Bulda Kurra. The distinction has now been lost between them as separate Pergunahs. They are both included in Pergunah Kurra.

5.—Raree has now been changed to Ekdulla, in which place Numab Shòòja-òòd-Dowla established his Tehseeldaree, but the Pergunah retained its name of Raree till the Cession. The town of Ekdulla is on the Jumna, about two miles to the West of Raree. Dhata is also a Zillah of Raree.

9.—Koonra dorf Kurson. This is the old name of Modlour, which it appears to have acquired from the course which the Jumna takes in this neighbourhood. The projecting patches of alluvial land which are formed near the banks of the river are called by the Zumeendars Koonda, probably from their shape which they might have conceived to bear some resemblance to a Koonda, a vessel for kneading bread in; a platter. The Mouza of Koonda, or Koonra, still exists on the bank of the Jumna, at the North Western angle of Pergunah Modlour.

The new Pergunahs included within Sircar Kurra are, ا يكدله 1 Ekdulla. ا يكدله 3 Ghazcepoor. عازي برور 2 Dhata. ا مترو 4 Modlour.

Ekdulla.—See Raree.

Dhata. In consequence of the disturbances which arose between two parties of Còòrmees in this neighbourhood, the Nuwab Wuzeer was compelled to establish a separate Zillahdar in this place, in the year 1197 Fuslee, and about 50 villages taken from Rarce were placed under his charge. Since the Cession, Dhata has been considered a separate Pergunah.

Ghazeepoor may be considered to have been established as a Pergunah in lieu of Enchhee, from the time that Bhugnunt Rae, the K,heechur, built his fort here, and killed Jan Nisar Khan, the general of Mahomed Shah; of which a full account is given in the "Tareekh-i-Mòòzuffuree," and most other Modern Histories of India. The "Hudeekut-òòl-Akaleem" assures us that he retained possession of the entire Sircar of Kora for several years, and was only at last subdued by the strenuous efforts of Nunab Suadut Khan. Dòòniaput, the worthy descendant of the family, opposed our Government shortly after its accession, but did not lose much by it, as he was subsequently rewarded with a handsome Pension. After the death of Bhugwunt Rac, the Amil continued to reside in Ghazee-poor: but Ghazeepoor was not recognized as a Pergunah till the commencement of our administration in 1803, when for the two first Settlements it is recorded as Enchhee, door Ghazeepoor.

Mòòtour. Nuwab Abd-òòs-Sumud Khan, who performed a conspicuous part in the time of Aurungzebe, was presented by that monarch with the Jageer of Koonra. Shortly after his investiture, he built a fort and dug a handsome tank at Mòòtour, which succeeded to the importance of Koonra; but Wasil Bakees are in existence which shew that the Pergunah retained its old name to as late a period as 1188 Fuslee.

SIRCAR KORA.

حاحمه	1 Jajmow.	كوتيا (	5 Kootea.
	2 Kora.	گنیر	6 Gddneer.
	3 G,hatumpoor.	کیرتپور	7 Keerutpoor
	4 Mujhawun.	كنانده	Kunanda.

8 Mohsunpoor.

This Sircar has 8 Mehals, divided into the three Dustoors of Kora, Kootea, and Jajmow.

The missing Pergunahs are Numbers 4, 7 and 8.

4.—Mujhawun, which is reported as a separate Pergunah during our first Settlements, is now included in Jajmow and Sarh-Sulempoor. The Qusba of Mujhawun is still extant on the Pundoo Nuddee, in the South Eastern angle of Jajmow.

7.—Keerutpoor Kunanda is the old name of Pergunah Bind-kee.

8.—Mohsunpoor, called also Rawutpoor Mohsunpoor, is now included in Sarh-Sulempoor, and is reported as a Pergunah in our first Settlements. The village of Mohsunpoor is still extant near the Urrind Nuddee, in the Southern angle of Sarh-

Sulempoor. It's position is pointed out in the interesting letters of Nowneet Rae, who styles himself "one of the Umla of Mohsunpoor, a Pergunah of Kora."

The new Pergunahs are,

ية جار 1 Tuppa Jar. ا تبة جار 2 Bindkee.

رة المبيدين ع Sarh-Sulempoor.

Tuppa Jar belonged to Pergunah Dora, from which the Wasil Bakees show it to have been separated from the year 1180 Fuslee.

Bindkee. See Keerutpoor Kunanda.

Sarh-Sulempoor. This Pergunah has been formed from Mohsunpoor and Mujhawun. There have been several intermediate changes in the size and constitution of all these Pergunahs, owing to the various jurisdictions to which Sircar Kora has been subject; but there is no occasion to record them here, as they have no concern with the comparison on which we are at present engaged.

SIRCAR KALINGER.

ارگاسي	1 Oogasee.		6 Rusun.
اجيگڏه	2 Ajygurh.	ا كالنجو	Kalinger.
سهرندا	3 Sihonda.	8 Spics	K,hundeh.
	4 Simounce.	ي مهويا	Muhoba.
شادي پور	5 Shadeepoor.	11 صودها	Moudha.

This Sirear contains 11 Mehals, Kalinjer ba Huwelee being counted as 2. It comprises a single Dustoor.

The Pergunahs either extinct, or, beyond British Bundelcund, are the following—Numbers 2, 5, 6, 7 and 9.

2.—Ajygurh. This Pergunah lies to the South of Kalinjer. The fort is garrisoned by British Troops.

5.—Shadeepoor is the old name of Pergunah Pylanee. The large village of Shadeepoor is still extant on the bank of the Jumna. When the Bòdndclas built their fort in Pylanee, and made it the residence of their Tehseeldar, the name of Pylanee was gradually substituted for Shadeepoor. From the Sunud appointing Bheem Sen Choudhree of the Pergunah, it appears that in the year 1121 F.S. the name of the Pergunah was Shadeepoor Pylanee.

6.—Rusun is the old name of Pergunah Budousa. The town still exists about seven miles to the South of Budousa. Tieffenthaler gives us a clue to this Mehal, by telling us it is 7 miles N. E. from Kalinjer.

7.-Kalinjer ba Huwelce.-See Budousa.

9.-Muhoba is in the Jaloun Territory.

The new Pergunahs are,

1 Budousa. بدرسا 2 Pylance. انده عنان 3 Banda. 4 Soomerpoor.

Budousa.—See Rusun. This was established by the Boon-deelas as the site of a new Tehseeldaree, in consequence of Hurbuns Race, a Rug,hoobunsee Rajpoot, being in independent occupation of Rusun. The greater portion of Kalinjer is included in Budousa.

Pylance.—See Shadeepoor.

Banda was originally a portion of Sihonda, but has been considered a separate Pergunah since the time that Raja Gòèman Sing,h the Bòòndela, took up his residence here. Briggs, in his translation of Ferishta, says that Secunder Lodi penetrated to Banda,—which would imply that the Town was older than the time of Akber; but "Banda" has been written by mistake for "Bandhoo," or "Bandoogurh," as is evident from the "Tareekh-i-Afaghuna," where a more detailed account of this difficult and unsuccessful expedition is given.

Sodmerpoor, was originally a portion of Moudha.

SIRCAR BHUTG, HORA.

See G, HORA in the body of this Supplement.

SIRCAR JOUNPOOR.

مادیاباد 20 Shadeeabad. 1 Aldemow. اذگلي 2 Unglee. اله كا الله 21 Zufurabad. يات متو 22 Cureat Mittoo. 3 Bhittree. 23 Cureat قريات 4 Bhudaon. دوستووو 5 Tilhenee. Dost poor. 24 Cureat Menda. 6 Jounpoor. كويات سويتهم 25 Cureat Soet,ha. 7 Chandeepoor كولة 26 Kola. Birhur. امسوفا 27 G,hisdda. انه S Chanda يوسى 28 G,hosec. 9 Chirya Kote. ارة عرارة 29 Gurwara. ייין 10 Chuhkeysur. $5,55 30 Kowea. غرين 11 Khureed. 31 Gopalpoor. 12 Khaspoor عاكت 32 Kurakut. تانده Tanda. aligo 33 Mureahoo. wila 13 Khanpoor. 34 Modhummedabad. . Deogaon ديوگاوي Islino 35 Moongra. (2) 15 Raree. 1196= 36 Mujhowra. 16 Sujhowlee. 37 Mow. 17 Secunderpoor. اباد 33 Nizamabad. الله سالي 18 Sugree. يگرن 39 Negoon. יים אל Sodrhurpoor.

برر عنهر برر 40 Nut,hoopoor.

The Sircar of Jounpoor has 41 Mehals, Jounpoor ba Huwelee being considered as 2; and 2 Dustoors, which in size are very disproportionate—one comprising only the 2 Mehals of Moongra and Gurwara.

This large Sircar has descended to us in a more perfect shape than any other which we have to examine. Exclusive of those within the Oudh Territory, namely, Aldemow, Chandeepoor Birhur, Chanda, Khaspoor Tanda, Sujhowlee, Soorhurpoor and Mujhowra, the only Mehals not now extant within British jurisdiction are Numbers 10, 25, 26 and 39.

10.—Chukeysur was in existence till the late Settlement; when, under the arrangements then made for improving Pergunah Boundaries, it was included, with a newly formed Pergunah, called Soorujpoor, in G,hosee; where the two united still constitute the Tuppa of Chukeysur.

25.—Cureat Soct, ha is now included in Pergunah Unglee of Jounpoor. It formed one of the Talookas of Bukhsheeat, which was broken up and distributed amongst several Pergunahs at the late Settlement.

26.-Kola is the old name of Kole Usla.

29 .- Negoon is included in the modern Pergunah of Mahoòl.

The new Pergunahs are also very few.

ا ماهل 1 Mahddl ا ماهل 4 Gddzara. كذارا ا الترراي 2 Atrowlee. الترراي 3 Badshahpoor. المالم 6 Singramow.

Mahòòl is formed from Pergunah Negoon, and parts of Unglee and Sòòrhurpoor. Although at the time of the Cession Mahòòl is entered in the Registers as one of the four portions into which the Province of Goruckpore was divided, it received no higher denomination than that of Talocka, which has been changed by us into Pergunah. In the middle of the last century, two Syuds, of the name of Shere Jehan and Shumshad Jehan, acquired possession of Negoon and parts of Sòòrhurpoor and Unglee, as well as a few villages of Jounpoor, and taking up their abode in Mahòòl Khas, gave their usurpations the name of Talocka Mahòòl. The Town of Negoon is now known as Qusba Khas, on the Eastern border of Mahòòl.

Atrowlea was a Pergunah formed a short time previous to the Cession out of Bulwunt Singh's acquisitions from Tilhenee; but was originally included in Kourea. It has now been included again in Tilhenee, and the Pergunah goes by the united name of Atrowlea Tilhenee.

Badshahpoor is another name for Moongra. The Pergunah is also known by the name of Moongra Badshahpoor.

Gòòzara. Tuppa Gòòzara, including Bhynsa, was originally in Kurakut; and Sòòltaneepoor, which is in the Western angle of Bhynsa, is a Talooka of Kutehur.

Kole Usla is the modern name of Kola, derived from the village of Usla, which was formerly the site of a Tehseeldaree Cutcherry.

Singramow is a Talooka of Pergunah Chanda, the rest of which is in Oudh.

See further under CIRCAR.

SIRCAR GHAZEEPOOR.

بليا	1 Bulea.	ازي پرور 10 Ghazeepoor.
پپوتو	2 Puchotur.	بلى 11 Cureat Pulee.
	3 Bilhabans.	ا كرپاچيت I2 Kopa Chect.
	4 Buhrecabad.	لة عنها 13 Gurha.
	5 Buraich.	ا کرینده 14 Kurenda.
	6 Chounsa.	الكهنيسر 15 Lukhneysur.
	7 Dehma.	مدن بنارس 16 Mudun Benarcs.
سيديور نمدي	8 Sydpoor Numdee.	معمدآباد معمدآباد معمدآباد
ظهورآباد	9 Zuhoorabad.	پرهاباري Purhabaree.

Sircar Ghazeepoor comprises only one Dustoor. It has 19 Mehals, Huwelee Ghazeepoor and Moohummedabad Purhabaree being each counted as two.

This Sircar, after all the ill-written names have been verified, is also found to have descended to us in a perfect shape. In the above list we miss now only the following Pergunahs, viz., 5, 6, 11 and 16.

5.—Buraich. This Pergunah has caused more doubt than any other: but I believe it to be represented by the present Monza Buraich in the Mehal of Bhutowlee on the Gangee Nuddee, which falls into the Ganges between Kurendah and Ghazeepore. Buraich is a small Pergunah containing only

2,000 Beeg, has, and the place I have assigned to it is not altogether an improbable one for a Pergunah.

6.—Chounsa is in the Shahabad district in the Bengal Presidency, noted for being the place where two battles have been fought which have decided the fate of India, viz., that of Buxar in 1765, and the one which led to the expulsion of Humayoon from India; in describing which, by the way, some translator or compiler, whose name I do not now remember, has beed led into a ludicrous mistake. In translating Necamut Odllah, he says, Humayoon when retreating from Chounsa across the Ganges, recognized Nizam, his water-carrier, by a strong smell of Musk; whereas the original merely informs us that he saved the Emperor by seating him on an inflated Mushuk (a leather water bag).

11.—Cureat Pulee was included at the late revision of boundaries in Moohummedabad Purhabaree.

16 .- Mudun Benares is the old name of Zumanea.

There is only one new Pergunah in this Sircar.

aule; 1 Zumanea.

Zumanea has succeeded to Mudun Benares. During the decline of the Empire we find it combined with Ghazeepoor in giving name to the Sircar. Thus, "Sircar Ghazeepoor Zumanea, 17 Mehals."

Doaba is a Tuppa of Pergunah Futtehpoor Buhea, which is recorded as being in the Sircar of Rohtas, and the Soobah of Behar. It has only been noticed here because its position would appear to point it out as a portion of this Sircar.

SIRCAR BENARES.

		1 Afrad	1 8,000	4. Pundra.
	ادواد	1 Afrad.	کسدا،	5 Kuswar.
ا با	بنارس	2 Benares ba	172	6 Kutehur.
	حويل	Huwelec.	7620	7 Hurhooa.
	سالس	3 Bealsee.	العرهرا

This Sircar, which comprises only one Dustoor, has 8 Mehals, Huwelce Benares being counted as two.

The extinct Pergunahs are Numbers 1, 2 and 7.

- 1.—Afrad consisted chiefly, as the name would imply, of several detached Mouzas in different Pergunahs, and had therefore perhaps no determinate boundary. There are Mouzas, for instance, in Kutchur and in Kuswar which are still recorded as having been once in Pergunah Afrad. I have assigned to Afrad a position between Kutchur, Kuswar, Benares and Kola, but the greater portion has been taken from Kuswar, in which Afrad Khas if situated.
- 2.—Benares ba Huwelee contained the modern Pergunahs of Lot,ha, Dehat Amanut, and Sheopoor, the two former to the South, and the latter to the North, of the Burna Nuddee.
- 7.—Hurhooa is the old name of At,hgawan. The village of Hurhooa is still extant in this Purgunah, on the high road from Benares to Jounpoor. It is said that there were formerly only eight villages in Hurhooa, and hence the name of At,hganw, or At,hgawan.

The new Pergunahs within Sircar Benares are,

جالبويور	1 Jalhoopoor.	مجهوا	4 Mujhowa.
	2 Sheopoor.	اتهگاران	5 At,hgawan.
	3 Lot,ha.	دهات امانت	<ul><li>5 At,hgawan.</li><li>6 Dehat Amanut.</li></ul>

Jalhoopoor is a Talooka detached from Kutchur by Raja Bulwunt Sing,h.

Sheopoor was originally in Huwelee Benares, from which it was detached by Raja Cheyt Sing,h.

Lot, ha is a portion of Huwelee Benares. It was subsequently included in Dehat Amanut; but is now considered a separate Talooka.

Mujowa is a Talooka of Kuswar.

At, hgawan .- See Hurhooa.

Dehat Amanut was originally in Huwelee. It comprehends the city of Benarcs and the tract immediately around it.

It is strange that in the Benares Mehals, Bhoonhars are not mentioned as Zumeendars by Abool Fuzl. The difference between them and Brahmins does not appear to have been fully comprehended; for, that it did not exist two hundred and fifty years ago, it is difficult to suppose.

SIRCAR CHUNAR.

s.l.vol	1 Aheerwara.	قریات این	8 Cureat een
در را	2 Bhoelee.	روی اب	Rooce ab.
٠٠٠٠٠ ي	3 Burhoul.	ص= اواره	9 Mujhwara.
ار را تانده	4 Tanda.	مهايم	10 Muhaich.
	5 Chunar ba	صهواري	11 Muhwarec.
حولاء	Huwelce.	موڈی ،	12 Mowye.
دهس	6 Dhoos.	نورن	13 Nurwun.
رالهويور	7 Ralhoopoor.	هذوا	14 Hunoa.

There is only one Dustoor in Chunar, comprising 14 Mehals; though the Pergunah Tables concur in saying there are only 13 Mehals. The two last are omitted from most of the copies of the "Ayeen-i-Akberee," but are requisite to complete the Sirear. In those copies, indeed, in which they are entered, they are nearly illegible. † It is evident from history that this part of the Country was but little known, and we must therefore allow for some error and confusion.

We retain the names of all the Pergunahs in the above list, except those of Numbers 1, 4, 8 and 14.

1.—Ahcerwara, so called after the original Zumeendars of those parts, has now been corrupted and abbreviated into Ahrora.

4.—Tanda is the old name of Pergunah Buruh. The Mouzas of Tanda Kulan and Tanda Khoord still exist on the right bank of the Ganges, at a short distance from each other.

8-Cureat-een-Rooce-ab is now known as Cureat Seck, hur.

14.—Hunoa.—See Bhugwut.

The new Pergunahs, of which we find no mention in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee" as belonging to this Sircar, are, tainly now written and pronounced Ralhoopoor. † In them, moreover, they are entered as being entirely Seyurghal, or Rent free, which may be perhaps the cause why they are omitted in so many copies.

• This is entered in the best copies as Rag, hoopoor إأكهر درو

Buruh.—See Tanda.

Cureat Seek, hur.—See Cureat-cen-Rooce-ab. It does not appear when the name of the Pergunah was changed, or for what particular reason the strange title of Cureat-een-Rooce-ab was given originally to this Pergunah.

Bhugwut. This Pergunah, previous to the conquest effected by the Goutums, was held by Jumeeut Khan, Guhurwar, whose defence of the fort of Puteeta is a favorite theme with the people. The old name of this Pergunah was Hunoa, which was extinct before the time of Jumeeut Khan, when it was known only as Bhugwut.

Ahrora. As much of this Pergunah as was known in Akber's time was called Aheerwara.

Kera Mungrore. Mungrore is entered in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee" as a Pergunah of Sircar Rohtas, Soobah Behar—and, in the later periods of the empire, as belonging to Sircar Shahabad.

SOOBAH OUDH.

SIRCAR GORUK, HPOOR.

-
أتورلا	1 Atrowla.	1 رسولپور ا	1 Rusoolpoor
انهولا	2 Anhowla.		Ghous.
بنايك پرر	3 Binaekpoor.	ا رامگده	2 Ramgurh
بمهني پاره	4 Bumhneepara.	گوري	Gource.
بهاراپاره	5 Bhuwapara.		Goruk, hpoor.
تلپرر	6 Tilpoor.	1 كتّها	4 Kutehla.
چارپاره	7 Chiloopara.	1 رهلاپاره	5 Rehlapara.
دهرياپاره	8 Dhòdreapara.	11 مهولي	6 Mhowlee.
دهيراپاره	9 Dhewapara	ا مندوا	Mundwa.
کهانا	Kodhana.	ا مندلة	8 Mundla.
رهلي	10 Rehlee.		Rutunpoor
9.0			Mug,hur.

337

This Sircar forms only one Dustoor, containing 24 Mehals; Goruk, hpoor ba Huwelee, Rusoolpoor Ghous, Rutunpoor Mug, hur, Binaekpoor, and Ramgurh Gouree, being each reckoned two Mehals.

This is a difficult Sircar to restore, and, even after verifying all the illegible names, we have in the list of extinct or foreign Pergunahs, Numbers 1, 4, 9, 10, 12, 14, 15, 17 and 18.

1.—Atrowla is in Oudh.

4.—Bumhneepara. This is the South-Eastern angle of Pergunah Nunabgunge, which we gave up to Oudh in 1817.

9.—Doewapara Kohana is the old name of Sulempoor Muj-howlee, Shahjehanpoor, and Sidhoa Johna, which were part of the great Mujhowlee Raj. In some old writings the name of the Mehal is entered Nowapar Kohana Dhewapar. The popular name of the village of Sulempoor is Nowapar; (Buchanan, "Eastern India," Vol. 2, p. 361, says Nugur); and the Pergunah would have been restored as Kohana Nowapar, had it not been for the alphabetical arrangement requiring an initial D in this place. The name Dhewapar is now nearly extinct. Nowapar is common.

10—Rehlee is the Northern and Western part of Nuwab-gunge, ceded to Oudh.

12.—Ramgurh Gouree. We are assisted to this name by being told it is on the Raptee. It is the old name of Bulrampoor in Oudh.

14.—Kutehla is the old name of North Bansee. When the Kutehla Raja was defeated and slain by the Bansee Raja, the old name of the Pergunah became extinct. Bansee, South of the Raptee, was called Rutunpoor, which Mehal is combined with Mug,hur in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee."

15.—Rehlapara. At the suggestion of Mr. Reade, the late Collector, I have entered this Pergunah as the old name of Aurungabad Nugur; but I confess some doubts on the subject, for all the copies give distinctly Kehlapara, and the substitution of the R for K displaces the alphabetical order, usually preserved.

17.—Mundwa is the ancient name of Bustce.

18.-Mundla. No trace can be had of this Mehal. Mr.

Reade suggests that it may be the old name of Amorha; but Amorha is itself an old Pergunah, and is included in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee" in Sircar Oudh.

The new Pergunahs in Sircar Goruck, hpoor are,

سايمير	1 Sulempoor	سلهت ا	4 Sylhet.
مجرولي		منصورنگو	5 Munsoornugur
سدهولاجوبنه	2 Sidhoa Jobna.	بستى	Bustee.
شاهجهان يرر	3 Shahjehanpoor.	اررنگا بادنگر	6 Aurungabad Nugur.

Sulempoor Mujhowlee. This is a portion of the old Pergunah of Dhewapara Kohana.

Sidhoa Jobna.— Ditto.

Shahajehanpoor. Ditto. I have somewhere seen it mentioned that these Pergunahs were in Sarun, but the Statement appears to rest on no authority.

Sylhet was detached from Pergunah Huwelee about the year 1633 by the Mujhowlee Raja, and was recovered by the Sutassee Raja about 50 years afterwards. It has since this period been rated as a separate Pergunah.

Munsoornugur Bustee.—See Mundwa.
Aurungabad Nugur.—See Rehlapara.

SIRCAR OUDH.

Amorha (Amodh) is the only Pergunah of this Sircar in British Territory. It is in the Dustoor of Huwelee Oudh.

SIRCAR KHYRABAD.

The only portion of this Sircar in our jurisdiction is K,ha-kutmow, which probably included also the modern Pergunah of Purumnugur, although the local officers are unanimous in representing that Purumnugur was originally a portion of Shums-abad. K,hakutmow is in the Dustoor of Palee.

SOOBAH DEHLI.

SIRCAR DEHLI.

اسلام آباد پاکل I Islamabad Pakul. 23 Dar-dol-Modik 851 2 Adh. يام Dehli. پانی پت 3 Panceput. aimle 24 Dasna. 4 Palum. ادرى طاها 25 Dadree Taha. برن 5 Burun. ينكور 26 Dunkour. 6 Baghput. روهنگ 27 Rohtuk. بلول 7 Pulwul. 28 Sonceput. 8 Rurnawa. 29 Sufeedoon. 30 Secunderabad. 9 Poot,h. 10 Dobuldhun دوبلدهو. ارة عبارة 31 Surawa. aiii... 32 Senta. بيري Beree. 11 Tilput. تلبت نانه 33 Seana. تاندة يهو گانه 12 Tanda Phoogana. 34 Shukurpoor. 13 Tilbegumpoor. JUS 35 Kurnal. 14 Thujhur. 36 Gunour. تسيتده 37 Gurh Modktesur. مارسة 15 Jharsa. 16 Jewur. Silis 38 Kodtana. ناجيانة 17 Jhinjhana. لدهائع 39 Kandhla. timb 40 Kasna. 18 Chhuprowlee. اباد بال آباد 19 Julalabad. ال کهرځوده 41 K,hurk,houda. و كنگيرو 42 Gungeroo. 20 Julalpoor جلال پور Burout. 43 Lonee. 21 Huwelee ميرته 44 Meerut,h. 45 Mandout, hee. قديمي Kudeemee. 46 Musaoodabad. 22 Huwelee حويلي Mustinapoor. جديدي Judeedec.

هاپور 48 Hapoor.

The Sircar of Dehli consists of 48 Mehals, divided into the 7 Dustoors of Huwelee, Paneeput, Burun, Meerut, Jhujhur, Rohtuk, and Pulwul.

This large Sircar has descended to us in a very perfect form. Excluding the foreign Pergunahs of Jhujhur, Dadree Taha, and Sufeedoon, we miss in the above list only Numbers 11, 12, 21, 22, 23, 32 and 46.

11.—Tilput. The greater part of Tilput was included by Nuwab Fureed Khan, a nobleman of Jehangeer's time, in Fureedabad, now a Pergunah of the Bulumgurh Jageer; but the town of Tilput is included in the Southern Pergunah of Dehli. It is a place of great antiquity, and is one of the five towns demanded by the Pandoo Brothers, the refusal of which was one of the causes of the "Great War." Authorities do not concur in the names of the five towns, but Tilaprast, ha (Tilput) is generally one. ("Wilson's Hindu Theatre," Vol. II. 337).

12.—Tanda Phoogana. This Mehal is generally written Tanda Bhugwan, and we are led to an identification of it by learning that it has a fort on the Jumna. There is a Tanda on the Jumna, and the Pergunah attached to it, although it consisted of only four or five villages, was considered a separate one till the late revision of Pergunah Boundaries, when it was absorbed into Chhuprowlee. Tanda and Phoogana continued to form one Pergunah till the time of the Mahrattahs, when Phoogana was separated, and given in Jageer to Nijabut Ali Khan, Bahraich.

21, 22 and 23.—The three next Mehals comprise the environs of Dehli, and the names sufficiently point out their relative position.

32.—Senta is the old name for Pergunah Agouta in Bòòlund-shuhur. It would have been difficult to identify this, had not Agouta been called a Chouhan Buteesa, or commune of 32 villages of Chouhans. There are now not very many Chouhan Zemindars here, and as the Pergunah of Senta is represented in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee" to have Chouhan Zemindars, I was disposed to think that it was meant for Somna in Altigurh; and in many copies the word more resembles Somna than Senta; but this local designation of the Buteesa establishes that Senta is the proper reading. Senta, moreover, is considered in the neighbourhood to have been the chief town of a Pergunah.

46.—Musaoodabad. The old Traveller, Ibn Batuta, has helped me to verify this, as he mentions at p. 110, that he stayed at Musaoodabad on his way from Hansi to Dehli, reaching it after two days, and receiving there a complimentary visit from the Minister. Now, Musaoodabad on that road is the old name of Nujufgurh, which is a late erection, being built by Ghòòlam Hòòsein Khan and called after his patron Nujuf Khan. Musaoodabad had, however, previously changed its name to Afzulpoor, which was built by Choudhree Afzul Khan in the time of Alumgeer. The old mud fort of Musaoodabad is still to be traced about a mile to the East of Nujufgurh.

The new Pergunahs included within Sircar Dehli are the following:

دادري	1 Dadree.	ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا ا
	2 Agouta.	اجراره و اجراره Ujrara.
فريدآباه	3 Furecdabad.	ال معلى برگنه 10 Dehli. N.
	4 Palec.	شمال Pergunah.
بهادر گده	5 Buhaddorgurh.	ال معلى برگنه 11 Dehli. S.
	6 Sumbhalka.	بنب Pergunah.
كتهرر	7 Kit, hore.	ا Bhewanee بهراني 12 Bhewanee

Dadree was not formed into a Pergunah till 1231 Faslee, when Rao Durgahee Sing,h of Chutuhra, a Bhuttee Goojur, who was appointed Foujdar of Dasna, Secunderabad &c., under Nujeeb-òòd Dowla, took advantage of the disorganization of the country during the decline of the Moghul monarchy, to obtain possession of certain villages of Secunderabad, Kasna, Tilbegumpoor and Dasna, of which 70, including Dadree Khas, were acquired from Kasna alone; and his family were retained in possession on a Mòòkurruree Juma when our rule commenced. The Talooka lapsed to Government on the death of Rao Ajeet Sing,h.

Agouta has succeded to Senta which still exists as a village on the right bank of the Kalee Nuddee about four miles West from Agouta. Before the establishment of the name of Agouta, the Pergunah was known by the name of Senta Purtabpoor: Purtabpoor being a large village in the Northern angle of the Pergunah.

Fureedabad has been explained under Tilput. The Pergunah is in the Bulungurh jurisdiction. Bulungurh is itself only a modern fort, having been built by a Jat, called Buloo, alias Bulram, a relative of Soorujmul of Bhurtpoor, within the boundary of his own village of Suheepoor, in Tilput.

Palee is included within the area of Pakul or Islamabad Pakul, as it is called in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee." The united Pergunah is now generally known as Palee Pakul.

Buhadòòrgurh. This Pergunah is composed of about an equal number of villages from Palum and Jhujhur, which the Emperor Mahomed Shah, in A. D. 1728, bestowed upon Buhadòòr Khan, Beloch, who built the fort of Buhadòòrgurh within the area of Shurcefabad, a village of Palum. Buhadòòrgurh is still held in Jageer.

Sumbhalka was detached from Paneeput in the fourth year of the reign of Furròokhseer, and held as a royal demesne for his own private expenses. It continued subsequently to be held as a Jageer, and when on the death of the last incumbent it escheated to Government, it was again included in Paneeput.

The Pergunah of Sumbhalka was more usually known amongst the natives as Furrookhnugur.

. Kit,hore was originally a Tuppa of Sirawa, from which it was detached in the time of Nujeeb Khan by Jeet Sing,h, Goojur, the founder of the Goojur family of Preechutgurh.

Gora was formerly in Hapoor. The Goojur Raja of Preechutgurh, Nyne Sing,h, formed it into a separate Tuppa.

Ujrara was also detached from Hapoor. Futteh Ali Khan, the ancestor of Khwajah Busunt, in whose Jacedad it was comprised, formed it into a separate Tuppa, and it now, small as it is, ranks as a Pergunah.

Dehli, Northern Pergunah. This Pergunah was formed in the year 1838. It includes part of Huwelee and Palum. The Pergunah of Bawuna, or Boana, which is included in it, was itself a new formation from villages of Palum, which Aurungzebe detached for the purpose of defraying certain expenses of the Royal Household, and as they comprised 52 villages (Bawun), the tract, as well as the chief town within it, was designated Bawuna.

Delli, Southern Pergunah, was also formed in 1838. It includes a part of Palum, Huwelee, and Musaoodabad, and a few villages of Tilput. Nujufgurh, which has been already mentioned, was subsequently formed from Musaoodabad, and included, besides the villages of that Pergunah, 24 villages from Jhujhur and 12 from Jharsa. The two modern Pergunahs of Dehli, therefore, comprise the old Pergunahs of Huwelee Kudeem, Huwelee Judeed, Dar-òòl Mòòlk Dehli, Palum and Musaoodabad. The three first were subsequently united into the Pergunah of Huwelee, and when Palum was afterwards added, it was known as one Pergunah under the name of Huwelee Palum. This name it retained under our administration, till the new division took place, which has been particularized.

Bhewanee was originally a portion of Dadree Taha.

SIRCAR REWAREE.

ا بارل Bawul.	وتاي و Rutace Jutace.
2 Patoudhee.	T Kot Kasim کوت قاسم
8 3 Bhoruh.	ملي Alee.
G 4 Taoroo.	الله 8 Gehlot.
5 Rewarce ba	ینانه 9 Kohana.
Huwelee.	aiem 10 Soohnuh.

نامرانه 11 Neemranuh.

This Sircar contains eleven Mehals, divided into four Dustoors.

Only four of these Mehals are in British Territory, and as they retain their ancient names, they require no notice; except to observe that Sonuh (Sòòhnuh) is out of its place in the alphabetical list, and might therefore give rise to some suspicion of its correctness, but Abool Fuzl mentions it also in the text, in such a manner as to enable us to identify it as the Sonuh which still gives name to a large Pergunah.

The only new Pergunah within this Sircar is,

1 Shahjehanpoor.

This small Pergunah, containing only 8 villages, is isolated from the rest of Goorgaon by territory belonging to the Tijara Raja. The popular story runs that it was formed by Shahjehan, in compliance with a vow which he made when he was retiring in anger from his father. He met with favorable omens in this neighbourhood, and vowed, if they were accomplished, he would raise a town and constitute it the head of a Pergunah.* The new Pergunah was taken chiefly from Lohana, and in the "Uhwal-i-Soobajat" the Pergunah is entered as Lohana, dorf Shahjehanpoor Choubara.

SIRCAR SEHARUNPOOR.

اندري	1 Indree.	6 Bhogpoor.
امبهته	Umbehta.	الي بار عبار Poor Chupar.
	3 Bòddhana.	المرابعة 8 Bhooma.
	4 Bidoulee.	ا بگهرا 9 Bug,hra.
بهت کنجارر	5 Buhut Kunjawur.	10 Bunut.

Another origin is ascribed to Shahjehanpoor, which is perhaps more probable than the one mentioned above. Ihlad Sing, a relative of the Chouhan chief of Neemranuh, was held in high consideration in the Court of Shahjehan, and obtained leave from the Emperor to re-build Lohana, which had been destroyed in consequence of its harbouring notorious robbers. Ihlad Sing

If Shahjehan was himself the founder, and ever occupied the spot, it was most probably visited by him when his Army was encamped at Belochpoora in A. D. 1623, and was in possession of the passes of the Mewat Hills.

345

ال تهانة بهيم الله تهاني بهيم الله تهاني بهيم الله تعلق بهيم الله تعلق الله تعلق الله تعلق الله تعلق الله تعلق الله تعلق الله الله تعلق
نانوتة 36 Nanouta.

This Sircar contains 36 Mehals, divided into 4 Dustoors—Deobund, Kyrana, Sirdhunah and Indree. The last is on the right bank of the Jumna, and is not within British jurisdiction, its villages being distributed amongst the Sik,h Lords of Jugadree, Ladhoa, Thunesur, &c. &c. while Indree Khas is included within the Kunjpoora Nuwab's Ilaka.

The Pergunahs in the above list, which are no longer recorded as such, are Numbers 5, 6, 8, 11, 12, 16, 20, 23, 28, 31 and 36.

5.—Buhut Kunjawur was in the time of Shahjehan converted into Sòòltanpoor Buhut. In the time of Nujeeb-òòd-Dowla, Buhut and Sòòltanpoor became separate Pergunahs, and have so remained since. The Mouza of Kunjawur is in Mòòzuffurabad.

6.—Bhogpoor is on the Ganges, and the Pergunah comprised the Eastern portion of Juvalapoor, including Hurdwar. Bernoulli states, indeed, that Bhogpoor is another name for Hurdwar, but this is, I believe, not correct. At any rate, there is a Bhogpoor about ten miles South of Hurdwar, which is no doubt the head town of the old Pergunah of the same name.

- 8.—Bhooma has only within the last ten years lost its name as a separate Pergunah. Bysoomha has now succeeded to it, but Bhooma is still a very respectable town, and in Akber's time is spoken of as chief of the Barha Sadat villages.
- 11.—T,hana Bheem. All the copies concur in writing it Bheem, which is the name derived from the founder of the town, who is represented to have been a Mace-bearer to the King In later times, the place has been known by the name of Bhown, so called from a famous Bhown (Bhuwun) or temple, of Devee near the town.
- 12.—Tòòghlukpoor. The "Timoornama" mentions that Tòòghlukpoor, where the Indians opposed the Conqueror in naval combat, is situated 25 coss above Ferozpoor (in Hustinapoor). Tòòghlukpoor still exists in Noornugur, and was formerly the chief town of a Pergunah, to which Noornugur has now succeeded.
  - 16.—Huwelee has become the Pergunah of Scharunpoor.
- 20.—Racpoor Tatar. Within the area of Fyzabad, in the old Pergunah of Racpoor Tatar, Shahjehan built his palace of Badshah Muhul, and changed the name of the Pergunah to Fyzabad. The Mouza of Racpoor still exists on the banks of the Canal.
- 23.—Surwut is the old name of Pergunah Mõõzuffurnugur, and the village of that name still exists about a mile N. E. from Mõdzuffurnugur.
- 28.—K,hoodee is the old name of Shikarpoor, which is not yet altogether dropped by the common people. It is said to be the name of the Raja who founded the town.
- 31.—Luk,hnowtee. The greater part of Luk,hnowtee has within the last three years been thrown into Gungoh, and part into Bidowlee.
- 36.—Nanouta. The greater part of Nanouta was at the same time thrown into Gungoh, and parts of it into Rampoor and T,hana Bhown.

The new Pergunahs present a long list, chiefly owing to the changes effected by Nujeeb-òòd-Dowla and the Goojur Talookdars.

کهیري	1 K,heree.	الكيرآباد 8 Jehangeerabad.
80,500	2 Sukrouda.	9 Scoltanpoor. •
نورنگر	3 Noornugur.	المظفرنگر 10 Mddzuffurnugur.
	4 Jumalgurh.	ان کاتهه 11 Kat,ha.
جوالاپور	5 Juwalapoor.	ي تهانه بهرن 12 T,hana Bhown.
فيضآباه	6 Fyzabad.	ا شاملي 13 Shamlee.
	7 Putehur.	المتلفة 14 Jansul,h.

نيسومة 15 Bysoomha.

K,heree. This was formed into a separate Tuppa in the time of Zabita Khan, through the influence of the Poondeer Zumeendars, who are Rajpoots converted to Mahometanism. It was formerly a part of Roorkee.

Sukrouda was originally in Jourasce, and formed into a Pergunah by Rao Kòòtub-òòd-Deen, in the time of Zabita Khan.

Noornugur is called after the famous Noor Jehan Begum, who took up her abode there for some time. Noornugur, or rather Gordhunpoor,—by which name the Pergunah is now more generally known, since Noornugur Khas has been transferred to Seharunpoor,—has succeeded to the old Pergunah of Tooghlukpoor.

Jumalgurh, or Jumal K,hera, was originally in Gungoh, and was formed into a Pergunah by Jumal Khan, the Amil of Gungoh in the time of Nujech Khan. By late arrangements Jumalgurh has been thrown into Nukor.

Juvalapoor. This is the new name of the greater part of Pergunah Bhogpoor. In records written previous to the British accession, the Pergunah is denominated Bhogpoor dorf Juvalapoor, but is now known only as Juvalapoor.

Fyzabad.—See Raepoor. In the time of Shahjehan, Fyzabad became a place of great importance, and gave name to an entire Sircar. "In the "Hukeekut-i-Juma" by Hurdee Ram Kayet,h it is said to contain 24 Mehals; while Scharunpoor was reduced to 17.

Putehur. Unwur Khan, an Afghan of Putehur, in the time of Nujeeb Khan, established this as a separate Tuppa, or Pergunah. It was a part of Buhut Kunjawur.

Jehangeerabad was originally in Raepoor Tatar, and was formed into a Pergunah at the same time as Fyzabad.

Sòòltanpoor.—See Buhut Kunjawur.

Mddzuffurnugur.—See Surwut.

Kat,ha was originally included in Deobund, from which it was detached by Nujeeb Khan, who was compelled to establish a separate Collector in Budgaon, on account of the turbulence of the Zumeendars of the neighbourhood.

T,hana Bhown.—See Thana Bheem.

Shamlee was originally a portion of Kyrana. We learn from the collection of letters by Nund Ram Mookhlis that a village in Kyrana, called Mahomedpoor Zoonardar, was included in the Jageer bestowed by Jehangeer upon Hukeem Mookurrub Khan. A Chela of the Nuwab's (Shaman) built a Gunge in the village, and after otherwise improving it, called it after his own name, Shamlee. The Jageer remained in the family of Mookurrub Khan, till it was resumed by Buhadoor Shah who also formed Shamlee with a few other villages into a separate Tuppa, which in course of time has acquired the title of a Pergunah.

Jansut, h is now included with Jowlee in one Pergunah, called Jowlee Jansut, h. It was formed into a separate Pergunah in the time of Furròòkhseer, through the influence of the famous ministers Husun Ali Khan and Abdòòllah Khan.—See Barha Sadat.

Bysoomha has attained the dignity of a Pergunah by the town of Bysoomha having been one of the Head-Quarters of the Goojur confederacy in the time of Raja Goolab Sing. The old Pergunah of Bhooma is included in it.

SIRCAR HISSAR FEROZA.

1 Agroha.	بهارنگي	6	Bharungee
	برواله	7	Burwala.
	بهتر	8	Buhtoo.
5 Poonian.	بهٔتنیر	10	Bhutnere;
	1 Agroha. 2 Ahronee. 3 At,hk,hera. 4 Bhungeewal. 5 Poonian.	2 Ahronee. برداله 3 At,hk,hera. بهتر 4 Bhungeewal. بردا	2 Ahronee. برداله 7 3 At,hk,hera. 8 4 Bhungeewal. 9

349

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

توهانك 11 Tohana. 19 Seedhmook,h. 12 Tosham. دوشام 20 Sewance. 21 Shanzda Dehat. sina 13 Jeend. 14 Jumalpoor. جمال بور 22 Futtehabad. مار مار مار مار ترت 16 Dhatrut. ادّة عادة عهانة على الله على 17 Sirsa. 25 Mehim. 18 Sheoram. شيورام عانسى 26 Hansi.

There are 27 Mehals in this Sircar (Hissar being counted as two), and 4 Dustoors—Huwelee Hissar Feroza, Gohana, Mehim, and Sirsa. There are, however, several Pergunahs excluded from the Dustoor list, for what reason does not appear.

Of these Mehals, those which do not retain their old name in our Territory are Numbers 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 16, 18, 19, 21 and 24.

2.—Ahronce is partly in Ruttea and partly in Futtehabad. The historians of Timoor point out its position, by saying it is on the road from Futtehabad to Tohana. The place was burnt and pillaged by the Conqueror, merely because the inhabitants did not come out to pay their respects. (مراسم استقبال نجا نيارردند). Ahronce has now reverted to its original name of Aheerwan; whereas in Sircar Chunar, Aheerwara, which derived its name from the same tribe, has now been corrupted into Ahrora.

3.—At,hk,hera is under the Raja of Jeend, and is known now by the name of Kusonun.

4.—Bhungeewal, so called from the tribe of Jats which inhabited it, is the old name of Durba, in which place the Officers of the Raja of Beekanere built a fort, and thenceforward it came to be considered the chief town of a Pergunah.

5.—Poonian, called also after a tribe of Jats, is in Beekanere, but is now included in another Pergunah.

6.—Bharungee is also in Beekanere.

8.—Buhtoo is partly in Futtehabad, and partly in Durba. Buhtoo Khas is in the former Pergunah.

9.—Birwa is in the Protected Sik,h Territory.

10.—Bhutnere. The old town of Bhutnere is in Beekanere, but part of the Pergunah is now included in Ranea.

13.—Jeend gives name to one of the Protected Sik,h States. 14.—Junalpoor is included in the late Cessions from Putiala.

The old town of Jumalpoor is near Tohana.

16.—Dhatrut is in Jeend.

18 .- Sheoram is in the Bagur country, in the Jageer of Nuwab Ameer Khan. Two-thirds of Sheoram are now in Loharoo, the remainder in Dadree.

19.—Seedhmook,h is in Beekanere.

21 .- Shanzda Dehat, or Curcat, is included in Ruttea Tohana amongst the late Cessions from Putiala. The Ilaka is generally known by the name of Gurhee Rao Ahmud. I have heard it stated that it is in Jeend, and not in Ruttea Tohana.

24.-K,handa is in Jeend.

The modern Pergunahs are,

لعال عالى العالم العال aii, 3 Ruttea. 2 Ranea. دربه 4 Durba.

Buhul was originally in Sewance, from which is was separated in A. D. 1758 by Juwanee Singh, a Rajpoot, who built a mud Fort at Buhul, and maintained possession of a few neighbouring villages.

Ranea was in Bhutnere. The old name of the village was Rujubpoor. The Rance of Rao Anoop Sing, Rat, hore, took up her abode here, built a mud Fort, and changed the name of Rujubpoor to Ranea, which it has since retained.

Ruttea is now included in one Pergunah with Tohana. It was composed of villages from Ahronce, Jumalpoor and Shanzda Cureat.

Durba.— See Bhungeewal.

Some considerations respecting the Western boundary of this Sircar have been offered in the article BHUTTEEANA.

SIRCAR SUMBHUL.

1 Amroha. 3 Islampoor Buhroo. اسلام پرر بهرر بهرد ماري 4 Oojharee. 2 Azumpoor.

olijus 5 Akberabad. يرسي 26 Sirsce. 6 Islampoor Durgoo. 27 Suhuspoor. 7 Islamabad. 8 Sirsawa. ا الجنور 8 Bijnore. 29 Shercote. 9 Buchraon. .30 Shahee شاهي 31 Kòòndurk,hee. يري 10 Biroce. يوت يوري 32 Keerutpoor. ال بسارة 11 Bisara. اليرز 12 Chandpoor. &e= 33 Kuchh. الآباد مالك المالية علال المالية على ا 34 Gundour. يوريلغ 14 Chowpla. ابر 35 Kabur. عالو بالو بالو بالو بالو 36 Gunour. ار جدرار 16 Judwar. کهانکری 37 K,hankuree. المنابيل عريلي سنبهل 17 Huwelee Sumbhul. ي كهنور 38 Luk,hnor. ا ديرر8 18 Deora. قسو 8 كسو 8 كسو 8 క్షు 19 Dhaka. . AO Moghulpoor مغليور عيوله ميوركم 41 Mujhowla. 20 Dubharsee. كارىيلغ 21 Doodeela. 1) sic 42 Mundawur. نيان 43 Nugeena. اجارز احبارز 22 Rajpoor. نهترر 44 Nuhtour. וליי 23 Rujubpoor. نيودهنه 45 Neodhuna. Jaim 24 Sumbhul. 1, we 25 Scohara. نورلى 46 Nerowlee. disid 47 Hutmuna.

This Sircar contains 47 Mehals, and 3 Dustoors—Chandpoor, Sumbhul, and Luk, hnor.

The missing Pergunahs exceed those of any other Sircar amounting to more than half of the entire number, viz—.Numbers 3, 4, 6, 7, 9, 10, 11, 13, 14, 16, 17, 18, 19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 33, 34, 36, 37, 38, 39, 41, 45 and 47.

3.—Islampoor Buhroo is now contained in T,hahòòrdwara. The town is still in existence. The Jesuit Tieffenthaler leads us to this information by giving it's name correctly; which cannot be said of any other copy which I have consulted. Sulempoor Buhroo, by which name it is now more usually known, has the credit in the neighbourhood of having been the head town of a Pergunah.

- 4.—Oojharee has only lately been absorbed into Husunpoor.
- 6.—Islampoor Durgoo is now included in Buchraon, one of the Pergunahs of Husunpoor. In the Revenue accounts of 1166 F. S., it is recorded as Islampoor Durgoo shamil Buchraon.
- 7.—Islamabad. This Pergunah was retained till the year 1209 F. S. and was absorbed into Nugcena at the commencement of our administration. The village of Islamabad is abandoned.
  - 9.—Buchraon is now in Husunpoor.
  - 10.—Beroee is in the Rampoor Jageer.
  - 11.—Bisara is also in Rampoor.
- 13.—Julalabad. This is the old name of the Pergunah of Nujeebabad. The town of Julalabad is still in a flourishing condition.
- 14.—Chowpla is the name of Moradabad. Ròòstum Khan, Deccanee, founded Ròòstumnugur in this Pergunah which in the time of Furròòkhsecr was changed to Moradabad, and the name of Chowpla became extinct. Sirkura was also formed from Chowpla.
- 16.—Judwar remained as a Pergunah till 1153 F. S. Part of Judwar is included in Buhjoee, and part in Islamnugur and Usudpoor. The village of Judwar is in the Southern angle of Buhjoee.
- 17.—Huwelee Sumbhul is included in the Pergunah of Sumbhul.
- 18.—Deora is the old name of Seondara, and the village of Deora is about 5 miles to the South of Seondara. Seondara was occupied by a Tehseeldaree Cutcherry before the time of the Put,hans, but the name of Deora was preserved till the Cession, and began to be called Deora Seondara only in the Second Settlement. The name of Deora is derived from the Dor Rajpoots, who were the Zumeendars of the Pergunah.
- 19.—Dhaka, These two Pergunahs have also lately 20—Dubharsee. been absorbed into Husunpoor—the intermitting of willows being a second of the s
- mixture of villages being so great as to render this arrangement convenient.
  - 21.—Doodcela is in Rampoor.

22.—Rajpoor is also in Rampoor.

23.—Rujubpoor is now included within Amroha, and is held chiefly in Rent-free Tenure. The village of Rujubpoor is about 10 miles to the S. W. of Amroha.

33.—Kuchh is the old name of Pergunah Tigree, now included in Husunpoor.

34.—Gundour is the old name of Bashta, which is now combined with Azumpoor. Bashta, indeed, used frequently to be called Gundour Bashta.

36.—Gunour. The town of Gunour still exists in Usudpoor. The greater portion of the Pergunah is in Usudpoor—a part is in Rujpoora.

37.-K, hankuree is in Rampoor.

38-—Luk,hnor is also in Rampoor, and is more generally known as Shahabad on the Ramgunga. This, being the seat of the old Kut,herya Rajas, may be considered the capital of the country, and is so spoken of by the ancient historians. As the place is now but little known, transcribers generally confound this town with the more celebrated Lucknow, and English Translators have not been free from the same error. Bernoulli gives Luk,hnor as a separate Sircar, and alters its dimensions greatly from those given to the Dustoor in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee."

39.—Liswa is included in Rampoor.

In these, and other similar instances, I have not attempted to verify the names. It was sufficient for me to find these Mehals in the Dustoor of Luk,knor to make me include them in the Rampoor Territory. All that we have of Luk,knor is easily identifiable, and as nothing is wanting to complete our boundary, and as it will be observed from the Map there is ample space in Rampoor, we may fairly presume the missing Mehals to be in that Jageer.

41.—Mujhowla. The greater part of Mujhowla is now included in Buhjoee,—part is in Rujpoora and Islamnugur. Mujhowla Khas is still a large village, about five miles to the East of Buhjoee.

45.—Neodhuna is the old name of Islamnugur. Here again we are assisted by Tieffenthaler, when all Persian Copies fail. He calls it Neudhana (Bernoulli, I. 133). The two instances mentioned in this Sircar are almost the only ones where I have found this enterprising Jesuit Travellar of any use; and it is strange it should be so in Sumbhul, for his list of that Sircar is the worst he has given, being filled with names which have either been ill-transcribed, or fabricated. It does not appear that he ever visited these parts himself, but sent natives to pick up information. The name of Neodhuna being given correctly, we are able to connect it with the traditions of the Goulum Rajpoots of Noorpoor in Islamnugur.

47.—Hutmuna has gone to form part of Richha and Chow-mehla. Hutmuna Khas is in Chowmehla.

The following list shows the new Pergunahs of Sircar Sumbhul.

Daranugur. This Pergunah was formed from portion of Bijnore and Jhaloo by Rao Jet Jing,h, Jat, in the time of Mahomed Shah.

Nujeebabad. The town of Nujeebabad was founded by Nujeeb Khan, within the Pergunah of Julalabad, the name of which has now been superseded by Nujeebabad.

Rujpoora is formed from parts of Mujhowla and Gunour.

Usudpoor is formed from parts of Gunour and Judwar.

Buhjoee comprises parts of Mujhowla and Judwar.

Islamnugur is formed from Neodhuna and parts of Judwar and Mujhowla. The name of Islamnugar is said to have been given to Neodhuna by Roostum Khan, Deccanee.

Sirkura was originally a portion of Chompla, but it does not appear when it was established as a separate Pergunah.

Mòòradabad, (Moradabad).—See Chompla.

Seondara. See Deora.

T,hakòòrdwara. This Pergunah was established about the time of Mahomed Shah, by Kut,heryas, of the name of Muhundec Sing,h and Soorjun Sing,h. The greater part of T,hakòòrdwara has been obtained from Islampoor Buhroo. The Northern portion was originally within the jurisdiction of Kumaon. In T,hakòòrdwara are also included about 50 villages of Seohara, and nearly 150 of Moghulpoor.

Tarapoor. This Pergunah has been restored to the Eastern side of the Ganges.—See Boodhgunga.

Richha. Part of this Pergunah is formed from Hutmuna; but the greater portion we may presume to have been under the jurisdiction of Kumaon. Part is also taken from Bulyee.

Husunpoor* was originally in Dhaka; but now comprises six old Pergunahs—Kuchh, Buchraon, Dhaka, Dubharsee, Oojharee, and Islampoor Durgoo.

Chowmehla is a modern Pergunah, formed by Nuwab Fyzddla Khan from the four Pergunahs of Sirsawa, Richha, Kabur and Ròddurpoor. The old Pergunah of Hutinuna, which was extinct before this Pergunah was formed, is for the most part comprised in the Northern angle of Chowmehla.

Bashta is the new name of Gundour.

Afzulgurh. I have restored Afzulgurh to Shercote and Nugeena, as far as the Ramgunga. The rest has been concluded to have been within Hill jurisdiction; though it is usual to consider the whole of Afzulgurh and Rehur as belonging to Shercote.—See Des.

* An Altumgha grant said to have been given by Shahjehan in favor of Modbariz Khan, ancestor of the present Zumeendars of Husunpoor, places Husunpoor in Huwelee Sumbhul, but it is not easy to conceive how that Pergunah could have penetrated through Dhaka and Oojharee. The grant therefore (it was resumed by the Put,hans) must either be a forgery, or Sumbhul is alluded to rather as a Sircar, than a Pergunah.

SIRCAR BUDAON.

This Sircar consists of 13 Mehals, which constitute only one Dustoor.

The extinct Mehals are Numbers 5, 6, 7, 9, 11 and 13.

5.—Burseer is the old name of the Pergunah of Surowlee which it retained till the time of the Cession. The village of Burseer, which is still inhabited, is about six miles to the South of Surowlee, and is on the borders of Aonla (Anowla). Surowlee is still called by the common people, Burseer.

6.—Poonur. Poonur Khas is a deserted Mouza in Poorunpoor Subna. Poonur forms only a small portion of the present Pergunah of Poorunpoor Subna, since it is represented as containing only 5,749 Beeg,has.

7.—Bulyee. When Mecruk Jan, Amil in the reign of Shahjehan, founded Jehanabad, the name of the Pergunah was changed from Bulyee to Jehanabad, in honor of his new town. The K,hera of Bulyee is still to be seen near Jehanabad.

9.—Sutasee Moondea. This is a very difficult Pergunah to restore. It assumes all kinds of shapes in the various copies,—Mokudduma Sunas, Munala Sunasun, Sunanut Mudrusa; and Bernoulli increases our doubts by calling it Mandia, surnommée Saniassi. If it had not been for the present existence of the Pergunah of Sutasee, on which word many of the changes seem to ring, we might not have been able to identify it at all; and even now it might be considered open to suspicion, because the Mehal is said to have Tuga Zumeendars; whereas, Sutasee has none; but then neither is there a single Tuga Zumeendaree throughout the District of Budaon, and scarcely any in its immediate neighbourhood,—so that this is no real objection. It only shows that the Tuga Zumeendarees have become extinct. The ruins of Sutasee are said to be near Beerk,hera, four miles to the South of Bisowlee, and Mòòndea is a large inhabited village about six miles to the North West of Bisowlee. The position of the two chief towns renders it very probable that they were combined into a single Pergunah. I was at one time disposed to call it Sutasee Munounah, because Munounah was the seat of a Native Collector at one period, but its close proximity to Aonla, which is itself the head town of a Mehal, would not admit of this construction. Guided by all these considerations, I believe I have not been wrong in calling the Mehal, Sutasee Mòòndea.

11.—Kant. This was originally the name of Shahjehanpoor. When that city was founded by Buhadòòr Khan, in the time of Furrookhseer, the name of Kant became extinct.. Tilhur is also formed from Kant.—See Bachhull.

13.—Gola has been considered in its alphabetical place.

The new Pergunahs within this Sircar present a list of unusual length.

البراي 2 Crore.
البلا 3 Bulea.
البلا 3 Bulea.
البلا 4 Jehanabad.
البراي 5 Nuwabgunge.
البراي 6 Beesulpoor.
البراي 8 Pilibheet.
البراي 9 Sulempoor.
الرجهاني 9 Sulempoor.
الرجهاني 10 Oojhanee.
البراي 11 Fureedpoor.
الرسمت 12 Ooshut.

الرهي المراقي
ي اوُلاي 24 Aoolace.

Bisowlee is a portion of Sutasee Moondea, the remainder being represented by the present Sutasee, with the addition of Tuppa Rotah of Budaon.

There seems no reason why Bisowlee should not have given name to a Pergunah in Akber's time. It is an old Town, and though it is indebted for its chief improvements to the generous and gallant Nuwab Doondee Khan, who lies buried, as well as many other members of Ali Mahomed's Family, at Bisowlee, yet it had been for a long time previous a place of some consideration. In our eyes it possesses interest as being the first Cantonment of a British Brigade in Rohileund.

Crore is included in the old Mehal of Bareilly.

Bulea was originally in Suneya, but subsequently in Crore, from which it was detached at the fourth Settlement.

Jehanabad.—See Bulyee.

Nuwabgunge was originally a portion of Bareilly. It was not formed into a new Pergunah till the fourth Settlement, when a Tehseeldaree was established at Nuwabgunge. The Town was founded on the lands of Bichorea, in the time of Nuwab Asof-òòd-Dowla.

Beesulpoor was also in Bareilly. It derives its name from an Aheer of the name of Beesoo, who lived in the time of Shah-jehan.

Shahjehanpoor. - See Kant.

Pilibheet, or as much of it as was known in the time of Akber, was taken from Bulyee.

Sulempoor was originally in Suneya.

Oojhance. From the old Settlement Records we find that when the Pergunah of Budaon was annexed at the fourth Settlement to Bareilly, it comprised 7 Tuppas. Oojhance comprises Tuppa Julalpoor, and is separated from its parent Pergunah, along nearly its entire Eastern border, by the river Sote.* The

This River is now generally known by the name of Yarwufadar. As various origins are ascribed to this name, it may be as well to subjoin the correct one from the Tarvekh-i-Mahomedshahee of Khooshal Chund.

از مضافات سنبهل بصوب سركار بدايون لواي فيورزي انتماے مترجة گشتند در اثناء راة بسبب اشتداد تموزر كميابي اب ررزے چند تكاليف بر village of Julalpoor is about ten miles to the South of Oojhanee. When Rohileund was under the administration of the Put, hans, Oojhanee became the residence of Nurab Abdoullah, and thenceforward it was constituted the chief Town of a Pergunah.

Furecdpoor was originally a portion of Bareilly, known as Tuppa Khuleelpoor.

Ooshut, or Oosahut, includes Tuppa Muhanugur of Budaon. Tilhur was a portion of Kant. When Raja Tilok Chund, a Bachhul Rajpoot, founded Tilhur, he included the surrounding villages in a new Pergunah.

Negohee. This Pergunah was originally a portion of Gola. Julalpoor was a portion of Bareilly, known as Tuppa Churk,hola. The town of Julalpoor was founded by Raj Deo, son of Raja Bas Deo, Kut,herya, who lived subsequent to the time of Akher.

K,hera Bujhera. The Pergunah was formed from portions of the new Pergunahs of Julalpoor, Tilhur, and Fureedpoor, and therefore was originally a part of Kant and Bareilly.

Kutra was originally in Bareilly, and it was not till the time of Kumal Zyee Khan, the son of Modzuffer Khan, who in the time of Alumgeer founded Kutra on the ruins of the old town Meeranpoor, that the Pergunah of Meeranpoor Kutra was established.

Punayen was originally a portion of Gola. The old village of Gola is in this Pergunah, and is still inhabited.

Buragaon was also a part of Gola.

مسكر منصور ميگذشت رعاله بعلت حوارت رامراض ديگر مبتلا گشته ر پيكر عنصري حضرت جهانبانے نيزتكسل كشيدة بارے درين راة سوت نام درياچة كه پيچ درپيچ ميگذره همراهے ركاب سعادت نمودة در هر منزل خدمت ابداري كشكر. بحر پيكر بجا آوردة ابروے تمام حاصل نمودة حضرت انوا بنام يار وفادار موسوم فومودة چون چشمة سلسبيل شهرة اناق فومودند ز سيداران انحدود ميگفتند كه اب اين رودبطي الهضم و كثير الاضراراست به يمن قدرم حضرت شاهنشا هے شربت گوارا زندگاني بخش عالميان شدة قصة كوتاة بتاريخ بست و يكم عرصة بدايون مخيم سرادقات جاة جلال گوديد

Poorunpoor Subna. Poorunpoor is the chief town of the Pergunah. Subna, which was taken by the Rohillas from the Dotce Ilaka, has been carried away by the Sardah.

Pergunah Poorunpoor is formed from parts of Gola and Poonur, and the village of Poorunpoor was in the former Pergunah. The portion near the Sardah was not known in Akber's time, and has therefore been excluded from the Map.

K,hotar was originally a portion of Gola, but the greater part has been excluded from the Map for the reasons stated under Gola.

Fyzpoor Budurea was originally included in Suheswan.

Nidhpoor was a portion of Budaon.

Aoolace was also a portion of Budaon.—See Boodingungs for further information respecting the boundary of this Sirear.

Dustoor-òòl-umul

dastúr-ul-amal

ट्सत्रडलग्रमल

A body of instructions and tables for the use of Revenue Officers under the Native Government. Notwithstanding the frequent appeal by Canoongoes and our early European Officials to the Dustoor-ôòl-Umul, no two copies can everbe found which correspond with each other, and in most respects they widely differ. Those which profess to be copied from the Dustoor-òòl-Umul of Akber, are found to contain on close examination sundry interpolations of subsequent periods.

Besides the Dustoor-òò-Umul, another Book, called the Umul Dustoor, was kept by the Canoongoes, in which were recorded all orders which were issued in supersession of the Dustoor-òòl-Umul. It is probable that the Dustoor-òòl-Umuls in use, shortly before our administration, were compiled from both these Books, and hence have arisen the variations noted above.

Dutoee, ट्रेंग्ड दताई datoí

Land which has been lately cropped with Mukka, Bajra, or Junar.—Dehli and Upper Doab.

There is much the same difficulty about spelling this word, as in spelling Dunt, Hul. Professor Shakespear, whose authority is not to be slighted, gives II as a stalk, which would make Dutoce to be more accurately represented by II or II. Gilchrist also spells it II.

Dutura, ८३ ८तरा datara

A large rake used for gathering high grass together into a cocklet. Kilwaee is a smaller implement of the same kind.—Rohilcund.

Dyja, ८३ दैजा daija

A Dowry, or portion which the wife brings a husband in marriage,—the Maritagium of the Civil Law.

Wilson, in a note to Mill's India, (Vol. I., p. 447,) says that "amongst the Hindoos the practice of purchasing a bride by a Dower is apparently of modern growth, and a violation of the law." There are passages in Menu on the subject which appear contradictory.

"Let no father who knows the law receive a gratuity, however small, for giving his daughter in marriage; since the man who through avarice takes a gratuity for that purpose, is a seller of his offspring."—Institutes III. 51.

"He who takes to wife a damsel of full age shall not give a nuptial present to her father;" IX. 93—which implies that under ordinary circumstances a present was given.

Again, "If after one damsel has been shown, another be offered to the Bridegroom who had purchased leave to marry her from her next kinsman, he may become the husband of both for the same price. This law Menu ordained."—VIII. 204.

These passages would imply the observance of both practices; and the same may perhaps have continued till the time of the Greek invasion, for Arrian (Indica CXVII.,) says the Indians neither took nor gave money in marriage; while Megasthenes (Strabo, Lib. XV.) says their wives were purchased for a yoke of oxen.

Amongst the agricultural tribes in the North West Provinces, the present practice is most usual for the bride's father to purchase the bridegroom, so that the man receives the dowry,* or Dyja, which consists for the most part of money and household utensils. Thus, even when the daughter of Jye Chund was forcibly abducted by Pirt, hee Raj, the father sends to him "the richest gems, the fruits of the victory of Beejy Pal, inestimable wealth, pearls, elephants, and dyes." Thus also, the same hero, when he marries the daughter of the Dahima of Biana, receives from his father-in-law "eight beauteous damsels, sixty-three female slaves, one hundred chosen Irak horses, two elephants, ten shields, a pallet of silver for the bride, one hundred wooden images, one hundred chariots, and one thousand pieces of gold."

This system, the fruitful source of female infanticide, arises from the almost universal desire to obtain for the daughter the privilege of marrying into a higher family, which is only to be acquired by purchase. Thus among Rajpoots and Brahmins, the relative position of the several clans can be easily ascertained, by learning with what families sons and daughters respectively intermarry. The sons marry those of an inferior stock, and receive money for the condescension; the daughters marry those of a superior stock, and their parents have to pay for the privilege. Where perfect equality reigns, (and mutual convenience, as well as the gradual extinction of ancient prejudices are slowly tending to this result,) sons and daughters of three or four different stocks intermarry; and as alliances are thus not sought for mere honor and distinction, the payment of exorbitant prices is obviated. Sometimes, indeed, an imaginary purchase is made, similar to that which took place at certain Roman marriages, under the name of Coemptio,—though of course not with a view of securing the peculiar kind of privileges which the Coemptio gave, -- but merely as a type of a custom of which the breach is thought preferable to the observance.

It may be as well to subjoin in further illustration of this subject the following passages from Steele's "Summary of the Law and Custom of Hindoo Castes."

* Dower the wife is of course entitled to by the laws of inheritance.

"Usoor is the 5th variety of marriage, when the girl is taken in exchange for wealth, and married. This species is peculiar to the Byse and Soodra castes." "The sale of a girl in marriage is forbidden, and the money, if unpaid, is an unlawful debt."

"The lower castes often receive money on the marriage of their females called Hoonda, which is the characteristic of the 5th (Usoor) variety, and it is suspected that Brahmins occasionally, in the present avaricious generation, incur sin on this account."

"A poor family, to avoid the disgrace of receiving Hoonda, will sometimes marry their daughter into a family of similar circumstances; or an intermarriage may be agreed on both sides."—Pp. 31. 161. 166.

See also Macnaghten's "Principles and Precedents of Hindu Law."—Vol I., Chap. 5.

E

Eek, H, KgKil 美國 ik'h

Sugar-cane. A field of Sugar-cane.—See Ook, it and Gunna.

Eek, Hraj, ह्रिंट्री ईखराज ík'hraj

Eek,hraj or, Ook,hraj, is the name given in some places to the day on which Sugar-cane is planted, which is generally attended with some festive ceremonies. In the Eastward it is usual for the women of the village to take out to the field a mixture of rice and turmeric, called Eipun, into which they dip their hands, and impress them on the heap of Sugar-cane which is to be planted. They then proceed towards the ploughmen and planters, and leave the same impression on their backs. who drives the first plough is decorated with necklaces and other ornaments, lamp-black is rubbed on his eyelids, and on him the first hat, ha. or impression, is made. The women then begin to dance and sing and after a short time has elapsed, the proprietor of the field throws a bundle of Sugar-cane amongst them as the signal of dismissal, and after much scrambling they The labourers also are well fed by the proprietor on depart. their return home.

In the Eastward the Eck,hraj seldom occurs on a Sunday, but to the Westward that day is considered propitious for the planting. The customs which are observed are also different. In Dchli, for instance, the wife of the man at the plough, who turns up the ground for the reception of the Sugar cuttings, follows a little behind with a ball of cotton in her hard. At some unexpected moment, he turns on her, and after a sham contest bears her to the ground. The Cotton being forced out of her hand spreads upon the ground, and the parties present exclaim, "may our Sugar-cane grow and spread like this cotton." The only European custom which bears any resemblance to this is that which used to be practised on May Day in some parts of England. That day was considered as the one which divided the boundaries of Summer and Winter; allusively to which a sportful war took place between two parties, one in defence of the continuance of Winter, the other, of Summer. Spring was sure to obtain the victory, which was celebrated by carrying triumphantly green branches with May flowers, and singing a song of joy, of which the burden was, "We have brought the Summer home." Brand's "Popular Antiquities," Vol. I. p. 138.

EENCH, 会訓 氧 ínch Security.—Dehli.

Eendhooa, إيندهوا ईंडुग्रा índhuá

A pad placed on the top of the head to support a waterjar.—See Joora.

Eimlee, إيملي रैमली aimlí

A sub-division of Tugas in Husunpoor, Dhubarsee, Dhaka, and Oojharee of Zillah Moradabad. Many of them have been converted to Mahomedanism.

Eквасинев, يكباچهي दुक्रवाही ekbáchhí

Distribution of any sum or cess, levied upon all land at an equal rate.—Central Doab.

Ekfurdee, يكفردى एक्फर्रो ekfardí

Land producing only one crop annually; opposed to Jootean and Dofurda. It is also known by the name of Ekfuslee, Furd and Furdhaee.

EKFUSLEE, يكفصلي एकफसली ekfaslí

Land yielding but one crop annually.

EKOTRA, يكوتره एकीचा ekotra

Ekutra, अध्य एकचा ekatra

A sum total.—Bundlecund.

It is also applied generally to signify the numeral 101, as well as interest at the rate of one per cent. per mensem.

F

FALEZ,

ज्या बीय

fález

A field of melons.

FARIGHKHUTANA

fárighkhatána

कार्गिखताना قارغخطانك

A fee on writing a Farigh, khuttee, sometimes taken by Putwarees. The term Farigh, khuttee is correctly explained in the Glossary to signify a written release or acquittance.

FIRAREE,

र्णिरारी वर्रार्

firárí

Absconding; a person who has absconded; from the Persian by firar flight. The word is more usually pronounced Furaree in India.

Готан,

४७ कं फाता

fota

A bag; collections made from the Tenantry in general; treasure; revenue.

Fouteenama, فوتينامه أوتينامه fautináma

A document reporting the death of an incumbent and the names of his heirs; from the Arabic ¿Fout, death.

Furas, ं क्रांस farás

(Țamaris Furas). The Furas occurs in the drier parts of the Doab, and in the neighbourhood of Dehli; where it is called Asul or Atul, because in Arabia the galls which are formed on the tree are called Sumrut-ul-Asul. Chhotee Muce is the Hindoostanee name of these galls. Very little use is made of the tree, except occasionally in building, when nothing better can be procured. See Jhao.

In the Doab it does not appear to grow to the East of the Urrind Nuddee.

Furd, فرى फार्द fard

A list, a sheet, a statement. Thus Furd-i-Kasht is a Statement of a Ryut's Cultivation, from Kasht, cultivation; and Furd-i-Tushkhees is a settlement record, from Tushkhees (Inf. II. of شخص) specification, assessment.—See Fird in the Printed Glossary; and above, under Ekfurdee.

1

Furman, हिल्लीह प्रसान farmán

A Royal mandate; an order; a patent. In English it assumes various shapes, as Firman. Phurmaun, and Phirmand.

Furod, ७७७ फरोद farod

Literally down, descending, alighting. A term used in the Customs Department to express the arrival and deposit of goods within certain defined limits.

Furrash, فراش फराम farrash

From the Arabic فرش a carpet; a person who spreads carpets, a sweeper. The term is correctly explained in the Glossary under Ferashe, Firashe, and Furush. In ancient times his duty appears to have been that of a Khulashee, or Tentpitcher, and the latter term was applied chiefly to Sailors.

تَندَىل بزرگ خلاصيان ملاح را بزبان دريا ررزان خلاصي و حارره گويند Ayeen-i-Akberee.

Furyadee, فريادي फरियादी faryádí

A Plaintiff: from Furyad فزياه a complaint, lamentation.

Fusl, क्षेत्र fasl

A season, crop, harvest; and hence the term Fuslee is applied to the Era established with reference to the harvests of Hindoostan. These harvests occur twice in the course of the year; one is known by the name of Khureef, and the other by the name of Rubbee. The former is correctly explained in the Printed Glossary, under "Fusly Kheruf," to signify the Autumnal harvest of Rice, Millet, &c.

Rubbee signifies the Spring crop, or dry harvest, comprising Peas, Wheat, Barley, Gram, &c. The common people sometimes denote these harvests by other names.—See Asarhee, Oonaree, Sadhee and Sawunee.

Khureef is derived from the Arabic خزف, the falling of Autumnal rains, the gathering of Autumnal fruits; and thus it came generally to mean the gathering of harvest; whence the term Al-Mòòkharif (not noticed by either Golius or Richardson) a tribute gatherer; which is retained to the present day in the Spanish Almoxarife*, a Collector, a Treasurer, and Almoxarifazgo, tribute, customs-dues.

Rubbee literally means Spring, (Pocock, Spec: Hist: Ar: p. 181), and it may therefore appear strangely applied to a Mahomedan lunar month, which in course of time makes a revolution of all the seasons, occurring sometimes in Winter, sometimes in Summer, sometimes in Spring, and sometimes in Autumn. But the false prophet cared little for chronological propriety, and adopted in his new Calendar the names of the old Arabian months of the Solar year without any reference to their meaning, or more probably without reflecting that in a short time they would become exceedingly inappropriate. In the same way, Julal-òòd-deen, when he reformed the Persian Calendar, introduced similar anomalies, and the names of many of the months as at present applied, depart widely from their original meaning. Murdad, for instance, is the presiding

6

* It is surprising how many other Spanish words, all relating to the cares, duties, and offices of Government, are derived from the Arabic. Thus, Ameen is the Spanish Alanin. Mohtesib is the Spanish Almotazen, the Superintendent of weights and measures. Moquadum, familiar to us in India, is the Spanish Almocaden. Dar-Sunah "the House of Construction," is the Spanish Darsena a Dockyard; whence the English, French, and Italian Arsenal. Ameer-ul-(Buhr) is the Spanish Almirante, and English Admiral, or as Milton more correctly says Ammiral. Mukhzun is the Spanish Magazen, and English Magazine. Alwasil is the Spanish Alguasil, an Officer of Justice. Ameer-ul-Moomenein is the Spanish Miramamolin, and the Miramolin of Romance; besides several more which it is needless to detail.

angel of Winter (Furhung-i-Jehangeeree), but the present month of Murdad is July.

With respect to the period during which the harvests last, authorities are by no means agreed; some, like the Dewan Pusund, give eight months to the Khureef, and four to the Rubbee; others, like the Zòòbdut-òòl-Quwaneen, and Raj Roop,† give six months to each harvest. It is not easy to define the exact period of each, as the occupations of both harvests are, during some months, carried on simultaneously. Thus the sowing of the Rubbee and cutting of the Khureef, and very frequently the ploughings for both harvests, are carried on at the same time, and it becomes difficult to say to which harvest most labour is devoted.

There is an attempt made to explain the cause of this difference of opinion respecting the duration of the two harvests in the second Book of an anonymous Dustòòr-òòl-Umul. The author says, "some writers assign different periods to the Rubbec and Khureef. In the Soobah of Bengal the Khureef has nine months and the Rubbee three. In Orissa the Khureef has

† His account of the Indian year is worth quoting.

در هندرستان آغاز سال از ابتداے غوہ ماہ مهر که عنفران خویف است و آخر ربیع یعنی چون مذکور مزررعات این ممالک بر بارش برسات است که آغاز خویف است همان آغاز ترده زراعات هر در فصل یعنی خویف ر ببیع میشود ازینجهت اهل هند از تدیم ابتداے سال از خویف دانند بهمین میشود ازینجهت اهل هند از تدیم ابتداے سال از خویف دانند بهمین نماید ر حساب آررده در دفاتر اخذ حاصلات مزررعات ر غیر ذالک همت نماید ر اعتقاد مسلمین است که در بلاه هندرستان در بدایت حال رراج اسلام از خویف شده ازینجهت سلاطین درین دیار آغاز سال از خویف مقرر کرده اند و هر سال از در فصل یعنی خویف ر ربیع قرار یافته * * * * درین درین دیار آغاز ربیع بحال درین دیار از خویف ر از غوه ماه مهر لغایت ماه ماند والا ابتداے سال درین دیار از خویف و از غوه ماه مهر لغایت ماه سپندارمذ شش ماه یکصد و هفتاد و هشت روز خویف و از غوه فررردی لغایت ماه شهر یور شش ماه یکصد و هفتاد و هشت روز ربیع است که همگی سه صد و شصت ر پنجروز برده باشد ten months, and the Rubbee two;" so that, if this be the real cause, we must always regard the country of the writer, when we consider his account of the periods of Rubbee and Khureef.

Fysula, द्रोळाडं फीसला faisala

Adjustment, decision, decree, settlement. It is an Arabic word, derived from the Fusl mentioned above, which signifies cutting, separating, disjoining; and hence applied to a season. Hence also Fysul is a judge, because he discriminates between right and wrong, and the decision given by him is a Fysula. Ibn-i-Arab Shah calls the day of judgment standard The word Modfussul, so familiar to our ears, is similarly derived, signifying districts, or territory separated from the seat of Government.

G

GACHHEE,

गार्क्की گاچھی

gáchhí

A pad put over the back of a beast of burden; called also Guddee, Gut, hee, Buk, hra, Pulan, Lewo, Pudad, Chhaee, and by several other names, which are merely local, and even then not applicable to every beast. For instance, where the pad of the Ass is Lewa, that of the Bullock is Chhace-Buk, hra; and so on.

GAD,

अर्ड गाद

gad

The sediment of dirty water.

GADUR,

ر کادر गाद्र

gádar

Gadur, or, more correctly, Guddur and Gudra, signifies halfripe fruit or corn.—See Bhudahur.

GADUR,

্যতি गांडर gádar

Sheep.—See GUDUREA.

GAEEN,

्राई गाई

gáin

The name of a small clan of Rajpoots in Kopa Cheet, Zillah Ghazeepore, and in Benares.

GAGRA,

اگرا गागरा gágrá

See BHUNGEE.

AAA2

Gahna, Lide गाहना gáhná

To tread out corn.—See DAEN.

Gahun, ুহুট गাहन gáhan

A harrow with teeth for eradicating grass from ploughed land. The Myra, which it resembles in form, has no teeth. The implement is little known to the East of Furruckabad.

Gaja, lọb गाजा gájá

The first rice-sowing in the Districts at the foot of the Hills. The sowing is in Bysak,h, the cutting in Bhadon. The word is perhaps derived from Gujana, to ferment, to rot, which aptly expresses the condition of this early crop. The second sowing is called Bhijoa, it occurs in Jet,h, the cutting takes place in Kòòar. The third is called Russouta, or Ròòtea, seasonable, because it takes place in the most natural ròòt, (vulg. for rit, season). The sowing is in Asarh or Sawun, and the harvest in Katik or Ug,hun.

Gajur, थेन्ए गाजर gájar

A Carrot.

Gal, اگال गाल gál

A sort of Tobacco.—See Tumbakoo.

GALA, ठाउँ गाला gála

A pod of Cotton, or more usually, a ball of carded Cotton, which is known also by the name of Godha گردها

Gam, प्रीम gám

A village; more usually, Ganw.

Ganda, डिंगानडा gándá

Sugar-cane.—See AGOUND, EEK,H, and GUNNA.

Gandul, گاندگل गांडल gándal

Gandur, चांडर gándar

(Andropogon Muricatum.) Thatching grass.—Gandul grows in land subject to inundation; and its root yields the Khushhus for Tattees. The produce of this grass has of late years much diminished, owing to the great extension of cultivation in those parts where it used formerly to grow spontaneously. Gandul is the common name of the grass, but it is known by the name of Panhee in Dehli.

Ganja, ४इं७ गांजा gánja

Ganja, or Ganjha, is a plant from which an intoxicating drug of the same name is procured, which is used as a liquor in the Upper Provinces, and smoked like Tobacco in Bengal. That which is procured from Baloogurrah in Bengal is of high repute. It is divided into Chupta and Gole, of which the first is chiefly in demand in Hindoostan.

Ganja is largely cultivated in the Hills of Sirmoor and Gurhwal, and the plant grows wild under the Hills from Scharunpoor to Tirhoot, and on the banks of the Ganges; but it appears to be not the same as the smoking Ganja of Bengal, as it is declared to have none of the gum-resin qualities peculiar to the latter. O'Shaughnessy describes Ganja to be the dried hemp plant which has flowered, and from which the resin has not been removed. This resin in certain seasons exudes, and concretes on the leaves, stems, and flowers, and is called Churus.

Buchanan, in his Statistical account of Dinajepoor, says that the hemp when young is called Ganja; and Siddhi when the flowers have full expanded. Authorities, however, seem little agreed respecting the exact difference between Ganja, Siddhi, and Bhung; nor are they more agreed respecting the difference between the Ganja of the Upper and Lower Provinces, and the identity of the Cannabis Sativa and Indica.

It was only this year that some Ganja, procured at Scharunpoor was sent for examination to the Superintendent at Rajshahee, who thus comments upon it.

"The specimens sent bear more the character of the Hemp plant grown for Sunni, than of the true Ganja plant. The "Cannabis Indica," or Ganja plant, is diœcious, annual, about six or seven feet high; the stem is erect, six or eight inches in circumference, and branched; leaves alternate or opposite, on long weak petioles, digitate, scabrous, with linear, lanceolate, sharply serrated leaflets, tapering into a long smooth entire point. Males lax and drooping; branches leafless at base. Females erect, simple, and leafy at the base. Small juttees, the size of a walnut, form on the branches, of an absorbing nature, containing resinous narcotic juice, which is the part of the plant used. Each plant will yield from 20 to 26 branches, weighing, when dry, from 2 to  $2\frac{1}{3}$  seers."

"The Natives prepare the drug in a very rude manner, the branches are cut off when the resinous juttees are ripe, and left to dry for a few days; they are then spread on mats, and the juttees are compressed with the toes. By this means a great portion of the narcotic resin is lost on the mats, and by adhesion to the toes. The sticks being retained is also very objectionable when the drug has to be sent to a great distance; for out of 1000 maunds prepared in the customary way, not more than 30 maunds of the drug can be obtained, the remainder being useless sticks."

It is evident, therefore, that in his opinion the Ganja of Bengal is of superior quality to that of the Upper Provinces, from which intoxicating Bhung only can be extracted, and that the Cannabis Sativa is not the same as the Cannabis Indica; yet Roxburgh, Willdenow, O'Shaughnessy, and several other authorities declare that Ganja is the Cannabis Sativa; and the former, on comparing plants raised from Europe hempseed with the Ganja plant, could not discover the slightest difference between them.—As: Research: Vol. XI. p. 161.—See Bhung and Churus.

Ganjur, अन्नंध गांजर gánjar

A kind of grass. It is known also by the name Gunjeroa, and is considered very difficult to eradicate when it has once taken root.

Gankur, گانگر गंकर gánkar

An inferior kind of bread made of Arhur and other hard grains. It is also, more generally, applied to any bread not baked on an iron plate, (the primitive "gribble" of Ireland)—made, in short, in a hurry, and covered with embers till it is considered baked enough to eat. It is also known by the name of Gakur, Girdec, Unyakur, Bhowra and Batee..—See Bhutòòla.

Ganteh, & ਫ਼ੌਂਡੀ गांटा gántah Gant,h, ਫ਼ੌਂਡੀ गांट gánth

Gant, h is literally a knot, and is applied by Agriculturists to the refuse of straw, consisting of the knotted parts of the stalk and ear-ends; which are known to English Farmers under the name of "colder." This is formed into a heap, and put aside on the threshing ground. As an illustration of the difference which prevails in the Agricultural terms of different parts of these Provinces, it may be interesting to give the names of the various heaps which are at different times raised on the threshing ground, during the process of winnowing the corn. The names which are given as synonymous with Gant, h, do not all represent the same thing. The words beginning with S. signify generally the "colder" after it has been re-winnowed; and some of the other names are applied only to Khurreef, or only to Rubbee produce, specially; the same word being rarely used for both.—See Bhòòrure.

376

			TABLE	TABLE OF DIALECTIC VARIETIES.	ECTIC V	ARIETI	ES.
Dehli.	Rohilcund.	Upper Doab.	Central Doab.	Lower Doab.	E. Oudh, or Goruckpoor.	Benares.	Bundleeund.	Saugor.	How composed.
Sillee,	Gòòrhao, Sillee,	Sillee,		Kulha,	Koonao,	Gooranw,			Grain and com
Dhur,	Sillee,	Dhur,	Venee,	Gooranw,	Aokan,		T, hooa,	Oddeyee, <	or winnowed
Ras, or Tar, Ras, .		Ras.	850					_	corn unheaped.
			:	Kas,	Ras,	Ras Ras,	•	Ras,	Heaped grain.
Bhoos,	Osa,		Sillee.	Sillee,	Sillee,
,	_	Bhòòs,		Bhoosour,	Bhòdsour,	Sillee, Bhoosoul,		Bhòòsoura,	Bhòòsoura, Heaped straw,
Cant, ha,	Gant, li,	Gant, ha,	Gut, hodree, 7 Ganta,		K, hoontee,	Gant,h,	   Goot,hree.	Gut.bòòa >	Gut bòòs I Robico de
	_		t	Gòòt,hree,				)	teinse straw,
	?	ranteh,)	sut, hodree,	Ganteh,   Sut, hooree, J Jungra,   Get, hura,	,	Ganteh,	Soot, hree,	Sut, hòòa,	or colder.
				The state of the s		•

GAOCHURAEE, گاو چرائي गावचराई gáocharáí

Grazing; a grazing tax; from Gao, a cow, and Churana, to graze. It is known also as Kahchuraee; from Kah, grass.

GAOLEE, گاولي गावली gáolí

A Cowherd.

GAONBUT, گاری بت নাবৰত gáonbat

A divison of a Talooka into separate villages, or of the several Dakhilee Mouzas of an Uslee village: from Ganw, a village, and Butna, to be divided.—See Gatabundee.

GAON KHURCHA,گاوی خرچیی गांवखरचा gáon kharcha

Expences incurred in the municipal administration of a village; from Gaon, or Ganw, a village, and Khuruch, expenditure. This item is called also Mulba in the Western part of these Provinces. The literal meaning of that term is refuse, sediment, dirt; and is applied, like Ghoorburan, q. v. in the sense of Gaon-Khurcha, on account of the many small items thrown into it, which could not be included under any other more specific head.

The origin of the word is the Sanscrit mul मल, a term which we have preserved without alteration in old English. Gower, in the 5th Book of the "Confessio Amantis," says,

That other coffre of strawe and mull With stones mened be filde also: Thus be they full bothe two.

The word is still used in Yorkshire, as well as mulluck, to signify the refuse of turf, or peat rubbish. We have probably the same root in the German mel, mill, and mulm, dust; Dutch mul; Danish muld; Anglo-Saxon molde; and hence again our English mould, which is by Minshew, Tooke, Johnson, and Richardson derived, on the contrary, from the past participle of the French mouiller, to moisten, to wet.

पांवरी gáontí گاونتی

Of, or belonging to, a village; especially applied as Gaon-khurcha to the several expences of municipal administration, such as wages of Accountants, Craftsmen, and Police.—Saugor.

Gara, ধ্রুট गারা gára

A tribe of industrious Cultivators in Scharunpoor. We find them chiefly in Roorkee, Rampoor, Sooltanpoor, and Mulhypoor. They are Mussulmans, and are frequently considered to be, like the Jhojhas, converted slaves. They themselves assert that they were formerly Sombuns Rajpoots, that they came from Nugra Bumbera (to the West of Dehli), and that Akber located them in desert tracts, which have now been cleared by their in-There seems reason to believe that they are the progeny of Rajpoot clans, because amongst themselves they have the sub-divisions of Birgoojur, Chouhan, &c. but there are also. perhaps amongst them descendants of several inferior castes. All these, on being converted to Mahometanism, were called (perhaps contemptuously) by their neighbours, Garas, from the new practice they had adopted of burying, (Garna), instead of burning, their dead. They now apply the term to themselves, but endeavour to disguise its origin by pretending to high birth. The Garas generally intermarry in their own clan, but there is a set of villages in Scharunpoor, called Syud Gara, from the fact of the daughters of Garas marrying into Syud families.

Garee, और गाडी gárì

Garee, or Gadee, is a carriage, and the man who drives it is called a Garcewan, given in the Printed Glossary as Gadeewan. The following are the names of the different parts of the North-Western Garee.—Hursa is the long wood extending on either side, from the front to the back; the transverse pieces are called Puttee; those extending beyond the wheels are called Tukanees; and Chukol, the pin by which the wheel is attached to the Bank;—Soojuh, the pins which attach the Bank to the Tukanees;—Bankura and Guz, two pieces of wood in the front of the Garce, where it narrows to a point;—Phunnah, and Oontura are parts that project beyond the yoke;—K,hurròda, the upright posts that support the covering or awning;—Dundelee, something like a drag; Nuh, the nave; Poott,hee the quadrant of a wheel.

It may be presumed that we have this word Garee in our Car, Cart; German Karre; Swedish Karra; Anglo-Saxon Cræt; Latin Carruca, Currus, &c.; Italian Carozza and Caroccia, and Caricare, to load—whence Caricature, overloading, exaggerating; Spanish Caroca and Carraca; Dutch Karosse; French Carosse, and Char.*

Vans Kennedy ("Res: into the Origin and Affinity of Languages," p. 288) has remarked the resemblance between the Latin Rheda and Indian Rut,h, a four-wheeled carriage: but the Garee is more general in the Indo-European languages, and has lost less of its original form. It is strange that the Romans derived not only the construction of the Rheda from the Gauls, (Quintilian, Lib. I. 5), but also that of the Carrum (Casar, Bell: Gall: I. 6, 26), which in later times was called by the name of Angaria.†

Gareh, ४५% गाडह gárah

Low lands on which water does not lie long—Upper Doab. It is perhaps a corruption of gurha, deep.

* Horne Tooke says that car, cart, chariot, &c., are the same participle of the Saxon cyran, to turn about; and that Vossius mistakingly supposes them to be derived from currus.—Vol. II. p. 109.

† Some curious speculations might he indulged in respecting the origin of this word, which certainly is not derived, as some say, from Angor. In Latin, besides the meaning given in the Text, it signifies any forced labour, and the Greek Angareia, which is confessedly derived from the Persian, signifies also the forcing of teams and carts for the public service. The old English Law Term Angaria—French Angaire—also means personal service which tenants were obliged to pay their lords.—See Spelman, voce: Angaria and Perangaria.

Gata, ४उँ८ गाटा gáta

The yoking of bullocks together for the purpose of treading out grain.—Dehli.

Gata is also applied in Dehli to a Brahmin, or Bunya, that forms an illicit connexion with a woman.

Gata is also used, generally, in the N. W. Provinces to signify a plot; a piece of land; a division of a village; a field.

Gatabandí گاتهبندي gátabandí

The division of a village by Gatas, corresponding with K,hetbut. The opposite of Gatabundee is Puhabundee.

Gatabundee is a peculiar kind of tenure under which the fields of individual proprietors are not found in juxta-position, but scattered through many villages. Thus the boundaries of one village are frequently found to contain lands belonging to other villages, while some of its own fields will be included in the boundaries of another village, and that perhaps not contiguous. The tenure assumes various forms of complexity, being sometimes exceedingly intricate. It is found to prevail extensively in the Central and Lower Doab, Bareilly, and Benares. The mode of recording it is detailed in Paragraphs 225 to 237 of the Board's Settlement Circular.

We owe the discovery of this kind of complex tenure to late years, when a more perfect system of Registration was established at the Settlements made under Reg. IX. of 1833; but it is by no means such a rarity as it was considered when first brought to notice. Besides prevailing over various parts of India, the inspection of a County map will shew that this species of intermingled occupancy is no rarity in England, and we know that it was very common in Roman Colonies.

"Præterea et in multis regionibus comperimus quosdam possessores non continuas habere terras, sed particulas quasdam in diversis locis, intervenientibus complurimum possessoribus, propter quod etiam complures vicinales viæ sint, ut unusquisque possit ad particulas suas jure pervenire."

Siculus Flaccus, p. 14.

A better definition of a Gatabundee, or Khetbut, tenure cannot be given.

GATEWAR, گاتيوار गाटेवार gátewár

Is also synonymous with Khetbut.—See GATABUNDEE.

Gehlote, अर्थ गहलात gahlot

A tribe of Rajpoots from which have branched the two illustrious stems of the Seesodya and Aharya. They are spread over different parts of these Provinces, but though they sometimes style themselves Secsodya, they are rarely known by any other name than that of Gehlote. We find them as proprietors in Bhoelee, a Pergunah of Mirzapoor; in Khanpoor of Ghazeepoor; in Nizamabad of Azimgurh; Bilhour, Bit, hoor, and Rusoolabad of Campoor; in Sadabad, Suhpoo, and Juleysur of Muttra; in T, huttea Tiròòa of Furruckabad; in Ranca of the Bhuttee Territory; in Hat, hrus of Aligurh; and in great numbers in the N. W. parts of Boolundshuhur. We find them also as Cultivators in K, hotar of Shahjehanpoor. Those of Boolundshuhur say they emigrated to Dehra and Dholana, near Dasna, under Raja K, homan, after the capture of Chittore by Akber; but it was evidently prior to that period, as they are recorded as Zumeendars of Dasna in the Ayeen-i-Akberee. The more probable period is, after the capture of Chittore by Ala-òòd-Deen Khiljec. Others say that one of their ancestors, Govind Rao, married Rae Pit, houra's (Pirt, hee Raj's) sister, and obtained these villages as a marriage gift. What gives an air of probability to this story is that Govind Rao is mentioned by Chand Bardai as one of Rae Pit, houra's auxiliaries. Their neighbours, who for some unexplained reason are fond of imputing cowardice to them, say their name of Gehlote is derived from Gehla, a slave girl; but the real origin is the following, which is universally believed in Mewar. When the ancestors of the Rana of Mewar were expelled from Guzerat, one of the Queens, by name Pooshpavuti, found refuge among the Brahmins of the Mallia Mountains. She was shortly afterwards delivered of a son, whom she called from the cave (Goha), in which he was born, by the name of Gehlote, and from him are descended the present Ranas of Oodypoor. Their claim to be descended from Noshirwan and a Grecian Princess, which has frequently been discussed, invests this clan with a peculiar interest.

Genoon, Сыруы Лф gehún

Wheat.—There are several names of wheats in different parts of the country, but they all, according to native opinion, resolve themselves into the two families of red and white; the former is known by the names of Lal, Lulen, Kut,hea, Bunqsia, Sumurea, Ruttea, Julalea, Pisea, &c.; the latter by the names of Oojur, Sitòàa, Dhoula, Pele, Daood Khance, &c., &c., &c., &c. The beardless wheat (Moonrea, from Moonrna to shave,) is also both red and white, and in seed, flavour, and price, does not differ from the bearded kind. In opposition to Moonrea, Tikooraree, or Toondea, is used to represent the bearded kind. The beardless wheat appears to be much more common in the Eastern than the Western part of these Provinces.

The following Table shews the number of acres under wheat cultivation in the North Western Provinces, during the year of Survey:—

D.H. D	ACRES
Dehli Division,	225,084
Rohilcund Division,	883,009
Meerut Division,	890,309
Agra Division,	472,364
Allanabad Division	423,901
Benares Division,	535,642
Saugor Division,	953,687
Total Acres, 4	,383,996

Gentoo, ভানু ভানু gentú

An Indian, a Hindoo. The Printed Glossary says that at Madras the term appears to be used to designate the language and people of Telingana.

This word is a corruption of the Portuguese "Gentio" a "Gentile." Dr. Fryer (Travels, 1672 to 1681) says "the Gentues, the Portugal idiom for Gentiles, are the aborigines." He appears to be the first English writer by whom the term is used, but before his time Pietro della Valle speaks of the Hindoos as Gentili, following the example of the Portuguese; yet notwithstanding these unquestionable authorities, Halhed (Gentoo Code, xxi. xxii.) supposes that the Portuguese borrowed the term Gentoo from the Sanscrit word, Junt, a sentient being .-See Ency. Metrop. voc. GENTOO.

G, HANA,	Ul <sub>६</sub> 5 घाना	g'háná
G, HANEE,	्घानी گھاني	g'hání
A Sugar-cane press.
G,HAR,	र्राकु घार	g'hár

G,HAR,

Clay soil in low situations, where rain-water lies for a time. Land worn away by running water is said g,har ho jana.

A sub-division of Muttyar. Also, a long strip of land* in Etawa, lying for the most part between the Jumna and the high road to Agra. In Secundra of Cannpoor it is called K,har.

All these words are probably mere corruptions of Guhra, deep, or of Gurha, a cavity; the former is spelt with a Persian, and the latter with a Hindee R., and G,har itself is also spelt indifferently with either letter. The word bears a close resemblance to, though not perhaps cognate with, the Arabic Ghar • On the opposite side of the river there are other strips of land called G, har, as Cuhhwaha-g, har, Touhur-g, har, and one in Scharunpoor. (See Goojur): but whether it is applied to the oblong shape of the land, or to the worn surface of the soil in the neighbourhood of rivers, on the banks of which those G, hars occur, it is not easy to say. If the former be the case, it may not be uninteresting to observe that, in English, Gore is used in the same sense, and though now applied chiefly to cloth, it originally meant a long strip of land. (See Kennett's "Parochial Antiquites" P. 393). Thus we have the Gore hundred of Middlesex, Kensington Gore, &c. &c. In a curious Charter preserved among the Cottonian Manuscripts in the British Museum, the word assumes the form of Gara: "Notum sit nos dedisse in Elimosyna quandam terram ad sartandum in tenetura manerii nostri quod dicitur Cnightebriga, in loco qui Gara appellatur." Tyrwhitt, in his notes to Chaucer, states his inability to explain the word gore, and no Etymologist has given any reasonable account of its origin. In Anglo-Saxon Gara is an angular point of land, a promontory.

a cavity, a hollow; which is so familiar to us in Trafalgar (Turufu-l-ghar), the promontory of the cave.

G, HAREE है। घारी g'hárí

Cattle sheds.—Eastern Oudh.
A valley, or ravine.—See G, HAR—Rohilcund.

G,натанев, گهاتّاني घाटानी ghátání

The name of a toll levied on crossing Rivers or Hill-passes from G, hat, a pass or ford; which some Etymologists have very wrongly conjectured to be the origin of our word Gate.

Ghazee Meean, غازي صياك गाजीमीयां ghází míyán

This Saint is in high repute with the agricultural and lower classes of these Provinces, except in Dehli, and is included among the Panchpeeree, (q.v.—See also Hut, meele.) Notwithstanding he did his best to exterminate the Kafirs, he is as much worshipped by the Hindoos as the Moosulmans. annual fair* takes place in his honor in the month of Jet,h. On these occasions, a long pole is paraded about, crowned at the top with bushy hair, which is said to represent the head of the Martyr, which kept rolling on long after it was separated from the trunk. The fair takes place at most large towns, but the greatest concourse of Pilgrims is at Bahraich, where he This fair is commonly styled the "Nuptials of Ghazee Mecan," because it is said he had on his bridal clothes, and was about to be married, when he was martyred. Mirat-i-Musacodee, however, says only that he had a dream the night before his death, in which his mother came and placed a bridal chaplet on his brow, as being indicative of the Crown of Martyrdom with which he was to be honored on the following day. It is said in the Araish-i-Muhfil that an oilman of Ru-dowlee first established the custom, by carrying a bed and other nuptial paraphernalia every year to Bahraich, being persuaded that the Saint annually renews the ceremony. He is, partly on this account, called Gajna Doolha, and Salar Chhinula. M. Garcin de Tassy, in his Memoire of the Moosulman religion in India, page 81, states that Mr. H. H. Wilson entertains doubts about the representation of the marriage, and conceives that Shadee, "Marriage", has been written by mistake for Shahadut, "Martyrdom": but there is no occasion to dispute the correctness of the word, or the fact of the ceremony.

* Secunder Lodi endeavored to suppress this fair, as partaking too much of pagan idolatry, but without success.

Who this Ghazee Meean was is a question on which even Moosulman authorities are not agreed. In the Qanoon-i-Islam, he is said to be the same as Rujub Salar. In the Ukhbar-ul-Ukhyar, he is said to be the same as Peer Buhleem. Some say, he was a Syud, others a Put, han. Ferishta and the author of the Soobah-i-Sadiq say he was a descendant of Muhmood of Ghuzni, and was killed at Bahraich in A. D. 1162. Abool Fuzl says he was a relation of that King. The most detailed, and apparently the most authentic, account of him is given in the Miratu-l-Asrar and the Mirat-i-Musacodec.* In them he is stated to have been the son of Meer Sahoo, who married Sutur-i-Mooulla, the sister of Muhmood of Ghuzni. He was born at Ajmere in the year 405 Hijree, and by his feats of arms in Guzerat and advice at Somnat, h, obtained so much notice from Muhmood as even to have excited the envy of the Emperor's favorite slave Ayaz.† These histories then enter into an account of his proceedings at Ghuzni, Cashmere, Multan, Dehli, Meerut and Canouj, the Raja of which place, Jyepal, is said to have been restored through the Saint's intercession with the angry Emperor. His subsequent conquests, and those of his followers, on the other side of the Ganges and Gogra, are then given; and if they could be thoroughly relied on, would be of much interest. It is then related how the news of the death of Sultan Muhmood inspired the Indian Princes with the hope of retrieving their independence, and how an army of infidels assembled at Bahraich, under Raja Shahur Deo, for the purpose of exterminating the faithful, and how, after three severe contests, he gloriously fell a Martyr on the fleld of battle in the year 424 Hijree, at the early age of nineteen.

* These works were written in Jehangeer's time, by Abdool Ruhman, who states that his details are founded on the account given by Modla Moohummud of Ghuzni, a companion of our Saint and his father. As this work is said to give a full account of the Emperor Muhmood, it would be worth examination.

† This person frequently figures among the Anecdotes of the East, and there are some which tell greatly in favor of his humble deportment in the midst of prosperity. He is the subject of a famous Musnuvee by Julalee.—See Stewart's "Catalogue of Tippoo Sultan's Library," P. 57.

The cause of his being frequently called, both in Khorasan and India, Rujub Salar, is that there is a tomb of that personage also at Bahraich, and the name of Salar, which is common to both, has created confusion in the minds of those who have not sufficiently examined the question.

Who this Rujub Salar was, is also a doubtful point, but it is certain he has no claims to saintship, like our Salar Musacod, or Ghazee Mecan. Abool Fuzl in his account of the Soobah of Oude says he was the father of the illustrious Feroze Shah; and we learn from Shums-i-Siraji that Rujub Salar was the name of Feroze Shah's father: but from his account it does not appear that he died in the neighbourhood of, or was buried at, Bahraich. Now, the Mirat-i-Musacodee expressly says that Rujub Salar was one of the followers of Ghazee Mecan, that he was induced to seek his fortunes in India because some rent-free land of his was unjustly resumed, that he was made the Cotwal of Ghazee Mecan's Camp, and that he was buried at Bahraich. This latter, therefore, would appear to be the Rujub Salar, who is frequently taken for Ghazee Mecan.

G,HEGURA, المجيارا g,hegara

G,hegura, or G,heg,hura, is the unripe pod of Gram. Also, the unripe bole of Cotton, which is known also by the names of Goolur, G,hentee, and Bhitna. When it bursts, it assumes a nother name.—See T,HONT,HEE.

When this change begins to occur in a Cotton field, some kind of superstitious ceremony is observed in most parts of the country, which is generally known by the name of Phoorukna. To the Eastward of the Jumna it is most usual to select the largest plant in the field, and having sprinkled it with buttermilk and rice water, it is bound all over with pieces of cotton, taken from the other plants of the field. This selected plant is called Sirdar, or Bhoguldaee, i. e. Mother-Cotton, from bhogla, a name sometimes given to a large Cotton-pod, and daee (for daiya) a mother;—and after salutations are made to it, prayers are offered that the other plants may resemble it in the richness of their produce. To the West of the Jumna there is rarely a Bhoguldaee, but when the pods begin to burst, women go round the field, and, as a kind of lustration, throw Salt into it, with similar supplications that the produce may be abundant.

Dii patrii, purgamus agros, purgamus agrestes: Vos mala de nostris pellite limitibus: Neu seges eludat messem fallacibus herbis.

Tibullus; Lib: II. El: I.

The practice appears to be observed with a similar object, and in a somewhat similar fashion to the Ambarvalia of the Romans, and the Field-Litanies of our Rogation, or Gang, Days.

"For this cause be certaine Gospels red in the wyde felde amonges the corne and grasse, that by the vertue and operation of God's word, the power of the wicked spirites, which keepe in the air and infecte the same, (whence come pestilences and the other kyndes of diseases and syknesses), may be layde downe, and the air made pure and cleane, to th'intent the corne may remaine unharmed, and not infected of the sayd hurteful spirites, but serve us for our use and bodely sustenance."

" The Episteles and Gospelles."-R. Bankes.

G, HELOUNEE, گهيلوني घेले।नो g, helauní

G,helounce, which is more generally known by the name of Rook رزك, is much the same in kind, as Dustooree is in c c c 2

money—something taken by the purchaser in addition to the nominal selling price. A familiar illustration is given of this in the article Hurbong ka Raj. Another instance of G,helounce is found in the common practice of adding so many Punjas or fives, to the hundred, without which it is not considered a complete hundred. Thus 110 bamboos, 120 mangoes, 130 melons, 115 carrots, and so on, will only be considered in the light of perfect hundreds of each respectively, according to the practice prevailing in the several bazars.

The custom of G,helounee reminds us of the old English Saw,

Five score of men, money, and pins, Six score of all other things:

which shews the adherence of our ancestors to the old system of numeration by the larger ten, which contained twelve units, and of which duodenary scale we still retain the use in our "gross," and "dozen," as well as in our primary divisions of money and measures.

G, HENTEE, و चेंद्री g'hentí

The unripe pod of gram, arhur, and other pulses.—See Dhoondee, (correctly Dhendee), G, Hegura, and T, Hont, Hee.

G,hong,hee or g,hog,hee signifies the tying the end of a blanket in a knot, and so placing it on the head as a protection against rain. It also signifies the enveloping oneself entirely in a sheet or blanket, so that when one sits down, no part of the body, except perhaps the head, is discernible. It is also applied as Снот, q. v. The application of these words varies in different Provinces.—See K, ноовноо.

The name of a herb which grows during the rains on high ground.

Ghòòlam, व्यं घुलाम ghulám

A youth, a page, a slave*. It may perhaps provoke a smile to assert that in this word we have the origin of our English gallant, gallantry, gala, &c. but there is little doubt that it is entitled to this distinction. Ghòòlam is derived from the Arabic غلم libidinosus, and hence it signifies a comely youth, one chosen as an attendant, or page, for his personal endowments. The Spaniards borrowed the word direct from the Arabs, and called an elegant and handsome young man Galana, from which are derived galante, galanteur, galanteria, &c .- all subsequently adopted into other European languages, through the influence of the amatory poetry of the Troubadours. So that here we have, in opposite quarters of the globe, the same word taken in very different acceptations, but which evidently were originally the same, though the slave and the gallant have now little in common. The attempt to derive these words from the Gauls, as Scaliger, Vossius, and Skinner do, is obviously wrong; but other Etymologists have equally failed in this word, and Gibbon (Ch: LIII. Note 52) quoting Reiske, is worse than any of them. He derives Gala from Calout (Khillut), a robe of honour.

Ghòòmao, पुनांच ghumáo

A term applied to as much land as can be ploughed by one

To chace A parting syllable through time and space, Start it at home, and hunt it in the dark Through Gaul and Greece and into Noah's ark, will be amused to reflect on the contrary fate which has attended this very word. From Slaya, "glory" is derived the name of the illustrious Slavonian race, who, after being reduced to servitude by the Germans, became a byeword among the nations, and live to this day in our Vocabulary as Bondsmen; while their neighbours the Bulgarians, denote, with a slight corruption, a still more opprobious class. Again, another word, with the original meaning of Slave, has met with as extraordinary a revolution.

The Arabic uluj et means subduing. Hence Ulaj, and Uljut, slaves, barbarians, proselytes; which in latter times came to be applied to all those who held communion with Christians. This was corrupted into the Spanish Elche, and in Eastern countries is familiar to us under the aspect of Elchee "an Ambassador at a foreign Court."

* Those who love

pair of bullocks in a day—Dehli. The word is derived from G,hoomna الأورين to turn round. Juwara also is used in nearly the same sense in Dehli.—See Juwara and Sanjillo.

G,нòòn, ुड़ी घुन g'hun

A weevil destructive to wood and grain; hence Ghòòna, weevil-eaten. The term appears generic as well as specific, for it is applied to the Bhabhee Dhola, Papa, Pat,ha, K,hupra, Keeree, Pitaree, Sòòrsuree, and various other insects destructive to stored grain. Indeed, Ghòòn is in many places not known as a grain-weevil, but that it is nevertheless properly so applied, the common proverb teaches us,

घुन के साथ गेहूं पिस गया

G,hòòn ke sat,h gchoon pis gya.

"The weevil has been ground with the wheat;" applied to any indiscriminate calamity which involves equally both high and low.

Gнòòndee, তুনিই ঘুনরী g,hundí.

The name of a herb which grows in rice-fields after the crop is cut. Camels are very partial to this herb; and it is used as a specific in various diseases by the country quacks.

G,ноо́ngchee, نگچي धुंगची g'hungchí

A small red and black seed; (Abrus precatorius). It is known also by the names of Ruttee, Chhontilee, Chirmit, hee, and Sòòrkha; and as it is the primary unit of Indian weights, it is important to establish its exact value. From a series of experiments detailed in the 13th Number of the Meerut Magazine, it appears that the average weight of 267 seeds amounted to 1.93487 grains. Prinsep, in his "Useful Tables," gives the weight of the Masha (8 Ruttees) at  $15\frac{1}{2}$  grains, which divided by 8, affords 1.9375 for the weight of the Ruttee. As these results were obtained independently, we shall be quite safe if we assume the G, hòònchee, or Ruttee, as equivalent to 1.933 grains.

G,HOONGEE, پُونگی ģin g'húngí (See Gindur.)

Gноонт, گهونت ġत g'húnt

Rent-free lands assigned as endowments of religious establishments.—Gurhwal and Kumaon.—See GHOONT, H.

Ghoor, १९६ घ्र g,húr

The name given to the soil of the sandy ridge to the East of Mòòzuffurnugur.

G, Hòòrut, जुई घुरत g'hurat Cattle Pens.—Eastern Oudh.

G, HOORBURAR, पुरवरार g'húrbarár

Dues levied on every sharer and under-tenant in proportion to the whole expences incurred during the year.—Bundlecund.

The word is derived from Ghoora, a dunghill, or sweepings; as all kinds of miscellaneous items are included.—See GAON-KHURCHA.

G,Hòòsrand, گسراند दुसरांद g'husránd

A kind of creeping grass with a yellow flower. It bears a bitter fruit resembling the Kukorce. It is used as a condiment for horses, but it is considered poisonous to men.

G, HORA, १९१६ घोरा g'hora

G,hora, or Bhutg,hora subsequently known as Ahmedabad G,hora, is the name of an old and extinct Sircar, which, according to the Register in the "Ayeen-i-Akberee," contained 39 Mehals, and yielded a Revenue amounting to 72,62,780 Dams. But it is evident that the Sircar was almost entirely unknown, for the names of the Mehals are not given, nor is there any record of measurement; nevertheless, we may fairly presume that Tirohan, Cheeboomow, Dursenda, and Bara, and the greater part of the Rewah Territory were included in G,hora. It might have been supposed that the Pergunahs below the G, hats bordering on the Jumna would have had separate names and areas in the Imperial Records, but it appears from an examination of an ancient grant conferring rent-free lands on the Cazee of Dursenda, that the Pergunah of that name is distinctly said to be included in Ahmedabed G,hora. also we know from the authentic records of our own history was under the Rewah Raja till the time of Asuf-ood-Dowla, and the present Zumeendar of the Pergunah is a Bug, hel, connected with the Rewah family. G,hora, moreover, still exists under the name of G,hora Khas on the borders of Tirohan, and Cheeboomow. The Patent above alluded to was issued by Alumgeer in A. H. 1095. From about this period to the decline of the monarchy, G, hora was better known, and even Singrowlee is said to have been added to it. An Amil also was established at Tirohan, who used to reside in the Fort built by Busunt Race, but the whole Sircar was subject to constant annexations, and separations, according to the extension or diminution of Mahomedan influence in these wild parts.

If any thing were wanting to show how little this part of the country between the Hills and the Jumna had been subdued by the Mahometans up to the time of Akber, we might satisfy ourselves by finding the Afghan Emperors attacking Kuntit, which is said to be "a dependency of Punna." Here also, as in the case of Banda,—(See p. 329)—we have another mistake respecting names, which we can only correct by referring to other histories of the same period. Briggs, in his translation of Ferishta, speaks of "Bulbhuddur Ray, Raja of Kootumba, a place dependent on Patna," instead of "Kuntit, dependent on Punna," as it should be. Now, if Kuntit was at that time dependent on Punna," even according to the shewing of Moosulman Histories, we must not be surprised if Cheeboomow, Dursenda, &c. were also little known till the time of Alumgeer.

In a Dustoor-òòl-Umul of the late Empire, Punna is entered as containing 115 Mehals, and Ahmedabad as containing 9 Mehals, and at this time there was a specification of Pergunahs, which we do not find in Akber's Register.

The "Hudeekut-òòl-Akaleem" describes Tirohan as dependent on Sircar Arail, or Turhar, (6 Mehals); but this was at a period long subsequent, when Allahabad was under the Government of the Nuwab Wuzeer.

Under all circumstances, we may perhaps consider that the limits which have been assigned to G,hora in the Dustoor Map are not far wrong, but it is not easy to speak with confidence on the subject, as this part of the country was rarely, or never, visited by the Imperial Generals and we can only take advantage of such slight and incidental allusions as can be obtained in the absence of more satisfactory information.

G, нопсникна किं, होर्चढा g'horcharha

A sub-division of the Còòrmees. The literal meaning of the word, if rightly spelt, is a horse-man. I am not sure that there may not be some connexion between them and the Kòòrchurra, whom Tod puts down in Chund Bardai's list of the Royal Races.

Herdsmen. They are said to be descended from Aheers. Most of them have now been converted to Mahometanism; indeed, the name is generally considered, according to the Dictionaries, to be exclusively applied to Moosulman milkmen. The name is derived from a Sanscrit word signifying a Cattle Pen. The Eastern G,hosees who have been converted are called Bundee G,hosees.

In many parts of the country, as in Dehli, G, hosees are those who trade in milk, without any reference to their caste, or religion.

Land which has been under a Rice crop.—Bundlecund, Lower Doab, and Benares. Dhunkur is used in the North West. The word is probably derived from G,hotna to shave.

GHULLA, ठाउँ घल्ला ghalla

Grain. The word is Arabic, but in common use.

G, HUND, उंदे g'hand

A sub-division of the Jats, q. v.

DDD

G,нимд,ния, ভুমি৯৯ ব্লবন g'hang'has See Jat.

Guungol, گهنگری घंगाल g'hangol

The name of the water lily which produces the celebrated Nelofur flower. It produces a greenish fruit about the size of an orange, and the seeds of it are eaten by the poorer classes.

G, HUNA, ig घना g'hana

From G, huna, lightharpoonup de dense, close. A sporting preserve; the same as Rumna, q.v.

G, HURA, 5 বুর ঘরা g'hurá

An earthen water pot. The name, like that of many other articles of domestic use, appears to be widely extended. We have \(\mathbb{E} \mathbb{G}, \hat{hur}\) in the Sanscrit, \(^{8}\): Jurra in Arabic, Keramos in Greek and Latin, Giarro in Italian, Jare in French, Jar in English. Jarro and Jarra in Spanish, and hence the famous order of Knights de la Jarra, instituted by Don Garcia of Navarre, whose collar was adorned with a representation of a Jar of lilies. Our lexicographers appear to be at a great loss respecting the derivation of the word Jar. Menage says "Greek, hualos vitrum; thus hyalum, gyalum, giala giarra;" and Richardson says—"perhaps from ge-er-ed earthed"! The Indian G, hura or Jharec, q. v. is surely more probable than these.

G, HURDWAREE, هردراري घरदुवारी g'hardwari

An illegal cess from shop-keepers and house-holders; from ghur a house, and dwar a door.

G, HUREE, टुंग्डी घडी g'harí

An hour; or the instrument for measuring time. As a Revenue word, it is applied to the sub-division of a village; thus, K,hundeegawn in Dehli is divided into 144 Langrees, each Langree containing 8 G,hurees.

्डं गरकी GHURKEE, gharki

Overflowed, inundated; from the Arabic فرق ghurk drowning.

G, HURPHANT, گهريهانت घरफांत g'harphánt

An arrangement made by the manager of an Estate, or by the shareholders themselves, for the payment of the Government Revenue by each village, when more than one is included in a lease.-Kumaon.

G, HURPUTTEE, گهرپتی वरपत्ती g'harpattí

A house tax, now abolished .- Kumaon.

उन्हर्ण घरड g'harar G, HURUR,

The dry Mot, h plant, cut and given as fodder to cattle .-Dehli-It is in some parts pronounced Koorur.

४,1,,६5 घरवारा G, HURWARA,

The local name of a sub-division of a portion of Bundlecund, extending from about Tirohan to the Junna, said to have been bestowed rent-free, on Canoujea Brahmins by Raja Ram Bug, hel. It may perhaps be derived from the GHORA mentioned above, q. v.

धटरी g'hattí G, HUTTEE,

Loss, decrease, deficiency.

उद्गी वि g'hai G, HYE,

See CHOOLLEE.

ghair mazrúa GHYR MUZROOA,

८८) إلى مرروع ग्रें ग्रेमजरूवा

Uncultivated land; from the Arabic Ghyr, not, and Muzrooa, cultivated.

GHYR MÒÒMKIN, غيرصكن गैरमुमिकन ghair mumkin

Barren waste; unproductive land; not capable of cultivation; from Ghyr not, and Moomkin, possible.

D D D 2

G,HUNG,HUS, نگھس g'hang'has See Jat.

GHUNGOL, گهنگرول घंगाल g'hangol

The name of the water lily which produces the celebrated Nelofur flower. It produces a greenish fruit about the size of an orange, and the seeds of it are eaten by the poorer classes.

G,HUNA, Lig घना g'hana

From G, huna, the dense, close. A sporting preserve; the same as Rumna, q. v.

G, HURA, 5 वडा g'hurá

An earthen water pot. The name, like that of many other articles of domestic use, appears to be widely extended. We have \(\mathbb{E}\mathbb{G}\), hur in the Sanscrit, \(\sigma\); \(\mathscrip Jurra\) in Arabic, Keramos in Greek and Latin, Giarro in Italian, Jare in French, Jar in English. Jarro and Jarra in Spanish, and hence the famous order of Knights de la Jarra, instituted by Don Garcia of Navarre, whose collar was adorned with a representation of a Jar of lilies. Our lexicographers appear to be at a great loss respecting the derivation of the word Jar. Menage says "Greek, hualos vitrum; thus hyalum, gyalum, giala giarra;" and Richardson says—"perhaps from ge-er-ed earthed"! The Indian G, hura or Jharee, q. v. is surely more probable than these.

G, HURDWAREE, گهردراري घरदुवारी g'hardwárí

An illegal cess from shop-keepers and house-holders; from ghur a house, and dwar a door.

G, HUREE, টুর্ট ঘরী g'harí

An hour; or the instrument for measuring time. As a Revenue word, it is applied to the sub-division of a village; thus, K,hundeegawn in Dehli is divided into 144 Langrees, each Langree containing 8 G,hurees.

व्हें गर्की gharki GHURKEE,

Overflowed, inundated; from the Arabic غزق ghurk drowning.

G, нипрнант, گهرپهانت घरफांत g'harphánt

An arrangement made by the manager of an Estate, or by the shareholders themselves, for the payment of the Government Revenue by each village, when more than one is included in a lease.—Kumaon.

G, HURPUTTEE, रहें वरपत्ती g'harpattí

A house tax, now abolished .- Kumaon.

उत्रही घरड g'harar G, HURUR,

The dry Mot,h plant, cut and given as fodder to cattle .-Dehli-It is in some parts pronounced Koorur.

४) १ १३ घरवारा g'harwára G, HURWARA,

The local name of a sub-division of a portion of Bundlecund, extending from about Tirohan to the Jumna, said to have been bestowed rent-free, on Canoujea Brahmins by Raja Ram Bug, hel. It may perhaps be derived from the GHORA mentioned above, q. v.

ु घटटी g'hattí G, HUTTEE,

Loss, decrease, deficiency.

उर्देश चै g'hai G.HYE,

See CHOOLLEE.

ghair mazrúa GHYR MUZROOA, ४८१) के प्रेंट गैर्मजरूवा

Uncultivated land; from the Arabic Ghyr, not, and Muzrooa, cultivated.

GHYR MÒÒMKIN, غيرممكن गैरमुमिकन ghair mumkin

Barren waste; unproductive land; not capable of cultivation; from Ghyr not, and Moomkin, possible.

D D D 2

Gindòòree, گنتري गिडुंरी gindurí Şee Joora.

Gindur, Joil गिनद्र gindar

An insect which is very destructive to growing Gram and Arhur. Joace, Jooryee, and Ghoongee are similarly applied, but chiefly in Bundlecund, Benares, and the Lower Doab.

Gintee, گنڌي गनती gintí

Gintee, from ginna to count, signifies number; reckoning; the first day of the month; a muster; of which word Gilchrist observes that "it is much used in India for a sample, but why I know not, except from mister, a rule." The truth is, that Muster in its Anglo-Indian sense is derived from the Portuguese Amostra, a sample, a word which, as well as our Muster in its ordinary sense, is derived from the Latin Monstrare, to show.

Giranee, گراني गिरानी girání

Dearness of provision, scarcity.

GIRDAWUREE, گرداوري मिदीवरी girdáwarí

Patroling, inspecting, going the rounds; from the Persian of Gird, circuit, circumference. See Girdawar in the Printed Glossary.

Gird has an equal extension throughout various languages as the word Bòòrj of almost similar meaning (vide p. 205); and is applied chiefly to places surrounded with walls; in which sense it assumes the form of an affix.* Thus, the Sanseirt Gartt nawhich, though in Wilson's Dictionary it is only spoken of as the name of a country, is, in his notes to the Mahabharata, p. 64, shown to be a strong-hold; as in Tri-gartta. Thus, also, the Slavonian grod and grade, as in Novo-gorod, Bel-grade; German gard, as Stut-gard. From the Anglo-Saxon gyrdan we have the English gird, girth, garter, garden, girdle, and many others. In English also we have it in the sense of an enclosure, as Church-garth a Church-yard, Apple-garth an enclosure of Apple-trees, Hay-garth an enclosure round a Hay-stack; in all which words and many others the final syllable is modernized into yard; which itself, even as a linear measure, owns a similar origin, being derived from the girth of a man's waist.

* درم شهر گرد و آنوا بتازي مصو و مدينه و بلد چون ساؤس گرد و ويسه * درم شهر گرد و آنوا بتازي مصو و شهر ويسه باشد حكيم فردوسي فرمايد * گود كه مراد ازان گرد شهر سياؤس گرد * بمالا سفندارمذ ورز ارد * هم اركويد * گجا خوار شهروت سوي سياؤس گرد * بمالا سفندارمذ و گرد * شمه آمدند اندوان شهروگرد * همه آمدند اندوان شهروگرد * شوند اندوان شوند اندوان شهروگرد * شوند اندوان شوند

Girhust, रिलेस girhast

A house-holder, a villager, a ryut; hence Girhistee husbandry.

Giro, or, more correctly, girou, is a pledge, a pawn.

Girwee, گرری जिस्बी girwí

Any thing pledged or pawned.

Girwee is also, in Persian, an insect mischievous to standing This is the same no doubt as the Gerooee of the Hindoos, which is a disease of the Cerealia in which the plant dries up and assumes a reddish colour. The word is derived from Geroo, a kind of red earth or ochre, and is in common use, but Ruta is the term used in the Doab, Benares and Rohilcund, and Rutwaee, Roree, and Rutòòa in Dehli; from rut or ruta, which is the origin of, and bears the same meaning as, red .- See Mòònmòòea and Hulda. For the same reason the God Robigus, and goddess Robigo, and the Robigalia, or Rubigalia, a festival instituted for the preservation of corn from mildew, are derived from robeus, or rubeus, a dark ruddy colour. The blight, called erusibee in Greek, also derives its name from a word signifying red, and so also we have our rust from the Latin russus, all denoting the reddish colour with which the disease infects the plants.

It is a popular delusion entertained in some parts of the country that the neighbourhood of Ulsee, or linseed, is necessary to generate this disease; but in most parts of the N. W. Provinces the opinion is now repudiated. Nevertheless, as the disease first attacks Ulsec, and the ova float in the air, the precaution is perhaps wise of eradicating it, as Farmers do the Barberry-bush at home, which in many parts is supposed to be the grand generator of rust.

The real nature of the disease has hitherto, as in the case of similar diseases in Europe, eluded the search of enquirers, whether practical or scientific; but an interesting account of its ravages has been given by Colonel Sleeman.

"It is at first of a light, beautiful orange colour, and found chiefly upon the Ulsee, (Linseed) which it does not seem much to injure; but about the end of February the fungi ripen and shed their seeds rapidly; and they are taken up by the wind, and carried over the corn fields. I have sometimes seen the air tinted of an orange colour for many days by the quantity of these seeds which it has contained; and that without the wheat crops suffering at all, when any but an easterly wind has prevailed: but when the air is so charged with this farina, let but an easterly wind blow for twenty-four hours, and all the wheatcrops under its influence are destroyed. Nothing can save them! The stalks and leaves become first of an orange colour, from the light colour of the faring which adheres to them; but this changes to deep brown. All that part of the stalk that is exposed seems as if it had been pricked with needles, and had exuded blood from every puncture; and the grain in the ear withers in proportion to the number of fungi that intercept and feed upon its sap; but the parts of the stalk that are covered by the leaves remain entirely uninjured; and when the leaves are drawn off from them, they form a beautiful contrast to the others, which have been exposed to the depredations of these parasitic plants."

"It is worthy of remark, that hardly anything suffered from the attacks of these fungi, but the wheat. The Ulsee upon which it always first made its appearance, suffered something certainly, but not much, though the stems and leaves were covered with them. The gram (cicer arietinum) suffered still less, indeed the grain in this plant often remained uninjured, while the stems and leaves were covered with the fungi, in the midst of fields of wheat that were entirely destroyed by ravages of the same kind. None of the other pulses were injured, though situated in the same manner in the midst of the fields of wheat that were destroyed. I have seen rich fields of uninterrupted wheat cultivation for twenty miles by ten, in the valley of the Nurbudda, so entirely destroyed by this disease, that the people would not go to the trouble of gathering one field in four."

"The great festival of the Hooly, the Saturnalia of India, terminates on the last day of Phagoon, or 16th of March. On that day the Hooly is burned; and on that day the ravages of the monster (for monster they will have it to be) are supposed to cease. Any field that has remained untouched up to that time is considered to be quite secure from the moment the Hooly has been committed to the flames. What gave rise to the notion I have never been able to discover; but such is the general belief. I suppose the silicious epidermis must then have become too hard, and the pores in the stem too much closed up to admit of the further depredation of the fungi."

Rambles and Recollections, Vol. 1., pp. 250-262. See also Spry's Modern India, Vol. II., p. 282.

GIRWEENAMA, گروينامه गिरवीनामा girwinámá A deed of Mortgage.

Goal, ८०० हैं गोवाल goal Unclaimed land.—Dehli.—See Gyal.

Gobree, रेगान्नी gobrí

This is the name of a tribe in Rohilcund, of which there are a few traditions preserved in the Turace. From that they have been expelled, and live on, or just under, the Hills.

Godara, हिंदरा godára See Jat.

Godhur, रेकउँ गाढद godhur

Is the name given to the weeds and grasses which are collected from a ploughed field by the Dheenk, hur.—Dehli.

Goduree, گوتاری गोडरी godarí

See JOORA.

Goeen, रिंह goin

A pair of plough oxen; sometimes called Dogawa. Gora is more used in Dehli.

Goend, گوينڌ goend

Goend, or Gwenda, signifies a suburb; vicinage; fields near a village; homestead; perhaps from Ganw, a village.

Goga peer, گوگا پير गीगापीर gogá pír

The Agriculturists of the Dehli Territory and the Upper Doab regard this Saint with superstitious reverence, and crowd to his shrine with their offerings in the month of Bhadon. The Qanoon-i-Islam, and M. Garcin de Tassy, quoting the Barah Masa, say his tomb is somewhere in the Doab; but in this they are mistaken, as it lies nearly 200 miles to the South West of Hissar, and 20 miles beyond a place called Dudrera. these authors confess their entire ignorance* respecting Goga, it may be as well to subjoin a few particulars respecting him. He is called by the Mahrattas Zahir Peer, and is with them a favorite Saint. The local tradition respecting him is that he was the son of a Chouhan Rajpoot, called Vucha, according to some-according to others, Jewur, whose wife Bachul, a Tooar, produced him, after being long barren, at the kind intercession of There is a clan of Moosulman Chouhans even now Goruk, hnat, h. resident in the neighbourhood of his tomb, - (See CHAHIL); the Gogawuts of the desert are descended from him; and the Gogadeo ka t, hul is called after his name. His territory extended from • Cet ouvrage (Barah Masa) est le seul, de ceux que j'ai pu consulter, où il soit question de Goga.

Memoire sur des part : de la Rel; Musulmane, p. 89.

Hansi to the Garra (G,hara), and his capital was Mehera on that river. In a quarrel about land, he killed his two brothers, on which account he drew down upon himself the anger of his mother. To escape her imprecations he fled to the Jungles, and there wished that the Earth might open and swallow him up; but a voice from heaven declared that he could not have the satisfaction of being buried alive, horse* and all, unless he uttered the Kulma and became a Moosulman. He appears to have had no difficulty in doing this; upon which the Earth opened before him, and like another Amphiaraus he leaped into its bosom.

Ecce alte præceps humus, ore profundo,
Dissilit, inque vicem timuerunt sidera, et umbræ.
Illum ingens haurit specus, et transire parantes
Mergit equos: non arma manu, non freæna remisit;
Sicut crat, rectos defert in Tartara currus.

Statius. Theb: VII. 816.

His claims to Saintship are not very distinct. He is said to have been a contemporary of Prit, hee Raj, and to have fought with desperate valour against the Mahometans: but there is more reason to suppose that he must have contended with the earlier Ghaznevide Monarchs, for several favorite ballads relate how he fell with his forty five sons, and sixty nephews, opposing the great Mahmood on the banks of the Garra. The above is an abridged account of the tradition, with the omission of all the detailed particulars, of which some are interesting.

In the Eastern portion of these Provinces, where distance overcomes the zeal for Pilgrimage, it is usual for the Bhungees to carry round the sacred symbols of the Peer in the month of Bhadon, and raise contributions. The Agurwala Bunyas are particularly sought after on this occasion. Their original emigration from Agroha, beyond Huriana, was no doubt once considered a sufficient reason why the symbols of their illustrious countryman, Goga, should be paraded before their eyes. But perhaps few in these times have ever thought why the Agurwalas are supposed to be, more than any other class, especially favorable to Goga, and the present continuance of this ceremony on the return of the proper season, after all knowledge of its origin has utterly faded from remembrance, shews the marvellous permanence, which usages, in themselves puerile, will sometimes attain, when they are commemorative of an historical fact. The one we are now alluding to has been preserved through a succession of ages, and under most unfavorable circumstances.

• His horse has been immortalized under the name of Javadia. The chroniclers relate that Goga was childless, until his guardian deity bestowed upon him two barley corns (jao or java), one of which he gave to his wife, the other to his favorite mare, which produced in consequence the famous steed Javadia. Some accounts assert that these two barley corns, or cocoanuts, were given to Goga's mother. The story, however, is too long and trifling to be inserted here.

Gohaee, ुब्बाइ गाहाई goháí

The treading out grain by bullocks, from Gahna, q. v.—Rohilcund.

Goharee, रिकीर्ड गाहारी gohar

Rich, highly cultivated land; derived perhaps from its capacity of growing gohoon, the provincial word for Wheat.—Saugor.

Gonur, रेंग्ड्र gohar

A broad path way for cattle, of which the preservation is considered as obligatory as that of a boundary. The rural denunciation, attributed, like so many others, to Sahdeo one of the five Pundoo heroes, runs:

जो कोई तोडेंगे डील वी गीहर वी करे कि बोएंगे श्रीर कि रहेंगे परे

Jo koee torenge doul, o gohur, o kure, Ki boenge our, ki ruhenge pure.

That is, "may the man who destroys a boundary, a cowpath, or a ditch, have his lands sown by others, or may they lie waste."

Gojha, रिन्डी गोमा gojhá

A species of thorny grass which springs up during the rains. It is used medicinally, and Chumars eat it as potherb.

Gojura, ४,००० वाजरा gojara

Barley and Chuna sown together. It is known also by the name of Bejhura and Jouchunee.—See Gojyee and Gouchunee.

Gojyee, گوجئي गोजई gojaí

Wheat and Barley sown together in the same field. Adhgowan, Gojee, and Gojurce are used in the same sense. This mixed crop is scarcely known in Saugor, Dehli, Lower Doab, and Benares, but it is very common in the Upper and Central Doab, Rohilcund, Goruckpoor and Banda. It is known among English Farmers as "Meslin". The proportions vary, but the Wheat generally predominates. The practice, though ridiculed like many others of Indian Agriculture, is nevertheless highly approved by practical men at home with regard to Wheat and Rye. The proportion is generally one-fourth, though sometimes one-half, of Rye to Wheat, the object being to guard against a thin and weedy crop of the latter. "When Wheat and Rye are grown mixed in this manner, the grains of each are larger and more perfect than when grown singly without any admixture." (Survey of Northumberland, p. 80). "No accurate comparisons have been made to ascertain in what degree Wheat when sown on light soils is more productive in quantity and superior in quality by an addition of a small quantity of Rye being sown with it; but that such is the fact is fully proved." (British Husbandry, Vol. II., p. 196).

Gok, HROO, १९६८ है गोखरू gok'hrú

The name of a herb which springs up on bhoor land: called also Hat, hecching, har, Kunt, hphil and Bhankuree. It produces a small fruit covered with several prickles. In famine, the poorer classes of Huriana feed on the pounded seed of this plant. it somewhat resembles Chuna, or the Chick Pea, and is known by Botanists under the name of "Tribulus lanuginosus" (Roxb.) There is a large kind called the Gok, hrow Deceance, of which the fruit is of a triangular shape, and has prickles at that strange madman, Koomber Dewana, is represented as extending his ravages into Kant* Gola, until he was defeated by Ròòkn Khan; but it was in truth mentioned before this period, for it is evident that Gola is meant, when it is stated in Ferishta, that Hisam-òòl-Mòòlk was, in A. D. 1377, appointed to the Government of Oudh, Sumbhul, and Korla. His work was written subsequent to the "Akbernama," but in writing of past times, he never adopts modern territorial divisions, and, therefore, there is no reason to suppose that Gola was not in existence in the year mentioned;—in fact, we have positive proof of its existence before that period, for Zeea-òòd-Deen Burnee distinctly mentions Gola in the reign of Ala-òòd Deen Khiljy, A. D. 1296 to 1316.

We may also be allowed to indulge in the speculation that Gola is perhaps mentioned by Fa-hian (A. D. 399) under the name of Ho-li, in the following passage of the French Translation. "En passant la rivière Heng, et se dirigeant au midi l'espace de trois yeou yan, on arrive â un forêt nommèe Ho-li."

Now as G is changed by the Chinese Traveller into H,—as in the instance of Gung (the Ganges) into Heng—it would be no extravagant supposition to conceive that Gola is represented by the forest of Ho-ii, notwithstanding that its position is not very correctly represented. Indeed, all his Bearings between the Ganges and Gogra appear to be wrong.

Gola Poorub, گولئ پورپ गाला पूरव gola púrab

An inferior tribe of Sunadh Brahmins, but very spirited cultivators, in Pergunah Iradutnugur of Agra. Their origin is decidedly Brahminical, but Carpenters often include them in their own class.

Gond, گونت gond

The name of a rush which grows in marshy ground, and is much used in making Mats, and Baskets.

* The name of this Mehal, to which allusion is made in the note at p. 40, is frequently coupled with Gola in old histories.

Gond, گوند nie gond

The aboriginal inhabitants of the Saugor Territory, a simple primitive race, now chiefly confined to the hilly tracts, though some have been tempted to settle in the plains. Their great characteristics are a love of truth, drunkenness, and superstition. A writer in Rushton's Gazetteer (Vol., IV., Part I.) says, "To the North of Saugor, the representative of a royal household, styling themselves Raj Gonds, still exists in Bundlecund, and. is regarded with great deference by the scanty Gond population now to be found in that quarter. On the West, in the Bhopal Territory, similar traces of a formerly powerful dynasty are to be found, and acknowledged as such by the still considerable Gond Zemindars, Thakurs, and Rajahs, who abound in the South of Saugor, and in Hoshangabad and Narsingpur; while as regards the whole of the Eastern portion, the royal houses of Deogarh, Balaghat (or Chundwara), and Garha-Mandla retained more or less sway until a very recent period, the representative of the former being at present a pensioner of the Nagpur Government, and that of the latter, of the British."

"In the western portion, or Saugor, it would appear that the Gonds were subjected by a tribe named Daugi, to which the present Chief of Shahgarh belongs, and of the ruling house of which the representative still exists at Bilehra of Saugor. These were, in their turn, subdued by the Bundelas, from whom the territory passed to the Peshwa."

"The Gonds included amongst them several different sections; the Baiyas, who are very generally regarded as sorcerers, living apart from all, in solitary habitations, in the most dense forests, where they clear spaces with their axes, and sow their grain, without further labour, in the ashes left after the felled timber has been burned; but subsisting, for the most part, on the roots and fruits of the forests, (with which they are especially familiar), the wild honey, or the beasts of game, which, in some parts, they occasionally destroy, with bows and poisoned arrows—the Bhumias, a nearly similar, and almost equally wild race, without whose consecration a village is not considered habitable, or safe from tigers, and who are universally the referees in all disputes regarding boundaries, and established usages amongst these tribes:—the Purdhans, who preside at their orgies, are their beggars and bards, and unquestionably the most roguish and worthless part of their community:—the Patharis, who greatly assimilate to the latter; with some other divisions."

Gonda, हैं गाँडा gondá See Aheer.

Gonra, डिंग्री हिनार्थ gonrá

Gonra, or Gondra, is the name given in the Central and Lower Doab to the reservoir from which water is raised by the Lehurce, or Berce, to the reservoir above it, which is called Parchha, Odh, and Oolaha.

Sometimes Gonra is applied only to the straw or reeds which are placed to protect the side of the upper reservoir.—See Douree, Docha, and Reek, H.

Gontea, राह्म नेांटिया gontiyá

The chief manager of a village; a Potel. In some places the term is applied only to Brahmins who have the management of villages.—Benares and Saugor.

Gòòal, रुवाल guál

A cow-herd.—See AHEER. Gòòals do not appear to acknow-ledge any sub-divisions in these parts, but in Behar there are several, as Bhota, Bunarusya, Canoujea, and Choutaha. Gòòal is also the name of a grain which is frequently in the North West sown with Cotton, and given as fodder to cattle. It is also called Kwar.

Gòòdree, گدري गुदही gudrí A daily market. Goojur, گرجر যুল্য

A very numerous clan in the N. Western Provinces, formerly notorious for their thieving propensities, but gradually becoming more addicted to habits of peaceful industry. Their importance may be rated by their having given name to the Provinces of Guzerat on the Western Coast of India, and to Goojerat in the Punjab. They are sometimes considered to be among the Aborigines of India, and have been so reckoned by Tod, who, somewhat inconsistently declares them also to be a tribe of Rajpoots. Sir R. Jenkins says that in the Nagpoor Territory, they consider themselves to be Rajpoots, and that, as they are descendants from Lava, Rama's second son, they have an undoubted right to be so considered. In these Provinces, however, they do not aspire to so high an origin, contenting themselves generally by saying their ancestors on the male side were Rajpoots, who had united themselves with women of inferior lineage. Thus the Roval Goojurs of Panceput say that they are descended from a K,hok,hur Rajpoot, (a clan which has been considered to be the same as the notorious G, hiker); the Chhokur from a Jadon; the Chumayen from a Tooar; the Kulseean of Kyrana, and the Mavee, from a Chouhan; the Peelwans from a Poondeer; the Adhunas from a Birgoojur; and the Bhuttees from Raja Kunsul, a Bhuttee Rajpoot from Jeysulmeer.

The Goojurs are spread all over the Dehli Territory, the Upper Doab, and Upper Rohilcund, and enumerate 84 different tribes. In Delhi, the chief tribes are the Chumayen, K,hutana, Khare, Bursoee, Chhokur, and Rowal. In the Doab,—Sòòkul, Bysle, Mavee, Rat,hee, Bhuttee, Kusounee, Bulesur, Dede, Jindhur, Peelwan, Butar, Adhuna, Cheche, Kulseean, Rumayn, K,hare, Nagree, Chotkune, Budkana, Kusane, Rouse, R,hoobur, Moondun, Kudahun, Touhur, Gorsee and Kunana. In Rohilcund, —Butar, K,hoobur, K,hare, Jatlee, Motle, Sooradne, Poorbur, Jindhur, Muhynsee, and Kusane. All these tribes intermarry, on terms of equality, the prohibited Gotes being only those of the father, mother, and paternal and maternal grandmother.

A great part of the district of Scharunpoor was called Goojurat during the last century. By the Goojurs themselves it was said to consist of three parts, and the division is not only known amongst them to this day, but is usually adopted in ordinary converse. The K,hadur, or tract which extends from the upland as far as the Ganges, was called G,har. From the up-land to the Jumna, running along the skirts of the town of Scharunpoor, and maintaining high name for productiveness, was called Ròòtola. Almost all the rest of the district, from the Ganges to the Jumna, was called Goojurat proper; the small Pergunah of Kata only excepted. Goojurat extended down to Kyranah and Jhinjanah, and included Gungoh, Luk, hnoutee, Nanouta and Teetron. A part of this tract tenanted by K, hooburs, was known also as Budanon, a name affixed by themselves, in order to feed their vanity of being reputed men either of lofty stature, or eminent in war or council. Their common estimate of 1,25,000 subordinate villages within Goojurat must vanish, when it comes to be examined. Three thousand is the utmost they could have possessed. They might perhaps have doubled that, had they included the tract they called Tuliaen, which extended from Hustinapoor and Bysooma, in a semicircle to the South of Meerut, up to Baghput. The Goojurs of this tract were rather despised, chiefly because they shaved, and did not live in such a lordly fashion. The tract opposite to Dehli, from Loni to Kasnah, was called Bhutnere, from the prevalence of the Bhuttee Goojurs.

Googurs are rarely found to the Eastward of Alligurh, in any numbers; but crossing the Jumna, we find them in Koonch, and the Northern parts of Bundelcund, and the independent state of Sumpter is ruled by a Goojur Chief. There are many also near the Chumbul and the Nerbudda. The Goojurs, like the Jats, all state that they came from the West country into these parts. Many have been converted to the Mahometan religion. Upon conversion they are generally styled T,het,hur by their brethren of the ancient faith.

Goojur-gour, گوجرکرو गूजर्गीर gújar-gaur See Goub Brahmin.

Gool, گول गूल gúi

A channel cut to convey water to a field.

A road, a path.—Saugor.

An unripe bunch of Indian corn; when ripe, it is called Kookree.—Dehli,

Gòòlal, ध्री गुलाल gulál

A farinaceous powder which Hindoos throw on each others clothes during the Holi. It is generally the meal of Barley, Rice, or Sing,hara, dyed with Bukkum wood.

Gòòlkhar, گاخار गुल खार gulkhár See Bhutkutera,

Gòòlphòònuna, گل پهننا ,गुलफुनना gulphunana

The name of a herb which grows in fields sown with Khureef grains. It somewhat resembles the Gooma.

GòòLoo, گلو गुलू gulú

The pod of the Muhwa tree (Bassia latifolia). It yields a very useful oil, and is sometimes eaten by the poorer classes; but it contains no intoxicating qualities, like the blossom of that valuable tree. The word appears to be a corruption of Gilounda, which is said in Shakespear's Dictionary to be "the blossom after it has fallen off;" but this application of the word is not known in these Provinces. The blossom is called Muhwa, like the tree, and the pod only is called Gilounda, or Gòòlenda.

Goolur, १९९ यूनर gular

Cotton pods which have not yet burst.—Rohilcund-—See DHOONDEE and G, HEGURA.

Gooma, ४०७५ गूमा gúma

A medicinal herb which grows on high ground during the rains, and in fields grown with Khurcef crops, (Pharnaceum Mollugo). It produces several small flowers, the beauty of which is much admired by natives.

पूज पर पूल पूल पर पाती तिस पर जुगनू सब रंग राती

Phul pur phool phool pur pátee Tis pur jòògnoo sub rung rátee.

Is a distich applied by some poet to the regular order in which the flowers of the Gooma alternate with the leaves, as well as to the appearance of the flowers which are said to resemble fire flies.

F F F 2

There are two species of Gooma, one grows to the height of about two feet, the other seldom exceeds a foot.

Gòònjaish, گنجایش गुनजाद्रम gunjáish

A Persian word signifying capacity, and applied in fiscal language to the capabilities of a village, particularly with reference to a proposed increase of Revenue.

Gòònjaishee, گنجایشی गुनजाइसी gunjáishí Profitable.

Goont,н, گونته gúnt'h

Lands assigned rent-free for religious purposes; the endowment of a temple.—Kumaon and Gurhwal. This word is sometimes, but incorrectly, pronounced G,hoont.

Gòòptdan, گبدای गुप्तदान guptdán

Literally, a hidden donation; an ostentatious mode of giving alms in secret to Brahmins, especially at *Koorchhuttur** during the Sun's eclipse. The devotee immerses himself in the sacred pool, and leaves his donation at the bottom, which occasions the Brahmins no small trouble to recover.

Gooptdan also consists in leaving horses or clothes in the pretended care of a Brahmin, and not returning to claim them; also, in giving a closed bag of coin, so that the receiver does not know, till the donor's back is turned, whether gold or copper has been bestowed on him.

Gòòr, र्रं गुड gur

Molasses. The Gypsey name for Sugar is Goorlo or Gudlo. (Trans: R. A. S., Vol. II. p. 553). This is no doubt derived from our Goor.

* This sacred place is as much resorted to during an Eclipse of the Sun, as Benares is during an Eclipse of the Moon.

Gòòrao, र्गुराच gurac

A stook, or collection of sheaves.—Rohilcund. A similar word, but with the addition of a penultimate nasal n, is used in the Lower Doab and Benares, to signify a heap of mixed chaff and corn.—See Ganten.

Gòòrbhaee, र्धु गुरभाई gurbháí

Fellow disciple; from Gòòroo a spiritual teacher, and Bhaee a brother.

Gòòrda, اگردا gurdá See Colhoo.

Gòòrduchhna, لردچها gurdachhná Rent-free land given to a spiritual teacher; from Gòòroo, a teacher, and Duchhna, a fee. Gòòrnour, گرهور गुरहीर gurhaur

Stacks of Cowdung.—Eastern Oudh.

Gòòrk,нүе, रिक्रें गुरखई gurk'haí

The name applied to a Mortgage in Bundelcund, which is attended with the peculiar condition of leaving the Mortgager to pay <sup>3</sup>/<sub>4</sub>ths of the Revenue of the mortgaged land.

Gòòrub, र्ग्रव gurab

Gòòrub signifies deep weeding, in which the ground is broken and pulverized. It is the opposite of Niraee, which applies only to superficial weeding. The word is derived from Gòòrubna, to dig,—a common verb, but not in Shakespear's Dictionary, in which we rarely have occasion to notice any omission.

Gòòrub is also the name given to the process of ploughing through a field of Bajra or Juwar, when the plant is about a foot high. The operation requires some nicety to prevent the young plants sustaining injury. Gòòrub, as applied to this process is in general use, especially in the Upper Doab and Rohileund; but Bidahna and Chhunta dena are more common in Dehli and the Central Doab, and Duduhrna in the Lower Doab.

This practice is not unknown to English Farmers, particularly where strong adhesive clay soils prevail, on account of their liability to become hide-bound after a wet winter. In parts of Germany and Poland the practice is universal. "There, on the first return of fine weather the harrows are immediately passed freely over the wheat; so freely indeed that the whole field wears the appearance of having been newly sown, for the plants appear buried under the soil thus freshly stirred, and an ample top-dressing is thereby given to the crop. The crust formed upon the surface of the soil is thus broken, and the ground is rendered more pervious to the coronal root of the plants, which in a week or ten days spread and tiller with great strength. The operation is performed on every kind of soil." (British Husbandry, Vol. II., p. 148).

Where light soils prevail, the wheat is generally drilled, and, as the harrow endangers the roots, the horse-hoe, or handhoe, is used; but either way, gòòrub is as common a practice in Europe as in Upper India.

Gòòruree, रि.इ.चे गुडरी gurarí

Gophna, रिक्कु गाफना gophna

A sling used by persons stationed on a DAMCHA, q. v.

Gopushtumee, گوپشتّمي गोपसमी gopashtamí

Is the name given to the 8th day of Katik, Shòòkl Puksh. On this day, as well as on the Godhun (Goverdhun), the day after the Devalee, garlands are suspended from the necks of cows, their horns, hoofs, and bodies are painted, and salutations are made to them. The whole ceremony reminds us of that observed on St. Anthony's day at Rome, when the beasts are sprinkled with holy water, and blessed by the Priests.

Yet to me they seem'd crying, alack, and alas!
What's all this white damask to daisies and grass?
Then they're brought to the Pope, and with transport they're kiss'd And receive consecration from Sanctity's fist.

Gora, ी रेंगरा gora

Usually, white, fair; but when applied to horned cattle, it signifies red.

Goreyt, र्गाडैत gorait

A village watchman, an intelligencer. The meaning is correctly given under Goorait and Gorayat in the Printed Glossary.

Gorha, ७ रेक्ट्रेंगीढा gorha

The Home-stead; fields near the village.—See Goend.

Goroo, گورو 和転 gorú

Gorsee, रेग्सि gorsí

A Milk pail.—See JHAKUREE.

Gote, అهو गात got

In common parlance Gote has the same meaning as the more classical Gotra of the Glossary. Properly, those only are Gotes (v. Colebrooke, Trans; R. A. S., Vol. I. p. 237), which bear the name of some Rishi progenitor, as Sandilya, Bharadwaj, Bushisht, (Vasisht,ha), Kasyapa; but it has become the custom to call all sub-divisions of tribes, Gotes, and according to the Nirnye Sindh there are no less than ten thousand. The early genealogies of the Rajpoots frequently exhibit them as abandoning their martial habits, and establishing religious Sects, or Gotras. Thus, Reh was the fourth son of Proorwa of the Lunar Race, "from him in the fifteenth generation was Harita, who with his eight brothers took to the office of religion, and established the Causika Gotra, a tribe of Brahmins".—See "Colebrooke's Miscellaneous Essays," Vol. I. p. 115, "Journal R. A. S.," Vol. III., pp. 354, 356; "Sanscrit Diet:" p. 298; and "Vishnu Purana," p. 405.

Got, HAN, रिहा में शियान got'han

Place of assembling the cattle of a village.—Saugor.

Gotra, ४, जीवा gotra

See above under Gote.

Gouchuna, एंड्र गीचना gauchaná

Gouchuna, or Gochunee, is a field of wheat and Chuna sown together. The practice of sowing culmiferous and leguminous plants together has been much ridiculed, and has been brought forward as a proof of the ignorance of Indian Agriculturists. Mill emphatically declares it ("History of India," Vol. II., p. 26) to be "the most irrational practice that ever found existence in the Agriculture of any nation." But, notwithstanding this denunciation, which is too much in accordance with the usual spirit of his comments on everything Indian, the real fact is that the practice is highly advantageous to the land, as well as to the crop. Dew readily forms on the leaves of the Chuna, which would not form on the wheat; and in seasons of drought the practice is very often the means of preserving both crops. It may be carried perhaps to too great an excess in Madras, but the same charge cannot be made against the Agriculturists of these Provinces. As for its being irrational, it is a practice encouraged by the first Agriculturists of Europe. more common than to sow clover with barley, flax, oats, and Lent-corn; and with the same object which has established Gouchuna in native Agriculture as a highly rational and beneficial system. (Von Thaër, Principes Raisonnés d' Agric., Vol. IV. § 1304).—See GOJYEE.

Gouhan, रेंबडीन gauhán

A village made over by its proprietors to any person on a permanent Juma, with all the privileges of Zumeendar.—Eastern Oudh.

Gouhanee, रिकार्ग हानी gauhání

Lands situated close round a village; the village itself; fields on which cattle graze; Gouhance is also a general term for the entire lands of a village.

Gounta, धिं है गांटा gaunta

Village expences.—Bundelcund.—See GAONKHURCHA.

Gountea, گونتییا ग्रें।डिया gauntiyá

A small hamlet. All these words are so many derivatives from Ganw, a village.

Goura, ी र्ह गीरा gaurá

A tribe of AHEERS, q. v.

Hail.—Central Doab. Ola is the most usual word, but hail is also provincially known by several other words, as Gye, Rora, Binoula, and Put,hur.

GOUR BRAHMIN,

gaur brahman

ुक्के रे रे रे रे गीड ब्रह्मन

These form one of the ten tribes of Brahmins. They all state that they came from Gour in Bengal, but there is much improbability in the story. There can be little doubt of Canoujcas emigrating on the invitation of Adiswara from Canouj to Bengal; how then can we account for the whole tribe of Gours, not only leaving their native seats, but crossing through the country of the Canoujeas, and dwelling on the other side of them? If they emigrated in, or about, the time of the Pandavas, as universal local tradition would induce us to suppose, it would lead to the inference that Canoujeas are a more modern race. Gour moreover was only made the Bengal capital shortly before the Mahomedan conquest, and that is too late to admit of its giving a name to one of the ten tribes. Mr. Colebrooke seems to help us out of this difficulty by saying that Gour is not the Mahomedan Capital, but a Des, or country, below Patna, -but admitting this, the difficulty would still occur, how they came to overleap the Canoujcas? and how happens it that all the Gour Brahmins now in Bengal are very recent importations from the West? There is ample room for speculation, and it may perhaps, amongst other things, be conjectured, that the Ta-Gauria, mentioned by Polybius, which Wilson in his excellent work on Ariana Antiqua says affords some indication of Gour, may be found to have something to do with their "incumabula;" at any rate, if their connexion with it could be proved, it would solve the chief difficulty respecting their present Western position. A fuller examination of the point might result in important discoveries respecting the origin of the Brahminical tribes.—See Gour Tuga.

We find Gour Brahmins throughout the Soobah of Dehli, extending from Rampoor to Huriana, and from Allygurh to the Hills. They appear in general a more ignorant race than the Canoujeas, and can seldom be got to give an intelligible account of their own sub-divisions; but it may be gathered that they amount to the number of forty-two. The most noted tribes of Gour Brahmins are the Adh Gour, Joogad Gour, Kyt,hul Gour, Goojur Gour, Dhurum Gour, and Sidh Gour.

Gour клует,н, گورکاینگه गोड काएच gaur káet'h

One of the twelve sub-divisions of Kayet,hs. As their name implies, they are chiefly to be found in Bengal, though Nasirood-Deen, the son of Bulbun, introduced several of them into the Western Districts, about 600 years ago, when he appointed them Canoongoes of Nizamabad, Bhudoee, Kole, G,hosee and Chiryakote, in the Soobah of Allahabad.

There are two chief Divisions of Gour Kayet, hs—K, hurree and Nizamabadee. The latter are subdivided into Nizamabadee proper, Brahmin Gour, and Odturea or Shumalee. To these perhaps may be added Bhut-gour or Goura-Bhutnagur; but on this subject, authorities are not very clear.

The Nizamabadees are now for the most part Seik, hs, or followers of Nanuk Shah.—See Bhutnagur.

Gour RAJPOOT, گور راجبو गोड राजपुत gaur rájpút

One of the Chutees Cula of Rajpoots. According to Colonel

Tod,* (Vol. I. p. 115), the ancient Kings of Bengal were of this race, and gave their name to the capital Luk,hnouti. There are several of this clan in these Provinces. We find many of them as Zumeendars in Mujhowlee of Goruckpoor; in Bundlecund; in Bisowlee, Nidhpoor, Budaon, Sutasee, Oosahut, Oojhanee, and Suheswan in Zillah Budaon; in Powayen, Zillah Shahjehanpoor; in Sumbhul and Sirsee, Zillah Moradabad; in Aonla, Zillah Bareilly; and in Chubramow, Shumsabad, Allypoor Puttee, Phuphoond, Dehlee, Bilhour, Akberpoor, Rusootabad, G,hatumpoor, and Dera Mungulpoor, in Central Doab. In Khyrabad of Oudh, they are found in considerable numbers. They gave great trouble in the time of Bòòrhan-ul-Mòòlk, Suadut Khan, and at last met with severe retribution.—(Imadu-s-Suadut.)

Tod gives the names of five Sak, ha of Gours, which do not at all correspond with those known in these Provinces. Here they are divided into three classes called Bhut Gour, Bamun Gour, and Chumur Gour,—names derived from some intercourse with Bhats, Brahmins and Chumars. To these are sometimes added Kut, herya Gours, descended from a Kut, heree, or Carpenter; but it may be doubted if the Kut, herya are really Gours. No argument however can be derived from the fact that the daughters of Gours marry into Kut, herya families, because the

* It is difficult to say on what authority he makes this assertion. Gour is generally supposed to have been founded by one of the Physician Dynasty of Bengal, not long before the Mahomedan invasion; though it must be confessed that Dow and Rennel state, that it was the Capital of Bengal 730 years before Christ. As another illustration of the unsubstantial theories entertained by this enthusiastic Annalist, it may be mentioned that he considers the Gour to be descendants of Byram Gour, who is said in some apocryphal histories to have visited India in the fifth century, and to have left progeny there by a Princess of Canouj. In a subsequent passage, he has no doubt that the Gour appanage was West of the Indus, and that this tribe on conversion became the Ghor, and returned to India as the Ghoree Kings of Delhi. (Annals, Vol. 1. p. 233, Vol. II. p. 449.)

While, however, we cannot but dissent from several of this author's extravagant surmises and assertions, it would be ungracious not to acknowledge how deeply we are indebted to him for his interesting "Annals of Rajast,han," a work which contains much novel information, and is a repertory of important facts and traditions, which are invaluable to an enquirer into the history of India previous to the Mahomedan invasion. He would have conferred a still deeper obligation on us had he published his promised translation of the poem of Chund Bardai. A perfect copy of the original is now rarely procurable.

420

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

Chumur Gour and Bamun Gour also intermarry. The question will be further discussed under Kut, Herra, particularly with reference to their emigration from Kutchur, in the neighbourhood of Benares.

The Chumur Gour, who are sub-divided into Rajas and Races, rank the highest, which is accounted for in this way. When troubles fell upon the Gour family, one of their ladies, far advanced in pregnancy, took refuge in a Chumar's house, and was so grateful to him for his protection, that she promised to call her child by his name. The Bhats and Brahmins, to whom the others fled, do not appear to have had similar forbearance, and hence, strange as it may appear, the sub-divisions called after their name rank below the Chumur Gour.

The Chumur Gour themselves say their name is properly Chounhur Gour, from a Raja who was called Chounhur. Sometimes they say their real name is Chimun Gour, and that they are called after a Muni, whose name was Chimun. The fact is, they are ashamed of their name, as it presumes a connexion with Chumars, which they are anxious to disclaim.

The strongest clan of Gour is in the Central Doab. They say that they came from Narnoul, from which place Nar in Rusoolabad, the residence of a Gour Raja, derives its name.

Gour tuga, र्डि न्हें गाड तगा gaur tagá

An important tribe, of Brahminical descent, in the North West of India, extending over a great part of Upper Rohil-cund, the Upper Doab, and the Dehli Territory. They are a tribe of peculiar interest from the traditions which attach to their occupation of their present seats. They state that they were invited from Bengal to these parts by Raja Janamejaya,* for the purpose of exterminating snakes; which fable, though sufficiently ridiculous in itself, no doubt veils under an allegorical type a most important historical fact. The circumstances attending the sacrifice of the snakes by Janamejaya are preserved by local tradition in almost precisely the same form as they are given in the Adi Parva of the Mahábhárata. garrulous old Tuga, who has perhaps never read, or even heard. a line of that sacred poem, will tell you how that Raja Purcechut ( Purikshita ) was bitten to death by a snake, notwithstanding all the precautions he took to avoid it, by seating himself on a platform in the centre of the Ganges; how that Utung (Utanka) a Muni, persuaded Janamejaya, who had lately returned victorious from Takshasila, to avenge his father's death; how that Janamejaya determined on having a Hom, or sacrifice, of the entire race of snakes; how that they were all exterminated except Tukchuk, (Takshaka, brother of the Adityas) and Basook, (Vasuki, sovereign of the Nagas of Patala); when, towards the close of the sacrifice, Astik, a holy man. (of whose birth some marvellous particulars are given), came forward, and obtained the promise of Janamejaya to spare their lives; which promise he dare not break, as it was exacted by a Brahmin; and how that he was thus foiled in his object of sacrificing the chief offenders, whom he had reserved for the close of the ceremony, in order that none of their followers might come to their assistance.

* The same tradition is preserved in Bengal also.—See "Buchanan's Eastern India," Vol. III., pp. 42, and 154.

The extent to which this tradition of the serpent sacrifice (Sarpa Satra) has spread is very surprising. Here we not only have it preserved by the common people of the North West, the very scene of the operation, but in inscriptions and legends from distant parts of India. Thus, in the Asiatic Researches (Vol. IX.) we have an inscription from a copper-plate found at Bednore, which purports that Janamejaya made a progress to the South and to other quarters, for the purpose of reducing all countries under his domination, and performed a sacrifice for the destruction of serpents at the confluence of the rivers Tungabhadra and Haridra, at the time of a partial eclipse of the sun. Having completed the sacrifice, the King bestowed gold and lands on certain Brahmins of Goutama Grama,-a name evidently of Buddhist origin. Though the genuineness of this monument is distrusted by Colebrooke and Colonel Mackenzie, they both concur in thinking it no recent fabrication. If it is forged, it must of course have been drawn up in conformity with notions and traditions generally current on the spot. Again, Stirling ("Report on Orissa," p. 25), says that the Brahmins of Agrahat, eight miles North of Cuttack, state that the spot was visited by Janamejaya during his progress over India with all the feudatory princes of the country in his train; and they "point out the spot where he performed the sacrifice for the destruction of the Serpents."—See also Journal of the Bengal Asiatic Society for September, 1837.

It can searcely be doubted that these serpents, for whose annihilation so much trouble was taken, were Takshac Scythians of the Buddhist persuasion, and the chief supporters of that religion. From the time of the Great War, when we find them already in the North West, to about 500 B. C. they extended their conquests in India; and, as they had a serpent for their national emblem, they were known as the Takshac, or serpent, race. There can be no question also that the early legends of Persia are to be interpreted with this key, and that the voracious snakes of Zohac were hordes of barbarous Scythians from the North.

The period of their chief, though perhaps not their first, invasion of India under their leader Suhesnag occurred about 600 B. C. Many memorials of the bloody wars in which the Hindoos were engaged with these invaders exist in the records of Indian History. They extended their usurpations to the Magadha Empire of Bchar, the throne of which was held by the Nag, or Serpent, dynasty for ten generations, and a branch of them, the Nagbunsec chieftains of Ramgurh Sirgooja, have (Trans: R. A. Society, Vol. II. p. 563), the lunettes of their Serpent ancestor engraved on their signets in proof of their lineage,—while the capital and district of Nagpoor are called after their name. The Vayu and Matsya Puranas call the Saisunagas, Kshatra Bandhees, which may designate, says Wilson, (Vishnu Pur. p. 467,) an inferior order of Kshatriyas. The use of the title serves to shew that they had already begun to be included in the Military Class, and is confirmatory of the view that they are included in the Agnicula. The invasion abovementioned was, according to Colonel Tod's supposition, nearly contemporaneous with the appearance of the 23rd Buddha, Parisnat,h, whose symbol is that of the race he accompanied, and hence he is called Suhus Phun, "the thousand-hooded." It is supposed that the Brahmins made converts of some powerful branches of these new sectaries, and that it is to them the term Agnicula (fire-race) is applied, as signifying their spiritual regeneration by the element of If so, the Takshacs must be the progenitors of the most distinguished tribes of Rajpoots; and yet it is strange that no vestiges are now to be found of the original name Tak*, or Takshac, though it is recorded amongst the 36 royal races. I am aware that Elphinstone ("History of India," Vol: I. App: II) opposes the doctrine of a Scythian admixture with the Rajpoots, but there is much in Indian History which could not well be explained without it, at least without the admission of an incorporation of some Northern family; and even he is disposed to concede the point with regard to the Jats.—(See also J. A. S. B., Vol. VI. p. 677.)

This spiritual regeneration must have occurred three or four centuries subsequent to the allegorical tradition mentioned above, which evidently implies that the edict of extermination was not entirely fulfilled, and that Janamejaya, was induced

* It may be remarked that Tak is one of the sub-divisions of the Bhungees, but they are not likely to be in any way connected with our Rajpoot Taks,

There is also a community of Tank Rajpoots in Gihror of Mynpooree, and in the South of Rohilcund. They trace their origin from Tank Tora in Kuraolee, and receive the daughters of Bumun Gour, Chumur Gour, Gehlote, and Dhakura in marriage, which would argue them to be of respectable lineage. The probability of their connexion with the Tak race will be further discussed under the article Tank.

It is also to be observed that Takshac is still one of the Gram Dectas, or Village Gods, of the Bhagulpoor district.

It was a converted Tak Rajpoot who established the independent Dynasty of Guzerat.

The "Mirat-i-Secunderee" says the tribe was called Tak, because it became Teeagee, or separated from its brethren,—ascribing therefore the same origin to the name as is given to our Tugas.

سدهارن از قرم تاک است در تاریخ هنود مسطور است که تاک و کهتری برادران یکدیگر اند یکی از ایشان بشرب شراب رخبت نمود اررا کهترئان از قرم خریش اخراج نمودند و چنین صخوجی را بزبان هندی تیاگی گریند یعنی از قرم بر آررده شده از آن باز رسم و آئین و دین کهتری از تاک امتیاز یافت * to forego his purpose at the instigation of Astik, who according to the Mahábhárata was the son of Tukchuk's own sister; so that intermarriages with the Tukchuks could not have been altogether uncommon even in the Court of the King Janamejaya.

It is evident that we are to construe in a similar way those frequent allusions in the Mahábhárata and the Puranas to the intercourse between mortal heroes and the Naga Kunyas, or Serpent nymphs. For instance, when it is mentioned that an Apsara from Naglok was married to Chuttergoopt, and that more than half the Kayet, hs of the country are the offspring of this union, and when it is mentioned that the seventeen daughters of Basòòk, the king of the Nágas, were married to the seventeen sons of Raja Vgursein, we are to understand that a nuptial alliance united a Scythian family with that of Chuttergoopt and Raja Ugursein. Those who, like the Ugurwala Bunias, are descended from the Raja, would not willingly acknowledge this interpretation; as they would rather adhere to the fable; but it need not alarm them, for a little examination would shew that, even as it is, they cannot be pure Vaisyas, since the Raja was himself a Kshatriya. In a similar manner, almost all the mercantile tribes of Hindoostan are of Rajpoot descent. But these anomalies do not appear to strike the credulous Hindoo, and he is content to leave the subject without enquiry.

It was for the purpose of officiating at the serpent sacrifice above-mentioned, that Janamejaya is said to have invited Brahmins from Gour. After they had performed all that he requested of them, he offered them remuneration, which some rejected, and others received in the shape of land; on which account they are called Tugas, from having consented to a Tyag, (relinquishment) of their creed as Brahmins, by pursuing agriculture, which they are forbidden by the Shasters to practice.

Those who continued to retain their titles and privileges as Brahmins,—(See Gour Brahmin), took up their abode chiefly in Huriana, while the Tugas remained in the immediate neighbourhood of Hustinapoor, within a circle of about one hundred miles round the ancient capital, where they are found to this day. This is the usual account. It is remarkable, however, that almost all the clans of Tugas state that they came from Huriana, not from Gour, and even derive their names from places in that country, as, for instance, the Choolut, who say that their name is derived from Chooloo in Bikancer, and the Bikwans of Poor Chupar, who came from Bikancer. therefore far more probable that the Brahmins were already tenants of Huriana, that they must have settled there before Janamejaya's reign, and that the Tugas only, not the Brahmins, owe their residence to that powerful Raja; otherwise it is difficult to reconcile the apparent contradiction that he called Gour Brahmins from Bengal, and Gour Tugas from Huriana: or it may be, that the Brahmins were invited from Gour by Janamejaya, and afterwards settled in Huriana, and that the Tugas were invited by some succeeding Prince or Princes, after the Brahmins had fully established themselves in Huriana; so that the occupation of the country round Hustinapoor by the Tugas, may be later than the occupation of Huriana by the Brahmins. But what militates against this, and confirms the other hypothesis, is that it is expressly stated in the concluding section of the Mahábhárata that Janamejaya, "having concluded the ceremonies of the sacrifice on which he had been engaged, dismissed the multitude of Brahmins, and other pious mendicants who had thronged to the place, loaded with presents, to their several abodes."

There are some Tugas in the Upper Doab, who state that they do not proceed from the Gour stock. For instance, on the banks of the Doab Canal, near Delhi, there are a few villages held by Tugas of Sirsootee Brahmin descent. With this exception, it is generally acknowledged that all the Tugas were originally Gour Brahmins.

They are divided into several separate clans, amongst which some of the most important are Moongul, Teetwal, Muhesura, Basean, Duttean, Kurawul, Mukta, Dik, hit Eimlee, and Dabhe.

There are several Mahometan converts among them, particularly in the line of country between Meerut and Moradabad. In the Delhi Territory the Gour Brahmins and Tugas frequently intermarry, but the practice is not observed by the Gours of the Doab and Rohilcund.

Gourahur, ्रेटी श्रीराहर gaurahar

An obscure tribe of Rajpoots in Saheswan, and in Gungeree, Puchlunah, Budurea, and Bilram, on the borders of Budaon and Alligurh. They are said to be descended from the Chumur-Gour, and it is sometimes added, by way of reproach, that there is a little Aheer blood in their veins.

Gourdoda, ४ورو गीस्वा gaurua

An inferior clan of Rajpoots in Rehur, and Nugeena of Bijnore; Iradutnugur of Agra; and Suhar, Sheregurh, and Huzoor Tehseel of Muttra. Those to the West of the Jumna are said to have emigrated from Jyepoor about nine hundred years ago. They are frequently confounded with the Gourahurs but are, in fact, quite distinct.

GOUTUM RAJPOOT,

gautam rájpút

This tribe is now usually rated amongst the Chunderbuns; but they are not considered as holding a place amongst the 36 royal races. There are a few of them in Bundelcund and Benares; but they are found in large numbers in Ghazeepoor, Ayea Sah, Mòòtour, Kora, Kootea Gòòneer, and Bindkee, Pergunahs of Futtehpoor; Jajmow and Sarh-Sulempoor of Cawnpore; in Islamnugur of Budaon; in Deoganw, Chiryakote, Cureat Mittoo, and Nizamabad of Azimgurh; and in Mahòòl, Atrowlea Tilhenee, and Aurungabad Nugur of Goruckpoor.

The Goutums were once a very powerful clan in the Lower Doab. Their chief village was Argul on the Rinde in Pergunah Kora, and their representative, now shorn of all his power, still resides there, and is honored with the title of Raja. They themselves state that they were originally Brahmins, that Siringee Rik,h, their ancestor, (so called from a prominent horn on his forehead,) was invited to Court by the Guhurwar Raja of Canouj, who bestowed his daughter in marriage on Ingee Rik,h, the son of Siringee, and accompanied the gift with the splendid dowry of all the villages from Canouj to Kurra.

This tradition is good for nothing. It is, in the first place, impossible that Siringee Rik,h could have been a contemporary of any Guhurwar Raja, and, in the second place, it is highly improbable that the Guhurwars should have preceded the occupation of the Goutums. Nevertheless, the story is most devoutly believed by many Goutums. They are divided into the tribes of Raja, Rao, Rana, and Rawut. The representative of the Rajas lives at Argul; of the Raos at Birahunpoor, in Bindkee; of the Ranas at Chillee, in Pergunah Mujhawun, now included in Sarh-Sulempoor; and of the Rawuts at Bhaoopoor, in Bindkee.

Besides the possessions which they themselves retained, they are said—and here probability is in favor of the tradition—to have bestowed upon their allies several large tracts which are to this day tenanted by the Grantees. Thus the Chundels of Sheorajpoor in Cawnpoor are represented to have received from them 62 villages in that Pergunah, having been induced to leave their original seat of Mahoba after the defeat of their chief Brimaditya by Pirt, hee Raj. The Jugunbunsee Canoujca Brahmins of Kora are said to have received the Chowdrahut of that Pergunah from Birsing Deo, a Goutum Chieftain. The Thutburar Canoujea Brahmins are said to have been Bukhshees of the Argul family. The At, hya Goutums, who are reckoned inferior to the general stock, and considered to have been originally Jinuar Rajpoots, are said to have received 28 villages in Bindkee from the Argul Raja, with whom they had contrived to ingratiate themselves by teaching him the game of Shutrunj.

But the largest assignment of land which is attributed to their bounty is that of Beiswara in Oudh. The reason of this gift is thus given by the tradition of the country. The Argul Raja, having given offence to some King of Delhi, the King directed his Myrmidons to seize the Raja's wife, who was then on a Pilgrimage at Allahabad. They were nearly succeeding in their attempt, when a large party of Beis Rajpoots from Moongee Peitun, who had come under their leaders Bhao and Bebhao to the sacred confluence, came forward to the rescue, and kept the Royal army at bay till they reached Kurra, when there was no longer any fear of danger. To mark the Rance's gratitude, the Beis were invited to Argul, and there, after a short time, a marriage was celebrated between Bhao and Goordundee, a Rajpootnee of the Rao Goutum tribe. though he considered it a humiliation to unite one of his own stock to the stranger, was nevertheless pleased to authorize a marriage with the Rao, and to bestow upon the Beis, as a Dowry, 1,440 villages on the Eastern side of the Ganges, which now constitute the country of Beiswara. The story goes that the Goutum Raja offered the bride all the villages of which she could pronounce the names without drawing breath. She accordingly .commenced-- and had proceeded as far as Panch ganw, when the Raja's son, fearing that his possessions would be lost to him, seized hold of the bride's throat, and prevented further utterance.

नामाम ऊ पचार विज्ञाली ताके बोच विष्ठ गंगचीली देहुन बाबुलि डुडुर गांउ पाउ देयडोंगा चाठि जांउ वागिसर गांउ द्जारे पांउ पुरवा वैठे पान चवाउं चेउ मेंउ चारासी वावन गांउ वैरासी

तूरो तीरा तार गांउं भैसई पचाडडा पांच गांउं॥ २॥

If we are to put faith in the essentials of this tradition, it would shew that the Goutum country must really have been an important tract, extending from Calpee to the neighbourhood of Goruckpoor, since we find a Goutum Raja, still residing, as head of his tribe, in Nugur in that district, and the Azimgurh family, now Mussulmans, were, before their conversion, Rajpoots of the Goutum stock. We find it also stated in Buchanan ("Eastern India," Vol. II. p. 458), that the Goutums of Goruckpoor considered that their ancestors were once in possession of Bundle-cund. Though his statements are never to be taken without reservation, yet we may fairly receive them for the evidence of a tradition respecting the Goutums, which concurs with that of their Western brethren in assigning to their ancestors the possession of a very large principality in and around the Lower Doab.

It must be remembered that both the Goutum and Beis Rajpoots concur in this story, and such a concurrence is almost equivalent to authentic history. Now, as the Beis are descendants of Salivahana, and a Salivahana was sovereign of Pratist, hana, the modern Jhoosee (As: Res: Vol. X. p. 32), it gives at once an established antiquity to the Goutums, which makes it possible that we may have in them the descendants of the illustrious Shakyas. There are of course difficulties* attending this hypothesis, but the bare mention of it raises questions of considerable interest, which invite a longer discussion than can be bestowed upon them here.

For some generations the Goutums of Argul seem by their own accounts to have continued in great prosperity, dating their decline from the period of Humayoon's return to India, who avenged himself upon them for their zealous adherence to the cause of his victorious rival, Shere Shah. Mussulman history, however, is silent on the subject, both of this warfare of extermination, and of the presumed importance of Argul and the Goutums, and it is therefore difficult to say what portions of truth are mixed up with the fictions of these relations.

The Goutums of Jounpoor and the Eastward give their daughters in marriage to Sombunsee, Buchgotee, Bajhulgotee, or Bandhulgotee, Rajwar and Rajcòòmar. Those of the Doab give their daughters to other tribes,—the Bhudouria, Cuchhwaha, • Il résulte de là qu'il n'est pas aisé de comprendre comment Shakya a pu porter à la fois ce nom, qui rappelle la tribu guerrière à laquelle il appartient, et celui de Gautama, qui rappelle une famille brahmanique. La seule manière de résoudre cette dernière difficulté, c'est d'admettre que le nom de Gautama a dû appartenir, non pas seulement à Shakya mouni seul, mais à toute la famille guerrière des Shakyas, comme le pensent les Chinois, M. Burnouf, Foe Koue Ki, P. 309.

Rat, hore, Gehlote, Chouhan, and Tooar, and they vary as much with respect to the tribes whose daughters they receive.

Goutumean, گوتهیای गातिमयां gautamiyán

A clan of Rajpoots in Azimgurh and Goruckpoor. They are offshoots of the Goutums, but of a spurious breed.

A dwelling house; a family; a cow-house.—Dehli.

The head manager of a village, equivalent to a Mookuddum elsewhere.—Sohagpoor.

Gubrouta, एं गबरीटा gabrauta

A large beetle found in old cowdung and dung-hills. It is called also Gobroura and Goburounda. (Scarabæus Stercorarius: Linn:).

Gubur, گبر जबर gabar

An infidel, in general; but the word is more specially applied to a fire-worshipper. Meninski says "Ignicola, magus infidelis, quivis paganus." The word is more familiar to us in Europe under the aspect of Guebre;—the Parsee of Western India. There seems reason to suppose that there were Colonies of refugee fire-worshippers established in Upper India also, till a very late period. One of the Governors of Meerut, even as late as the time of the capture of that town by Timoor in A. D. 1399, was of that persuasion, and though the "Rouzut-òòs-Sufa," the "Timoornama," and "Zufurnama" mention him merely under the term of Gubur, which is also applied by them to Hindoos in general, yet the "Mutla-òòs-Sadyn" distinctly says, that his son worshipped fire; and the language of Khondemir (Khovend Meer) in the third volume of the "Hubeeboos-Seyr" is too plain to be mistaken on that point.

ر آخر ماه ربیعالاخر صاحب قران عالی ماثر بدآنجا رسیده عساکر منصرر آخر ماه ربیعالاخر صاحب قران عالی ماثر بدآنجا رسیده عساکر منصرر آغاز جنگ کردند و قهر افزا میرت را گرفته صفی گبر را در حین قتال بزخم تیخ آبدار بدارالبرار فرستادند و پسرش را بآتشی که می پرستید سرزانیدند * اگر صد سال کبر آنش فررزد * چو یکدم اندر ر افتد بسوزد * فره ماه جمادیالاولی اکثر گبران افعار بر دست اعل اسلام کشته کشته بروج قلعه مانند خاک راه همرار شد

Gud, ਹੈ ਹਫ gad

A boundary mark.—Dehli.

Guddi گڌي गददी gaddi

A throne, or cushion.—See GACHEE.

A sheaf of corn. Perhaps this would be more correctly spelt with a Hindee D. 3.

A Tribe resembling the G,hosees. They are now mostly Mussulmans, and have a few scattered communities in several Pergunahs, such as in Gurhmòòktesur and Surawa of Meerut, and the Rampoor Territory. It is not unusual to call any converted Hindoo a Guddee, which is looked on by a true Mussulman as a term of reproach.

Guddhri र्वे प्रवित्त वार्धि gaddhri

The unripe pod of the Gram plant, or cicer arictinum— Dehli.—See Dhoondhee and Guddur.

Guddar रेड्र gaddar

Gudra, گرا वृद्रा gadrá

Unripe corn or fruit.

Gudeechut, रि.इंग्ट्रें गदीचट gadichat

A grass generally found growing with Doob, which it resembles, except in being about three times larger. It is much used as fodder.

Gudgol, रादगाल gadgol

Muddy water.

Gudhe-ka-hul, گدهي کا عرل गधेका हल gadhe-ka-hal

Literally, a Donkey's plough. Before the British accession, it was not uncommon to yoke Donkeys in a plough, and drive them over the ruins of a captured fort, as a mode of shewing supreme contempt for the vanquished enemy. The furrows thus raised were levelled by the Lohe-kee-mye, or iron harrow.

Exitio gravi
Stravere, et altis urbibus ult!mæ
Stetere causæ, cur perirent
Funditus, imprimeretque muris
Hostile aratrum exercitus insolens.

Horat : Carm : I. 16.

This mode of wreaking vengeance has been in especial favor with Eastern nations, and was practised by Jenghiz Khan and Timoor with unrelenting severity. Hence the common expression, "I shall sow barley where you now stand." See the vaunt of the Bandit-Minstrel Kurroglou, at p. 138 of "Popular Poetry of Persia."

Gudhe-pur-churhana, gadhe-par-charháná

गधे पर चढाना

Literally, to seat upon a Jackass. This is a punishment more commonly known by the Arabic "Tushheer, publication, celebration; which is rendered by Golius," Per urbem duci jussit sontem in exemplum: fere asino aut camelo impositum." In India when this punishment is ordained, the criminal is seated with his face to the tail of a Donkey, and old shoes, rags, and "notions" are suspended from his neck in derision.

A Tushheer, or public exposure with the face blackened, is expressly declared to be the punishment inflicted by Comur upon a false witness in addition to 40 stripes: though Aboo Huncefa and his two disciples differ as to whether the punishment should be considered a sentence of Tazeer or Seeasut.—See "Hedaya," Vol. II., pp. 715, 716; and "Harington's Analysis," Vol. I., p. 287.

The first intimation we have of a Tushheer in the Mahometan history of India is when Seif-òòd-Deen Ghoree was captured in Ghuzni. He had his forehead blackened, and was seated astride on a bullock with his face towards the tail; and after enduring the shouts and insults of the mob, he was tortured and finally beheaded.—Tuwareekh-i-Gòòzceda.

It is generally supposed that this punishment was introduced into India by the Mahometans; but this is a mistake, for in the Institutes of Menu (Cap. VIII. 370) it is ordained. "If a woman shall be guilty of the offence mentioned, she shall have her head instantly shaved, and two of her fingers chopped, and she shall ride mounted on an ass through the public street."

In Europe, particularly during the time of the Byzantine Emperors, the punishment appears to have been by no means uncommon.

In A. D. 425, the usurper John, after he had been exposed mounted on an ass to the public derision, was beheaded in the Circus of Aquileia.—Gibbon, Cap. XXXIII.

In A. D. 602, the Emperor Maurice was exposed to the same ignominy by proxy.—Ibid, Cap. XLVI.

In A. D. 820, Michael II. treated the rebel Thomas in like manner.—Ibid, Cap. XLVIII.

About 50 years before, the Patriarch Anastatius was exposed to public ignominy by being led through the streets on an ass, with his face to the tail.—Schlosser, p. 211.

In the time of Pope Lucius III, A. D. 1181-1135, the Romans, after putting out the eyes of several priests, crowned them with ludicrous mitres, and mounted them on asses with their faces to the tail.—Gibbon, Cap. LXIX.

Crescentius, in the year A. D. 998, was also similarly paraded, previous to being hanged.—Bayle, Dict. Art. Otho. III.

Even as late as A. D. 1527, Guicciardini records that at the sacking of Rome in that year, many prelates were so treated, while they were invested in all the habits and ensigns of their dignity.

In our own country the procession of "riding Skimmington," which was adopted in ridicule of hen-pecked husbands, bears a close resemblance to an Oriental Tushheer. No one has described it better than Butler,—

Near whom the Amazon triumphant Bestrid her beast and on the rump on't Sate face to tail, and bum to bum, The warrior whilom overcome; Arm'd with a spindle and a distaff, Which as he rode, she made him twist off: And, when he loiter'd, o'er her shoulder, Chastis'd the reformado soldier. Before the dame, and round about, March'd Whifflers, and Staffiers on foot, With Lackeys, Grooms, Valets, and Pages, In fit and proper equipages; Of whom, some torches bore, some links, Before the proud virago minx, And, at fit periods, the whole rout Set up their throats with clamorous shout.

Hudibras, Part II., Cant. II., 643-658.

But the most curious of all Tushheers is the voluntary one undertaken by those who wish to be relieved from a scorpion sting.—"What wise man," says Sir T. Browne, "would rely upon that antidote delivered by Pierius in his hieroglyphicks against the sting of a scorpion—that is, to sit upon an ass with one's face towards his tail, for so the pain leaveth the man, and passeth into the beast."—Vulgar Errors, Book I. Cap. VII.

It is surprising, that, learned as Sir T. Browne unquestionably was, he should have ascribed so modern an origin to this vulgar error.—In the Geoponica, (Lib. XIII. Ch. 9), there is an extract given from Diophanes, a writer contemporary with Julius Cæsar, in which he quotes Apuleius as an authority for this statement. He also quotes Democritus as authority for the assertion that if a person bitten by a scorpion speaks immediately to an ass, and says "I am bitten by a scorpion," he will suffer no more pain, which will then pass into the beast. In the 15th Book of the Geoponica, (Cap. 1.) there is an extract given from Zoroaster, in which the same remedies are given, and nearly in the same language, except that he does not say the bitten person is to speak immediately to the ass. Who this Zoroaster is it would be difficult to say, but he cannot be the Magus, as he writes in Greek, and quotes Theophrastus, Aristotle, and Plutarch.

We have the same receipt given by a writer better known than these. Pliny says "Quinetiam si quis asino in aurem percussum a scorpione se dicat, transire malum protinus tradunt, venenataque omnia accenso ejus pulmone fugere."

Nat. Hist: Lib: XXVIII. Ch. 10.

Now, it is very singular that this remedy is also fully accredited amongst many natives of this country. But a young male Buffalo-calf is selected, in preference to a Donkey, as being a purer animal; and into its ear is whispered the following incantation.

वीक्की वोक्की तोरे के जाती वारह वरन ऋटारह जाती ऋटारही चली समुद्र ऋन्हाय काकारी कापेरी कारवारखी समुद्र के तीर एक वर काविरवा ते। हिमा रहे वीक्कि का किरक भारीं वीक्कि उतारीं किरवा उत्तर वीक्कि डांसे ऋड

When this jargon has been duly uttered by the messenger, he returns to the bitten patient, and is sure to find him fully recovered.

Whether, as in the case of the Fables of Syntipas and the Arabian Nights, the origin is to be ascribed to India, is doubtful. It is more probable that the superstition is derived from some of the translations of the Greek medical writers, which were made in the time of the Khuleefa Mamoon; and this is somewhat confirmed by observing that it is not so much the common people who entertain this persuasion, as those who profess to have made some acquaintance with Oriental literature.

Gudurea, گتريا गडिर्या gadariya

A shepherd. There are several sub-divisions of Gudureas in these Provinces—Neek, hur, Tusselha or Puchhade, Chuk, Dhen-gur, Bureyea, Pyhwar and Bhycatur.—Of each of these there are also many divisions, which are not worth recounting.

These hold no intimate communication with one another, being as much strangers as any two distinct castes. The most liberal relaxation of this social bondage being that the Neek, hur and Dhengur smoke each others Hòòkas.

As with the Jats and Goojurs, so with Gudureas, the younger brother marries the elder brother's widow, but the elder brother is prohibited from forming a similar connection with his younger brother's widow.—See Curao.

Guhaee, रिगहाई gaháí

The custom of treading sheaves of corn by bullocks, with the view of separating the corn from the ears and stalks; from the verb Gauna, q. v.—See also Daen.

Guhna, Ligs गहना gahná

Any thing in pledge; the original meaning is jewels, ornaments.

Gunurwar, گهروار gaharwar

A tribe of Rajpoots found in Dera Mungulpoor, Bit, hoor, Jajmow, Canouj, and Bilhour in the Central Doab; in Islamgunge on the left bank of the Ganges; in Bundelcund; in Goruckpoor; in Kutehur, and the Huzoor Tehseel of Benares; in Puchotur and Muhaich of Ghazeepoor; in K, hyragurh of Allahabad; and Kuntit of Mirzapoor.

The Guhurwars* of K,hera Mungrore in Mirzapoor are converted to Mahometanism, and those of Muhaich in Ghazeepoor are reckoned an inferior branch. The chief of the Guhurwars resides at Bidjypoor, a few Miles to the west of Mirzapoor, where the liberality of the British Government enables him still to keep up some show of respectability. At the time of our first occupation of Benares, he was a fugitive from the tyranny and oppression of the Goutum Bhoonhars, who had expelled the Guhurwar family in 1758 A. D.

• The Jatimala in the "Hindee Selections" spells the name गहउबाउ

The Guhurwars may be considered one of the most interesting races of the Upper Provinces, yet much obscurity hangs over their origin and lineage. They are recorded among the 36 Royal tribes of Rajpoots and are said to be of the same family as the Rat, hores, with whom they deem themselves on an equality, and with whom it is said they never intermarry. But this is a mistake, for those of the Central Doab and Goruckpoor intermarry with Rat, hores, and the observation can only apply to the soi-disant regal family of Kuntit. They are mentioned, moreover, in the Prit, hee Raee Rayasa under the distinct appellation of Guhurwar. Thus, in the Al-k, hund* we read,

ता पाछे पूरव देवीयं उपजे कोऊ नरेवीयं
विदासु चल मधिवाषीयं वेद भेद उपाषीयं
कुल गहरवार सुमिह्यं नपेमहीं हिंदूसहीयं
हिर्चंद निजुधी की जातीयं प्रिचिराज तेज समातीयं
धर्म राज विक्रम सूरियं सकवंध अवतर पूरियं
फिरि जेशे हिंदू अवतरं मिलि गहरवार संगातरं
घरिजीति सकति चलाई है हिंदूवान सर्व मिलाई है
उन सिरितलकु सीसे देया दीसा पित साहदिल्ली का किया
जीं कृषन पंडव चापीयं त्यां गहरवार सुपापीयं

After saying that the Empire of India will be swayed by the Put, hans, a Bunya? the Moguls, and a hero from the Deccan? he states that the Guhurwas will finally attain the Sovereignty. But both the style and sentiment betray marks of modern interpolation; and the passage was no doubt written by some courtly poet of the Holy City, when it was under the dominion, or influence, of the Guhurwar family.

* There is also very curious mention of them at the end of another K, hund. Beer bludr is made to deliver the following prophecy respecting the future greatness of this family:--

438

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

Suj Guhurwar, Gehlote nek, &c. &c.

So that they were acknowledged to be a separate tribe at the time of the final subjugation of Canouj by the Mahometans.

They assert that they were originally masters of Canouj, local tradition confirms their claims, and the Goutum Rajpoots attribute their own residence and possessions in the Lower Doab to the bounty of a Guhurwar Raja of Canonj. The Hudcekutu-1-Akaleem states that they come from Benares, and settled at Kuntit in A. D. 1155. Other authorities say that Gudun Deo (by some reckoned the son of Manik Chund, brother of Jue Chund, the Rat, hore) came from Cashmere about the end of the same century, and after expelling the Bhurputwas, at that time the occupants of the southern bank of the Ganges, settled at Kuntit, and assumed for himself and brethren the name of Guhurwar. Cashmere is most likely a mistake for Kasi (Benares), which is generally considered to be their original Country; and if so, the two reports would be nearly identical with respect to the place and time of emigration.* The probability however appears to be, that the Guhurwas preceded the five Rat, hore princes of Canouj, and fled to their present seats, on the occupation of the Country by the Rat, hores; or, it may be that, after living in subordination to, or becoming incorporated with, the Rat, hores, they were dispersed at the final conquest of Canouj by Mahomed Ghoree.

What has chiefly puzzled the English Historians of this eventful period is the name of Korah, which was borne by the Raja of Canouj at the time of the invasion by Mahmood of Ghuzni. The Rouzutu-s-sufa calls him Jyepal, but the Hubeebu-s-seir, the Taju-l-maasir, the Tubukat-i-Akberee, and *Colonel Tod in the "Annals of Rajas, than," (Vol. I. 116.) says "The Gherwal Rajpoot is scarcely known to his brethren in Rajasthan who will not admit his contaminated blood to mix with theirs—The original Country of the Gherwal is in the ancient kingdom of Cassi—Their great ancestor was Khortaj Deva, from who Jeponda, the seventh in descent, in consequence of some grand sacrificial rites performed at Bindabassi, gave the title of Boondela to his issue. Boondela has now usurped the name of Gherwal."—This is not correct. The Gherwals (Guhurwars) have allowed no usurpation of their name by the Bòondelas, and would consider the assumption very impertinent. The author, who admits the Gherwals into his own list of the 36 tribes does not state what ground he has for considering their blood contaminated.

Ferishta call him Korah, or Gorah.* Now it is not at all improbable that this was the designation of a tribe, and that that tribe was Guhurwar, converted by a misapprehension of the Mussulman historians into Korah, or Gorah, which with an entirely new language, character, and pronunciation, is not at all an unlikely transfiguration.—If this supposition is correct, it would afford a very simple explanation of one of the chief historical difficulties of this period, and serve at the same time to confirm a local tradition which is adhered to with surprising pertinacity. It is not to be concealed that there would still be much requiring explanation: - amongst other matters, the connection between the Rat, hores and Guharwars is not easy to be accounted for, because incriptions of the period show that Sree Chundra Deva, the Rat, hore, "conquered by his own arm the unequalled kingdom of Canouj;" and it could therefore scarcely have been held by a kindred tribe before him, unless indeed he may have reconquered it, as a member of the Guhurwar family, from those who had usurped the dominion after the death of Jeypal, the Gorah, who was slain by the Raja of Kalinger, in revenge for his too easy submission to the demands of Mahmood. If this is allowed, and there is nothing to militate against it, it would sufficiently account for the Guhurwars not fleeing to their new seats till the end of the 11th Century, and there would then be little to demand further explanation. A fuller discussion of the question is postponed to the article RAT, HORE.

* Briggs, nevertheless, by some inadvertance calls him in his translation Knowur Race—Dow more correctly gives it Kora.

It may be here proper to mention the origin of the name Korah assigned in the Rat, hore genealogies. "The fourth Grandson of Nayn Pal was Umrabeejy, who married the daughter of the Pramara prince of Korahgurh on the Ganges,—slew 16,000 Pramaras,—and took possession of Korah, whence the Korah Candhus." Korah however is not on the Ganges, and is evidently mistaken for Kurra, which has still the remains of a large Rat, hore fort, known by the name of little Canon; and haunted by the undying Ala, one of the chief heroes of the popular songs and tales of Upper India.

of the chief heroes of the popular songs and tales of Upper India.

+ To show what difficulty attends the prosecution of this enquiry, it may be as well to add the Goruckpoor traditions, as given in "Martin's Eastern India" (Vol. 11. 458). One is, that the Guhurwars are descended from the famous Raja Nala, and came to Kasi from Nurwur, near Gwalior. Another is, that Buldeo, Raja of Kasi, was expelled from that town by a King of Magadha, and entered into the service of Tripara, King of Cashmere, from Gujjur, ्रेंगजर gajjar Swampy ground.

Gulea, lil गलिया galea

Gulea, or Gurear, is the name given to a Bullock, which lies down in the midst of its work.

Gultar, ट्रीग्री गलताड galtar

The name given to the inner pegs of a yoke. The word appears to be derived from Gula a neck, and Ar, a skreen, or protection. Gata, Shumul, and Puchaee are used in the same sense.—See Hul.

Gultuns, گلتنس वतन्स galtans

Dying without issue; from انس right, inheritance, and الله to melt, to be dissolved: or possibly from the Arabic غلط failure, mistake.

Gumbheer, گنبهیر गंभीर gambhir

A Sanscrit word signifying deep. It is generally applied to soil which is of a rich quality, and attains a more than usual depth before the subsoil is reached. This quality is ascribed to the fertile soil of Malwa.

देस मालवा गैहिर गंभीर डग डग रोटी पग पग नीर

Des Malwa gyher gumbheer, Dug dug rotee, pug pug neer.**

whom he contrived to seize the Government of that country. His descendants enjoyed it for 121 generations, when they were expelled by the Kings of Rum, Turkestan and Iran, and retired to Canouj, which they held for 50 more generations till the time of Jye Chund. His third son Banar, Raja of Kasi, was ancestor of the Guhurwar chiefs." It is not worth while to atempt to disprove this improbable legend.

See also "Bird's Guzerat," p. 34; and pp. 351-354, 358, 455 and 478 of Col. Sykes' admirable Essay on Ancient India, in the "Journal of the R. A. S." No. xii.

* From this Sanscrit word signifying water, we derive Nereus the son of Oceanus, and his attendant Nereids.

"Such is the fertility of Malwa that you find water and bread at every step." The two words Gyher and Gumbheer in the foregoing couplet are in fact the same; the former being the modified Pracrit, formed by elision from the latter. See Wilson's Introduction to "Specimens of the Hindu Theatre" and "Sanscrit Dictionary," p. 283.

Gunda, گندّه jēi ganda

This word is given under Gundal, in the Printed Glossary. Like the Dam, the Gunda of accounts and the Gunda of practice *do not coincide. Gundas of account are but little used in the North Western Provinces, except in Benares and the Dehra Doon, and, in consequence of its former subjection to Oudh, the Nuzurana accounts of Robilcund are frequently drawn on in Gundas. This Gunda is the 20th part of an Anna. Gunda known to the common people is not of stable amount, sometimes four, and sometimes five, and sometimes even six, go to a pucka Dumree, or Chhudam, according to the pleasure of the money dealers, or the state of the market. Notwithstanding this variable amount, as a Gunda is equivalent to four Courses, " to count by Gundas" signifies to count by fours, or by the quaternary scale to which the natives are very partial;in the same way as to count by gahees, or punjas, is to count by fives, or by the quinary scale.

As four Cowrees make one Gunda, so do twenty Gundas make one Pun, and sixteen Puns make one Kuhawun. But there are grades of monetary value even below that of Cowree; for the Hindoos seem as fond of dealing with these infinitesmal quantities, as they are with the higher numbers, as exemplified in the article Crore. Thus 3 Crant, or 4 Kak, or 5 But, or 9 Dunt, or 27 Jou, or 32 Dar, or 80 Til, or 800 Suno are each equivalent to one Cowree. These are not in practical use in the N. W. Provinces, but are entered in several Account Books, and many of them appear to be employed in the Bazar transactions of Cuttack and parts of Bengal. See "Rushton's Gazetteer," 1841, Vol. 1, p. 182.

The Couree shell, the Cypra Moneta, has been subject to strange diminution of value, in consequence of the facilities of commerce, by which their worth has been depressed below that of the precious metals. In 1740, a Rupee exchanged for 2,400 Cowrees; in 1756, for 2,560 Cowrees; and at this time as many as 6,500 Cowrees may be obtained for the Rupee.

Cowree in Persian is translated by Khur-mohra, literally, a Jackass's or Mule's shell; because Mules are ornamented in that country with trappings of shells, as a Gosain's Bullock is in this country. In Arabic it is known by Wuda وعن which Ibn Batuta says is carried in large quantities from the Maldive Islands to Bengal, where it is used as coin; and therefore there can be no doubt that the Cypræa Moneta is meant. The Kamoos adds تعاقر لدفع العين —that it is suspended from the neck to avert the evil eye, as it is in India to this day,* provided the shell is split or broken. Among European nations, excepting the English, these shells are known by the name of Porcelli, Porcellain, Porcellanen, and Porcelaine, on account of the fancied resemblance of their shape to that of the back of a little pig, whence we have the Chinese Porcelain, of which the glaze, or varnish, is similar to that of the Cowree.

Gunda-biroza ganda-biroza हिंदां रान्दाबिराजा

Olibanum, male frankincense, the produce of the Boswellia thurifera. The same name is also given to the produce of the Cheer, (Pinus longifolia). O'Shaughnessy's Dispensatory, pp. 283 and 612.)

Gundasee,	गंडासी گذتراسي	gandásí
GURASEE,	गडासी रेट्री गडासी	garásí

An instrument for cutting Sugar-cane, Juwar stalks, or thorny bushes. Also, in Dehli, an assessment on the number of Gundasees, a tax which used to be levied in former days.

• Gunda is also the name applied to the knotted string which is suspended round a child's neck for the same purpose; but not, apparently because it has any connection with the Cowree Amulet.

Gunderee, گنتيري गंडेरी ganderí

Gureree, र्ट्राट्री बडेरी garerí

Pieces of Sugar-cane.

Gundheela, گنتی गंधीला gandhíla

A vagrant tribe, a few degrees more respectable than the BAOREE,  $q.\ v.$

Gundhel, گندهیل गंधेल gandhel

The sweet smelling grass know as Gundhel, (from Gundh perfume) is most probably the same as the Gundhbel, which Royle ("Ant, Hind. Med." P. 143), says is the Andropogon Calamus Aromaticus; from the leaves, culms, and roots of which a fragrant essential oil is distilled.

Gundhoo, ندهو jandhu See Jat.

GUNDURWALA, گندرواله गंडरवाला gandarwala See Colhoo. Gurerun, Gundrara, and Gundhra are also used in a similar sense.

Gundyla, گنديلا गंदैला gandaila

Gundyla, or Gundhea, is the name of a grub destructive to Chuna and Arhur.—Eastern Oudh. It is usually called GINDUR elsewhere, q. v.

Gungaluh, धार्री गंगाला gang îla Lands subject to inundations of the Ganges.—Rohilcund.

Gungapòòtr, گنگاپتر गंगापुच gangaputr

A tribe of inferior Brahmins (literally, sons of the Ganges), found chiefly in Benares, Bit,hoor, and Sheorajpoor in Cannpoor. In the two latter Pergunahs they hold several villages in proprietary right. They declare their descent from Canoujeas, and preserve the same sub-divisions; asserting that they assumed a distinctive name, merely because they receive gifts and assist at ablutions on the banks of the Ganges.—See Pragwal.

ккк 2

Gungburamud, گنگ برامد गंगबरामद gangbarámad

Gungburar, گنگ गंगबरार gangbarár

Alluvial land recovered from a river, especially, the Ganges.
—See Durya Burar.

Such formations are called in England Innings, or Gainage land.

Gung shikust, گنگشکست गंगमीवस्त gang shikast Encroachment of the Ganges, or of any other river; by diluvion.—See Duryabòòrd.

Gunj, گنج jज ganj

Gung, or, as it is most usually written by Europeans, Gunge, is a granary, a market, and especially one of grain. It is used chiefly as an affix to proper names; as Islam-gunge, Hurdoa-gunge, Captain-gunge; just as Chip, or Chipping, which are of the same meaning as Gunge, is in England; as Chipping-Sodbury, Chep-stow, Chippen-ham, Cheap-side.*

Gunjelee, گنجیلی गंजेली ganjelí

The same as BHUNGELA, q. v.

Gunkuta, گنگنگ חקאבו gankata

Is the name of the man employed to cut the Sugar-cane into lengths of about six inches for feeding the Mill.

• These words are all derived from the Anglo-Saxon ceapian, or cypan to buy; and signify, when they are prefixed to names, that they were once famous marts. Words of this family are in most extensive use throughout European languages in various shapes; for independent of our cheap, chap, chapman, and perhaps, our vulgar swap, we have the Latin Caup-o, Greek Cap-eelos, (for the literal meaning of these wurds we should refer to Bentley's famous "Sermon on Popery"), German Kaufmann, Dutch Koopman, which we find in the sense of Chapman on the curious old Protestent tombstones dated from 1600—1650 A. D. which have lately been discovered at Agra. Many of these bear the inscription. "In syn leven Opper Koopman", i. e. during his life-time Supercargo.

Gunna, US गंना

ganná

Sugar-cane. There are various kinds cultivated in these Provinces. The principal in Robilcund are Dhoul (white), Neoolee, Kutara, Lukree, Pounda, Chin, Munga; in Benares, Munga, Pounda, Burouk,ha, Reora, Khòòsyar, Suroutee, Kutara, Rukra and K,hiwahee.

The most noted of the Doab, are Suret, ha, Dhoul, Pounda, Chin, Kut, horee, Dhoomur, Burouk, ha, Kalagunda, Kirara, Kurba, Mutna,; in Dehli, Soort, ha, Kalasoort, ha. Pounda, Bhoorasoort, ha, Lalree, G, hururee, Kinara, Dhoul, and Bejhur. Many of these names are identical; but the kind called Pounda, seems to be the only one generally known. It is eaten raw, not manufactured.

The word Gunna differs but little from that which is used in almost all languages to express the same object. Hebrew Kaneh,* Arabic and Persian Kunnat, German Kanne, Greek, Latin, Italian, Spanish and Anglo-Saxon Canna; and hence English Cane, and the many words derived from it, which are applied to vessels and utensils bearing resemblance to the shape of hollow reeds; as can, canakin, canal, canister, and canoe; which latter is evident from the passage in Juvenal—Sat. V. v. 89.

Canna Micipsarum prorâ subvexit acutâ.

Minsheu ascribes a similar origin to the word gun.—"Gune, ex Lat: canna, quia consistit ex cannā ferreā;" regarding which it is to be observed that no one has succeeded in giving a better etymology. A similar identity marks the diffusion of the word "Sugar". Sanscrit, Arabic, Hebrew, Greek, Latin, and the modern European languages all concur in the same word, with but very slight variations.

The amount of Acres under Sugar-cane cultivation through-

Hence the Kaneh, or measuring reed of the Jews, equal to six cubits; which has its counterpart in the Bans of the Hindoos, the Roman Decempes, and the Greek akaina; all of six cubits, or ten feet.

out the North Western Provinces, in the year of Survey, is shewn below:

310 W .	Acres.
Dehli Division,	5,307
Rohilcund Division,	168,277
Meerut Division,	105,861
Agra Division,	47,090
Allahabad Division,	33,410
Benares Division,	317,535
Saugor Division,	12,919
Total Acres,	690,399
	A TOTAL CONTRACTOR OF THE PARTY

GUNNEL,

النيل गनेज

ganel

A species of long grass, which is used for thatching, and grows on the banks of the Chumbul. The word is a corruption of Gandul, q. v.

GUNNY,

गनी گذی

gani

The name given to the coarse bags made from the fibres of the Pat (Corchorus Capsularis). It is derived from Gania, a name which Rumphius gave to the Pat from some native source.

GUNOUREE,

गनीरी گنوري

ganaurí

A Bulrush.—Eastern Oudh.

GUNT,HA,

हिंदी गंडा

gant'ha

A fractional part of a Jureeb.—See GUTT, HA.

GURA,

155 गडा

gará

A large sheaf; except in the Dehli Territory, where it is usually considered to be a small one. The word is in use chiefly to the Westward.

GURA-BUTAEE,

गडाबटाई gará batáí

Division of produce without threshing, by stacking the sheaves in proportionate shares.—Rohilcund.

GURAM, राम garám

A village; more usually Gram or Ganw.

Gurao, र्री गडाच garáo

An instrument used for cutting Juwar stalks, &c. &c. for fodder.—Central and Lower Doab. It is called Gurasee in Rohilcund, and Gundasa and Gundasee elsewhere.

Guraree, र्। ग्रारी garárí

The block over which the well-rope traverses.—Benares, Bundlecund, and Lower Doab. Gureelee, Gurree, and Girra also similarly used.—See Chak.

Gurdezee, र्ट्जी gardezí

The name of a class of Syuds in Jowlee of Mòòzuffernugur. They wish to claim connection with the Barhah Sadat, (q. v.), but they do not really belong to any of the four branches of that stock. The family has been somewhat ennobled of late by a member of it having been raised by adoption to the Musnud of Purneah. In our own Provinces there are few Gurdezees, but in Multan and the Westward there are several. According to the Mumbu-dòs-Sadat, the Ancestor of the Gurdezees of India is Meer Syud Shahab-dòd-Deen, whose tomb is at Manukpoor.

Gurdora, १७७७ गरडोरा gardorá

A small pit-Baitool.

Gurerun, रू.५८ गडेरन gareran

See Colhoo and Gundurwala.

Gurg, گرگ गर्मे garg

See Canoujea Brahmin.

Gurgbunsee, گرگابنسي ग्रेबन्सी gargbansí
Rajpoots of this clan are found in Sugree and Mahòòl of Azimgurh; and in Amorha, Ruttunpoor Bansee, and Rusoolpoor Ghous, of Goruckpoor.—See Chunumea.

Gurguwa, १९९९ गरीवा gargawá

A grass which grows in low ground during the rainy season. When it gets into rice-fields it checks the growth of the plant, and is very injurious. Buffalos are fond of the grass, but other horned cattle do not like it.

Gurhee, रिक्र गढी garhí

A village fortification of mud, flanked with towers. Under the former Government there was scarcely a village without its Gurhee. Under our strong administration, it is scarcely known except by name.

Gurheebund, گڑھي بند गहीबन्द garhiband

A description of Mafee tenure in Bundlecund, by which lands are held on paying a stipulated yearly tribute, but not onefifth the amount which ought to be paid. These favorable terms have been made by the Gurheebunds themselves during the imbecile state of the former Government, which had not power or force sufficient to compel them to pay their proper On its being demanded, they shut themselves up in their forts-(hence the name)-and if not the stronger party, were at any rate sufficiently powerful to withstand any attack on the part of the Government. After standing a siege for weeks, the Government were glad to come to terms, and let them off their Revenue for a stipulated yearly sum. The title dates from the first advent of the Marhattas into Bundlecund, when they found a large portion of the lands ceded by Chuttersaul to the Peshwa, held by these petty T,hakeors, related either by blood, or caste, to the numerous local Rajas then in the country, to whom they were bound to pay a light quitrent, or to perform military service when called upon. of them were younger branches of the reigning family, and others took advantage of the anarchy, which followed the demise of Govind Pundit, to seize upon adjacent villages and fortify them.

When the power of the Marhattas became consolidated, they soon perceived that the Gurheebunds were difficult to deal with in every way, slow and irregular in their payment of Revenue, ready to take offence at the slightest insult which they might fancy had been cast on them, and capable, from their numerous ties of brotherhood and caste, of raising a formidable, and often successful, opposition to the Government, and making common cause whenever it was attempted to coerce even the weakest individual of their body. A continual struggle was therefore maintained between the Government and the Gurheebunds, which generally ended to the advantage of the latter; and hence we still find them in full occupation of the Territory which they usurped, and from which they could not be dislodged. (Public MSS.)

Gurhyee, रिकर्ड गढर्ड garhai

Gurhyee, or Gurhya, signifies a small pond.

Gurree, گری गरी garrí

A hay-stack, a rick, a stack of thatching grass; more correctly, K, hurhee.

A small mound raised between heaps of corn and bhoosa on the threshing floor.—Lower Doab.

A large stack of Wheat or Barley, containing two or more seinka, which generally comprises several thraves of corn, the produce of one field.—Dehli and Upper Doab.

A large stack of Khureef produce.—Rohilcund.

Kddndra گندوا is in general use elsewhere in the same sense, and also within the limits in which Gurree obtains, but in the latter case is always larger than a Gurree.—See Синоив, Dubea, Guraree, Jhooha, Puhee and Santree.

Gushtee, گشتی गली gashtí

Presents to a Revenue Officer on his tour; from the Persian Gushtun کشتن to turn, to make rounds.

Gut,на, lä dat'há

The twentieth part of a Jureeb. Each Gut, ha contains three ILAHEE GUZ, q. v. The word is derived from Gut, hna to join, to unite by knots.

Gut,нее, گڏهي गठी gat'hí

See GACHHEE.

Gut, Hound, राहीन्द gat'haund

A deposit, or trust bound up in a bag (Gut,hree).

Gut, Hree, अंडिएं गटरी gat'hrí

Literally, a bag; and hence applied to money brought in payment of revenue in a bag.—Benares.

Gut, Hwansee, گنجوانسي गठवान्सी gat'hwansí The twentieth part of a Gut, ha.

Gut,нүл, । । व्या gat'hiyá A pannier; a sack; a bundle.

Gutwara, گٽواره गटवारा gatwara

Gutwara, or, more correctly, Gunt, hwara, is the name of a tribe of Jats who hold villages in Gohana, (where they are talled Aolanea, after their chief town), in Soneeput Bangur, and in the Doab, on the opposite side of the Jumna. They trace their origin from Ghuzni, from which place they were accompanied by the Bhat Bòòrdea, the Dom Samp, the Brahmin Shuwal, the Barber Bajwaen, and the Blacksmith Budea,—all of whose descendants are now living, and engaged in the occupation of their fathers in the villages of the Gunt, hwara fraternity.

Guz, हैं गज gaz

A yard. 3 Guz = 1 Gut,ha, and 60 Guz = 1 Jureeb.—See Ilahee Guz, and the Printed Glossary, under Guz and Gudge.

Gyal, ीयाल gayá

The land of deceased Biswadars lying unclaimed; land coming under the management of the Malgòòzar after an Asamee deserts his village.—Rohilcund, Dehli and Upper Doab. It is called also Oot,h; both derived from words signifying departure. It is equivalent to the Gutkòòl of the Deccan; from the Sanscrit gata, gone, passed away, and kòòl, family lineage.

Gyaree, گياري गयारी gayárí

See above under GYAL.

Gyra, أكيرا गैरा gairá

A sheaf of corn.

H

HAL,

्रीं हाल hál

Literally, the present state. The word is used in Revenue accounts to represent the existing state of Collections.—See HAL TOUZEE and TOUZEE.

HALA,

४∽ हाला

hálá

An instalment of Revenue.—Dehli.

HALEE,

हाली حالي

hálí

The Government Assessment.—Dehli.

HALEE,

ु। छ हाली

hálí

A man employed for the duties of ploughing—from a plough. In the Glossary, Halees are said to be agrestic slaves; it would have been more proper to say, labourers.—See Никмана.

HAL TOUZEE, الحال توزيع हाल तीजी hál tauzí

An account of Collections for the current period.—See Touzee.

HAPUR,

हापर बीध

hápar

A nursery for Sugar-cane.

HAR,

राइ छार

hár

A sub-division, or part, of an Estate. In Saugor it means the cultivated space immediately round a village, which is quite opposed to the meaning it generally bears in the North West, where it is applied to the land most distant from the site of the village; i. e. beyond the Munjha. In Bundlecund, and some other places, it signifies a tract of land, but the term in no way indicates separate possession of the tract designated. All the sharers may hold land in one Har. In the first and last sense, the word may be supposed to be derived from har a necklace, a chaplet. In the second from harna to tire out. However fanciful this latter derivation may be, the most unimaginative cultivator in Hindoostan will declare that it is so called, because both bullocks and men get fatigued (har jate) before they reach it.

HARA, IJO हाडा hárá

A branch of the Chouhan Rajpoots. There are a few of this distinguished tribe in Ruttunpoor Bansee of Goruckpoor, but they are very rarely met with elsewhere in the North Western Provinces. The chief of the Haras is the Raja of Kotah Boondee, or Harowtee.

Har lena, बार्डिंग hár lená

To examine the correctness of a pair of scales.—Dehli and Doab. Tar lena is used in Rohilcund. Sadh lena to the Eastward.

Hata, 🏻 🌣 हाता háta

Premises, an enclosure, a compound in Anglo-Indian language. It is a corruption of Ihata, the fourth infinitive of the Arabic word عرطه

Нат,неесник, هاتهي چك हाथीचक hát'híchak

Is the name of a grass which grows about a foot high, and is given as fodder to cattle. It is also, by an easy conversion, the name given by gardeners to the prickly and to the Jerusalem (girasole) Artichoke.

HAZIR ZAMIN,

házir zámin

हाजिर् जामिन حاضر ضاصي

The person who becomes security for the appearance of another.

HEERANA, ध्रीराना híráná

Manuring a field by penning a herd of cattle or flock of sheep in it for several hours.—E. Oudh. K,hutana is used in a similar sense in Rohilcund. This practice is known in England under the name of "fold-course," or "faldage," which formerly meant a privilege which several lords reserved to themselves of setting up folds within their manors for the better manurance of the same.

Неет,на, hit'há

A person appointed to take care of the standing crops.—See AHEETA.

Hela, प्रिंठ हेला helá

See BHUNGEE.

Hele, ट्रीयूक हेलें hele

Is the name given to the tribe of Jats which was in occupation of the country previous to the arrival of the Dhe.—See Jat.

Henga, हिंगा hengá

A harrow. This word, as well as Sohaga, Mye, Myra, and Sirawun, is in general use; but the implement is known locally by various other names, a Putoee, Puhtan, Putela, Patree, and Dundela. The part to which the ropes, or thongs, are attached is called Murwah. The cylindrical harrow, or roller, is called Ruree in Rohilcund; Bilna, and Belun in the Lower Doab and Benares; and G,heree, Giruree, and Colhoo in Dehli and the Upper Doab. The harrow made of two parallel timbers joined together, is called Myra Sohaga in Dehli and the Doab, and Sohul in Rohilcund. Gahun is the name of a forked harrow.—See Gahun.

Heree, ७३५० हेरी herí

A tribe of Mussulman Rajpoots chiefly found in Juspoor, a Pergunah of Moradatad. They were introduced for the same purpose as the Burwaek q. v.

Hibadar, كالكار हिवादार hibadar

A possessor of property by deed of gift; from Hiba, a gift.

Hibanama, दल्पंद्रेल हिवानामा hibanáma

A deed of gift.

Hirunk, Hòòree, پن کهري हिर्नखुरी hirank, hurí

The name of a creeping herb which grows in the rainy season. Its leaves resemble an antelope's hoof; and hence it derives its name;—Hirun, or Hurna, an antelope, and K, hòòree, a cloven hoof.

Hissadaree, إلى हिस्सादारी hissadarí

Co-partnership; applied to a village in which a number of sharers have a proprietary right in the land. From Hissa, a share, which has been explained in the Printed Glossary.

Hissa-I-Hakimee,

hissa-i-hákimí

حصمحاكمي

हिस्साहा किमी

The share of produce, to which the King, or ruler, is entitled. It is needless here to enter on the controversies on this subject, respecting the amount, under the old law, Hindoo and Mahomedan, to which he was entitled. It is pretty certain however that, even in most favorable periods of Hindoo rule, when they had to pay twenty other taxes besides that on land, less was never taken from the Ryuts, than they are now called upon to pay,—at least in these Provinces.

Hissa-i-Halee, حصة هالي हिस्सा हाली hissa-i-hálí

A ploughman's share, or wages in kind; generally amounting to about one-eighth of the produce.

Hissa kushee, حصة كشي हिस्सा क्यों hissa kashí

The distribution and apportionment of shares according to .

strict genealogical succession. Several Collectors during the time of Settlement used to make out laborious statements of this nature, under a misapprehension of the particular course of enquiry enjoined by Reg. VII. of 1822, for the purpose of registering and securing the rights of inferior sharers.

Hissyt, हिसीत hissait
A shareholder.
Hòòlhòòl, प्रिके हुलहुल hulhul
Hòòrhòòra, ४,००० हुरहुरा hurhura

A small herb which springs up in the rainy season, and is used as a culinary vegetable. The commonest kind has a white flower, and produces a long pod, like that of the Moong, and is used as a medicine in fevers; (Gyandropsis pentaphylla, formerly Cleome pentaphylla, or viscosa). There are said to be four kinds—white, red, purple, and yellow. The three latter are much sought after by Alchymists.

Hòòndh, See Jeeta.

Hoorya, فوريا ह्रिया húriya

A small clan of Sombunsee Rajpoots in At,hgawan and Mureeahoo in the Province of Benares.

Houlee, ورى हीली hauli

A liquor shop. The word is common, except in Saugor and Dehli.

Huboobat, حبوبات ह्वूबात habúbát

Articles formerly furnished gratis to men in authority, consisting of sheep, milk, eggs, blankets, hides, &c. The system of Huboobat is not yet extinct, where European Functionaries are negligent in the control of their establishments.

Hud, A boundary.

Hudbundee, goina हदवन्दी hadbandi

The settling and demarcation of boundaries. This has been most carefully done in the N. W. P. preliminary to the late Settlement. When they were not pointed out by the parties concerned, they were adjusted by arbitration. Wherever disputes were likely again to arise, it has been usual to bury some imperishable material in the earth, according to the instructions of the Hindoo lawgiver Menu, (Chap. via. 249-251.) "The persons concerned reflecting on the perpetual trespasses committed by men here below, through ignorance of boundaries, should cause other land marks to be concealed under ground. Large pieces of stone, bones, tails of cows, bran, ashes, potsherds, dried cowdung, bricks and tiles, charcoal, pebbles and sand, and substances of all sorts which the earth corrodes not even in a long time, should be placed in jars not appearing above ground on the common boundary". - See also the Mitachshara on the same subject.

In the very interesting treatise by Siculus Flaccus, "De conditionibus agrorum," we learn that precisely the same practice was observed in laying down the early Roman Colonial Boundaries. "Nunc quoniam voluntarium est, aliquibus terminis nihil subditum est; aliquibus vero aut cineres aut carbones, aut testas, aut vitrea fracta, aut ossa subcensa, aut calcem, aut gypsum invenimus. Carbo autem aut cinis quare inveniatur, una certa ratio est quæ apud antiquos quidem observata est, postea vero neglecta, sic aut diversa, aut nulla signa inveniuntur."—See Dhooa and Odabundee.

Hudbust, स्दवस hadbast

This word also signifies the demarcation of boundaries, preparatory to survey.

Hukarna, ध्रिंदिक हकार्ना hakárná

To drive oxen; a corruption of hankna, to drive.

MMM

Hul, এ हल hal Hur, १०० हर har

A plough,—if an instrument may be dignified by that name which has neither coulter to cut the soil, nor mould-board* to turn it over. Nevertheless, simple as the Hul is and wretched in construction, it is admirably adapted to our light Indian soil, and does its duty well under the able Agriculturists of our Provinces. Of the operations of this simple plough, Dr. Tennant, who has led the van in the abuse of everything Indian, observes ("Indian Recreations", Vol. II. p. 78), "Only a few scratches are perceptible, here and there, more resembling the digging of a mole, than the work of a plough;" yet this prejudiced and superficial observer remarks, in another place, that the average produce of the Province of Atlahabad is fifty-six bushels† of wheat to the English acre: as if these "scratches

* But when anything like a mould-board is required, the people have sufficient ingenuity to frame one. The only occasion which calls for such an expedient is when Sugar-cane is sown. Large and deep furrows are then required, and various means are resorted to, to make the plough accomplish the purpose. In Dehli and the Upper Doab it is usual to bind canes on the part into which the sole is fixed. Generally not more than two ploughs are used when planting Sugar, but in the Doab as many as four sometimes follow one another; on two of which are fixed mould-boards of the name of Roh or Pak, hee the former being stronger and smaller than the latter. The Roh is made of one piece of wood, the Pak, hee of two.

† The yield of Wheat would certainly not be so great now, whatever it might have been in the Doctor's days. It may be as well to make this reservation, with reference to the very common remark, that land in Upper India does not yield now so much as it did in former days. Where this is really the result of observation, the causes are obvious—the greater infrequency of fallows—the little manure that is given being diffused over more fields than former!y—the decrease in the fall of the periodical rains owing to the immense mass of forest and jungle which has been cleared away—and the fields being less cultivated than formerly, when ploughs and hands could only be employed upon a limited number of fields. These are all to be traced to the operation of a more remote cause—the entire security afforded by the British Government. The number of hands, ploughs and bullocks has not increased in proportion to the increase of cultivation.

bullocks has not increased in proportion to the increase of cultivation.

It should never be forgotten that the decrease in the fertility of the soil is an old and popular complaint, and arises chiefly from the universal tendency to depreciate the present, and exalt the past. It is instructive to find Columella asserting in his preface, that to refute this ill-founded complaint of the soil's unfruitfulness, was the chief cause of his composing his work on Agriculture.

&quot;Sæpenumero civitatis nostræ principes audio culpantes modo agrorum infæcunditatem, modo cæli per multa jam tempora noxiam frugibus intem-

and diggings of a mole" could by any possibility produce double the average of the scientific cultivators of England. He has forgotten also to remark that the Drill, which has only within the last century† been introduced into English field husbandry, and has even yet in the Northern counties to combat many native prejudices, has been in use in India from time immemorial. If he had only reflected on this single fact, (leaving out of consideration the universal practice of rotation and complete expulsion of corn-weeds), he would have saved the poor Hindoos from much of the reproach which has been so lavishly heaped upon them by Mill and his other blind followers.

periem ; quosdam etiam prædictas querimonias velut ratione certa mitigantes, quod existiment, ubertate nimia prioris ævi desatigatum et effætum solum nequire pristina benignitate præbere mortalibus alimenta. Quas ego causas, Publi Silvine, procul a veritate abesse certum habeo; quod neque fas existimare, rerun naturam, quam primus ille mundi genitor perpetua fœcunditate donavit, quasi quodam morbo sterilitate affectam: neque prudentis credere, tellurem, quæ divinam et æternam juventam sortita, communis omnium parens dicta sit, quia et cuncta peperit semper, et deinceps paritura sit, velut hominem consenuisse. Nec post hæc reor intemperantia cæli nobis ista, sed nostro potius, accidere vitio, qui rem rusticam pessimo cuique servorum, velut carnifici, noxæ dedimus, quam majorum nostrorum optimus quisque et optime tractaverit."

De Re Rustica, Lib : I.

* It is amusing to observe that the Agriculturists of England do not now consider this light ploughing to be so very despicable. In a paper written by Mr. Pusey in the Journal of the Royal agricultural Society for 1842, he observes, "I may mention one point for which Northern farmers have sometimes blamed those of the South-I mean shallow ploughing. On our trial-ground at Liverpool, a Southern farmer observed to me that the furrow prescribed (six inches) was too deep, and immediately afterwards a Northern farmer found fault with it as being too shallow. * * * * Firmness, however, is not a positive but a relative term—relative to the crop, and also to the climate. In part of Norfolk, according to Loudon, "they plough with two or four horses very shallow, carefully preserving the hard basis formed by the sole of the plough, which is called the pan of the land; breaking this up is said "to let down the riches into the hungry sub-soil." One of our members, Mr. A. Edmunds, who has long farmed 200 acres of peaty land in Gloucestershire, tells me that he always ploughed it shallow, and that for wheat he did not stir it at all, but skimmed it only with a breast-plough. The Summers there are hotter than in Lincolnshire, where peat is ploughed deeper. Near Coblentz, on the Rhine, where the Summers are very burning, it is stated that the farmers only scratch the ground with a one-horse plough, because they find deeper ploughing injurious. * * * I should think that, as Mr. Denison observes "in very few cases is the soil underneath more fitted for vegetation than that of the surface;" and I believe such an operation would be destructive on many of our Southern farms." †Jertho Tull published his Experiments on Drilling in A D. 1731. The Spanish Sembrador is said to have been invented about A. D. 1650.

The principal parts of an Indian plough are Hurus the beam; Hut, heelee, Hut, ha, Chirca, or Moot, hea, the handle, or stilt: Punharee or Purowt, ha, the sole, which is generally at the end shod with an iron share, called Phala, Chou, or Koosa. Hul, or Nangul, is the body of the plough, the main piece mto which the Punharee and Hurus are joined; but these terms, besides being exclusively applied to a particular part of the plough are used to signify the entire plough. The Og is a peg, or wedge, which fixes the Hurus firmly into the Hul; a second is sometimes added which is called Gundhelee; the Puchelah, Puchheela, or Phunna, is a wedge which fixes the Punharee to the Hul. The K,hoora, Burnel or Nurhel, is an indented, or notched part at the end of the beam, corresponding to the copse, or cathead, to which the yoke is attached by a leathern thong, called a Nuduh. In some parts the beam is not notched, but drilled with holes into which pieces of wood are inserted. The voke consists of the Jooa or upper piece, and the Turmachee or lower piece. The Syl is the outer pin, and Gata the inner pin which join the Turmachee and the Jooa. and which are on each side of the Bullock's neck, when it is voked. These are the names usually applied to the parts of a plough in the Doab and North-West; but in Benares and to the Eastward, the names are somewhat different. There the Chundowlee answers to the Chirca, Pat,h to the Og, Nurele to the Puchelah. Hur is the part on which the share is fixed. There are knots also, called Mahadewa, on the yoke of the Benares plough; and some other differences not worth mentioning.

Besides the common Hul of the country, there are others used in some places which vary but little in their structure from it. There is, for instance, the Nagur plough, which is used in Bundlecund for planting Sugar-cane. It is very heavy, requires six, seven, or eight bullocks to draw it, and enters very deep into the ground. The cane is put into a hole of the wooden part of the plough, through which it is passed and deposited in the earth, to as great a depth as the share can attain. The American Cotton Planters were much pleased with this plough, and preferred this manner of sowing Sugar-cane to any they could adopt with the American plough. There is also the Buk,hur, used to take off the crust when the soil is hide-bound, and by skimming the surface clears the soil from grass, weeds, and stubble—See Bak,hur. There are also the the Koodhea, the Kudh, the Kut,hoo, the Kòòsear, the Puchrunga, &c. &c., which need no particular description.

The word Hul is found in some shape or other in several of the Indo-European languages, by the common conversion of an aspirate into a sibilant, such as takes place, for instance, in hex, sex; hepta, septem; hus, sus, sow; herpo, serpo; hudor, sudor; huper, super; (Jul. Pontederæ, De Vet. Scrib. Rat. Epist. II.) Thus Hul becomes Sul in Anglo-Saxon, and Syl in Danish and Swedish. The following passages will show the common use of Sul or Sulh, as the Anglo-Saxon word for plough. In the translation of Boethius we have, "Theah he erige his land mid thusend Sula," "Though he till his land with a thousand of ploughs:"-and in Luke's Gospel, "The hys hand asset on hys Sulh," "who has placed his hand on the Plough." Indeed, Sul is even now used for a plough in Cheshire and some other of the Western Counties of England; and it is by no means uncommon to hear of a Swoling of land, which is equivalent to the Hindee Juwaree, i. e. so much land as one plough can till in a year.—See Hulus, and Juwaree.

We owe probably to a similar origin the Latin Sul-cus, and Greek Hol-cos, a furrow. These words are ordinarily derived from helco, to draw.

Hulaeta, धार्मा halaeta

The first ploughing of the season, which is generally preceded by the taking of omens, and other superstitious ceremonies. The note of the Coel bird, amongst other auguries, is considered very favorable, and its utterance is of such authority as to enable the cultivator to dispense with a formal application to a Brahmin.—See Hureeta. This bird directs other operations besides agriculture. Thus, "Coel bolee, Sebundee dolee" i. e. the disbanding of the armed men for collection of Revenue depended on the Coel's note:—Sebundee being a corruption of Sipah Hindee, in distinction to Moghul or foreign troops, who were always kept up.

The Coel, indeed, occupies much the same place in India that the Cuckoo does in Europe. The European names, even, are all derived from the Sancrit काकिस Cuculus. Pliny says, that the vine-dressers deferred cutting their vines till the Cuckoo began to sing. We have the Cuckoo-Ale of England, which the labourers leave their work to partake of, when the first Cuckoo's note is heard. There is, also, the vulgar superstition that it is unlucky to have no money in your pocket when the first Cuckoo of the season is heard; and the amorous Hobnelia tells us, that in love-omens its note is equally efficacious.

"When first the year I heard the Cuckoo sing.
And call with welcome note the budding spring,
I straightway set a-running with such haste.
Deborah that won the smock scarce ran so fast;
Till spent for lack of breath, quite weary grown,
Upon a rising bank I sat adown,
Then doff'd my shoe, and by my troth, I swear,
Therein I spy'd this yellow frizzled hair,
As like to Lubberkin's in curl and hue,
As if upon his comely pate it grew,
With my sharp heel i three times mark'd the ground,
And turn me thrice around, around, around."

Gay's Spell.

It also resembles the European species in being "the nursling of a stranger nest"; and according to popular belief, selects a crow's nest for the place of deposit.

कागा काका धन हरो कायल काका दीन मीठी मीठी बोलियन जग ऋपना कर लीन

Kaga kako dhun huro, Coel kako deen; Meet hee meet,hee boliyun jug upna kur leen.

"Whose property has the crow taken, to whom has the Coel given it? Her sweet notes can captivate the whole world."

HULALKHOR, کال خور हलालखार halálkhor See Bhungee.

Hulbundee, ुअंग्रीके हलबन्दी halbandí

Is occasionally used in the sense of HULBURAR and HULSA-REE, q. v.

Also a tenure in Ajaon, Sirsawah, and the North Western parts of Bareilly in which a few Beeg,has are assigned to each Asamee who has a plough, for the cultivation of Cotton, and Indian Corn; for which he pays at the rate of one rupee per Beeg,ha; for all other land in his occupation he makes payment in kind.

In Kumaon, Hulbundee is applied, as Jote is in the plains, to signify the quantity of land under cultivation by any party.

Hulburar, वीश्रीक हलवरार halbarar

Assessment according to the number of ploughs. Collection at a certain sum per plough.

Hulda, बिल्हा halda

Hurda, अक्रिटा harda

A disease of the Cercalia, in which the plant withers, and assumes a yellow tinge. The word is derived from Huldee Turmeric. This kind of mildew differs but little from the Gurwee, q. v., except in attacking the plants in an earlier stage of their growth.

Huleak, هلياک हिन्यान haliyak

Wages of Ploughmen.—Dehli and Upper Doab.

Hulqa, ४३८ हलका halka

A village circuit. A boundary line which comprises the lands and dwellings of a Mouza. The word, in Arabic, literally signifies a ring. Hulka, says DeSacy in a note to his "Excerpta ex Abulfeda," p. 539, "proprie est annulus. Temporibus recentioribus Hulka dicti sunt milites pretoriani, qui apud Sultanos Ægyptiorum corporis custodiæ inserviebant."

ड्रोप्पोळ हलसारी halsári HULSAREE,

Sub-division and apportionment of Revenue on ploughs. assessment of a certain amount on each plough in a village. The word is synonymous with Hulbundee and Hulburar.

ह्लतड्डी هلتنى haltaddí HULTUDDEE, A drill-plough.—See Bansa, NYE and Tar.

हलम हनस बंस्य halas Hulus, hanas Hunus,

मुड़ वर्ण haras Hurus,

The beam of a plough. The word is probably the same as the Greek hunis, or hunnis, though it was a different part of the plough to which Hunis was applied in Greece. Gilchrist says Hurus is a ploughshare. Shakespear says Huris is the tail of a plough. Dr. Carey gives Is as the beam of the Dinagepoor plough.—As: Res: Vol. x. p. 25.

हलवाई र् HULWAEE, halwáí

A Confectioner. In the Lower Doab it has become an appellation of a caste, or tribe. In most other places it is applied to the trader only. The caste is sub-divided into Chylha, Bukurra, Doobe, Canoujea, Tilbhoonja, &c. &c.

ाइंड बांटा HUNDA,

A grass which is found on the banks of tulaos and jheels. It produces a little red flower, but is not applied to any useful purpose.

HUNSRAJ, हन्सराज hansráj

A herb which springs up on brick walls during the rains. It is used medicinally.—Rohilcund. It is known by the name of Pureshawushan in the Doab. It is also the name of a kind of Rice.—See DHAN.

Huq, 👸 हल hak

Share or right.—See Huq Malihana in the printed Glossary. This word enters into the composition of the seven following articles.

Huq внент, जांद्र हक्सेंट hak bhent

Presents frequently made half-yearly by the Malgòòzars to Native Officers in authority.

Huqeeut, क्येंट हजीयत hakíyat Right, share, proprietorship.

Huq huwaladar,

hak hawáladár

र्भाग्रा عَرِي حَمْ हिंग हिंग हिंग हिंग

Huq Huwaladar, or correctly, Huq-i-Huwaladar, is the grain given to Shahnas, generally at the rate of a seer and a half to every maund.—Rohilcund.

Huq kumeencharee,

hak kamínchárí

हक कमीनचारी حق کمیں چاري

Huq seancharee,

hak siyánchárí

हम सयानचारी حق سيان چارى

Huq T, Hokdaree,

hak t'hokdárí

हक चाकदारी حق تهو کداری

Dues and fees to Kumeens, &c. derived according to old custom from the inhabitants of villages, and varying in every Puttee, but generally equivalent to about 3 per cent. on the Government Revenue.—Kumaon and Gurhwal.

Kumaen in the plains is applied to village servants but in Kumaon it is used synonymously with Boorha, to signify a superintendent of village management, whose office is in the gift of Government, and generally hereditary. Seana bears the same meaning in Gurhwal.—See Purdhan.

466

HUQ ZUMEENDAREE,

hak zamíndárí

हन्न जसीनदारी حق زسيداري

A Zumeendar's proprietary right.

There are also the Huq-i-Tola, Huq-i-Putwaree, Huq-i-Tehseel, and other similar expressions of common occurrence.

Huraee, द्रीरे हराई huráí

The portion of land in a field which is included within one circuit of a plough. To commence another circuit is styled huraee phandna.

HURBONG-KA-RAJ,

harbong-ká-raj

हरवांग का राज

This expression, which literally means Hurbong's Government, is applied to signify civil disorder and mal-administration. Roebuck, (Oriental Proverbs, Part II., p, 187), says that "Hurbhoom is the name of a village near Itahabad, infamous for injustice." But the name of Hurbhoom, which is more usually pronounced Hurbong, and sometimes Hurbhong, is given to the Raja, and the scene of his injustice is called Hurbongpoor.

Hurbongpoor is now known by the name of Jhoonsee, or Jhoosee, on the left bank of the Ganges opposite to Allahabad,**

* immediately before Akber's time this place was known as Pecag, or Prag; by him it was denominated, Allahabas, which subsequently became Allahabad. The name is more correctly Ilhabad, or Ilahabad, as given by Captain Roebuck, but I adopt the usual practice of writing it Allahabad. Whether, when Shahjehan changed the terminal bas into bad, which had been adopted by his Grandfather in deference to the Hindoos (See Dustoor), he also changed the Ilh into Allah, does not appear from any author who treats of the subject; but the alteration would not have been unreasonable, for their is a marked distinction between the two terms. The article coalecces with the substantive in Allah, and represents the "Almighty." Ilh or Ilah, is the name of an old Arabian Deity, and is more properly, and more usually, applied to a Pagan God, than God Supreme over all. Hence the famous Mahometan profession of faith says La Ilah illa Allah, &c. &U) Which, in the ordinary translation of "there is no God but God", conveys no Frecise meaning, and involves an obvious truism, which the false prophet was too wise to have enunciated. From some passages in the early Indian Historians it would appear that they confounded the famous Somnat with the and opposite to Arail* on the right bank of the Jumna. It will be seen from the notes below that the names of these places were changed by Akber, and Jhoosee itself shared the same fate,—being called Hadeeabas:—yet it is strange why it was not called Jhoosee in the Imperial Registers, for that town was in existence long before Akber's time. It has frequent and honorable mention in the Treatise Fee Halut-i-Modrshid, containing an account of Syud Ali Modrtuza's Miracles. The Syud died A. D. 1359, so that as the place was called Jhoosee in his days, there appears no good reason why the Pergunah was not so denominated in the Records of Akber's reign.

Hurbongpoor, which preceded the name of Jhoosee, is itself a comparatively modern name, for the site of Jhoosee is by common consent allowed to be the Pratist, han, or Kesi, of the Arabian Ilah or Ilat; and though it certainly would be no uninteresting enquiry to trace the real circumstances of the connexion, a mere reference only can be made to it here. See in the Rouzut-dds-Sufa, Hubeeb-dds-Seer and Ferishta, the passage quoted from Fureed-dd-deen Attar. Sale's Koran. I. 23, II. 390. Hyde de Rel: Vet: Pers: p. 130. Pococke, Spec: Hist: Arab: 4. 92. 110. Bird's Guzerat p. 39. D'Herbelot, voce Lat. Al-Makkari's Mahomedan Dynasties in Spain, I. 346, and Herod: III. 6. The same nice distinction respecting the value of single letters in these devout exclamations is also observable in the Bismillah, on which Zamakhshari in his Commentary on the Koran observes, Rahman denotes a more extensive idea than Raheem; for this reason people say in speaking of God, "the merciful (Ar Rahman) in this world and the next," and "the clement (Ar Raheem) in this world."

The name of this place was also changed by Akber. He called it Julalabad, after his own title of Julal-dod-Deen. That he was not above the common and venial weakness we know from his public Edict abolishing the salutation of "Sulam Aleikoom," and substituting the 'Allaho Akber," and the reply of "Julli Julalihu:" in both of which we have parts of his name "Julal-dod Deen Mahomed Akber." The Sipah Salar was ordered to see that the same exclamations were made at meals; and the Aftabee, the Rupee, and several other coins of his reign, as well as his seal, bore the inscription אול בולי, בּוֹ בּוֹנוֹ בּוֹנִי בְּוֹנִי בְּוֹנִי בִּוֹנִי בִּוֹנִי בְּוֹנִי בְּעִי בְּוֹנִי בְּעִי בְּוֹנִי בְּעִי בְּעִי בְּעִי בְּוֹנִי בְּעִי בְּוֹנִי בְּוֹנִי בְּעִי בְּוֹנִי בְּעִי בְּעִי בְּעִי בְּעִי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּעִי בְּעִי בְּתִי בְּתְי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתִי בְּתְי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתְי בְיִי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתִי בְּתִי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתְי בְּתִי בְּתְי

وفرمان استمالت برجمرام چند فرستاده پرگنم اریل را که نزدیک بجهوسي و پیاک عرف الهاباس است باسایر امکنه بجاگیر دادند

and, even before this time, we have frequent mention of it in the history of the Afghan reigns, when the place appears to have been sometimes visited by troops marching in the neighbourhood. In the last Century it was celebrated as the residence of several Persian Nobles, of whom there is now no trace or record except in the ruins of the houses which they occupied.

468

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

Puranic Histories, the residence of the first Prince of the lunar dynasty, Pururavas, the son of Budha, the son of the Moon. (Wilson's Introd: to Univ: Hist: p. 8; As: Res: Vol. x. p. 44; Vishnu Purana, p. 350.)

But it may be enquired, if Pratist,han is considered to have occupied the present site of Jhoosee, how could Calidasa thus describe the position of the palace of Pururavas,

We are there, behold it White gleaming in the moon-light, whilst below The Yamuna's blue waters wash its foot.

Hindu Theatre, Vol. I., p. 231.

Might not Pururavas, as the second Act of the "Hero and the Nymph" opens with a "scene in the palace at Prayaga," have had his palace on the neck of the Doab, and actually on the Jumna? or even on the point over-looking the confluence of the Ganges and Jumna (Ibid, p. 214)? cr are we to suppose that in the Poet's time the Jumna joined the Ganges in an earlier part of its course, and ran under the high bank on which was the hermitage of Bharadwaj?—still known by his name, and the scene of the feast given by him to Bharata, the brother of Rama, together with his large army; which teast, though given by a Brahmin (so little do the habits of those times consort with present Hindoo notions) consisted among other luxuries, of peacocks! venison!! and pork!!! eagerly washed down with foaming bowls of spirituous liquor!!!! (Ramayana, Book II., Section 77, p. 301).

If we are to allow that the Jumna took that course in ancient times, it becomes another question for consideration, was the ancient Prag on the site of the modern Allahabad, and what was there which occupied the position of the present Fort?

On this subject the only materials we have are calculated to make us form different conclusions; but as even the faintest light* thrown on the origin of ancient cities is precious, they may, contradictory as they are, be not unworthy of record and observation.

* L, oscurissima e ben sovente imperscrutabile origine delle piu antiche città, prezioso rende e singolare ogni piccol lume, che negli accreditori scrittori intorno a così remoti notizie ci rimaso.—(Scipione Maffei.)

When Mahmood of Ghuzni captured Asny, on the banks of the Ganges near Futtehpoor, (see Extract at p. 215 of this Supplement) he would not have crossed over into Bundlecund without visiting Prag, had there been a city there worth plundering. Again, when Mahomed Ghoree captured Benares,* we should have heard of his taking Prag on his way; but it is not even noticed by any of his Historians.

And yet that there was something like a town at Prag, before Allahabad was founded, we are authorized to believe, not only on the ground of the extreme improbability of there being no permanent residents at so important a place of pilgrimage, but because there are evidences of the present Fort having been built on, and partly composed of, the ruins of some former building. This may be seen by examining the face towards the confluence, and became further evident by the discovery of Hindoo Sculptures and Architectural remains, when a few years ago the foundation of the Jumna face was undergoing repairs. The Patalpooree also, enclosed within the Fort, is manifestly of great antiquity, even allowing that the Ak,hybur is, as is most probable, a modern fixture.† Wilson, however, ("Hind. Theatre," I. 207,) considers that Allahabad, or Prayaga, was not a city till Akber made it one. That Vaisali was * Abool Fuzl tells us that Benares was twice visited by Sultan Mahmood, once in A. H. 410, and again in A. H. 413; but the truth of this statement is open to considerable doubt, for not only do other historians omit all notice of these expeditions, but had not Mahomed Ghoree been the first to capture this stronghold of idolatry, he could scarcely have had a thousand temples left him to destroy, and loaded four thousand camels with spoils.—Wilford also states that Mahmood captured Benares.—(As. Res., Vol. IX., p. 203).

† &quot;The tree should be the imperishable Ber tree, which has long been famed at Allahabad and which is still represented by a withered stem in the cave of Pátála puri under ground, but it should appear from the text that it grew in daylight, and the play probably preceded the construction of the cavern. There was, no doubt, a very ancient and venerable fig-tree at Allahabad, perhaps for some centuries, for it is alluded to in various vocabularies, as Medini, &c.; it is also desc ibed in the Kásikhanda, and Kurma Purána. The first notice, however, is in the Rámáyana (B. 11. Sect. 41 and 42); Ráma with his wite and brother resting under the shade of it after crossing the Jumna; so that not only was the tree in the open air, but it was on the opposite side of the river to that on which it is now traditionally venerated."

not the ancient Allahabad (as asserted in the "Jour. R. A. S.," No. XII. pp. 302, 325; and "Jour: A: S: Beng:" Vol. I. p. 4), is evident from the position assigned to it in the Chinese Travels; and the question so warmly espoused at one time of the confluence having been the site of the famous Palibothra, may now be considered fairly set at rest, to the exclusion of Allahabad from that high honor.

After this digression on the subject of the cities which may be supposed to have been the principal scenes of his vagaries. we may now revert to Raja Hurbong, and the expression which forms the subject of this article. In the traditional stories recorded of him, there appears, as in the parallel instance of Sheikh Chillee, examples both of folly and shrewdness; sometimes reminding us of the wise men of Gotham or the Goorod Paramartan, at others of the ingenuity of some of the actors in the Pancha Tantra and the Greek fables of Syntipas. remind us of stories still current in Europe; adding another link to the chain which connects the fictitious histories, as well as languages, of Europe with those of India. But it is for injustice that the Raja is most celebrated at the present day, though it must be confessed that this appears to arise less from intentional violence, than from his ignorance of jurisprudence and of the dictates of common sense.

One of the most familiar couplets expressive of the evils of his administration is,

चनधेर नगरी बेबूक्त राजा टका सेर भाजी टका सेर खाजा

Undher nuguree, be-boojh Raja; Tuka ser bhajee, tuka ser k,haja.

"The city is in darkness, the Governor is without understanding, greens and sweetmeats are sold at the same price"; in allusion to the orders to that effect issued by the Raja of Hurbongpoor; where everything, moreover, was in such disorder and confusion that the people are said to have worked by night and slept by day.

A common story of his discrimination on the judgment-seat has given rise to a proverb. A man having purchased a Buffalo, was leading it home, when a stranger meeting him on the road declared the animal was his. After much altercation they went before the Raja. The proprietor explained the circumstances of his purchase, when his accuser exclaimed, "has your worship ever seen a man driving horned cattle without a cudgel? He has not got one, and I have; it is therefore evident that the Buffalo must be mine." "True," said the Raja, "now I reflect upon it, I have certainly observed that Graziers always have a cudgel in their hand. Let it be decided, then, that the Buffalo belongs to him who has the cudgel." Hence the proverb, Jis kee lat, hee oos kee Bhuens, which is now used to express the supremacy of Club law.

On another occasion, a man who had purchased a Buffalo Calf, demanded, after he had paid the money, something as G,HELOUNEE, q. v. that is, something extra in kind. The seller refused, and they went before the Raja. "Assuredly," said the Raja, "I never heard of anything being sold in the bazar, without some allowance as G,helounce. Something therefore must be given. Have you no other cattle?" "Nothing whatever," replied the seller, "but the mother of this very Calf." "Let the mother then be given as G,helounce," said the Raja, "for we must not intringe old customs." Hence the proverb, Purya lence Bhuens G,helounce, "buy the Calf, and take the mother into the bargain, as a perquisite:"—something equivalent to "give au inch and take an ell."

These Tales will serve to show the nature of Hurbong ka raj, without drawing further on the stock of similar examples of the Raja's mal-administration. But the account of his death is too characteristic to be omitted. The great Goruk,hnat,h and his teacher Muchhunder were on their travels, when they came to the kingdom of Hurbong. Goruk,hnat,h, hearing that everything, whether rare or common, was sold at the same price, determined to take up his abode in Hurbongpoor, contrary to the persuasions of Muchhunder who counselled retreat. They had not been there many days, before a murder was committed, and gallows (?) were erected for the punishment of the culprit. But on the day appointed for the execution, no criminal was forth-coming, and as the rope was very thick and strong, the Raja ordered that two of the largest men should be selected from the assembled crowd and punished on the following day. The two largest men happened to be Gorukhnat,h, and Muchhunder, who after taking counsel together about their proceedings, were brought out for execution. sooner had they reached the gallows, than they began to quarrel about precedence, each loudly pretending to desire to be strung up before the other. The Raja enquired the meaning of this singular quarrel, when Muchhunder stepped forward, and said he had ascertained from his Books and learned Pundits that whoever should obtain the honor of being hanged first on that day, would go immediately to Paradise. " If that is the case," said the Raja, "the fate is too good for either of you. I will swing first, if you please;" and so was hanged at his own desire. These pious devotees were so shocked at his atrocities that, immediately after the execution, they made a complete bouleversement of Hurbongpoor, and it remains a shapeless ruin to this day.

This is the Hindoo account. The Mahometans ascribe its destruction to a miracle effected by the Syud Ali Mòòrtuza, mentioned above, who died as late as A. D. 1359, and who changed the name of the place from Hurbongpoor to Jhoosee.

بعد ازان درم بار نعره یا صریخ نمرده نگاه بطرف قلعه ار کردند قلعه مذکرر از بیخ در آورده غلطید چنانچه عمارت ان قلعه زیر تحت برنت و زمین بالا گردید و آن کافر مع فوج خود بجهنم شتافت و رسم اسلام جاري گردند باقي همه هنودان از ترس این زلزله مسلمان شدند مخدوم صاحب سید شعبان الملت استقامت کردند آخرش چند مدت آنجا ماندند بعده پار گنگ در حویلي پیاک در موصع جرئي استقامت کردند و چند فقوا در جهرنس گذاستند

Mumbu-òòs-Sadat.

He is represented to have visited Jhoosee for the purpose of introducing the Mahometan religion amongst the Infidels; but that surely must have been effected before this period;—and, though the story is devoutly believed by the Mahometans, and more especially by his descendants, some of whom now hold high Judicial Offices under our Government, we can scarcely believe Ali Mòdrtuza to be a contemporary of Raja Hurbong; who, if he had any existence at all beyond the imaginations of the people, must have preceded that Saint by several Centuries.

Hurdeha, ५३०० हरदेहा hardeha

Is the name of one of the tribes of Cachhees. — See CACHHEE.

Hurdodas, हरदुवाम harduás

There are a few of this clan of Rajpoots in Deoganw of Azimgurh, and Sulempoor Mujhowlee of Goruckpoor.

Hurdour, ८००० हरदीर hardaur

Is the name given to the oblong mounds, raised in villages, and studded with flags, for the purpose of averting epidemic diseases, and especially the Cholera Morbus. It is called after Hurdoul Lala, the son of Bursing Deo, from whom are descended the Rajas of Duttea. The natives have a firm persuasion that the Cholera broke out in Lord Hustings' Camp in consequence of beef having been killed for the European Soldiers within the grove where repose the ashes of this Bundlecund Chief. So rapid has been the extension of this worship, that it now prevails throughout the Upper and Central Doab, a great part of Rohilcund, and to the banks of the Sutlej. To the Eastward, the worship of Hòòlka Devee (the goddess of vomiting) has been prevalent since the same period.

Huree, (१) हरी harí

Contribution of assistance by Ryuts in ploughing the fields of Zemindars; equivalent to the "Mannings" of our old tenures. The service is compulsory; and occurs in Asarh and Katik.—Lower Doab, Benares, and E. Oudh.

It is occasionally applied as Angwara, q. v.

Hureeanw, هرياونو हिर्यांव hariyánw

A division of a crop, in which the Byut retains 9, and the Zemindar receives 7, parts. The word is derived from Hur, a plough, because the Ryut retains a ploughman's share (one-eight) more than the half.

Hureehobuns, کریهوبنس हरोहाबनस harihobans

A clan of Rajpoots of this name exists in Bullea, a Pergunah of Ghazeepoor.—See Hyobuns.

Hureeta, ब्रिंग harita

The first commencement of ploughing in the rainy season—Rohilcund. In Dehli, the word Hulsotea, is used; and elsewhere, Hulaeta, Hurynee, Huraet, Huroute, Hurwut, and Huraec.—See Hulaeta.

Hurg, Huseet, هر گهسينت हरघमींट harg'hasít

All the cultivated land of a village is so called; from hur a plough, and g,huseetna to draw.—Lower Doab.

Hurha, ७०० हरहा harhá

Unbroken and vicious cattle; plough bullocks.—Dehli and Doab. Besides these local meanings, it is, generally, applied to stray oxen.

Hurhumesh, क्रिकें हरहमेस harhamesh

The insertion of these words in a Grant are considered to imply perpetuity. The literal meaning of the word is for ever and ever.

Huriur, क्रियर hariar

This bears the same meaning in Oudh, and its immediate neighbourhood, as Coonr Moondla and Duleajhar do elsewhere, viz. the closing of the sowing season.—See these articles and Hurpoojee.

Hurjins, ब्रिंग्जिनस harjins Grain of sorts; from hur, every, and jins, species.

HURKARA, ১১৩ ইকোরা harkára

A Messenger; from hur, every, and kar, business. The usual occupation of an Hurkara at present is by no means in accordance with the derivation.

M. Garcin de Tassy, in a Note to p. 219 of his "Kamrup," observes on this word—"A la lettre factoton. Ce nom designe un des trente-sept domestiques! que les Indiens, et les Earopeans, ont a leur service."

Hurkut, क्रिकट harkat

Cutting Rice while it is green and unripe.—Rohilcund. From hura, green, and katna, to cut.

Hurouree, ब्रारी haraurí

The occupation of ploughing, or place where ploughing is going on. Hurouree pur jao signifies, "go and put your hand to the plough."

Also an advance of about 2 rupees in money, and 2 maunds in corn, given to a ploughman when first engaged.—Benares.

See Sondhar, which is the term applied in the North-West.

Hurpoojee, هرپوجی हरपूजी harpújí

The worship of the plough. This takes place on the day which closes the season of ploughing and sowing. It generally occurs in the month of Katik, but in some places it occurs both after the Khurecf and Rubbee sowing; i. e. in Sawun and Katik. The plough is washed and decorated with garlands, and to use it, or lend it, after this day is deemed unlucky.

The practice reminds us of the Fool-plough in England, a ceremony observed on the Monday after Twelfth-day, which is therefore called Plough-Monday; on which occasion a plough adorned with ribands is carried about, and the "peasants meet together to feast themselves, as well as wish themselves a plentiful harvest from the great corn sown (as they call Wheat and Rye), as well as to wish a God-speed to the plough, as soon as they begin to break the ground to sow Barley and other corn." (British Apollo, Vol. II. No. 92).

In Hindoostan though the plough is in some places decorated at the opening of the season (HULAETA), yet it is the more general practice to do so when its labours are closed.— See Còònr Mòòndla, and Duleajhar.

Hursingar, پرسنگار हर्गंचेगार harsingar

The weeping Nyctanthes, (Nyctanthes arbor tristis). It is a small forest tree growing to the height of about 12 feet. Hursingar yields a deliciously fragrant blossom, from which a yellow dye is prepared, which was borne on our Tariff as a dutiable article, till the late revision of the Customs Law. Hursingar is also much used in Medicine by Native practitioners, and is occasionally cultivated in gardens.

Hursot, عرسوت हरसेात harsot

Hursot, or Hursotea, signifies ploughing a furrow; the first ploughing of the season.—See Hulaeta.

Affording assistance in ploughing.—See Angwara, Dungwara, and Jeeta.

The term is also used to signify the bringing the plough home across the back of a bullock, or with the share inverted, after the conclusion of the day's work;

> Videre fessos vomerem inversum boves Collo trahentes languido.

Hor. Epod. II. 63.

These terms are used in Dehli; and, in the last meaning, in Brij also.

Hursujja, ८ हर्मज्जा harsajjá

Literally, a sharer in a plough; reciprocal assistance afforded in ploughing fields.—Bundlecund. From hur a plough, and sajha partnership.—See Angwara, Dungwara, and Jeeta.

Hurut, ७,० हरट harat

A Persian wheel for drawing water from a well. The word is a corruption of Ruhut or Arhut. Eight Bullocks employed at a Hurut are capable of irrigating an acre of ground during the day.

Hurutkòòl, अं हरतकुल haratkul One of the sub-divisions of Gour Brahmins, q. v.

Hurwaha, (छ) हरवाहा harwaha

A Ploughman. The word is most commonly used in the East. Halee is more usual in the West.

Hurwul, ७,० हरवल harwal

Advances without interest made to ploughmen.—Eastern Oudh and Benares.

Hurya, ७,० हरिया hariyá

A ploughman, a worshipper, a devotee. The double meaning attached to this word is very elegantly convoyed in the following couplet.

हरिया हर से हेतकर जेवों किसान की रीत दाम घनेरा रिन घना तबहू खेत से प्रीत

Hurya, hur se hetkur, jeon kisan kee reet; Dam q,hunera, rin g,huna, tubhoo k,het se preet.

The two first words signify "Ploughman and Plough," as well as "Worshipper and God;" which gives the Poet the opportunity of conveying the moral, that no vicissitudes of fortune should affect a man's love for labor or devotion.

Husea, हिमया hasiyá

A reaping hook; Hunsea is also correct.

Husho minhaee, hasho minhaí

हमे। मिनहार्

That which, after being deducted, is entered in the Husho, and excluded from the Rent Roll. The term is therefore applied to Rent-free, Nankar, or other assigned lands. والنجه از جمله مواضع در رجه نانكار رمعافي ايمه رغيرة بودة باشد منها كردة باقي را در مقام حشو قلمي سازند

Ilm-i-Seeaq. See BARIZ, for a description of the Husho.

Hustobood, هستربود हस्ताबूद hastobood

The learned Translator of the Institutes of Timoor says, at p. 367, that the meaning of this expression is not understood by him. It signifies a calculation on the data of the present ("is") and past ("is") An estimate of the assets of a tract of land. Also, when corrupted into Hustnabood, it signifies a remission granted by Zemindars for the portion of land failing in produce. The meaning of Hustobood has been well explained in the Printed Glossary, under Hustabood.

Hut, Heele, عنهیلی हठीले hat'hile

One of the Puchpeeree, or five noted Saints of the lower orders of these Provinces. He is said to be the sister's son of Ghazee Meean (q. v.) and lies buried at Bahraich, near the tomb of that celebrated Martyr. Monuments are erected to the memory of Hutheele, (who derives his name from Hat,hee, on account of his elephantine stature), and fairs are held at several villages in honor of his name.

Hutta, ud हना hattá

A large wooden shovel or spoon, about five feet long, used for throwing water into fields from aqueducts.-- E. Oude.

Huwaladar, والقدار हवालादार hawaladar

One employed to protect the grain before it is stored; a Steward or Agent employed for the management of a village; corrupted by the English into Havildar.—See the Printed Glossary under Huwaludar and Havildar.

Hyobuns, هيربنس हयोबन्स haiobans

See Benoudha and Hureehobuns. The Raja of Huldee in Ghazeepoor is of this conspicuous clan, which once held large dominions on the banks of the Nerbudda (" Journal A. S. Bengal," August, 1837); and has the credit of having been instrumental in expelling the Cheroos from the Southern bank of the Ganges. The Hyobuns are Sombunsee; and Mahesvati, or Maheswar, on the Nerbudda, the first capital of the Lunar race, was founded by Suhesra Arjoona of the Hihya (Hyobuns) race. A small remnant of them yet exists in Sohagpoor, and they are recorded as Zemindars of several villages in Bullea of Ghazeepoor.

1

ILAHEE GUZ, । इलाही गज iláhí gaz

The standard Guz, or yard, of forty-one fingers, instituted by Akber. After much controversy respecting its length, it was authoritatively declared by Government to be 33 inches long; and the declaration has been attended with considerable convenience to Revenue Officers, as a Beeg,ha measured by this yard constitutes exactly five-eighths of an acre. The several opinions respecting the length of the Ilahee Guz, and the means instituted for determining the point, will be found given in detail in "Prinsep's Useful Tables," p. 88, and the "Journal of the R. A. Soc;" Vol. VII., p. 42.—See Coss and Beeg,ha.

ILAQADAR, अधेंधेट द्लाकादार ilákadár

The person who enters into engagements at the Settlement.

—See Lumberdar, and Malgòòzar.

Induri إندري इंडुरी induri

A pad for supporting a round-bottomed jar.—See JOORA.

Inglis, । दंगलिस inglis

A Pensioner. The word is a corruption of "Invalids."

Irada, ४८०)। द्रादा íráda

A term in Arithmetic.—See under BARIZ.

ISBUND, अंग्रेमी दूसवन्द isband

The name of a herb which springs up on the banks of Tulaos during the rainy season. It produces a round thorny fruit, of which the seed is much used in exorcism and other superstitious practices.

Ismwar, अंश्रेक्टी इम्सवार ismwar

Literally, nominal; from ism, a name; entry in statements according to the order of individuals' names.

Istiqual, प्रांधिका इंस्तिक्रवाल istikbál

A ceremonious meeting in the open air, by advancing to receive a visitor.

Istiqual, अधिं इस्तिकलाल istiklal Confirmation; perpetuity; fixedness.

Istiquan, তুলিকার istikrár Confirmation. These three last words are tenth infinitives of Arabic Roots.

Itlaq, إطلاق इतलाक itlák

The term is applied to the office and records of Dustuks (demand, or summons), and Tulabana (fees on their delivery). It literally means freeing, liberating; and it is therefore difficult to say why it is so applied in Revenue accounts; except it may be in the sense of forwarding, issuing.

Itlaq nuvees, itlák navís

इतलाक नवीस इतलाक नवीस

The person who keeps the Dustuk accounts.

Izafa, ह्जाफा iżáfa

Increase. These three words are also derived from the Arabic.

J

J<sub>AB</sub>, جابی ভাৰ jáb J<sub>ABEE</sub>, جابی ভাৰী jábí

An Ox-muzzle. Jalee, Moonhchheenka, and Mooncha are also used, as well as the words mentioned under Chheenka.

Jado, جا و जादी jádo

One of the low castes in a village,—the same as Kumeen. In some places, the term is equivalent to Soodra.

Jadon, جادون जादें jádon

Classically, Yadu, or Yadava,—a tribe of Rajpoots of the Chunderbuns division, who profess to trace their origin in a direct line from Krishna.

Yadu is the patronymic of all the descendants of Buddha, the ancestor of the Lunar race, of which the most conspicuous are now the Bhuttee and the Jareja: but the title of Jadon is now exclusively applied to the tribe which appears never to have strayed far from the limits of the ancient Suraseni, and we consequently find them still in considerable numbers in that neighbourhood. The large tract South of the Chumbul, called after them Yudavati, is in the possession of the Gwalior Mahrattas, and the state of Kerowlee on the Chumbul is now their chief independent possession.

Some of the tribe, or at least professedly of the tribe, are Zemindars in our Provinces,—as the proprietors of the Talookas of Ana Meesa in Muttra, Somna in Aligurh, and Kotila in Agra. There are many of them also in Futtehabad and Shumsabad of Agra; Mòòstufabad, and Gihror in Mynpooree; Suhar and Areeng in Muttra, Sohnuh in Goorgaon; and in Coel, Husungurh, Goreyee, Marchra, Julalee, Akberabad, Secundra Rao, and K, hyr in Alligurh. They are considered spirited farmers. All these have adopted the practice of second marriages, and are now considered of an inferior rank to their brethren in Kerowlee, and in Jewur, of Brolundshuhur, which was the first spot they occupied on their emigration in the Doab. The Jadons of Jewur are distinguished by the title of Choukurzada: but by way of reproach the inferior Jadons are called Bagree by their neighbours, and the following couplet indicates the low position they are considered to occupy.

नन्द की चेरी नाग्री ता के जीए बाग्री

Nund kee cheree Nagree Ta ke jae Bagree.

That is, they are regarded as of servile descent; and they are certainly not admitted generally to intermarriages with the higher Rajpoots of the neighbourhood. It is very probable that their increasing wealth and importance will soon soften these prejudices; indeed, some marriages lately made by the family of Awa Meesa have raised its respectibility to a high standard, insomuch that the Talookdar now lays claim to a direct descent from Anund Pal, the son of the Kerowlee Raja, Koomur Pal, and asserts that the Buresiree, Jyswar and other self-styled Jadons are altogether of an inferior stock.

Jadons are also found in Hoshungabad, whither they emigrated after Akber's conquests on the Nerbudda.

Jaedad, ايداد जागदाद jáedad

Jacdad, or Jadad, signifies a place; employment; also assets funds, resources. It signifies likewise the ability of any district or province in respect to its revenue; an assignment on land for the maintenance of troops, or of an establishment.

JAEL, नाइल jáel

A term used in the Western parts of Rohilcund to signify twice-ploughed land. When ploughed three times, it is called Tase; when four times, Chous; when five times, Puchbasee; and so on. In the Northern Pergunahs of Bareilly, the corresponding terms are Dobur, Tabur, Chonwur, Puchawur; and the first ploughing is called Eksiree.—See Dor and Dosuree.

PPP2

JAES, नाएव jáes

A tribe of Soorujbunsee Rajpoots resident in the Pergunahs of Nohjheel, and Maat in Muttra, in which they were originally much larger proprietors than they are at present.

The Jaes themselves assert that they had 36 Villages, and not 24, as is mentioned in the article Choubeesa, in compliance with the prevalent opinion. They trace their origin from Ajòòdhya, like true Soorujbunsee Rajpoots. Their rank may be judged by their receiving in marriage the daughters of Cuchhwaha, Jyswar, and Bachhul Rajpoots.

Jaglaen, جاكلايي जागलाएन jágláin

A clan of Jats, proprietors of a few villages in Panceput Bangur.

JAK,HUN, नाखन ják'han

The wooden foundation of the brick-work of a well. It is generally made of the green wood of the Goolur tree (Ficus glomerata), because it is said to be less liable to rot than any other kind. The wood of the Peepul (Ficus religiosa) is also in request on the same account, but it is considered inferior to Goolur. This foundation is also known by the name of Newar and Neemchuk. Sweetmeats are generally distributed, and sometimes a drum is beaten, on the occasion of its being adjusted and fixed. The word is perhaps derived from jukurna to tighten, to pinion; as great care and time are necessarily taken in binding the separate parts (gundwala) together, so that they may form a compact cylinder for the support of a heavy superstructure of masonry.—See Junoout.

JAK, HUR, ják'har A sub-division of the Jat tribe, q. v.

finally approved cf. This is the usual pronunciation; but the correct word is Jankur.

JALEE, چالي ভানী jálí

An Ox-muzzle. A net bag for weighing Bhòòs, (chaff).—See Chheenka and Jab.

JANT, जांत jánt

A wooden trough for raising water.

Janta, धं जांता jánta

A species of hand mill-stone. A stone mill for grinding.

JAT, ভাহ ját

This is the Jaut and Jhut of the printed Glossary. There are several clans of this interesting tribe in the N. W. Provinces, particularly in Dehli and the U. Doab. They are rarer in Rohilcund; and in the Doab do not extend below Mynpooree.

The chief clans of the Dehli Territory are Sangwan, Sheoram, Bagree, Dahia, or Dyea, Gunt, hwara and Dulal. The Sangwan extend West from Dadree till they meet the Sheoram. To the West and North West of them extend the Bagree. From Bowana to beyond K, hurk, houda, are the Dahia, -whence that tract is called Dahian. The Gunt, hwaras surround Gohana; and from Mandhout, hee to Dadree are the Dulal. There are many others of little less importance, as the Kutcera, Lohacen, Rongee, Untul, Seil, Bora, Jutarnec, Jak,hur, Ahlawut, Kadecaen, Sukel, Sutroungee, &c. &c.; and on the borders of Huriana we meet with the large tribes of Poonya, Bhungeewal, Godara, Kusòda, &c. &c. In the Doab we have the Suluklaeen, Balaeen, Gunt, hwara, Rat, hee, G, hung, hus or Gungus, Moondeean, Gund, Lakree, Nehwal, T,hòòkurele, T,henwan, Khoot,hele, &c. &c. In Rohilcund, there are the Chahul, Dhunoke, Dhaleewal, Berhwal, Oontwal Bunge, Ulooma, K,hobra, Dhunoec, Lat,hur Dig,helya, Machhur, Sangwan, Jutrance, Chheelur, Sekrawut, Hurree, Sheko, Gillu, Dhareewal, Siddhoo, Gundhoo, and sundry more equally euphonious.

The Jats of the N. Western Provinces are separated into two grand divisions,—the Dhe and the Hele of the Doab, or Puchhade and Deswale of Rohilcund and Dehli .- The former (the Dhe and Puchhade*) are a later swarm from that teeming hive of nations which has been winging its way from the North West from time immemorial. They are in consequence frequently called Punjabees, and scarcely date their residence beyond a century before the present time, when the troubles of the empire enabled them quietly to extend their usurpations. Dhes frequently have no Jaga, or family genealogist, as the Heles have, and are accused by the latter of adopting some Mahometan practices in their marriages, particularly in discarding the Mor, or nuptial coronet, and adopting the Schra, or veil. They have hitherto, in short, been entirely separate, and never intermarried till very lately, when the Bulumgurh Raja consented to an union with the Kyt, hul family, from which time the connexion has increased, and all differences of habits or origin will perhaps before long be obliterated.

The Jats, who were always considered as one of the 36 Royal races, are now never admitted to intermarriages with the Rajpoots. Colonel Tod+ assigns as the reason of this, that their वूढी मेंस पुराना गाडा काला सांप त्रीर सगा पछादा कुछ लाभ हुवा ती हुवा न खादद खादा

Boodhee bhuens, poorana gada, Kala samp, or suga Puchhada, Kddch labh hooa to hooa, ne k,haduee k,hada.

The term may be derived either from Puchchhum the West, or from Peechhe, afterwards. The Puchhadas are contemptuously spoken of by their elder brethren, and a common proverb couples them with a black snake and worn-out cattle.

† On the subject of their descent he is contradictory. He asserts in one part that they are not of pure blood, yet includes them in his own corrected list of the Chuttees Cula. From an inscription at p. 796 of the first volume of the "Appals of Rajast, han," it is evident that, in the fifth century, the Jats intermarried with the Rajpoots.

immigration was so long subsequent to that of the Solar and Lunar Races, that their alliance has been rejected. But there is reason to suppose that many of the Raipoot races were incorporated long after the immigration of the Yuchi, Yuthi or Jats, the immediate successors of the Sakos or Indo-Scythians, whom we know from Ptolemy and the Periplus to have been in occupation of the whole of Scinde, in the first century of our Era; and from whom the entire Province was called Indo-Scythia in consequence. They appear to have been succeeded by the Jats about the second century.* There is also no little probability that the Xathri, who were on the Chenab in the time of Alexander, (Arrian, Lib vi) may have been of the same stock. But notwithstanding this repugnance to a complete amalgamation, it is evident that connexions have frequently been formed between Jats and Rajpoots, though they may not be dignified with the name of marriages.

We find them, as in the case of the Goojurs, frequently attributing their origin to a Rajpoot. Many of their tribes indeed bear Rajpoot names, such as Dahima, Cuchhwaha, Powar, Johya, Bagree, Dahia, &c. The Balaeens, Nohwal and T,hòòkurele say they are descended from Chouhan, the Surawuts and Suluklaeens fr m Tuar Rajpoots, and so forth.†—See Goojur.

<sup>* &</sup>quot;Ariana Antiqua" p. 305; "Foe Koue Ki," p. 83; "Vincent's Periplus," p. 345; "Journal of the Royal Asiatic Society," Vol. VI. p. 281; Dionysii Perieg: V. 1088; and "Ptol; Geogr;" Lib. VII.

† This is to be observed also of the Re, or Rye, and other tribes of similar descent, who have hooka panee in common with Jats and Goojurs. Among them we have Birgoojur Cuchwaha, Tuar, Chonhan, Johya, Kut, herya, &c &c.

Sir J. Malcolm in his "Essay on the Bhills," (Trans: R. A. S. Vol. I.

It is strange that almost all the Jats, as well as the Goojurs so descended, concur in the same ridiculous story respecting their connexion with the Rajpoots—namely, that a female Jat or Goojur, was going along with water pots on her head, and that she stopped a runaway Buffalo by pressing her foot on the rope tied to its neck, and did so without spilling the water. This feat of strength and agility so pleased some Rajpoot chieftain who was looking on, that he took her to his home, and thus a new family, or Gote, sprung from the connexion. Others are fond of arrogating to themselves a still superior lineage, asserting their procreation from the matted hair (Juta) of Mahadeo; and some will have it that their name is corrupted from the illustrious Yadavas, or Jados, to which latter opinion Tod and Wilson (Select: from Mahabh. p. 46) both seem to incline.

Almost all the Jats of our Provinces, who do not acknowledge any descent from Rajpoots, trace their origin from the far North West, and some of them, as the Gunt, hwaras, say that they have heard from their ancestors that Gujni or Gurh-Guini, was their original seat, by which names the town was known to the Hindoos, before it became famous under the Mahometans, as Ghuzni or Ghuzneen.* Here, without any knowledge of the learned discussions about the identity of the Jats and the ancient Getæ, we find the traditionary legends of these ignorant tribes pointing to the remote Ghuzni as their original seat, the very spot we know to have been occupied by the Yuechi, or, as Klaproth (Tabl. Hist. de l'Asie, p. 288,) says, more correctly * There are also other Gujnis known to the Hindoos; one was the ancient name of Cambay (the port of Balabhipoora): the ruins of it are still to be seen about three miles from the modern city. There is another on the estuary of the Myhie. These, however, are quite out of the line of the Jat migration.

There seems little doubt that the Jats have at least retained the proper pronunciation of the name of this town, for its origin is Hindoo. Nevertheless, it is now universally spelt with an Arabic Gh, whatever terminal syllable it assumes, whether Ghuznah, Ghuznuv, Ghuzni, or Ghuzneen. The latter was most probably the name imposed by the Todrks, and as it is a dual form, it has given rise to the opinion entertained by the Mahometans of India, that there are two Ghuznis; insomuch that they devoutly entertain the belief that Ghuzni.—the great Ghuzni—was not captured by us during our Afghan expedition, but only some petty Ghuzni, that could offer no resistance—and this without any reference to the fact that the ruins of the old city are at a short distance (3 miles N. E.) from the present site, for that perhaps they are not aware of.

Yu-ti,* in the first centuries of our era, after the Sakas were repelled back from the frontiers of India, and left the country between India and Persia open for their occupation. The Jat tribes no doubt emigrated not all at once, but at different times, and it is probable that those in the North West are among the latest importations. Elphinstone, in his "History of India," (Vol. I. p. 445), draws a distinction between the Jats of the Indus and Júts of Bhurtpoor (Sinsinwar); to which it may be sufficient to answer that in the Pergunahs where Júts are now, they are recorded as Jats in the Ayeen-i-Akberee. So that the difference of the long and short a is a mere fashion of spelling, + and shows no difference of origin, family, or habit. The priority of occupation is perhaps to be conceded to the Jats of Scinde and Rajpootana.

The last arrival is the Dhe, and as this tribe had been hitherto excluded from complete union with the older Jats, they may probably be descendants of the Dalæ, whom we know (Strato, XI.) to have been on the shores of the Caspian, the conterminous neighbours of the Massagetæ (the great, ‡ or as Larcher supposes, the Eastern Jats) in the South West, and on terms of amity with them during the latter period of their residence in that quarter, and may therefore have advanced with them on their onward progress towards India, after the destruction of the Bactrian Empire. This would sufficiently account for their not being entirely incorporated with the great Jats. At all events it must be confessed that the resemblance between Dhe and · Professor Lassen says that this substitution of Yuti for Yuechi or Yuetschi, is quite unauthorized, and accuses Klaproth of Monomania in his endeavours to trace the identity of the Getæ, Goths, and Jats. Dr. Prichard, who is much of the same opinion, adds. "the supposition that the Jats, or Juts, upon the Indus are the des endants of the Yuelschi does not appear altogether so preposterous; but it is supported by no proof, except the trifling one of a slight resemblance of names." Researches into the Physical History of Mankind, Vol. 1v. p. 132.

† Re it remembered also that the e in Getæ is short-epsilon, not ceta,-See likewise the passage quoted from the Camoos by Gildemeister, "Script: Arab: de rebus Indicis," p. 181.

† Massa means great in Pehlevi. Vans Kennedy (" Ancient and Hindu Mythology," p. 94) is not disposed to agree with Dr. Jamieson and others, that the Getœ and Massagetœ were originally the same people.

490

Dahæ* or Daæ, gives some colour to the hypothesis. Dahas are also mentioned among the Western tribes in the Puranic Geography.—(See Vishnu Purana p. 192).

Few of the North Western Jats have been converted, like those of Scinde, to Mahometanism, and yet they can scarcely be called pure Hindoos, for they have many observances, both domestic and religious, not consonant with Hindoo precepts. Second marriages are common, and they are still accused by their neighbours of having a community of wives, a practice not uncommon amongst the Massagetæ, as we learn from Herodotus.—(Clio, 216). There is a disposition also to reject the fables of the Puranic Mythology, and to acknowledge the unity of the Godhead. Hence propably one of the chief causes of their becoming such ready and devoted disciples of Nanuk Shah.

Into the question whether there is any connexion between the Getæ, Goths, Jits† and Jutes, there is no room to enter; but it

* "The country of the Daha, or Dehestan, is immediately North of Asterabad. It is possessed by the Kajar tribe of Turks, to which tribe the present Royal Family belong."— "Kinneir's Persian Empire."

It is with reference to this country that an Eclipse is recorded in the Shahnama which fixes an important Synchronism between the Persian and Greek Histories. According to the Shahnama "when the sun hid his face from the dust raised by the Cavalry," the Iranians retired from Deh, the capital of Dehestan, and so put a stop to the battle between Nauder and Afrasiab, Herodotus says, that in the 6th year of the war between the Lydians and Medes, while the armies were engaged in combat, "the day was suddenly turned into night." The reign of Nauder is supposed to fall between 798 and 768 B. C. Now, Astronomical Tables shew that on the 4th April 778 B. C. a Solar Eclipse occurred in the meridian and parallel of Dehestan, from which we are able to de ermine with tolerable certainty, the time of Nauder's reign.—M. de l' Acad: des Inscrip; Tom: XL. p. 340, † Shurul-òòd-deen in his Zufurnama affords most decisive evidence to the identity of our Jats and the Jits of Transoxiana, by saying that when Timour invaded the Punjab he immediately recognized in them his old antagonists in Tartary. Dr. Pricnard is not disposed to admit that there is any resemblance between the physical character of the Yuetschi of Central Asia and the Jats of India. The former are stated, on the authority of Klaproth and Abel Remusat, to have been of sanguine complexion, with blue eyes; the latter, on the authority of Elphinstone, to be a small illformed race of blacks. The Jats of North Western India by no means answer the latter description, while we are able to trace occasionally individual resemblances to the former; the goaty beard, moreover, so common among them, appears to afford indication of Tartar descent.—Physical History of Mankind, Vol. IV. p. 132.—See also Asiatic Res: Vol. XVII. 11 may not be out of place here, while we are on the subject of the con-would be difficult for the fair man of Kent, the descendant of the Jute followers of Hengist and Horsa, and the inheritor of the custom of Gavelkind*, to disprove entirely his affinity to the black Jats of the Western border of India. He need at any rate have no ground to repudiate him on the score of courage, honesty, patience, and industry, for which virtues our Jats have long been conspicuous. As for their courage, it is their proud distinction that the fall of Bhurtpore has reconciled all Indian potentates to the stern necessity of submitting to British Supremacy, -- post Carthaginem vinci neminem puduit ; -- and with respect to their industry, it is so indefatigable, that it is not unlikely they will before long supplant many of their more indolent neighbours. There are indications of such a result already in some parts of the country, and the Jats themselves openly boast of their ability to out-strip any other class of Agriculturists; in this respect somewhat confirming the probability of the connexion, by appropriating to themselves the well known vaunt of the Yeomen of Kent.

> A Knight of Cales, A Gentlemen of Wales, And a Laird of the North Countree, A Yeoman of Kent, With his yearly rent, Will buy them out all three.

Be it remembered, however, that they are generally surrounded by Goojurs, Rajpoots, and Mussulmans, and know little or nothing of Cachhees and Coormees, whose industry nearly equals their own.

nexion of the Jate, to add some curious speculations in respect to the origin of their name by Anquetil du Perron. Commenting on a passage in which Dow mentions that Jats derive their name from their addiction to agricultural pursuits, he says, "Khatam, in Sanskretam, signific étang, fosse; Ghatanam, percer, enfoncer. Khet, en Indoustan Nagri, désigne un champ laboure; Kheti signifie agriculture. laboureur; Khet djotna, labourer travailler. Le nom des Djats viendra d'un de ces mots.

Recherches Hist: et Geog: sur l' Inde: p. 207.

Respecting the identity of the Geta, Ghozz, and Kirghiz consult a learned note by Sprenger, at p. 238 of his Translation of Masudi's "Meadows of

The custom of inheritance varies amongst the Jats. In Dehli and the Doab, the succession is generally per stirpes; in Rohilcund, per capita.

J<sub>AT,H</sub>, خاتَّج সাত jat'h

The name of the post fixed in a tank to denote that its water has been dedicated to the deity, or has been married to a grove. Also, the revolving beam or axis of a Sugar Mill.—See Colhoo.

Jatlie, ट्राँरेंड जाटली játlí

See Goojur, of which tribe they are a sub-division.

JATOO, جاتَو játú

The name of a Rajpoot tribe in the neighbourhood of Kurnal, and in Huriana; in which tract of country they are considered at one time to have held 1410 villages. They are one of the four divisions of the Tuars, -viz. Jatoo, Juraeta, Rag,hoo, Sutroura. The Jatoos are now chiefly Mussulman, or Rangur, but there are a few Hindoos in Hissar, and in Bidowlee, in Mõõzuffurnugur.

Jatòòa, नाटुवा jatúa

A branch of the Chumar tribe, q. v.The word is also frequently pronounced  $Jut\partial a.$

JATRA, ়ানু সানা játrá A religious festival, or fair.

JEERA, أيثر जीरा jírá Cumin seed.

JEETA, اینی जीता jítá JEETERA, کیتیری जीतेरा jítera

Mutual assistance in tillage; also, allowing the use of a plough and bullocks, instead of paying wages in money or kind.—Rohilcund and Bundlecund. The word is pronounced also Jitta, and the custom is known by various other names.—See Angwara, Dungwara, Hursot, and Pursutto.

JEETAPUTR, בְּגֵיֹוֹנֶגֹיִ जीतापच jítápatr A favorable decision.—Benares.

Jehat, ध्रिक् जिहात ' jihát

Duties on manufactures. They were reduced by Akber from 10 to 5 per cent., but were imposed during the decline of the Monarchy at a much heavier rate by every petty ruler in his own principality.

Jehur, र्रंक् जेहड jehar

A pile of water pots placed one on the other. The word is pronounced also Jeg,hur. To take the water pots off the head of a divorced woman, is to imply consent to marry her. The custom prevails amongst the Jats, Aheers, and Goojurs, but principally amongst the former, and more commonly in Rajpootana than in these Provinces.

JEL, এু ভাল jel

The chain of buckets on a Persian Wheel.

Jelee, چیلي जेली jelí

Jelee is a kind of pitchfork, or rake, for collecting and adjusting the ears of corn on the threshing ground. It is also known to the Eastward by the names of Pancha and Punchangura, from its having five (panch) prongs. Dhinka or Dheenka, is a smaller kind of Jelee, which is used by a man in a sitting posture, and differs from a Jelee in having curved prongs.

جیلی دررساله چربی درشاخه که خوشههای کوفته که در خرص باشد بدان برداشته بر سرا اندازند تا غله از ۵۶ جدا شرد سکر بسین مهمله مکسور رکاف مفترح لیکن در جهانگیری سکو چربی که آنرا سه شاخه و چهار شاخه سازند سه شاخه را سکو و چهار شاخه را چهار شاخه خوانند و آنرا اشنه و نواشه و چک نیز گریند و بتازی مدری و بهندی دنبالی گریند و صاحب جهانگیری سکو بفتم اول گفته اما اول اقری و هندی متعارف گرالیار که افصم السنه هندیست پنچانگرا ببا و جیم هردو فارسی و نون غنه بعد الف و کاف فارسی و رای مهمله باف کشیده

Ghuraeb-ool-Loghat.

Jeonar, إنار जीवनार jeonár

Is sometimes used in the sense of Joun, all q. v.

Jeora, গুনুলু জীৰৱা jeorá

Perquisites of Blacksmiths, Washermen, Carpenters, and other Village Servants.

Jeoree, হুট্ডু লীৰভী jeorí

Bears the same meaning as Jureeb, q. v. A cord, a rope.

Јет,н күит, جِينَّهِي अंड र्द्यत jet'h raiyat

The head ryut who conducts the village business, and acts as Choudhree of the village; from Sanscrit, jesht,ha, eldest, chief. The meaning is correctly given in the Printed Glossary. When there is a Mòòquddum, the Jet,h-Ryut ranks below him, and is often known by the name of Chòòkuddum; but it is most usual to consider Mòòquddum, Jet,h-Ryut, Muhto, Mook,hea, Muhetya and Buseet as synonymous terms.

Jewar, العيم जेबार jewar

A clan of Rajpoots of this name is found in Saugor and Bundlecund. As they receive in marriage the daughters of Suruswar and Rat, hore Rajpoots, they may be considered to hold a respectable rank.

Juwun Birt, באָנט איפ जेवन विते jewan birt

A stipend allowed to the family of an old deceased servant.— Eastern Oudh and Benarcs.—See Birt.

JHABUR, अधिक स्नावर jhábar

Low land on which water lies, and which produces rice, or a grass called Tin. Sometimes, when the water dries up quickly, Rubbee crops are also sown in it.—See Jhab Bhomee in the Printed Glossary.

Jhad, अहर् म्हाद jhad

Land on which Dhak, Heens, and other jungly bushes grow.—Upper Doab.

JHADA, Solge माडा jhádá

Lands which remain under water during the rains. A swamp.
—See JHABUR.

JHAKUREE, جهاكري भानडी jhákarí

A milk pail. From the Jhakuree, or Doenee, the milk is transferred into other vessels—the Kudhounee, the Jumaonee, the Bilonee, according to the particular process it has to undergo, till it reaches the ultimate stage of G,hee.

JHAM, ्रेड् स्ताम jhám

A large instrument in the shape of a hoe, or Phaora, used for excavating earth in well-sinking. The use of it is peculiar to this country, and it is very ingeniously applied. The mode of its application has been fully detailed in the Asiatic Society's Journal.

JHANGEE, इंगी jhángí

Bramble and brushwood.—Eastern Oudh.

JHANSA, جهانسة jhánsa

An assessment formed without specific ground, and only by general estimate.—Saugor. The word is perhaps derived from Thansna to cozen, to flatter, to deceive.

Jнао̀о̀, Şisə тіз jháú

(Tamarix Dioica). A common shrub in the Upper Provinces, growing in marshy, or inundated, ground. It is much used for thatching, hedging, and burning. Galls are produced on it, called Sumrut-oot-toorfa, or Buree Mye.—See Furas.

JHAREE, न्भीत् jhárí

A pitcher with a long neck.—See G, HURA.

A pitcher "That i jhárí
JHAREE, क्रांडी jhárí

Jungle; small bushes.

JHAWUR, १९९६२ मावर jháwar

Flat or low land flooded by the rains.—See JHABUR.

JHEEL, अंदे भील jhíl

A shallow lake or morass.

JHINJUR, अंद्रें स्त्रंजर jhinjar

See Goojur, of which tribe they form a sub-division.

JHIREE, ९७६२ मिन्री jhirí

Withered wheat, blight. The word is perhaps derived from Jhòòrna, to fade.

Jнојна, ७९० म्हान्ता jhojhá

The word literally means the stomach, and is the designation of an inferior class of Mussulmans. The Jhojhas, in Pergunah Burun of Bòòlundshuhur, represent themselves as converted Rat,hores, Chouhans, and Tuars; but by others they are considered to be converted slaves of these tribes. In like manner, those of Anoopshuhur are said to be slaves of Moghuls, converted to Mahometanism. They are despised by the Birgoojurs and other converted Rajpoots of the neighbourhood, with whom they are not suffered to intermarry; from which their servile origin may be fairly presumed. They are scattered over different parts of the Doab and Rohilcund, and are reported to be good cultivators.—Hence the saying:

भोभा हाली लाऋर घर बैठा चै।पड खेल

"Jhojha hulee lakur, g,har byt,ho choupur k,hel;"

"employ a Jhojha as a ploughman, and you may sit at home and play at Backgammon."

One of the chief causes of the value attached to their services is, that, being Mussulmans, they are not re trained by Hindoo observances of certain festivals. Thus, while Hindoos are waiting for the Dit, HWUN (q. v.) before they cut their Sugar-cane, the Jhojhas have already begun to press their cane, and manufacture their Sugar.

Інојноопоо, १)६२)६२ क्तामुक् jhojhurú

A grass to which camels are very partial, and which is occasionally given as fodder to horned cattle. It grows to the height of about two feet, and is known also by the name Junglee neel, or wild Indigo.

टार्ट्य भेतिनद jhokand JHOKUND,

Is the place at which the Jhonkya stands.—See Colhoo and JHONKYA.

४ १६२ में।ला jhola JHOLA.

A cold wind which affects Wheat by drying up the ears .-Upper Doab and Dehli.

म्हानैया jhonaiya جهونيا JHONEYA,

One of the class into which the Coormees are divided .-See Coormee.

प्रिं नुहरं मोंकिया jhonkya JHONKEYA,

The man who keeps up the fire when Sugar is boiling. word is sometimes pronounced Jhookwa and Jhokya,—but incorrectly, for it is derived from Jhonkna, to supply fuel to an oven.

किके म्यहा ihúhá JHOOHA,

Thooha is in Rohilcund what Chour is in Dehli. A large stack of Juwar or Bajra. A Jhooha generally contains from 10 to 20 Bojh, or loads.

्रेश्च भूती jhúlí * JHOOLEE,

A cloth, or sheet, made into a fan for winnowing grain, when there is no wind .- Dehli. The word is derived from Jhoolna to swing, or perhaps from Jhulna to fan. The corresponding term in Bundlecund is Surwa. In Rohilcund and Upper Doab, Purtwace. In Benares, Pat, hee and Purowta; and in the Lower and Central Doab, Purowta, Purtowa and Purtee.

JHOONDEE, स्भूतडी jhúndí

A clump of grass. It is also applied in Dehli, as Khewut is elsewhere, to signify the amount due from each sharer in a Bhyachara estate.

Jhoonga, न्यूंगा jhúngá

Bramble, brushwood. The word is sometimes pronounced.

Thangee.

There are many similar words significant of peculiarities in the shape of horns.—Myna is a bullock the tips of whose horns join in the centre. A superstition prevails against their use in draft or agriculture, and they are consequently always bestowed upon Brahmins.—Mora is a bullock whose horns grow backwards. Moondra, whose horns are stunted and ill-developed.—Moonda, whose horns are broken.—Phulsapel, (literally, one who shoves against a doorway,) whose horns project to the right and left.—Kyncha, whose horns are one up and the other down. In some places, this is called Surg-patalee, i. e. heaven-and-hellwards.—See Doonda.

Jhoont, अट्टंडिंडर jhúnt'har

Fields yielding double crops. It is sometimes pronounced jhoot, hun and joot, heael. Jootean and joot, helee are also used in a similar sense.—See JOOTEAN.

Jноора, न्ह्र्प jhúpá

A pile of mangoes or other fruit.—Lower Doab.

Jhoorna, अन्तरना jhúrná

To shake fruit from the tree. Jhurna, with a Hindee d, is to fall as fruit from a tree.

JHORA, المجهورا jhorá

The haulm or stalks of leguminous plants, such as Moong and Mot,h, used as fodder.

JHOUWA, १९६२ भीवा jhauwá

A large open basket; so called because it is made from the twigs of the Jhaoo, q. v.

JHUBRA, ीर्रंड मन्त्रा jhabrá

Jhubra, or Jhubbooa, is an epithet applied to the ears of animals when they are covered with long hair; from Jhubba, a tassel. One of the Bucolic maxims respecting the choice of horned cattle says in approval of this point, कार कहै।टा भावरे कान इन्हें छांडि न लीज्ये ग्रान

Kar kuchhouta, jhubre kan, Inhen chhanr nu leejiye an.

JHUJHURKA, ४,९५६२ कम्से jhajharká

Early dawn before it is easy to distinguish objects.—Ghuraebòòl-Loghat. The word is spelt jhujhulka in the Tohfut-òòl-Loghat-i-Hindee. Neither word is in Shakespear's Dictionary.

JHUKORA, المجاورة मन्त्रीरा jhakorá
A shower.

JHULAR, अधिक भालार jhalar

A thicket, brushwood.

JHUMAKA, ४८०६२ भ्रमाना jhamáka.
A heavy shower.

JHUMJHUM, 神神神神 jhamjham

Heavy continued rain. The term Jhumajhum is similarly used.

ihamarjhamar

JHUMURJHUMUR,

भाग्भाग्

جهمرجهمر

A light rain; raining drop by drop.

RRR2

Jnunda, القنة جهنتا jhanda Jhundee, جهنتى jhandi

A flag staff. A flag used by Surveyors as a mark by which to direct their observations.

Jhunjea, प्रेंड्२ क्लंजिया jhanjíá

A sub-division of the Mar soil.—Lower Doab.

JHUNK,HURA, गृंद्धंद्र भंखडा jhank'hara

Jhunk,hura sometimes pronounced Jhunkura, signifies a leafless tree,—the contrary of Jhundoola جهندرا which is applied to a tree with thick foliage.

J<sub>HUR</sub>, টুণ্ড ইন্ড jhar

Heavy rain; hence jhura-jhur heavily, rapidly; and jhurec continued rain, wet weather.

JHURBEREE, جهرَيبري क्षडबेरी jharberí

From jhur, or jhar, a bramble, and ber, the name of a tree, which appears to be the same as the sidar of Africa and Arabia, the Zizyphus Napeca of modern Botanists, and the Rhamnus Spina Christi of Linnæus, and probably identical with the tree which yielded the famous fruit of the Lotophagi, (Herod. IV. p. 177).

The Jhurberee seldom exceeds two feet in height, but the Ber is a large tree which sometimes grows to the height of between twenty and thirty feet. The Jhurberee is often called the Pala shrub, and is used for many useful purposes. In appearance it is no better than a prickly bush, the fruit however, which resembles a small plum, affords food to the destitute in a famine, and is collected for that purpose by the women and children. It is either mixed with milk and water, or eaten in its natural state with bread, if procurable, and if not, by itself. The leaves are threshed and collected for fodder for the cattle; the briers and thorns form barriers for the fields and cattle sheds, and, when no longer required, are used as fuel

During the year of famine (for it seems to grow equally luxuriant in a drought) the people to the West of the Jumna fed their cattle, and paid a large proportion of their revenue, from its sale. Indeed, in villages where the crop entirely failed, the only collections were from this source. In such cases the people retained one-half for consumption, and disposed of the remainder. Pala leaves, in an average year, sell from 6 to 12 maunds the rupee. The Jhurberee produces also very good gallnuts.

JHURÒÒA, १९९६ स्त्वा jharuá

The name of a nutritious grass of which the grain is something like that of Shamakh (Panicum frumentaceum), of which it is reckoned to be a wild species. It springs up during the rains. The grain is eaten by Hindoos on fast days, and Chumars commonly make it into bread. The stalks are cut up and given to cattle, or applied to the purpose of improving the quality and quantity of milk. It is known also by the name of Suwan, and Suwucen, because it ripens in the month Sawun.

JHUROTA, ७,७३६ महोता jharotá

The close of a season.—See JHOORNA.

JHUTEANA, শুনুমুল ক্লিটেযানা jhatyiána

The Jhuteana, or Jhddteana, is a small clan of Rajpoots found in Pergunahs Sirdhana, Baghput, Soron, Shikarpoor, Bòddhana and Khoorja in the Upper Doab.

Jіјнотел, قريا कुङ् जिम्मे।टिया jhijotiyá

This is a branch of the Canoujea Brahmins, (q.v.), which ranks low in public estimation. Their more correct name is Yajurhota, derived originally, it is said, from their having made burnt offerings according to the forms of the Yajurveda. Their sub-divisions are much of the same character as those of the Canoujeas, but it is needless to enumerate them. Amongst their chief families are reckoned the Choubes of Roopround, the Canoujeas, and the Canoujeas of Canoujeas, and the Canoujeas of Canoujeas.

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P. 502 भं़ जिनहर jinhar JINHUR, Is the name of one of the numerous Gotes of Goodurs, q. v. ज्ञंच निन्स jins Grain, commodities, products. jins-i-kámil JINS-I-KAMIL, जिन्सक्रामिल July mis First-rate crops. The best crop that a field can produce. ्री न्यंक् जिन्सवार jinswár JINSWAR, (A Statement) relative to crops.—See JUMABUNDEE. ्री दंद जिनवार JINWAR, jinwár See Junwar, which is the most usual pronunciation. ७३०० जिरिया जिरिया JIREA. jiriá The name of a rice cultivated in Benares.—See DHAN. ४१, ५ जिजिया JIZEA, iiziá Applied in Saugor to a house-tax on the A tax on infidels. inhabitants of towns not engaged in tillage, which is also called PANDREE, q. v.—See JUZEA. Jog, जाग جوگ The name of the person upon whom a draft or bill of exchange is drawn. JOHUR, उक्र जाहडा johar The name given to a large pond or lake.—Dehli.—See Anur. It is also applied in the Central Doab to any inundated land, and is there pronounced Jhor. In Shakespear's Dictionary, Joohur is said to signify "Pits filled with water at the bottom of mountains." Јонча, र्डिया ने जीहिया johiyá Johyas are by some authorities included among the thirty-six Royal Races of India; by others they are considered a mero ramification of the Yadu Bhatti. In the gathering of the Raj-

poots to defend the Mori Prince of Chittore, they are styled Lords of Junguldes, which included Huriana, Bhutneer and Nagore. There are, I believe, no Rajpoots of this clan, except a very few in K, hyragurh of Allahabad, and those in the Doab, who form a Chourasee in the neighbourhood of Allahabad and Chaile, and who are all converted to Mahometanism. Tod considers the Johyas to be entirely extinct. The Johyas, who held 1100 villages in Jungeldes, were completely subdued, and perhaps in part expelled from their ancient abodes, by the Godaras, with the aid of Beeka, the Rat, hore, the founder of Beekaneer. This occurred at the close of the fifteenth century; but the occupation of the Lower Doab was perhaps of an ear-That there was not a complete expulsion at the period above mentioned, we know from Johyas being recorded, as late as the time of Akber, as still holding Zemindarees in Sirsa. The Johya are considered the same as the Jinjootuh of Baber, but the position thus assigned appears too far to the Westward.

Јок,наее, جو کھائی जाखाई jok,háí

Weighment; the weighman's perquisite; from jok,hna, to weigh.

Jooa, १००३ जूबा júá

The yoke of a carriage or plough.

The word is preserved in many of the Indo-European languages. Thus, Sanscrit Yug, Persian Yogh, Greek Zeugos, German Joch, Latin Jugum, Russian Igum, English Yoke. It is not surprising that there should be so many traces of resemblance in words denoting the parts of a plough, one of the first instruments of man's industry.—See Garee, Hul, and Hulls.

Jooee, جوڻي जूरी júí

An insect destructive to certain crops.—See GINDUR.

JòòGAD GOUR, جگاں گور जुगाद गाँड jugád gaur See Gour Brahmin. The name would be more correctly Jòògadi.

Jòògalna, धार्याः जुगालना jugálna

To chew the cud.

Joola, خواکه जूला júla

A tract of land containing four Alee, or sixteen Beesees.

-Gurhwal, and Kumaon. - See Beesee.

"In Gurhwal, as in Kumaon, there are numerous denominations of land, but the Joola was, and is, the chief measure, differing in value according to local usage, and the various classes of landholders, but in every instance exceeding in quantity one Beesee, and measurable by it."—Gurhwal Settlement Report.

Joona, ৬ নুবা júná Joona, ১০০৪ নুৱা júrá

A rope of twisted grass, or twine, made to support a round-bottomed jar. It is called also Indòòree, Endhòòa, Chukwa, Gòòruree, Gindòòree and Goduree. The original meaning of Joora is the knot into which Hindoos tie their hair at the back of the head.

Jooree, হুট লুরী júrí

From jorna, to join; a small bundle of Sugar-cane. The tops of the Jooree, brought home on the Ekadushee of Katik (see Dit, Hwun), are kept suspended from the roof of the house till the Holee, and burnt during that festival.

I know not whether a similar practice is now observed in Europe, but the learned Moresin in his "Papatus," voce Vacina, speaks of its prevalence in his time, "Vacina Dea, cui sacrificabant agricolæ messe peracta. Papatus fert domum spiceas coronas, quas a tignis suspendit, nunc altaribus suorum tutelarium offerunt, gratias agunt pro collectis frugibus, et otium precantur."

The Devonshire "neck" is also a remnant of the same custom; and as Many precious rites

And customs of our rural ancestry
Are gone, or stealing from us;

Wordsworth,

it may be as well to mention the ceremonies by which it is attended. When the labourers are reaping the last field of wheat, some old man, who is well acquainted with the ceremonies of the occasion, examines all the sheaves, picks out all the best ears which he can find, and ties them up into a neat bundle, which is called the "neck."

"After the field is cut out, and the pitcher once more circulated, the reapers, binders, and the women, stand round in a circle. The person with the neck stands in the centre, grasping it with both his hands. He first stoops and holds it near the ground, and all the men forming the ring, take off their hats, stooping and holding them with both hands towards the ground. They then all begin at once in a very prolonged and harmonious tone to cry "the neck!" at the same time slowly raising themselves upright, and elevating their arms and hats above their heads; the person with "the neck" also raising it on high. This is done three times."—(Hone's Every-Day Book, Vol. 11. 1172).

The neck is then brought home with great acclamations, and hung up in the Farm-House over the table till next harvest, or even for a longer period, as it is considered unlucky to part with it. The origin of the word "neck" I know not; it may be the same as "nick", a sign, a mark, which is now obsolete, and only preserved in the fabulous emblem of the "Swan with two necks,"—originally the Swan with two "nicks," i. e. the mark imposed upon the Royal Swans. These nicks, official visitors were annually appointed to inspect, by upping, or taking up, the birds; which expression has now been cocknified into the yearly Swan-hopping of the London Corporation.

Jooree is also the name of a small necklace strung together from cakes of cowdung, and cast into the fire during the Holee.

Joonemaree, جوزيهاري जूडिमारी júremárí

Literally, brought under the yoke. The term is generally used to signify land actually in possession, in distinction to that which a man is entitled to by virtue of descent from a common ancestor.

Jòòra, धं चुता jutá

Is the name given to the rope connecting the leheree, or irrigating basket, with the hillee, or handle; from jotna, to yoke.

Jooteal, جوتيال जूटियाल jútiyál

See BURWAEK. The word is also pronounced Jooteal.

Jootean, جوتيان जूतियां jútiyan

Land which bears two harvests during the year,—opposed to ekfurda, which bears only one.—Benares. The word is derived from jotna, to cultivate.

Joot, HALEE, جوتهالي जूयाली jút'hálí

Joot, halee bears the same meaning as JOOTEAN, q. v.

Joree, इंजोडी jorí

A pond smaller than a Pok, hur.—Dehli.—See AHUR.

Joshee, न्रेजाणी joshí

An inferior tribe of Brahmins employed in casting nativities and fostering other superstitious practices of the natives. Their name is derived from Jotish astrology, and they are known also by the names of Bhudurea and Dukout. A very different meaning, however, is conveyed by calling a Brahmin a bura Jotishee, which is a title of great consideration, and implies that he is learned in the Jotish Shasters, without engaging in the actual occupations of Joshees. It is with reference to this original meaning, that the Joshees of Kumaon maintain a high character for respectability.

Joт, 🥧 強 जेात jot

Cultivation, tillage. Tenure of a cultivator. It is also sometimes used to signify the rent paid by a cultivator.

SUPPLEMENTAL	GLOSSARY,	N.	W. P.	507
	GHOSSARY,	N.	W. P.	507

Јота,	ण्डे चेता च
JOTAR,		jotá
ourak,	जातार न्रंधिर	jotár
JOTEA,	न् जीतिया	jotiyá
Jotun,	न् जीतन	jotan

A cultivator of land.—See above under Jot.

Barley,—but not exclusively such as is raised by artificial irrigation, as stated in the Printed Glossary.

The Jou, or Barley-corn, is in India, as in many other countries, the primary unit of measures of length. The Asiatics, however, in that fondness for minute quantities which prevails with them, assume a certain number (6 or 8) hairs of a horse's tail, or mane, as equivalent to a Jou. Between Europe and Asia, there is also this difference in the use of the Jou as the basis of measures of length, that in the former it is more usual, though not universal, to take the length of the grain; in the latter, the breadth:—thus, in England, 3 Barley-corns placed end to end make an inch, and in India, 8 Barley-corns' breadths, make a finger. The former is more likely to be correct as an invariable standard, than the latter.

The following Table shews the quantity of Barley in cultivation in the Upper Provinces during the year of Survey.

	ACRES.
Dehli Division,	90,053
Rohilcund Division,	182,476
Meerut Division,	153,050
Agra Division,	359,811
Agra Division,	430,633
Allahadad Division,	1,301,877
Benares Division,	854
Saugor Division,
Total Acres,	2,518,754

Jouchunee, ्रंइ जीवनी jauchaní

A mixed crop of barley and chuna.—See GOJURA.

Jounal, جونال जीनाल jaunal

Land cultivated alternately by Rubbee and Khureef sowings. Land in continual cultivation.—Rohileund and Doab.

In Dehli and Oudh it is applied generally to land which has been cropped during the past season with wheat and barley: which in the Upper Doab is called Binar, and, in some places, Nurdda. In Benarcs the same word, or rather Jounar, means a field in which barley is sown without having borne a previous Khurcef crop. In Bundlecund it means land on which any Rubbee crops have grown.—See Jounar in the Printed Glossary.

It is probable that the meanings ascribed to this word are derived from different sources. When it is applied to Rubbee land alone, we may perhaps look for its root in Jou, barley. Where it means land under constant cultivation, we may perhaps look for its root in Joon, time. Thus, in many places, land exhausted by over-cropping is styled Joonee.

Jounchee, ट्रंड्रं जांची jaunchí

A kind of smut in barley and wheat, in which the ears produce no corn.

Jowar, नुवार juár

A species of Millet.—See Juwar.

Jounna, न्हें जींडा jaunra

Payment of village servants in kind. The word appears to be a corruption of Jeora, q. v.—Eastern Oudh.

Jubdee, नबदी jabdí

A species of rice cultivated in Rohilcund.—See DHAN.

Judhun, ভুতত্ত্ সত্তন jadhan

Jurhun, ज्रें जहन jarhan

A large species of rice, cropped at the close of the rainy season.

Juga, प्रें जगा jagá

The word is more properly Jaga ; but the common pronunciation is Juga.—See Bhat.

Jugnee, جگذی जगनी jagní

A small grain from which oil is extracted. It appears to be the same as the Rumtillee of the Gonds.—Saugor.

Jugunbunsee, جگنبنسي जगनबन्सी jaganbansí

A tribe of Brahmins who hold Zemindaree possessions in Pergunah Kora, Zillah Futtehpoor.—See Goutum.

Jujman, ज्ञामान jajmán

A person from whom Brahmins, or menials, such as barbers, washermen and sweepers, have an hereditary right to claim certain perquisites, on occasion of any ceremonies or services which they are called upon to perform.

Jur, جل সল jal

A Jungle shrub which grows in the Bhuttee Territory.

Jula, ১ ৯ সলা jala

A lake; from jul water.

Julalea, न्याय्रे जलालिया jaláliyá

A fine species of wheat with reddish ears.—Saugor.

Julasa, ट्रीय जलामा jalása

A pool of water, a tank.

Julkur, न्यान jalkar

The produce and piscary of rivers, jheels, tanks, &c, also, the revenue assessed thereon.—See Jelcora and Julkur in the Printed Glossary.

Julm, न्रीं जलम jalm

Birth, birthright; used to denote proprietary right, especially in the soil.—Saugor. The word is a corruption of Junum, birth.

JULNEEM, ट्रांड्र जलनीम jalním

A bitter herb which grows on the banks of Tulaos. It is used medicinally as a cure for the itch, and has a purgative quality. It has obtained its name from its springing up only in the vicinity of water.

JULOT SURG, جارف سرگ जलोत सर्गे jalot sarg

The ceremony which is gone through, when a pond, baolee, or well, is married. It has been already described under Bunot Surg, q. v. The only difference is that the bride is personated by an image, instead of the Toolsee. The word is derived from the Sanscrit sa water* and sati donation. The advantages to be derived from the ceremony are shown in the 3rd Chap. of the Nirnye Sindh. It is the general impression amongst Europeans that this marriage ceremony takes place only between a well and a garden, but this union is exceedingly rare;—the most usual practice being, as mentioned before, to perform the marriage ceremony of each separately.

Jul Peepul, جل پیپل जल पीपल jal pípal

A herb somewhat resembling the pepper plant. It is called also Uspoboota in the Turace Pergunahs. In the Taleef-i-Shureef it is called Julpeelbuka.

Juma, इंग्लं जमा jama

The whole; total; revenue generally; and the Government demand in particular. Amount assessed.

• In English, Gill, is a provincial word for a rivulet, but whether with a soft or harsh initial g, I know not.

Jumabundee, ्रांग्डिं जमावन्दी jamabandí

A village rent-roll. A statement of the rents fixed on every field in the Township. In Madras it signifies the annual settlement of the Revenue, and bears this meaning in the Printed Glossary.

The term is very comprehensive, and, indeed, admits of so many meanings, that it is found to change, so as to accommodate itself to the prevalent system of Revenue management. About fifteen years ago, a Jumabundee was most commonly known as a doul, or estimate, on which to base an assessment, It is now applied chiefly to the annual Rent-roll furnished by the Village Accountants. It is also used variously in villages, as well as in Government Records. Jinswar Jumabundee, for instance, is usually a detailed statement of the rent levied upon each kind of crop. In Birj, it is more specially applied to a kind of tenure found in parts of that tract.

JUMA JHURTEE,

jama jhartí

न्भ स्क्र जमामती

A Statement of receipts and expenditure. Periodical account of either cash or grain,—Saugor.

Juma khurch, جمع خرج जमाखर्च jama kharch

Debit and Credit. Cash Account.

JUMA WASIL BAKEE,

jama wásil báqí

जमा वािंसल बाकी

An account of the Revenue of Government, with entries of payments and arrears.

Jumnouta, एं जमनीटा jamnautá

Jumnoutea, جمنوتيا जमनीटिया jamnautyá

A certain consideration given to a Zamin, or Security; generally amounting to about five per Cent.

Jumog, جموگ जमोग jamog

Transfer of liabilities by mutual consent. A conditional Mortgage.—Benares, Eastern Oudh, and Lower Doab.

Jumogdar, جمو گدار जमागदार jamogdár

A person who lends a landed proprietor a sum of money, and recovers that money from the Ryuts.—Benares, E. Oudh, and Lower Doab.

Jumoout, छ००० जमूवट jamúat

The foundation of a well; from jumna to join, to adhere. Hence the word is applied to the festive ceremony on the occasion of completing the foundation of a well.—Benares. In the Dehli Territory this ceremony is called Nychuk and Neemchuk, which are names applied also to the foundation of the well; from neeche below. Newar is the most usual word elsewhere.—See Jak, hun.

Jumowa, १९०० जमोवा jamoá

Indigo planted before the rains, and irrigated by artificial means.—Central Doab.

Jumowa is also the name of a tree.

Jumwea, नमैया jamaiyá

The name of a grass in Dehli.

Jundoulea, جندوليا जंदीिलया jandauliyá

A small clan of Rajpoots in Cheeboomow, Zillah Banda.

Jundra, जंदरा jandrá

Shakespear says, Jundra means a pitchfork; but in the Upper Provinces it is most usually applied to a kind of rake used during irrigation for dividing a field into small beds. It is used by two men,—one holds the handle, and the other holds a string attached to the forks of the rake in a direction opposite to handle. It is an incovenient method of employing two men to do the work of one. The name Jundra is used chiefly to the Westward. Elsewhere, the same implement is known by the name of Manjho and Kurha, and solid wood more sensibly supplies the place of the forks of the rake.

Junewa, المبارة जनेवा janewá

A kind of fragrant grass which grows in fields which have been cultivated with Khureef crops. Its flower is like that of the Doob, but its stem is erect, and grows to about the height of a foot and a half.

Jung, Hara, जियारा jang'hárá

A large, and somewhat turbulent, tribe of Rajpoots of the Tuar clan, in the South East of Rohilcund, whence they appear to have expelled the Kut, heryas. They are large proprietors in Ooshut, Fureedpoor, Mehrabad, Beesulpoor, Sulempoor, Tilhur, Julalpoor and K, hera Bujhera, and are found as Asamees in K, hotar, and Beesulpoor. They are sub-divided into the Bhoor and Turaeen Jung, haras, and these again have their sub-divisions, which it is needless here to detail;—but it may be mentioned that the Bhoor rank first, on account of the Turaeen clan, having adopted the practice of Curao. q. v. They profess to have come to these parts under a leader called Dhuppoo Dham, whose name is immortalized in popular poetry for his gallant opposition to some chief of Budaon.

नीचे धरती जपर राम वीच में लडे ढणू धाम

Neeche Dhurtee, oopur Ram, Beech men lure Dhuppoo Dham.

The Jung, haras were once a powerful clan in the neighbour-hood of Coel, where, though they are now but small proprietors, they once held four separate Chourasees—that of Mundrak, held by the descendants of Ludhar—of Chundphuree, held by the descendants of Chand—of Baroun, held by the descendants of Meg, h Raja—of Uglas, held by the descendants of Ajye Raj—

One of his descendants, Mudhòòkur, is also famous in local ballads.

मधुकर मधुकर हूं कहूं हूं आये। मधुकर पास जी मधुकर घर नाहिं हैं तो कीन काम अगलास जहां मधुकर जहां केतकी जहां भवर करें गुंजार एक मधुकर कमल के। जीहि खडग दान संभार पांसे कृप्यन दीजिये पीठ न एकी। लिगया पांसे कृप्यन सांगिया धकरा गांव से भगिया

Mudhòòkur Mudhòòkur hoon kuhoon, hoon ayo Mudhookur pas; Jo Mudhòòkur g,hur naheen hyn, tou koun kam Uglas. Juhan Mudhòòkur, juhan ketkee, juhan bhuwur kuren gòònjar, Ek Mudhòòkur kumul ko jehi khurg dan sumbhar. Panse chhuppun deejie, peet,h na ekou lagia, Panse chhuppun mangia, Dhukra ganw se bhugia.

These lines are often quoted in allusion to his splendid donation of 556 horses to his Bhat, for which the Dhakura of Goreyee, as he was unable to present the saddles, was compelled for shame to leave his ancestral home, and take up his abode in K,heree Burhun of Juleysur. The whole story exemplifies the power of the Bards, as well as the generosity of Mudhòòkur; whose lineal descendant is still Raee of Uglas, and chief of the clan. Those Jung,haras intermarry with Poondeers, give their daughters to Chouhans and Birgoojurs, and receive daughters from Bhals, Jaes, and Gehlotes.

Jungra, जिंगरा jangrá

The haulm of Khureef produce.—Lower Doab.

Junootoorwa, جنوتوروا হানুব্ৰা janútúrwá
A small clan of Rajpoots in Gungapoor, Zillah Benares.

JUNTREE, ७५३६० जनारी jantrí

An Almanac, or Register. It originally meant a perforated piece of metal through which wire is drawn, and may have subsequently been applied to an Almanac on account of its having many open compartments, or ruled divisions.

JUNWAR, १११८ं जनवार janwár

There are a few of this tribe of Rajpoots in Schonda and Simounee of Bundlecund; Rusoolabad and Bit, hoor of Cawnpoor; and Kootea Gooneer of Futtehpoor.

أَعِدُورِيا janwariyá JUNWUREA, A tribe of Aheers.—See AHEER.

जराइता jaráita JURAETA, One of the divisions of the Touhur, or Tuar, clan .-See JATOO.

७५५ जिर्या jariyá JUREA,

One of the seven divisions of the Lodh tribe.—See Lodn.

Also, the name of the fulcrum which supports the pivot on which the arm of the Dhenklee turns; derived perhaps from jur, which signifies a root, both in Sanscrit and Arabic.

्रं जरीव न्र्रं jaríb JUREEB,

A measuring chain, or rope. Before Akber's time it was a rope. He directed it should be made of Bamboo with iron joints, as the rope was subject to the influence of the weather. In our Survey measurements we use a chain. A Jureeb contains 60 Guz, or 20 Gut, has, and, in the standard measurement of the Upper Provinces, is equal to five chains of 11 yards, each chain being equal to 4 Gut, has. A square of one Jureeb is a Beeg, ha. Till the new system of Survey was established, it was usual to measure lands paying Revenue to Government with only 18 knots of the Jureeb, which was effected by bringing two knots over the shoulder of the measurer to his waist. Rent-free land was measured with the entire Jureeb of 20 knots.

A Jureeb, in Hebrew and Arabic, signified originally only a measure of capacity, equal to 4 Qufcez, or 384 Mud* (Latin Modius), and in course of time came to signify the portion of land which required as much to sow it as a Jureeb would contain.— (Asasu-l-Loghat). The Pat,ha and Nalee of Gurhwa and Kumaon have a similar origin.—See Beese. This use of the term must have altered before the reign of Timoor, for in the Institutes we have the following injunction, which is evidently the foundation of Akber's division of soil into three classes.

واگر رعیت بحاصل و قسمت سه توده راضي نشود اراضي مضبوط را اول و دویم و سویم جریب نمایند و جریب اول را سه خورار و جریب دریم را درخروار و جریب سویم را یک خورار جمع بربندند و نصف را گندم و نصفي را جو اعتبار کنند و انچه جمع شود در یک مال بگیرند

JUREEBKUSH, جريبكش jaribkash Surveyor, measurer. Literally, a drawer of the measuring chain.

JUREEMANA, جريمانك जरोमाना jarímána Fine, penalty; given as Jerumana in the Printed Glossary.

Jureeta, ४२, जडीटा jarítá

Brushwood, brambles. The word is used provincially, and is perhaps a corruption of the Hindee Jhoor which signifies the same.

Jurela, خريله जरेला jarela

The name of a rice cultivated in Rohilcund.

*These words are both retained in the Spanish cafiz and almud.—Indeed, nearly all the Spanish weights and measures are, like very many administrative words, (v. p. 312) derived from the Arabic:—As the quintal of one hundred pounds, from kintur: of which the fourth (ròòba) is the arroba: arralde, a pound, from arrattl; xeme, a span, from shamah; and so on.—See "Al hakkari," Vol. 1. p. 500.

JURET, HA, إلا jaret'há

The name of one of the clans of Cachhees. —See Cachhees.

Jurga, ज्ञर्गा jargá

The name of a grass given as fodder to cattle, especially to horses. It grows generally on high ground.

Jurwee, جروي जडवी jarwí

The name given to the small shoots of the rice plant, when it first springs from the ground.

Jurwut, ত্রু जडवट jarwat
The trunk of a tree.

JUSAWUR, بساور সমান্য jasáwar

Jusawur, or Jusawut, is the name of a tribe of Rajpoots in Areeng of Muttra. They are held in no great consideration.

Jutranee, جتراني जतरानी jatrání

A tribe of Jats in Rohilcund and Dehli .- See JAT.

JUTUR, jatar
Cultivated land.—Upper Doab.

Juwalee, جوالي जवाली jawálí

Juwala, or Juwalee, signifies gram mixed with barley as food for cattle. Also, a small mixture of barley with wheat.

Juwar, १९०० जवार jawár

A species of millet which grows from a height of eight to twelve feet on a reedy stem. (Holcus Sorghum). It is known also by the names of Jondhree, and in some places, of Joundee, There are generally reckoned to be four kinds of Juwar. The red kind, or Joginia Juwar, is large, bears a lower price than the other qualities, and its stalk is not good fodder for cattle. The Bounea, (from Bouna, a dwarf) is small, very white. grows straiter than the other kinds, and its stalk is also consigrows straiter which denotes in Arabic its connection with a place of pilgrimage. One of the species, the Alhogi Maurorum (which is said by some to be the Juwasa itself) is celebrated for its production of the Manna of the Desert.

Juwasa is considered a good medicine in bilious disorders, but is chiefly known to Europeans as a substitute for Khuskhus in Tattees. In ancient times Juwasa appears to have been eaten by Bullocks, as well as Camels: for we find those animals represented in the "Toy Cart" as chewing Juwasa. If they were able to accomplish this, their palates must have altered considerably; unless, as perhaps was the case, the prickly herb was chopped up into little bits and given as fodder in that state.

Juwaz, नवाज jawáz

A Persian word signifying a wooden mortar; a Sugar-Mill; an Oil-Mill.

Juwunpoorea, בּניֹאָפָנִישׁ जवनपूरिया jawanpúriya
A subdivision of the Cachhee tribe. q. v.

Juzea, جزيه जिया jaziya

From the Arabic sets subjugation; conquest; compensation. A Capitation Tax levied by the Mahometans on their subjects of another faith. The correct word is Jizea, but it seems usual in Hindoostan to pronounce the word Juzea.—See Juzziah, Jezia, and Jyzeyeb in the Printed Glossary.

From the passage quoted from the Ayeen-i-Akberee, in the article Altungha, it appears that the Khuleefa Odmur laid an annual tax upon every one who was not of the Mahomedan religion. A person of high condition paid 48 Dirhems, one of moderate means 24 Dirhems, and one in an inferior station 12 Dirhems.—See "Hedaya," Book IX., Cap. II. and VIII.

It does not exactly appear when this tax was instituted in India. Tod ("Annals of Rajasthan," Vol. I. p. 403,) thinks it was imposed by Baber in lieu of the Tumgha which he solemnly renounced on the field of battle, after the victory which gave him the crown of India, but we read of it long before this, for as early as the time of Ala-òòd-Deen, only a century after the final subjugation of Hindoostan, we find it spoken of as an established tax. Thus, in the Dialogue, recorded by Zeea-òòd-Deen Burny and Ferishta, between that Tyrant and Cazee Mòòghees-òòd-Deen, we read, "From what description of Hindoos is it lawful to exact obedience and tribute?" To which the obsequious Cazee replies, "The Imam Huncef says that the Juzea, or as heavy a tribute as they can bear, may be imposed instead of death on Infidels, and it is commanded that the Juzea and Khiraj be exacted to the uttermost farthing in order that the punishment may approach as near as possible to death." "You may perceive," replied the King, "that, without reading learned books, I am in the habit of putting in practice that which has been enjoined by the prophet."

But it would appear that up to the time of Feroze Shah, Brahmins were exempted from the tax, for in a very interesting Chapter of Shums-i-Serajee's work we find that Monarch imposing it for the first time on this influential class.

و در عهد سلاطین پیشین البته از طایفه زنارداران جزیه نستیده جزیه ایشان معاف کرده بردند هیپ وتتی این طائعه بکسی جزیه نداده سلطان نیررز شاه بترفیق حضرت الله جمیع علماء دین دار و مشایخ نامدار را بدرگاه خود جمع کنانیده بگرش ایشان رسانیده که این غلط عام انتاده که از طایغه زناردار جزیه نسته و سلاملین کذشته که درین کار کوشش بسیار نکرده از سبب آنکه کار کنان و غلامان آنزمانه هوا خواهان یگانه غفلت درزیده بر ایشان آگاهی نداده چرن طائفه زناردار کلید حجره کفر اند و کافران بر ایشان مستقل اند ارل از ایشان جزیه بستانند معاف ندارند

On this occasion, which was so much at variance with his usual spirit of conciliation, the Brahmins through him in his Hunting-Palace, and threatened to burn themselves alive before him; and at last were only dissuaded from their purpose by the other Hindoos of Dehli taking upon themselves to pay the Juzea of the Brahmins. In his time, the highest class of Hindoos was rated at 40, the second at 20, and the third at 10 Tunkas per head; and these remonstrances had the effect of which denotes in Arabic its connection with a place of pilgrimage. One of the species, the Alhogi Maurorum (which is said by some to be the Juwasa itself) is celebrated for its production of the Manna of the Desert.

Juwasa is considered a good medicine in bilious disorders, but is chiefly known to Europeans as a substitute for Khuskhus in Tattees. In ancient times Juwasa appears to have been eaten by Bullocks, as well as Camels: for we find those animals represented in the "Toy Cart" as chewing Juwasa. If they were able to accomplish this, their palates must have altered considerably; unless, as perhaps was the case, the prickly herb was chopped up into little bits and given as fodder in that state.

Juwaz, नवाज jawáz

A Persian word signifying a wooden mortar; a Sugar-Mill; an Oil-Mill.

Juwunpoorea, جونبوريا जवनपूरिया jawanpúriya A subdivision of the Cachhee tribe. q. v.

Juzea, न्हांज्या jaziya

From the Arabic 1; subjugation; conquest; compensation. A Capitation Tax levied by the Mahometans on their subjects of another faith. The correct word is Jizea, but it seems usual in Hindoostan to pronounce the word Juzea.—See Juzziah, Jezia, and Jyzeyeb in the Printed Glossary.

From the passage quoted from the Ayeen-i-Akberee, in the article Altumgha, it appears that the Khuleefa Odmur laid an annual tax upon every one who was not of the Mahomedan religion. A person of high condition paid 48 Dirhems, one of moderate means 24 Dirhems, and one in an inferior station 12 Dirhems.—See "Hedaya," Book IX., Cap. II. and VIII.

It does not exactly appear when this tax was instituted in India. Tod ("Annals of Rajasthan," Vol. I. p. 403,) thinks it was imposed by Baber in lieu of the Tumgha which he solemnly renounced on the field of battle, after the victory which gave him the crown of India, but we read of it long before this, for as early as the time of Ala-òòd-Deen, only a century

after the final subjugation of Hindoostan, we find it spoken of as an established tax. Thus, in the Dialogue, recorded by Zeea-òòd-Deen Burny and Ferishta, between that Tyrant and Cazee Mòòghees-òòd-Deen, we read, "From what description of Hindoos is it lawful to exact obedience and tribute?" To which the obsequious Cazee replies, "The Imam Huneef says that the Juzea, or as heavy a tribute as they can bear, may be imposed instead of death on Infidels, and it is commanded that the Juzea and Khiraj be exacted to the uttermost farthing in order that the punishment may approach as near as possible to death." "You may perceive," replied the King, "that, without reading learned books, I am in the habit of putting in practice that which has been enjoined by the prophet."

But it would appear that up to the time of Feroze Shah, Brahmins were exempted from the tax, for in a very interesting Chapter of Shums-i-Serajee's work we find that Monarch imposing it for the first time on this influential class.

ر در عهد سلاطین پیشین البته از طایقه زنارداران جزیه نستیده جزیه ایشان معاف کرده بردند هیچ رقتی این طائفه بکسی جزیه نداده سلطان فیررز شاه بترفیق حضرت الله جمیع علماء دین دار و مشایخ نامدار را بدرگاه خود جمع کنانیده بگرش ایشان رسانیده که این غلط عام افتاده که از طایفه زناردار جزیه نستد و سلاطین کذشته که درین کار کرشش بسیار نکرده از سبب آنکه کار کنان و غلامان آنزمانه هوا خواهان یگانه غفلت ورزیده بو ایشان آگاهی نداده چون ظائفه زناردار کلید حجوه کفر اند و کافران بو ایشان مستقل اند ارل از ایشان جزیه بستانند معاف ندارند

On this occasion, which was so much at variance with his usual spirit of conciliation, the Brahmins through him in his Hunting-Palace, and threatened to burn themselves alive before him; and at last were only dissuaded from their purpose by the other Hindoos of Dehli taking upon themselves to pay the Juzea of the Brahmins. In his time, the highest class of Hindoos was rated at 40, the second at 20, and the third at 10 Tunkas per head; and these remonstrances had the effect of inducing the King to admit the Brahmins to the favorable terms of the lowest class.

We again learn that it was enforced with great severity in the time of Behlole and Secunder Lodi, which was perhaps no inconsiderable cause of the facility with which the empire was wrested from the hands of that family.

The tax was abolished by Akber in the 9th year of his reign, and was not imposed again till the 22nd of Aurungzebe, who, with his wonted intolerance, directed that its levy should be attended with every circumstance of contumely which his ingenuity could devise.

ونيز حكم شدة بود كه اخذ جزية ازدمي باين رضع نمايند كه دمي جزية را خود گرفته بياره و پيادة آيد راحدي نشسته باشد و دمي ايستادة و احدي دست دمي نمودة ازدست بردارد و اگر بدست نائب خود بفرستد قبول نكنند و از غني جزية سالتمام يكدست بگيرد و ارسط بدو قسط و نقير بچهار قسط و جزية ساقط ميشود بشوط اسلام و موت

Zòòbdut-òòl-Ukhbarat.

It was at this time that admirable letter is said to have been written, which is ascribed by Orme to Jeswunt Sing,h, by Tod to Rana Raj Sing,h, and by the Mahrattas to Sevajee. (Grant Duff, Vol. 1., p. 219, and Elphinstone's India, Vol. 11., p. 458). Stewart (Hist: Bengal, p. 308) says that Shaista Khan in A. D. 1679-80 enforced the Juzca in Bengal at the rate of  $6\frac{1}{2}$  per 1000 on all property, and that Christians paid one and a half per Cent additional duty on their commerce. The sick, lame, and blind were excused.

From this period it appears to have been regularly levied, and with particular severity in the time of Furròdkhseer (in consequence of the appointment of Enayut-Odllah as Financial Minister, who had been Secretary to the bigoted Aurungzebe) until the time of Rufee-odd-Durjat, when the Barha Syuds abolished it, and the Hindoos again recovered their consequence,—Ruttun Chund, a Hindoo, being appointed Financial Minister, and being possessed even of such influence, as to be empowered to nominate the Mahomedan Cazees of the Provinces.*

523

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

After the death of Ruttun Chund, the Capitation Tax was once more levied, as it is stated to have been again repealed by Mahomed Shah, at the intercession of Maharaja Jye Sing,h and Girdhur Buhadòòr.

باین چشمداشت راجهٔ جیسنگههٔ و گردهر بهادر از بهر معانی جزیه بعرضرسانیدنه گیتی خداوند بعز اقبال و شرف اجابت تارک مباعات ایشانرا برانوانختند و تا یومالتیام داخل این دراب عظیم و نیکنامی مخیم فرموده و نیز به التجاے این در رکنالسلطنت و زیر اعظم طریق خیر پسندیده قبول نمودند و سیف الدرله عبدالصمد خان بهادر در ثبات کلمةالخیر گفته تسرست الدرله عبدالصمد خان بهادر در ثبات کلمةالخیر گفته تسرستودند و سیف الدرله عبدالصمد خان بهادر در ثبات کلمةالخیر گفته

Since that period, no Emperor was possessed of sufficient authority to enforce the Juzea, and this odious tax became extinct for ever:—but not till it had operated as one of the most effectual causes of the decline of the Mahometan power, by alienating the affections of the Hindoo population, which the early Moghul Emperors had courted, and in some measure obtained.

Juzur, जंजर jazar

A term in Arithmetic signifying duplation, or doubling a number, which like mediation, or halving, is considered in Oriental works to be a separate operation from ordinary multiplication, or division, and is so entered in European books on Arithmetic of the sixteenth Century.

A weed which springs up with Rubbee crops.—See JYTEE.

Oats. The name has been only lately introduced into the * Colonel Galloway (Law and Constit: of India, p. 27), states this on the authority of Ferishta: but Ferishta died more than a century before this period.

524

N. W. P. as the grain was not known before the acquisition of this country by the British. It may perhaps have been so called from its being considered a small kind of barley; thus, from jou, jouce, jyee; as from chuna, chunce; and bord, dordee. The word however is not new, though the application of it is; for the small shoots of Barley (especially cultivated by Brahmins for the purpose, in anticipation of the season) which are carried about in the turbans of Hindoos during the Duschra, are in many places known by the name of Jye, or Jyee,* either because of the smallness of the Barley, or in commemoration of the Jye, or triumph, of Rama over Ravana, the Demon-lord of Lunka.

It is worthy of remark that in Benares, Bundlecund, and the Lower Doab, Oats are called Ramjow, i. e. the Barley of Rama. As the Hindoos already had an Indurjow (Echites antidysenterica) Ramjow was not altogether an unnatural combination to represent a new grain which bore a resemblance to Barley.† -Ramjow, therefore, being the name which the natives chose first to give this grain, it is not altogether improbable that we may derive our Jyee from the ceremony above alluded to, rather than from its being considered a small species of Barley. The very name of Ramjow would instantly suggest Jye,-both being words intimately connected with the festival of the Dusehra.

काठी चढे पुकारे जये षिचरी षाकर क्यों ना वये

Kot, hee churhe pookare jye K, hichree k, hakur kyoon na byc.

stances of Ram-phul, Sita-phul, Sri-phul.

* This is likewise the name given to the first sprout of germinating rice (see JUWARA) when the sceds are steeped in water previous to sowing. There is also a small species of Barley well known in Rohilcund as Jye, or Jyee, as is snown by the following couplet, in which its easy and rapid growth is remarked-

&quot;The jye halloos out from the house tops, why not sow me after the Mukur Sunkrant?" which implies that its growth is very quick. † This principle of nomenclature may be observed in the analagous in-

525

SUPPLEMENTAL GLOSSARY, N. W. P.

Jyswar, • ज्रीमनार jaiswár

See JASAWUR and JUSWAR in the Printed Glossary.

A tribe of inferior Jadonbunsee Rajpoots in the Pergunahs of Uleepoor Puttee, Kishnee Nubeegunge, and Azimnugur in Central Doab. Jyswar, or rather Jaeswara, is also the name of a sub-division of Chumars, Dhanuks, Kulals, Moraos, Coormees, Telees, Bunias, and many other inferior tribes; and implies perhaps that they came originally from Jaes, a large manufacturing town in Oudh. It must have been a place of much greater importance than it is at present, to have given name, like Sunkasya, Sringavera, Canouj, and Sravasti,* to so many distinct families. Kusba Jaes is also mentioned with distinction by the early Mahomedan authors, particularly in the Lutaif-i-Ashrufee, or records of the acts and opinions of Ashruf Jehangeer. On one occasion when this sainted personage visited Jaes, it is stated (in the 57th Luteefa) that nearly three thousand pupils came out to pay their respects. In the Imperial Register also it is mentioned as the chief town of a large Pergunah; and it may be questioned if at one time it was not even the seat of a subordinate Government; for in a Book published at Leyden in 1631, De Imperio magni Mogolis sive India vera, the author, Jean de Lâct, divides the Empire into 37 Provinces, • In the article Chourasee the position of Sunkasya has been indicated. Sringavera is mentioned in the Ramayana as a village which was in the midst of a forest extending on both sides of the Ganges, inhabited by Nishadas, or wild tribes, who assisted in ferrying Rama, Luchmun, and Sita over the river. Sringravera is the modern Singrour, of which the consequence has declined only lately, for it is mentioned as the chief town of a Pergunah in the Ayeeni-Akherec, and by the Jesuit Tiessenthaler in the middle of last Century. It lies on the left bank of the Ganges, about twenty-five miles above Allahabad, and is now included in the Fergunah of Nuwabgunge. (v. p. 324). The Singrourea Cachhee and Cdormees derive their name from this town.

The Canoujea families have been frequently mentioned throughout this work, and of course derive their name and origin from Canouj.

From Sravasti we appear to have the Sreebastum Kayet, hs and Naces, and the Siree Bat, hum Dhobees; if so, they would lead us, like the Suhsena Kayet, hs with respect to Sunkasya, to an identification of the old town of Sravasti; for they trace their origin to a place which still bears nearly the same name, about eight miles to the West of Fyzabad, near the ancient Ajodhya.

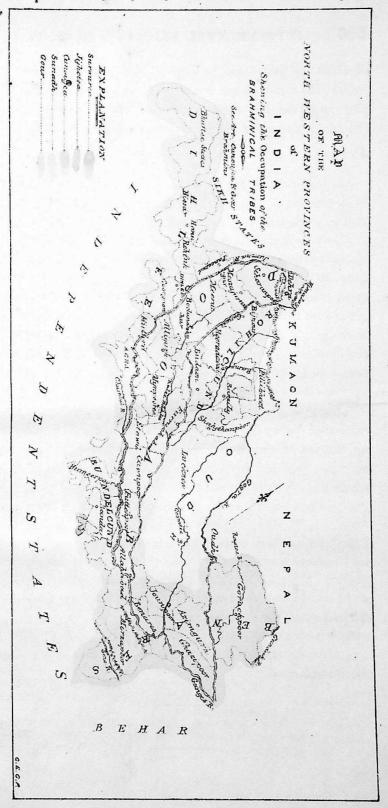

of which one is Zesswal, or Jesswal; and as there is no other in his list which at all corresponds with Oudh, or any other place in its neighbourood, we may, in want of more certain information, surmise that Jaes might have been intended.

JYTEE, नेती jaití

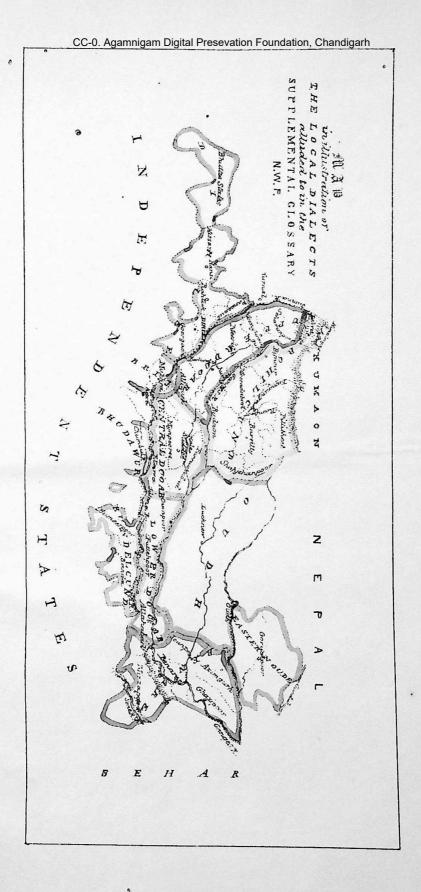

Jytee, Jouchee, or Jychee, is the name of an Euphorbia in the Western part of these Provinces, which springs up with the Rubbee crops, and yields an excellent oil. The plant is about two feet high, and three in circumference, and the seed yields about one-fifth of its weight in oil. In a paper, presented in May 1843 to the Horticultural Society of Calcutta, it is stated as an extraordinary thing that the seed will not come up on the ground on which it was last shed, if that land has in rotation been under a Khureef crop. But there appears nothing wonderful in this (even if the statement is true to the fullest extent, which perhaps it is not) because land under a Khureef crop is always most thoroughly weeded, and the Jytee seed would not be allowed to remain in it. If the land remain uncultivated during the Khureef, a few Jytee plants would come up, but not of course so many as would appear, had the land been ploughed and prepared for a Rubbee crop. In these respects it obeys some of the conditions of Mutouna.—(See Dodo.) The previous ploughing for the Rubbee has such an effect upon Jytee, that it will spring up the third year after it is shed, even if the land has been under an intermediate Khureef crop. not therefore necessary to suppose that it has any natural affinity with the Rubbee grains; the mere ploughing, and exposure of the soil to the genial influence of the atmosphere, are sufficient to account for its germination.

Jytee does not appear likely to repay the trouble of cultivation, notwithstanding the expectation held out in the paper above-mentioned.

THE END.

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh

CC-0. Agamnigam Digital Presevation Foundation, Chandigarh